One of the most influential representatives from the South is Albert S. Burlison, of the Tenth Texas District. He is a power in his own State, and in Congress he is at all times a prominent figure. He is so ardent an advocate of Champ Clark for the presidency that his friends refer to him as a Clark enthusiast. The newspaper men consider Burlison a "live wire," and they seldom go to him without bringing away news.

The New Summer White House

BY MARY TAYLOR FALT

TWENTY years ago when the late Henry W. Peabody of Salem laid out "Parramatta," his beautiful Montserrat estate, he was imbued with the memories and charms of journeyings in Japan, New South Wales and other countries. To have tangible connection with these pleasant memories of foreign travel, he called his Montserrat estate "Parramatta" because this section of Beverly so reminded him of the lovely country shore of New South Wales. "Parramatta" is a charming town by a picturesque river in New South Wales.

The Japanese gardens with their riot of color whispered of happy and interesting days in Yokohama.

The late owner of "Parramatta" knew President Taft in Manila when he was stationed there as Governor. Little did he dream that the care and thought bestowed on "Parramatta" was eventually for the enjoyment of a President of the United States in the person of Hon. Mr. Taft.

Some of the many advantages of the new summer White House over its predecessor is that it is located in separate grounds. Its site is all its own as are its sixty-five acres of private grounds, capable of affording a nine hole golf course. It is quiet and isolated. It is close by the Montserrat station from which point by trolley, train or auto, delightful excursions can be taken to the numerous inland and seashore places that lie in all directions. From its high elevation no view of the adjacent landscape is cut off.

Born and bred in Salem, holding tenaciously to her associations and traditions, it is not surprising that Mr. Peabody should have chosen the colonial type of architecture for the residence to grace "Parramatta." The house is not quite as large as the one on the Evans estate at Beverly Cove occupied last season by President Taft. It is, however, most comfortable, commodious and home-like in its arrangements and appointments. Some interior changes have been made to adjust the house to the official needs of President Taft.

The instinctive desire of North Shore summer residents to preserve her natural beauties in laying out their estates was a prominent characteristic of the late Mr. Peabody. He preserved every natural beauty: the great rocks, the primeval forests, the old trees, the wild shrubs. He had a glow of color in the confines of "Parramatta" practically the whole year round.

The Japanese Garden was devised from a swamp, drained and cleared. Forty varieties of maples, hundreds of iris, two hundred azaleas, a hundred peach, plum and cherry trees, arbors of purple and white wistaria, hardy chrysanthemums were all planted to adorn it, white forget-me-nots, violets, tall hedge mallows; bamboos, magnolias and maiden-hair ferns added to the floral beauty.

KETTLE COVE—Site of Manchester's First Settlement

The now exclusive Coolidge Point, Manchester Cove, on which is established the beautiful estate of Hon. T. Jefferson Coolidge and others, is believed to have been the site of the first house built by John Kettle, who was one of the earliest settlers to help found Manchester's initial settlement at Kettle Cove, in 1626 and 1627, and for whom the cove was named.

Its qualifications then as now embodied a safe harbor, sheltering hills and an ideal spot for settlement and fishing.

There are vestiges today of the "infinite thick woods" of the olden day in which lurked the traditional wild beasts and savage men. Today they are the haunt of bird and harmless squirrel, the stately borders for beautiful drives, backgrounds for pleasure, beach or golf links, a remarkable metamorphose in the varied and romantic history of Manchester, of which Kettle Cove was the beginning. In September, 1890, one of the original Cove houses built in 1690 by John Knight was taken down.

In 1700, the "Cove" had grown to be quite the largest precinct in the town. During the Revolution, Kettle Cove assumed her patriotic role appearing as the unfortified watch tower against the hostile British, four watchers doing guard duty on Great Crow Island.

In 1812 an attempted invasion of an English man-of-war was made at Kettle Cove. From Crow Island the alarm was given by the cannon reposing there, the militia being hidden among the rocks and bushes of the island awaiting the invaders with the accompaniment of fife and drum. The enemy from the frigate hearing the cannon and the martial music believed a very large force was concealed on the island and quickly rowed away. The glee of the gallant soldiers of Manchester over their ruse was a victory despite its non-spilling of blood. In 1835 a Capt. John Hooper kept a store at the Cove and it was the resort of the militia on training days.

The modern invasion of Kettle Cove is a marked transformation of the ancient town. Barren wastes have been cultivated, woodlands preserved; new locations developed bringing to view new and delightful vistas over the finest of macadamized roads.

Stately residences crown the historic heights and from their embowered, sylvan recesses a panorama of sea and shore can be viewed from the "Cove" making Nature a grand interpreter of the Creator.

As for the early settler and voyager, they stood in wonder at "so many islands replenished with thick wood and high trees and so many fair green pastures."

In fact everything, "rivers, fresh springs, fish, fowl, wild fruits, good timber, much corn, many good harbors, a temperate air," the gifts of the Gods to the Pilgrims to a new world, are here today. So the Gods still continue to be good to the seekers of new environments and for peaceful and beautiful summer havens. Kettle Cove and her environs contribute a generous share of these attributes which can be found along the entire North Shore.

MR. PERINE, Resident Partner

IN THE INTEREST OF HAMPTON.

Meeting at the Residence of T. J. Coolidge, Jr., Tuesday, at Which President Taft Presided.

A meeting was held Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., Manchester, in the interest of Hampton, the well known institution of the south. President Taft presided at the meeting and about a hundred of the North Shore cottagers were in attendance. Miss Harriot Curtis, who was the leading member of the committee arranging for this meeting, said yesterday that she thought pledges amounting to between two and three thousand dollars would be received.

President Taft took occasion to declare his opinion that "the Negro ought to come, and is coming, more and more under the guardianship of the South." He said he did not seek to curb or criticize "Northern generosity" toward the Negro and Negro education, but added "those of us who study the question know that the hope of the Negro is in his white neighbor in the South."

The President's speech was made in introducing Governor Mann of Virginia, who was present as the representative of the Commonwealth under whose law the Hampton Institute has prospered and done that good work which the President viewed as pointing the way, perhaps, to the solution of the Negro problem.

Among other things Mr. Taft said: "Hampton Institute, as you know, or ought to know, is the first large successful vocational school that was ever organized in this country. It is an interesting fact that the industrial education of this country began and grew out of a problem which was presented to General Armstrong in his attempt to educate and put on a living basis a great number of Negroes who had collected in Virginia and were dependent upon him and those who would work for their well-being. He concluded that the only thing that he could do was to teach them how to be useful in their communities, how to work and work to a purpose, and he established, with great effort and persistence, this school at Hampton.

"As President Eliot said, at Hampton Institute was established the first successful industrial school in this country. Now at its head is Dr. Frissell, who succeeded General Armstrong, and he has to go about the country begging enough money to support that institution. I always come in with a living protest—a protest of indignation—that an institution so useful as that is throughout the country, forming, as it does, the basis of our industrial schools, and suggesting a remedy and method of meeting the Negro problem, should still be on a basis necessitating the organization of such meetings as this and the begging by such men as you see before you for money enough to run it from year to year.

"We have lots of millionaires in this country, and why cannot the contributions be sufficiently large to put such an institution as Hampton on a basis that shall be self-supporting? Hampton graduated Booker Washington, and, as somebody has said, if it had not done anything else that alone would entitle it to the gratitude of the country. Booker Washington established Tuskegee, and from Tuskegee have sprung many schools of a similar character throughout the South. Now Colonel Church is here in order to plan for the spread of education among the Negro children in the South of a character that is commending itself to all the Southern States.

"Northern generosity and donation with reference to Southern education and the education of the Negro, have, of course, these fruits, and I don't want in any way to diminish the desire of those who wish to give. But those of us who study the question at all know that the hope of the Negro is in his white neighbor in the South. Our interest grew out of the war—grew out, perhaps, not of the real prejudices, but of the deep feeling engendered by that contest, with our interest naturally for the Negro. The Negro is a citizen of the South, a very important part of the industrial make-up of the South, and the Negro therefore ought to come and is coming more and more under the guardianship of the South."

Governor Mann followed President Taft. He was very proud of his ancestry and of his state. He is the first governor of Virginia that ever visited Massachusetts, and he was glad to do so under the conditions in which he did so at this time, with the President of our great country in attendance and presiding. He lamented the fact that this well known southern institution is compelled to look to the North for support, but hoped this condition would not last many years longer.

Col. John W. Church of Kentucky, who is associated with Dr. Frizzell at Hampton, spoke of the work of the institution and of the plans for the future.

Major Henry Lee Higginson was the last called upon by President Taft. He struck right into the heart of his speech immediately and told the gathering he wanted their money,—or pledges.

A meeting similar to this one was held last year at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Bradley, Pride's Crossing.

Through the efforts of Director-General Collier and the Southern Commercial Congress to promote westward travel via the southern route, the whole South has become greatly interested in San Diego's plans. A big convention of southern commercial bodies will be held soon in Memphis, to take up this matter and adopt comprehensive plans for directing travel to San Diego through the new South, which is teeming with opportunities that it wants to show to strangers and homeseekers.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The Misses Louise, Frances and Marjorie McGowan, the attractive young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. McGowan of Indianapolis, are among the most popular of the younger set at Magnolia this summer. They are in everything and are invited to all the young people's parties. The family is spending its initial summer on the North Shore as cottagers, and are occupying the Covell cottage on Lexington avenue, near the Oceanside hotel. Mr. McGowan is well known in his home city as the president of the Indianapolis Traction and Terminal Co. Tuesday night Miss Louise McGowan and her two sisters were over to Ferncroft Inn, and were hostesses for a merry party of young folk at dinner and enjoying the informal dancing to the music of the singing orchestra. With them were Miss May Withers and her guest Miss Dorothy Leslie, and Miss Bessie Holderman of Louisville, Ky. The boys in the party were Leonard Hanna of Beverly Farms, Harvey and Ransom Rowland, Pierce Withers, Charlie Potter and George Sloan, of the Oceanside.

Miss Alice Tapley of Boston, who is summering at the Oceanside, gave one of those delightful luncheons which has made Green Gables Inn popular with many North Shore people this summer, at the inn, Wednesday. She was hostess for a party of twelve. The table was beautifully decorated with golden rod. Mrs. G. L. Whitman recently gave a luncheon at the inn for eight.

Miss Elizabeth Sinnickson of Philadelphia, who was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Barr at their Beverly Farms cottage the first of the week, has returned to her summer home at Narragansett Pier. Miss Coudert, a cousin of Mrs. Barr, was also a guest of the Barrs this week. A good picture of Miss Jane Fairfield appeared in one of the Boston papers this week. It was taken at the aviation field when Miss Fairfield, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Barr, was there to see Atwood land. Miss Fairfield is one of the most vivacious girls on the shore this summer.

Mrs. Henry Stephens, summer tenant of the Paine cottage at Pride's, is again at her summer home after a visit to New York. Mrs. Stephens, who is a resident of Detroit, is entertaining her sister from the west.

The Point

When Cheops was building his pyramid,
(His purpose from the people hid),
A chap came along to peer amid.
He asked the meaning of the rout
And what the fuss was all about.

The angry monarch exclaimed, "Aroint!
Wait till it's finished, you'll see the point."

Don'ts For Automobilists

Following the good example of the Transcript we print the following:

DON'T throw paper bags, fruit skins and luncheon boxes on our roads as you pass through our towns.

The Beverly Improvement Society is working hard for cleaner conditions.

DON'T Cut Corners.

Another chauffeur may be doing the same thing coming the other way.

DON'T come out of a private avenue on to the main road rapidly or without blowing your horn.

A carriage or another auto might be passing the entrance—having right of way on the main thoroughfare.

DON'T speed through the villages.

Children and dogs are often in the streets.

DON'T use the road as if you owned it.

Others are sometimes out for a pleasure ride.

DON'T forget that horses still exist.

Give them a chance on the road.

DON'T forget that certain laws exist—even if not always enforced.

You never know when your turn may come.

DON'T forget to think of others.

Try to be reasonable, careful and cautious.

MAGNOLIA HOTELS.

The season is beginning to wane, if we must accept the time of year as any precedent, though it would be hard to convince one of this fact. The Oceanside and other Magnolia hotels are still crowded, although the coming week will see the number of guests diminished. A great many have decided to remain through September to enjoy the delightful early autumn. Many think September and October the best months on the North Shore.

The hotel was the scene of a most brilliant function last Saturday night,—the annual Oceanside Ball. Fashion was out in large numbers. The cottagers from all over the shore joined with the hotel guests in enjoying this very delightful affair. The large dining room had been cleared of the tables and was decorated very effectively for the occasion. Among the most beautifully gowned and jeweled ladies present were: Mrs. J. S. McArthur of New York, blue satin, point lace; Mrs. J. D. Cox of Cleveland, white satin; Mrs. J. M. Hood of Baltimore, flowered lace; Mrs. C. M. Kelly of New York, white lace over cream satin; Mrs. F. E. Warner of Boston, black lace; Mrs. C. A. Potter of Philadelphia, gray satin; Miss Guerin of Louisville, pink lace over pink satin; Miss Edith Harlow of Salem, white satin; Mrs. Edward Farmer of Boston, black lace over black satin; Mrs. E. W. Law of Briarcliffe, N. Y., white satin point lace; Miss Solari of New York, white lace over cream satin; Miss Catherine Moore of New York, white lace over blue satin; Miss Phoebe Adams of Washington, white crepe, velvet trimmings; Miss Eleanor Bradley of Boston, liberty silk; Dorothy Rowland of Baltimore, white net over white satin; Miss Fifi Withers of New York, blue lace over white satin; Mrs. W. S. Roberts of New York, green lace; Miss Florence Willis of Cincinnati, white lace over pink satin; Mrs. D. B. Loring of Boston, pink satin; Mrs. E. Morse of Boston, pearl satin; Mrs. Myron Wick of Youngstown, Ohio, silver lace over pearl satin; Miss Isabelle Wadsworth of Philadelphia, pink lace; Miss Nancy Peterson of New York, white lace, green velvet trimmings; Mrs. Chas. Hoyle of Boston, pink satin, point lace; Miss Caroline Martin of New York, white satin and white lace; Miss Dorothy Potter of Philadelphia, cerise over white satin; Miss Julia Culbert of New York, pink satin; Miss Lane of New York, black lace; Mrs. George A. Carter of Boston, white satin; Miss Tapley of Boston, white satin, point lace; Mrs. Frank C. Hearne, Kansas City, black lace over lavender satin; Miss Jean McGinley of Pittsburg, cerise satin; Miss Helen Coates of Philadelphia, black lace over black satin; Mrs. Charles Manley of Baltimore, silver cloth and white satin; Miss Maud Scudder of St. Louis, white lace over white satin; Mrs. A. W. Kennard of Boston, pink silk.

Miss Florence Willis, who is spending the months of August and September at the Oceanside, was most becomingly gowned Tuesday evening in turquoise blue with overskirt of gray lace.

Dr. DePina, Uruguian minister to this country and also to Mexico, has returned to Magnolia after a several weeks' trip to Mexico to present his credentials. He will remain on the North Shore with his family until late September. The family has one of the Oceanside cottages at Magnolia.

Miss Lillie Magnus of Chicago, one of the most charming girls at the Oceanside this summer, looked beautiful Tuesday evening in king's blue messaline and plumed hat to match.

Another gown most becoming to its wearer was worn by Miss Eleanor Bradley of Brookline, who is at the Oceanside with her mother, Mrs. George Carter. Miss Bradley's gown was of black velvet with trimmings of Irish lace.

Miss Marjorie Colton, who is spending the month of August at the Oceanside, was beautifully gowned Tuesday evening in rose messaline with a necklace of pearls.

Mrs. John Bramwell of New York, formerly of Chicago, who is occupying the Tennis cottage, one of the Oceanside connections, looked stunning Tuesday evening in pale lavender chiffon with bands of lavender messaline, and wearing a diamond necklace.

To Exhibit Paintings.

Mr. Tegiro Hasekawa of Tokio and Kioto, Japan, is to give an exhibition of water colors and pastels at the Library hall, Magnolia, from September 1 to 8. Mr. Hasekawa already enjoys the patronage of some of our North Shore people, including Mrs. Thomas P. Beal of Nahant, and others. We reprint the following:

"Mr. Tegiro Hasekawa was born in Kioto, Japan, in the month of November, 1878. At the age of nine he was apprenticed to his uncle, S. Kose, who is a prominent artist of Japan, and whose ancestor was Kanaoka Kose, 11th Century. Mr. Hasekawa entered the Kioto School of Fine Arts in 1891, graduating with distinguished honors in 1896. During his course he received many of the school prizes, and in 1898 was awarded with the first prize of the annual exhibition in Kioto. In 1899 he was chosen by the directors of the school to paint a landscape ordered by the visiting Crown Prince Nicholas of Russia. He was similarly honored on the occasion of the journey through Japan of an Austrian Prince in 1898.

"Mr. Hasekawa has exhibited with notable success in the following galleries in this country: The Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Philadelphia; Corcoran Gallery, Washington, D. C.; Doll and Richards, Boston, and Gillespie's Art Gallery, Pittsburg.

Hodges's Asteria Wins.

The Asteria, C. E. Hodges's boat, was the winner in the race for the one design boats of the Manchester Yacht Club last Saturday, in one of the prettiest races of the season, beating the Ketchup by fifteen seconds. There were eight contestants and the Gnat which has rolled up a list of victories in the series of which this is the eleventh, fell to the sixth place.

The wind was brisk from the southeast, and a heavy swell rolled in from the sea. The boats had a dead beat to windward, a reach and a run home. The boats split tacks on the first leg, and this was where the Gnat made her fatal mistake in following the boats first on one tack and then on the other.

The Vosetta led at the first mark, and at the second turn the Vosetta and the Asteria were there together the latter securing the best position, and the two got to luffing on the last leg, the Ketchup taking advantage to slide into second position. It was nip and tuck with the Asteria to the finish, the Asteria winning. The summary:

Scored as a most brilliant success from every point of view, the annual open air horse show given by Judge William H. Moore at his private driving park and with his own horses, blue ribbon winners here and abroad, as the performers, was the attraction for an unusually large gathering of the summer colony to Pride's Crossing last Saturday afternoon. After the exhibition of the various classes at the park most of the guests went over to Rockmarge, the Moore summer home, for the al fresco reception and lunch on the lawn. President Taft and Mrs. Taft graced the affair, motoring down from Hamilton, where the President had been one of the speakers at the Essex Club outing, in time for the reception. The exhibition and reception was one of the most brilliant functions of the summer on the North Shore, and was by far the largest attended.

Robert Collyer.

The name might have been printed with the prefix of the church a reverend and with a suffix the recognition of his intelligence and success recognized by academic trustees in a D.D., but after all the name reveals the man and the worth of his character as no titles or degrees. It is the personality that makes a man, not his degrees. Robert Collyer has honored the North Shore by a visit for the summer season. His breadth of view was evident in his service to the congregation at the Baptist Church in East Gloucester. When preaching one Sunday in the largest Universalist Church in the country, in Lynn, in July, the President of the United States, William H. Taft, honored him by motoring from Paramatta to worship in the service which he conducted. Such a tribute was worthily bestowed. He has opened his lips in the Manchester Unitarian Church to the pleasure of the people and dedicated the new Unitarian Church in Marblehead. His experience has been rich and his beautiful character, mellowed by the experiences of life has fitted him with rare power to share the burdens of and give comfort to men.

In a booklet from his pen he relates several anecdotes that are of human interest. The dear Mother Collyer advised Robert and his brothers and sisters, "Childer, no matter how poor you be when you have to do for yourselves don't look poor and don't tell." In another page he pays a splendid tribute to John Dobson who was his friend in learning, "John Dobson—let me write his name for love's sake—was my whole college of professors, if I may use the term, through twelve years of my life there, as an apprentice and then as manager of the forge." This splendid tribute to an old friend warms the very cockle's of one's heart.

Of that beautiful childhood we have another picture of the youthful Collyer weighing in the balance the attractiveness of the things of the flesh and those of the mind. He writes: "A happy day when some good soul has given me a big George the Third penny, and I must needs go and spend it forthwith, or, as my mother used to say, it would burn a hole in my pocket. There was only one store in our hamlet, and there I must go. I had quite made up my mind what I would buy. I dearly loved what we called candy, do still; there it was the sort I would buy, in the window. But close to the jar was a tiny book, and I can still read the title: 'The History of Whittington and His Cat, William Walker, Printer.' Price one penny. I gave up the candy and bought the book." What a significant episode revealing the very hunger of the lad's soul for learning. The child is father to the man.

All have learned to honor and love Robert Collyer that he may be spared long in the "land which the Lord our God giveth" him is the ardent hope of his large circle of friends and admirers.

"Tariff for Politics Only."

The political gathering of the Essex Republican Club at Sagamore Farm, the country estate of Congressman Augustus P. Gardner, last Saturday, proved as expected one of the most notable political gatherings ever held on the North Shore. The attendance was gratifying and the interest was intense. In truth it may well be said that all minds politically speaking were awaiting the President's message. The address proved to be a masterpiece of economic writing and the talent, judgment and good sense of the Republican President was never more clearly evident. Following the adjournment of Congress in extra session in which he had handed out three vetoes, two of them on the tariff question, and in which he had succeeded in putting through the most notable progressive tariff program, the reciprocity, naturally the occasion presented an unusual opportunity to speak to the people upon the issues at stake. It was a psychological opportunity. Never before in the history of the country has a tariff bill been vetoed, and it took a strong man to put two out within a month. The action required justification or the President would stand condemned by the people. It is now well seen that the Democrats were sparring for time and working for campaign material. There is no need for either party to search long for an issue. The issue is tariff and will continue so to be. The President sent a well directed little side thrust in the words, "Tariff for politics only." The address was carefully written and it will stand as President Taft's defence of his position and in the coming campaign cannot fail to be of great value as a campaign pamphlet.

The President has stolen the democrats' thunder? His address is one of the clearest statements of the republican position and the merits of a tariff issue in the compass of an address in print. A careful reading of that address will give the average citizen who has neither the time nor the inclination to make a careful study of the tariff question, a clearer idea of what has been going on and what must continue to go on in Washington the coming winter.

The little oversight in not introducing Speaker Walker brought a manly statement from Congressman Gardner. The incident was regrettable, but common. It is not the first time a speaker has been innocently crowded from a program and it will not be the last.

The Cotton Veto.

The President has handed out another veto in admirable form to Congress. This with the veto of the Wool Bill gives President Taft a negative victory on two great questions which are but parts of the larger whole, an intelligent revision of the tariff. The passage of the Reciprocity Bill with Canada, for which this congress was called, was a positive victory. A weak veto message in either case would have made splendid campaign material for the democratic candidate, but as the matter stands the President has them hoist with their own petard. Pledged to protection, but in favor of intelligent revision, what the President has done has practically been to disarm all criticism of the real intention of the republican party to handle the great tariff question in an honorable, business-like and intelligible way. He marks the cotton bill as "empirical and haphazard." The cotton bill had added as amendment there unto a new tariff adjustment of the metal, iron, steel and chemical imports. He scores this method of dealing with a great industry as an "unwise" act because it seems "absolutely essential to acquire accurate information" as to the effects changes would make on these industries.

As to the Cotton Bill, he writes with clarity and force: "This bill thus illustrates and enforces the views which I have already expressed in vetoing the wool bill and the so-called free list bill as to the paramount importance of securing, through the investigation and reports of the tariff board, a definite and certain basis of ascertained fact for the consideration of tariff laws. When the reports of the tariff board upon these schedules are received, the duties which should be imposed can be determined upon justly and with intelligent appreciation of the effect they will have both upon industry and upon revenue. Very likely some of the changes in this bill will prove to be desirable and some to be undesirable. So far as they turn out to be just and reasonable I shall be glad to approve them, but at present the proposed legislation appears to be all a matter of guesswork. The important thing is to get our tariff legislation out of the slough of guesswork and log-rolling and ex-parte statements of interested persons and to establish that legislation on the basis of tested and determined facts, to which shall be applied, fairly and openly, whatever tariff principle the people of the country choose to adopt."

School Garden Contest.

The interesting venture of Mrs. Jack Gardner for the benefit of the school children of the City of Boston, to stimulate an interest in flowers and nature study, has been prosecuted with equal success in Beverly Farms. Early in the season the work was placed in the hands of a ward chairman who selected eight inspectors. To each of these inspectors six children's gardens were assigned for oversight. The seeds were distributed at a nominal cost through the school department. The season has had a deterrent effect upon the gardens even of professional gardeners and many of the children's gardens suffered. Some planted and the seed failed to germinate. Many planted their little gardens over again. The prizes were assigned in three grades: A prize for general improvement of the yard, garden plot and fence; another for the best garden effects in flowers, and a third grade for the best vegetable garden. The children have been industrious and the plan as worked out has accomplished all that could be expected. The inspectors have been faithful in their oversight and have been richly rewarded for their human interests in the little folks' gardens.

To really enjoy a garden it must be seen through the eyes of a child. Let the garden be the work of the child himself and his ecstasy is almost unrestrainable. The eagerness with which the tiny people have waited with sceptic awe for the little black pellets to break ground with a spot of green and later flower into beautiful flowering plants would stimulate any one. The prize for general garden improvement goes justly to a school child in a court who has developed a barren hard trodden yard and a high unsightly board fence only twelve feet on one side and six feet on another side from the windows of the house. The corner was laid down to loam drawn for that purpose, scarlet runners coaxed up to hide the fence, on poles, and the foreground planted, watered and carefully weeded until it is now a flowering beauty spot. This one garden spot has justified the movement. There were other gardens of merit.

The community is grateful to the interests of the judges and inspectors and the ward chairman commends them for their faithful willing service. Special mention is made of Miss Patterson, the principal of the school. Mrs. Robert S. Bradley served as one of the judges and her interest and attention was appreciated by all who were interested in the movement, particularly the children themselves.

Ivy Poison.

One of the disagreeable fears of a midsummer ramble o'er hill, through the wood or along the shore is the possibility of poison from the "innocuous flowering dogwood," the poison sumachs or the "pesky" poison ivy. The poison may be inoculated into the skin by touch or carried and laid upon the skin by the wind blowing the fine dust which may gather on any of these treacherous plants. Annie Oakes Huntington has contributed an interesting study of the subject and her essay has been published by the University Press. The volume is a model production and is illustrated with carefully selected half-tones from photographs. It does not appear why she made the interesting study of what Asa Gray has referred to as the "vile pest." The little volume will be of interest to every "victim" of the ivy or sumach and to the physician. In discriminating between the staghorn and harmless sumachs and the poisonous sister sumach of the swamp she writes "apart from these two species preferring a dry and rocky soil, unlike water-loving poison sumach, they may be identified by their leaves, which number eleven to thirty-one leaflets, instead of seven to eleven, with margins sharply toothed instead of being smooth. The berries are of both the poison ivy and swamp sumach are white: those of the smooth and staghorn sumach are a rich wine colored crimson." As to the poison ivy it can be easily detected as it is "commonly a climbing or trailing vine which clings to rocks, and fastens to the trunks of trees by its thick fringe of aerial rootlets, which appear at intervals along the stem. Sometimes, however, the plant assumes an upright, shrubby character, and remains near the ground, apparently relinquishing its more adventurous form of growth. The leaves grow in threes and are highly decorative in outline, with smooth, glistening surfaces, indescribably pleasing both in form and color."

"The Treatment of the Poisonous Eruption," is the subject of a concluding chapter. In it she takes the position that every ointment serves only to spread the eruption. The poisonous element in the plants is an oil which gets on and into the skin and must be removed before any relief can be hoped for. "Soap, water and a scrubbing brush seem altogether too simple a method of treatment to advise for the painful eruption brought on by handling these two poisonous plants. Yet we begin with this old-fashioned country remedy and study the various methods of treatment from one generation to another, we return at last through the most scientific investigations to our original starting point. The only effective measures are preventive ones; the only remedy is a wash which mechanically removes the poisonous oil from the skin. In this lies the sum and substance of the treatment."

The interesting monograph concludes with a helpful sentence: "there is consolation in knowing that even in the most severe and painful cases the poison has a limited period of action, and that at the end of two weeks' time the dejected sufferer may go forth once more into the sunlight."

The Beverly Farms branch of the Beverly Improvement Society, under the active supervision of several of the Beverly Farms and Pride's Crossing summer residents, notably Mrs. Robert S. Bradley and Mrs. Washington B. Thomas, are doing much to improve sanitary and other conditions on this section of the North Shore. It is a commendable work and should receive the hearty support of every resident of this part of the shore. The society is calling attention to a number of "Don'ts" for automobilists, which we take pleasure in printing in this issue. The society is endeavoring further to educate the public in some of the preventatives of the houseflies. It has taken definite action toward keeping the streets at Beverly Farms cleaner, by having several street cleaners at work all the time. A meeting of the branch is to be held at the house of Mrs. Washington B. Thomas, at Pride's Crossing, on Thursday, Sept. 14, at 10.30 in the morning. The notice to be sent out within a few days solicits the interest of all in saying that "if you are interested in making the town cleaner, more healthful and more attractive will you attend the meeting even though not a member of the society. The Improvement society takes this opportunity to suggest that in furtherance of its work each individual should assist by being responsible for the good appearance of his or her own sidewalk by keeping the sidewalks clean and the grass borders neatly trimmed,"—a very timely suggestion, may we say.

The Breeze joins with the committee in hoping "that the City of Beverly will eventually give us more and better sidewalks" at Beverly Farms.

Mrs. Bill's shop on Lobster lane, Magnolia, is one of those delightful shopping places which North Shore people find much pleasure in patronizing. The stock, always kept up, has been replenished this week with a new lot of baskets and jardinières. There is also the usual large assortment of Chinese curios, string beads, and other articles too numerous to mention.

Normandy Peasant Market.

A visit to the S. V. R. Crosby estate, West Manchester, just before going to press this noon found the plans for the outdoor fete in aid of the Sunnyside Day Nursery of Boston, all underway, and a generous number of patrons on hand to encourage the cause. The sudden favorable change in the weather this morning was so encouraging, the ladies in charge decided to hold the fete. The scene is a very picturesque and realistic one to those familiar with Normandy. The matrons and young people assisting have spared no pains to costume the affair true to life, and in many cases quite elaborately, and they make a charming picture as they travel back and forth over the greensward selling flowers, candies, doughnuts, cookies, etc. Edibles such as fruits, candies, vegetables, etc., predominate at the booths indicative of market supplies. Special features are the imported artificial silk corsage flowers from Paris. They are in the little French green band-boxes and have proved a great seller. Normandy pottery, decorated with figures of peasants, are special goods offered for sale. The fete continues through today and tomorrow morning and promises to have a big patronage now the weather has proven so propitious. The committee wishes to thank the following people for contributions: MacMilken, Max Bros., Hoffman, W. Spring, Cedar Acre Farm, Peirce, Comley, E. G. Merrill, photographer, Dreicer & Co., Cobb, Bates & Yerxa. Others have been acknowledged in the program book of the fete which was issued.

HAMILTON-WENHAM.

Hamilton was en fete last Saturday, when the Essex Club was entertained at Sagamore Farm, Congressman A. P. Gardner's estate at Hamilton. The South Hamilton station was the outlet and inlet of hundreds of the visitors. They came by the train and in numerous autos. Their blue badges were prominently exposed to view. A big American flag was flung to the breeze across the street from the South Hamilton station and it gave a patriotic welcome. The entire highway from So. Hamilton to Beverly was alive with gaily decorated autos enroute to Sagamore Farm.

Entertained at Marblehead.

Miss Anne Hathaway, society editor of the North Shore Reminder, entertained the New England Women's Press Association on Wednesday afternoon of this week at an informal reception given at the Morey estate, Marblehead Neck, the beautiful summer home of J. Chancellor Crafts of Brookline. The New England Women's Press Association is too well known to need any introduction. Sufficient to say that it numbers among its members many of the most famous and best beloved writers of the times.

With members in every section of the country from Maine to California who were originally New Englanders, one of the pleasant features of the affair was the perusal of regrets sent by those who resided at such great distances as to make their presence impossible, but whose sincere appreciation of the thought that they would be missed by the coterie who could enjoy the hospitality of the day, was most pleasing.

The Morey estate with its great mansion and extensive grounds lent itself most attractively to an informal gathering and the guests were amply repaid for any difficulty in reaching their destination by the splendid panoramic view of Marblehead and vicinity enjoyed from the verandas of the house. The decorations were extremely beautiful, golden rod, sumac and cut flowers making the house a veritable bower of loveliness and the one pleasant afternoon of the week was a special dispensation. An informal buffet lunch was served during the afternoon with Miss Mary E. Preston presiding, assisted by President Ida M. Pierce, Ex Pres. Bessie Brown Cobb, Miss Susan Thayer Bowker and Miss Bessie Brainard.

Among those who accepted invitations were: Mrs. Agnes Dalrymple Bishop, Miss Susan Thayer Bowker, Miss Bessie F. G. Brainard, Mrs. Edward G. Brown, Miss Elizabeth Burt, Miss Jessie C. Chamberlain, Mrs. Bessie B. Cobb, Mrs. N. J. Daggett, Mrs. George Downs (Georgie Sheldon), Mrs. Inez E. Fox, Miss Marion T. Hosmer, Mrs. Lillian C. Kirtland, Mrs. Jessie L. Leonard, Mrs. Mary J. Lincoln, Mrs. Myra B. Lord, Miss Helen Maguire, Mrs. Alice Turner Nye, Mrs. Ida M. Pierce, Mrs. Isabelle A. Potter, Mrs. Bernard J. Pendleton, Mrs. Ella C. Crombie-Maslen.

One of the prettiest home weddings to take place at Manchester this summer was solemnized last Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Maslen, Pleasant street, when their daughter, Miss Mable Etta Maslen and Benjamin Leroy Crombie were married by Rev. L. H. Ruge of the Congregational church. The ceremony took place at seven o'clock, only the immediate family connections and friends being present. The single ring service was used. The bride was gowned in white silk batiste with valenciennes lace with train, her veil being fastened with lilies of the valley. She carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas and maiden hair fern. She was given in marriage by her father and attended by her sister Anna as bridesmaid, and who carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas. Mr. Crombie was attended by the cousin of the bride, Angus McKenzie as best man. Joseph K. Dustin of Gloucester played "The Lohengrin Bridal March."

The rooms were most tastily decorated with ferns, palms, asters and sweet peas. A most elaborate display of cut glass, silver and china, the gifts of friends, was to be seen. Refreshments of sherbert, punch and ice cream was served at the close of the ceremony. Friends from Forest Hills, Brighton, Allston, Jamaica Plain and Boston were present.

The happy couple left shortly after the wedding for a honeymoon trip amid a shower of confetti. Upon their return they will reside in the Willmorton homestead on Pleasant street.

The members of the Bible Class of the Baptist Sunday School, accompanied by their teacher, Mrs. Ellery Rogers, called on Mrs. Arthur Walker, a member of their class, on Wednesday evening and presented her with a silver ladle, in remembrance of the class. This evening was also the anniversary of Mrs. Walker's birthday. Mr. and Mrs. Walker entertained their friends very pleasantly and a very enjoyable evening was passed.

Farewell Reception to Manchester Pastor.

The church and society met in a body on Wednesday evening, in the vestry of the Baptist church, Manchester, to give a farewell to their pastor, Rev. Dr. T. L. Frost and Mrs. Frost. The church was prettily decorated with cut flowers. The deacons of the church and their wives were in the receiving line. Arthur Walker, Miss Annie Younger and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Swett assisted very ably as ushers. During the evening Mrs. W. C. Rust and Miss May Rogers rendered piano solos very acceptably. A reception in the small parlor was a most pleasant feature of the evening's program. Refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served. Immediately after, Mrs. Ellery Rogers in behalf of the church and congregation, presented Mr. Frost with a well-filled purse. This came as a great surprise to the pastor, who responded in a very pleasing manner, thanking the people for their many kindnesses during the three years, he had been in Manchester. He spoke with regret at the coming and necessary change. Mr. Frost since coming to Manchester has been an untiring worker and has done much to build up the church. The great change in the interior and also exterior of the church is a visible example of his energy and work. Dr. Frost and family leave next week for their new home and duties in Lowell. The committee in charge of the reception was, Mrs. Ellery Rogers, Mrs. Edw. Crowell and Mrs. Edw. Height.

Remarkable Offer by The National Tribune, the Great Washington Weekly.

The National Tribune of Washington, D. C., the great weekly published in the National Capital and the organ of the old soldiers and the GAR has just had prepared a new map of Florida, the State which is now the center of interest among all who are tired of the sudden changes from torrid heat in summer to Arctic cold in winter, and who want a home where the climate is healthful and opportunities are offered to earn a livelihood or acquire wealth under the most favorable conditions.

The population of Florida increased nearly 50 per cent in the last census decade, and will double in the next.

This map The National Tribune has had compiled from the latest surveys of the Government engineers and from the most recent data of the Postoffice Department and lithographed in three colors on a fine quality of plate paper, 28 by 30 inches.

This map will be sent free to any one who will write to The National Tribune and enclose 7 cents in stamps for postage.

Whether you own property in any part of Florida, or are merely interested in the rapid development that is going on in the Peninsula State, this map will be of both interest and value to you, and all you have to do to get it, is to send 7 cents in stamps, merely to defray the cost of mailing, and the map will be sent to you at once, securely rolled in a stiff tube.

Address, The National Tribune, Washington, D. C.

Mrs. David O. Mears, in behalf of the Essex Foreign Missionary society, opened "Orchard Home," her Essex residence yesterday. Among those present were the executive and advisory committees of the Essex South Branch of the Woman's Board of Missions, the presidents of auxiliaries and the wives of the pastors of the Essex South Conference. There was an informal reception at 2.30 o'clock followed by an address at three o'clock by Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Montserrat and of Jubilee fame. Her subject was Jubilee Visions. During the social period tea was served.

The baseball game between the Essex boys and the Universalists resulted in a score of 8 to 6 in favor of the Universalists. Essex' favorite pitcher, Lufkin had an off day.

E. W. Lander, our veteran tonorial artist, attended the annual reunion of the 4th Mass. Battery and the 50th Mass. Association at Haverhill on Thursday. Mr. Lander reports a grand good time with the boys.

In the first inning the Universalists made four runs and no one out when Fletcher Low was called to the box. They went out in one, two, three order and made but four more runs the rest of the game. Essex went to bat and Fletcher Low knocked out a home run. The game which followed was played in a high class manner, but the Univerlasists' lead was too great to be overcome and they went home highly elated. This practically puts Essex out of the running for the pennant.

AN AUTO TOUR.

Essex Reader Writes Interestingly of a Five Days' Trip Through the Mountains and in Maine.

There is no way to see the White Mountains like seeing them from an automobile. It is the most interesting way to travel. We have demonstrated this by a five days' tour through New Hampshire and a good portion of Maine. New England is beautiful beyond description, and by tracing the roads in all its various scenery, over mountains, along rivers and lakes, through valleys and farms, and towns and cities; all the beauties of its exquisite scenery come into view like the best of moving pictures.

We left Essex at 10 a. m., August 7th, Monday in a large Packard car from the garage of Perkins and Corliss, Gloucester, with Mr. Elroy Staples for our chauffeur. The car did our stunt so excellently that we are much enthused in favor of the Packard car. Mr. Corliss, with whom we had our business, was in every way so much of a gentleman, and so fair in all his dealings that we shall gladly seek him out again. Our chauffeur was in every way a most happy appointment. He has had eight years' experience and had just returned from driving the demonstration despatch car, fully armored, in the mimic war game between the Blues and the Reds.

After running about a little in town, we headed for Georgetown, taking aboard the children, Roswell and Theodora, and getting lunch in Haverhill, where we left friends who had ridden there with us, we struck the twenty miles an hour speed for New Hampshire. Passing through Methuen, a beautiful town, we skirted the country edge of Nashua, and reached Manchester early in the afternoon. We found bad roads as we approached the city of Cotton Mills. In fact, we saw no roads worse anywhere on the tour. Had we come from the city of Nashua to Manchester, we doubtless would have found better roads. We made no stop in Manchester, but pressed on to Concord. The roads both sides of Concord are excellent. We made a brief stop in Concord, then pressed on to Franklin. Here we reached the foot-hills of the mountains. Between Concord and Franklin we had to replace two inner tubes and one shoe on our rear wheels, but a punctured tire seemed really a small item to us on a trip like this.

Through Franklin, on to Bristol we go, reaching Bristol as the sun goes down, and coming into some of the most exquisite scenery of the whole tour. The road courses around the edge of the mountain as we approach Bristol, and the valley below, on the right, presents a view which we shall never forget. This valley was of the most fascinating green we ever saw. The farms had been mown sufficiently long for a new growth to get well underway, and rains had evidently been copious, so that the vast fields and reaches of mountain sides were covered with a tint of green, rich and deep beyond expression. As we descended to the town, it seemed as if Bristol must be at the bottom of a deep hole among the mountains. Well, here we found it, and in the center of this enterprising town of various industry we found a very good little house for tourists: Hotel Bristol. With other touring parties like our own, we put up here for the night, and were well-cared for and courteously entertained.

We left Bristol Tuesday morning at nine o'clock and our course was through a country the beauties of which increased and were magnified as we went on. We skirted New Found lake, a most enhancing sheet of water, for miles; passed through Plymouth, and every mile came nearer to the beauty and the grandeur of the White Mountains. We dined at the Flume House, a good house indeed; went to see the Pool which is indeed a wonderful sight, and worth much to see. Some of the party had seen it at other visits to the mountains. We had a most felicitous view of the "Old Man of the Mountain." It was at the early afternoon and our point of view was most perfect, and the light was best. The "Old Man" was in utter repose in all of his sublime dignity. This formation of rock is truly marvelous! Nothing impressed the children more deeply than this. Our course was past the Profile House, which is beautifully placed, and Echo Lake where we paused to hear the echo. A boy blew for us a horn with a megaphone attachment, but the wind was a little too strong to get the echo best, yet we could hear sufficiently to perceive how wonderful it must be when the air is perfectly still.

On we went down the three mile hill, across country into beautiful Bethlehem. Here is given, perhaps the best and widest view of the White Mountain country. The over-reach of vision across the country is here most engaging certainly. We stopped here just long enough to get pennants to decorate the auto, and went on to Bretton Woods.

We arrived at Mt. Pleasant hotel at about 5 p. m., where we put up over night. We enjoyed our stay at this house, as every guest certainly must.

Wednesday morning we start from Bretton Woods for Poland Spring. Running slowly and stopping at points of greatest interest we go through the Crawford Notch, a sheer cut through the body of the mountain. This huge gap, laid open by the skill and perseverance of man but adds a deeper interest to the natural grandeur and majesty of the whole mountain scenery.

We found good roads almost entirely through the mountains. Our course this day lay through Bartlett, Jackson, Intervale, North Conway, where we had—some of the party—passed a month fourteen years ago. Then on into Maine through the town and country portion of Fryeburg, and Bridgeton, across country to Poland Spring, where we arrived at about 5.30 p. m. This is perhaps the most popular resort in New England. The Poland Spring Hotel is most exquisitely situated on the summit of a hill which gives a most charming view of vast reach across the beautiful country of Maine. Here come guests in great numbers to drink the famous Poland Spring water which sells in New York city for fifty cents a bottle. The spring is on the hill top, nearly, beneath an erected canopy of beautiful white marble. A boy stands there in the livery of the hotel, and pumps from the spring the water that is clear as crystal, and gives a glass to everyone who wishes to drink. Hard by is the beautiful stone and marble building in which the water is bottled for transportation and sale, and into which guests may look from galleries inclosed with plate glass. This is a spot of beauty and grandeur with a magnificent hotel splendidly managed, and enormously patronized. Thursday morning we started for Gray to visit a friend who owns and manages a large farm there.

We left here soon after noon as we had many miles to cover before night. Our next point was Brunswick. We were strongly impressed in favor of Bowdoin college town. We made no stop this time but on our way back the following morning stopped to do some shopping and were very courteously treated.

We pressed on to Richmond where we met friends and put up for the night, and found good rooms and a good table in the little hotel at Richmond.

Next morning, Friday, we start on our home stretch. In Brunswick we ride around the college grounds, and though of course the college is closed at this time, we felt strongly the peculiar atmosphere of the seat of learning. We then strike for Portland, which we reach at noon. Here we take lunch and do a little shopping. We all like Portland exceedingly. As we approach Portsmouth and Newburyport, we find the roads growing better and better, and the finest roads of the whole tour are between Newburyport and Ipswich.

We speeded up a little on these good roads reaching forty miles an hour, and reached home at five p. m., Friday, safe, well, and wholly delighted with the five days' tour.

ANNISQUAM.

The summer residents of Annisquam patronized the entertainment at Village hall Monday evening in aid of the Boys' club. The entertainer was Clarence Manning Falt in his beautifully illustrated lecture-recital on The New England Fishermen and Cape Ann. The water sports at Annisquam and The Barnacle, the Flagg studio here, were specialized in the pictures. Miss Abby Bray, pianist, and Mr. Falt shared in the generous plaudits accorded the entertainers. Mr. Cole of the club operated the lantern very satisfactorily.

Helen Ware at the Hollis Street Theatre.

The Hollis Street Theatre, Boston, will begin its season with a matinee on Labor Day, Monday, September 4th, when Henry B. Harris will present Helen Ware in a new three-act play "The Price." It is said that in the new play Miss Ware will have a part worthy of the talents which have made her one of the foremost emotional actresses of our stage.

Miss Ware will be remembered for her splendid work in "The Third Degree" in which she played Anna Jefferies. Mr. Harris has selected for her support a company of capable players and the roster will include Jessie Ralph, Harrison Hunter, Margaret McWade, Warner Oland, Gertrude Dalton and George W. Barnum. The three acts will be set with the same care that marks all the productions made by Mr. Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Butler announce the engagement of their daughter, Maud Elsie, to Mr. Carroll Shepherd Webber of Gloucester, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Webber of Grove street, Gloucester.

Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce of Washington, D. C., will preach at Union Chapel, Magnolia, September 3d. Service begins at 10.30. All seats free.

Professor Krumpeln will close his engagement at Magnolia next Sunday evening with the following program, which will begin at 7.45 o'clock: "Toccata," Widor; "Chorus of Angels," Scotson Clarke; "Through All Eternity," Mascherin; "Farewell" (auto harp and organ), Schubert; "Pastorale," E. German; "Contemplation," A. R. Gaul. The last number will be rendered with the violin and organ accompaniment. It is with sincere regret that the congregation at the Village church will bid Professor Krumpeln good bye. His music this summer has been a delightful contribution to the services.

The last public recital of the season by Professor Krumpeln was given at the Village church last night before a large audience with Miss Claire, the Boston contralto, as soloist.

The sum of $2500 has been subscribed by friends of the Men's and Women's clubs during the past fortnight to pay for certain improvements at both clubs; to pay off the mortgage of $1500 on the Women's clubhouse and to leave a balance of some $300 in the treasury of the Women's club.

On Saturday, September 9th, a tea will be given in aid of the Red Cross Society, Miss Boardman of Manchester and Washington will give a short talk on the work of the society. Home made candy will be on sale. Tea will be served by a number of summer residents, for which a small sum will be charged. Tea will be served from 3 to 5.30 o'clock.

The "Masquerade" at the Women's club on Tuesday evening was a grand success. A large number were present and many beautiful costumes were worn.

A small party of merry young people enjoyed the Whist Party held at the Women's club on Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Alice Gurthrie of Malden, who is visiting Anna Stromblad.

Master Perry Allen of Manchester, is visiting his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan May, this week.

The membership of the Men's club is now 230.

The regular dances on Wednesday and Saturday evenings will be held at the Men's club next week.

Two tournaments at the Men's club have been completed. The tournament in pool was won by Arthur Smith of Gloucester, who won last year's tournament also. The second place was won by George Tebbart of St. Louis. The team tournament in candle pins was won by the Chauffeurs' team, captained by M. Merrick, the other members of the team were F. Smith, W. Lenhart, R. Boyd and R. Stover. The individual tournament in candle pins and checkers will be concluded this week.

Masquerade Party at Magnolia.

The dining room of the Hesperus hotel, Magnolia, was the scene of a quaint masquerade party Monday evening, given by the management of the hotel to the employees. The tables had been cleared from the dining room and an audience composed of guests and friends of the young men and women participating, well filled one end of the room. The costumes were very striking and among the costumes were: Uncle Sam; Indians, Holland, Germany, Italy, China, colored folk and many others too numerous to mention. There were sixty-six young people in the march, all in costume. The prizes were awarded

He felt that it was a long step forward and at the regular session he will renew his efforts undaunted by the President's veto of the bill at this session.

It is understood that the Beverly Board of Assessors, under the ruling of a recent law pertaining to special corporations, find that this year they will have to assess the upland of the West Beach Corporation and another year they will probably have to include the pavilion. This will certainly be a burden to the West Beach Corporation, which practically means the Farms people—as the financial affairs of the corporation are and have been very prudently handled in order to make both sides balance.

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Henrickson, Jr., of Hartford, Conn., are among the visitors at the Farms this week.

READ THE BREEZE

BEVERLY FARMS.

Alderman Augustus P. Loring, Jr., who has been abroad on his honeymoon, arrived at the Farms Wednesday.

John Cressy will conclude his duties as driver of the Farms hose wagon on Monday evening next, and will report for duty at the Central station in Beverly Tuesday morning. His going from the Farms causes sincere regret, for while he was here, Mr. Cressy has made a host of friends. His successor is John F. Mackey.

Howard P. Williams and Arthur C. Davis have booked for a vacation passage to the Bermuda Islands. They are to go the latter part of September.

George S. Day, the popular freight clerk at the Farms station, last Tuesday morning proved to be the man of the hour. A lady got on one of the morning trains and when she looked for her pocketbook she discovered it was gone. As she was telling her troubles to the conductor, Mr. Day stepped up and presented the lost wallet to the lady. Mr. Day happened to notice the pocketbook just as the train was pulling out of the station and jumped aboard and hunted up the owner.

Engineer of Steamer 3, Walter B. Wright, who has been spending part of his vacation at Chebacco lake, has returned to the Farms to spend the balance of his vacation here.

On account of the holiday, the business meeting of the Farms firemen, which is usually held on the first Monday evening of each month, will be postponed until the second Monday in September.

The committee of the Farms Fire department has decided on a second size steamer for the Farms, claiming this size will fill the requirements. They have been advertising for bids.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wilder moved from the F. L. Woodberry house on West street to the new Fanning house, corner of High and Haskell streets this week.

Letters remaining unclaimed at the Beverly Farms postoffice, August 30:—Mrs. Philip Blagden, G. C. Brown, Dr. Raymond Fritz, Miss Lakewood, Miss P. Cengue, A. Kleozuski, Miss Julia Kaney, Geo. Lewis, Esq., Miss Ella A. Lee, Mrs. N. C. Loughman, Miss Louise Mark, Frank Moore, Mrs. Geo. S. Olvin, G. C. Randall, George Selauy, Arthur B. Shetton, Irene Treney, Miss Frances Harper, Miss L. Hoe, Miss Beatrice Hayes, Edwin F. Williams and Fred Young.—Wm. R. Brooks, postmaster.

BEVERLY FARMS.

Miss May Comerford of Middletown, Conn., has been among this week's visitors at the Farms. Miss Comerford is visiting her aunt.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. McDonnell of Haskell street, will have as guests over this week-end and the holiday, Mr. and Mrs. Michael McDonnell and two children of Clinton.

Miss Ella Lee of Lynn, is visiting her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Standley, West street.

Miss Bessie Woodbury of Hart street, returned home Wednesday, from a pleasant vacation spent at Epping, N. H.

Miss Gertrude Edwards of Brooklyn, N. Y., is spending her vacation at Beverly Farms.

The Misses Almira Williams, Ruth Hardy and Marguerite Mitchell will join a party of Beverly young ladies for a camping party over the week-end and holiday at Idlewood lake.

Rev. Clarence S. Pond officiated at the funeral services of the late Frank Picket of Beverly, Tuesday.

Two baby squirrels found last spring in the house which was occupied for several years by the late S. B. Dana, and taken care of since by F. W. Varney and son Harold, were taken to the woods a few days ago and set free.

Three bids for a new fire engine at the Farms were received by the city council committee on fire department at City hall Wednesday evening. The bids called for a second size engine, equipped with rubber tires. The bidders were Metropolitan fire engine company $5,750, International Power Co., $5,600, Combination Ladder Co., $5,425. The contract was awarded to Combination company of Providence. The new engine will be up to date in every detail and will have a pumping capacity of over 700 gallons a minute.

The sentiment is growing at the Farms in favor of the introduction of gas, and hopes are being expressed that it might be brought down from Beverly. While the number who would use gas might not be sufficient for a big return, there is no doubt that the revenue would be sufficient to pay for the interest on the money. It would certainly be a convenience to the Farms.

Joseph Stanwood, the Vine street plumber, is making preparations to move a building to the rear of his estate (known as the Haskell property), which he will utilize for a stable.

"Please help to keep our village clean" are signs recently put on the various rubbish barrels about the Farms. The suggestion is a good one to follow.

In spite of the storm last night, there was a large attendance at Neighbor's hall, the event being the annual dance of Clan Wallace. Many came from out of town, including some of the high official of the order. There were many entertaining features on the program, including the dance done in Highland costume to the music of the bag pipes. Another feature which created repeated encore was that of the Highland fling and the Sword dances done in costume on the stage by the Erving sisters of Boston, who this year were awarded the championship at an open competition. Another feature was the song, "I Love a Lassie," by Mr. McTavish of Beverly.

The dance to be held in Neighbor's hall next Thursday evening, September 7th, for the benefit of the Beverly Farms Brass Band, merits the support of every resident of Beverly Farms. The organization is but two years old and has made great progress. Its members are of good musical ability, and has the promise of a good band. The object for which the organization is now working is to obtain uniforms. Tickets have been sent out to the summer residents soliciting their assistance and returns are to be made to Mrs. George R. Dean, P. O. Box 140, Beverly Farms.

SWAT THAT FLY!

Biggest Murderer That Ever Lived

House Fly Biggest Murderer That Ever Lived Says Hodge.

Declaring that the common house fly is responsible for a large part of the filth diseases, of which typhoid fever is one of the best known, and aroused by Worcester's recent experience with the typhoid epidemic, Dr. Clifton F. Hodge, of Clark University, has formerly declared war on the pest and, with the slogan, "Let us make Worcester the first flyless city in the world," he asks everybody to enlist in the fight.

"Do it for Worcester," he urges, "and thereby protect yourselves and your neighbors so that we may not again be afflicted with a recurring typhoid fever epidemic which may be much more disastrous than the one from which we are just recovering."

Professor Hodge has formulated a method of attack which he declares after three years' of experiment makes possible the complete extermination of the bothersome enemy the house fly, which has recently been rechristened the "typhoid fly." The house fly or the filth fly, which is a name some give it, is a scavenger. He breeds in filth and he feeds on filth, but the good he does is infinitesimal compared with the harm he does. The murder he commits puts to shame the atrocities done by the cobra or the rattlesnakes and the man-eating lions and tigers. The harm is all the more deplorable when one stops to consider that humanity does not need to lay itself open to his attacks if the proper steps are taken to exterminate him. And he can be exterminated if everyone does his part. It seems hardly reasonable to suppose that anyone will neglect his duty or shirk in the warfare which Dr. Hodge is to institute when he learns of the small though important part which he shall play. No one can be excused. Everyone must do his mite. The mite is this:

Must Kill Adults.

The vulnerable point of attack is the adult fly and his food supply. It is almost impossible to remove all the filth in which the fly may breed and which he may feed upon, but it is possible to make a hitherto neglected use of this same filth to the undoing of the fly. In a word the method is to use the filth for bait to trap the fly. After three years of experimenting it is proved convincingly that this is the only effective method of attack. It is impossible to kill the fly by violence so it must be done by strategy as the hunter does who lays in wait at the drinking pool to slap the animal which is safe in the thickets. The attraction of the adult fly for food and water, with its ability to fly a long distance in search of these necessities, make it possible to trap every fly before it can get a chance to get into the houses. Every garbage can and swill barrel can be converted into a fly-trap. Every fly that comes to it for food is caught. It is a practical matter to focus every fly that appears in the vicinity by carefully putting all filth in a single receptacle.

But just there comes the rub and the difficulty which everyone must be aware of. Neglect to put filth into the properly equipped receptacles by a single careless person may undo the work of everyone else in the community because he could easily feed enough flies to offset the best and united efforts of all the rest. None can be excused in this fight. It is important that everyone do his share.

That the idea is practical is clearly evident to any observant person who sees the way in which flies are invariably attracted to a single bit of exposed food stuff.

Formerly the method adopted to lessen the number of flies was the quick removal of filth to distant places. But as it takes but ten days for the complete life cycle of the fly, it is clearly evident no plan can be formulated to dispose of this waste matter often enough to cope with the breeding abilities of the fly. The adult fly must be got rid of before he has a chance to breed by using the breeding and feeding places as a trap. Traps at the cellar windows of stables and garbage cans will be able to catch nearly every fly which comes upon the premises and precludes the possibility of his gaining entrance to a place suitable for breeding.

Caught 2500 in 55 Minutes.

A serviceable fly-trap is attached to the cover of the garbage can so that the odor of the filth contained serves as an attraction to the fly. In one of these traps in just 55 minutes about 2500 flies, it is estimated, were caught, which were capable of producing within ten days 160,000 flies. The moral can be read by anyone.

As Professor Hodge concisely puts the matter, "If we would all stop the feeding there would be no breeding." He said: "The fly breeds in filth, feeds in filth and scatters filth wherever it flies or walks, and it carries not only typhoid but every other filth disease. Over 6,000,000 living bacteria have been washed from the filthy body of a single fly.

"The verdict has been handed down against the typhoid fly of 'murder in the first degree.' Milk is often assigned as the cause of an epidemic, when in reality it is flies that carry and plant the fatal germs in the milk. So in cities it has been discovered that intestinal diseases of children, especially of infants who live on milk, increase not so much with heat or other weather conditions, but with the number of flies. The number of "murder" of infant deaths, of cases of typhoid and other filth diseases, which is now charged directly to the fly, runs into the thousands annually; so that for bulk of murder no other animal in the world can compete with this filthy pest.

"The filth fly must be executed for its crimes, must be exterminated. How this is to be done is the question.

"Our solution of the fly problem puts me in mind of the ostrich that pokes its head into the sand and thinks itself safe. We put ourselves in jail, behind the bars of fly-screen, and leave the flies in possession of the great out-of-doors; and then have to keep up a running fight with the pests that break into our prison houses and make life a burden to us. For a long time I have thought that it is the flies that should go to jail behind the "bars" especially designed for them, and not ourselves. Just now that Worcester is recovering from a typhoid epidemic is a good time to take a fair hold of the matter.

"One thing is clear. Every sick room and every patient, and every bit of anything from patient or sick room capable of carrying infection, dejecta, dishes, soiled clothing or bedding, should be absolutely protected from flies. No fly should be trusted with these germs. A boy with his pockets full of dynamite cartridges is a safe proposition in comparison.

"We pay $10,000,000 a year for screen windows and doors to keep ourselves in jail, and just now we are being told to clean up all the filth about our stables and back yards in which flies can breed, and have it carted off in a week. The cleaning up is all right, but merely carting the stuff off to a dump somewhere is not going to kill the eggs and maggots in it. Then how about our miles of gutters and sewers? After these years of study of the matter, I am convinced that if one hundredth part of the expense, energy and futile effort that we now waste were intelligently directed, we could, as a city, be entirely rid of the filth fly pest.

"Carry the war into Africa. Attack the fly outdoors, before it gets into the house. It has been estimated that if all the flies of a city should live and breed and none of the progeny should die, the inhabitants could not find means of travel to escape from under the mass of maggots and flies that would develop. We turn to and fight and then say, when we have them almost whipped, 'Oh, never mind a few,—they cant' do much harm.' If a pair of flies should begin in the spring and all the progeny should live, the flies and maggots would bury Worcester, towers, church spires and smoke stacks, clear out of sight before October first. The first city in which every man, woman and child wakes up to what this last, or first, pair of flies can do in the line of breeding filth flies, will be absolutely flyless in less than six weeks and will keep itself so ever afterwards. I only wish Worcester might be that city.

"I think it is safe to say that every fly comes to some back door to feed. If it got a dose of formalin or walked into a trap, it would not go back to the barnyard, stables or gutters or sewers, whence it came, to lay its eggs. If no more eggs were laid, in a short time we would have no more flies coming to our back doors and kitchen windows. Then we could take down our screen doors and windows and let ourselves out of jail.

"I have been trying this plan now for three years and I know it will work. Of course if one family does this and all his neighbors feed their flies at their kitchens and in their garbage pails, it makes it a continuous running fight. If we could all stop the feeding, there would be no breeding—no more filth flies to carry typhoid germs or other filth disease to our foods and homes."

Bailey on Cowards.

No one who knows Senator Joseph W. Bailey will say that he lacks courage. Therefore it is natural that he hates cowards. The Senator recently expressed the opinion that very few men in Congress were venal or corrupt, but he declared that most of them were cowards, afraid to live up to their convictions because of the effect it might have on their constituents. The Senator condemned vigorously this trait in men in public life and declared that when he found that he could not honestly exercise his convictions in Congress, he would resign and retire to private life.

Are you awfully tired with play,
little girl;

Weary, discouraged and sick?
I'll tell you the loveliest game in the world—

Do something for somebody, quick!

The best rose-bush, after all, is not that which has the fewest thorns, but that which bears the finest roses.

Because it's rather uncommon, perhaps a bit "tony," possibly exclusive, yet even at this, if it were not that it were real practical, its appearance would not influence us in advising you to use it.

Fumed Oak

It perhaps will stand hard use far better than any other applied finish, for 'tis treated in a manner its name would imply. The Oak, after being coated with a soft brown stain, is placed in an air tight compartment, and permeated with ammonia. This opens the pores and the stain sinks under the surface, thereby making the finish really fadeless, without any danger, too, of its ever coming off. 'Tis waxed then and rubbed down to a soft dull finish, a brown tone produced, that is rich and refined.

'Tis furniture prettily adapted to the DINING ROOM and DEN, its designs ever simple, free from any ornamentation, either in relief or applied. Its cost is much less than its appearance would imply, but sold here at Titus', on the straight basis of what it costs.

MOTHER ANN—WONDERFUL FREAK OF NATURE

BY MARY TAYLOR FALT

ALTHOUGH East Gloucester has not many local privileges to view the works of great sculptors yet "Mother Nature" and "Old Father Time," as the years have passed, have hewn out in the massive ocean rocks, which outline the rugged coast of East Gloucester, statues more wonderful than the works of the great masters of sculpture and their "Museum of Fine Arts" is a most interesting place for study and entertainment. One of their creations is "Mother Ann." This wonderful freak of nature was discovered by the late William Thompson, a wealthy resident of Salem, Mass. This gentleman was accustomed to spend his summers at East Gloucester. Gradually, as the people of the town became more acquainted with him, oddities and eccentricities in his make up became very noticeable. One oddity was the unusual departure of establishing his summer home in an unused building on one of the fish wharves at East Gloucester, going to a great deal of expense to fit it up suitable for occupation.

The old codgers and wharf hands, who frequented this wharf, were prone to discuss his advent and abode, very vigorously and quickly formed their opinion of the "queer stranger." When the old gentleman had his fine span of horses and carriage brought down to the wharf for his daily drive or his fast sailing boat for his morning sail was in readiness and he was seen issuing from the picturesque old building, then the same incredulous looks would pass between the bystanders and such remarks would be heard as "Why don't the rich old codger board at a hotel?" 'Twas on one of his daily drives that Mr. Thompson made his discovery. A party of Salem friends was being entertained and one of the daily drives embraced Eastern Point for their entertainment. This drive gives one an opportunity to study the quaintness of the East Gloucester streets, to obtain a view of the white canopied wharves, to eventually reach the heart of the summer hotel centre, to pass by the ivy draped Gate Lodge where Niles' Beach and its boulevard come into view in all their beauty. The outer Gloucester harbor spreads before one's gaze also the wooded shores of Magnolia and the Reef of Norman's Woe.

Along the boulevard one notes tract after tract of beautiful moorland dotted here and there with the fine residences of the wealthy summer residents, many of the sites of their summer homes being built on historic ground such as the "Old Fort" upon which is located the former Rouse mansion, "The Ramparts."

The fort, which was built during the Civil War was a "Bloodless monument of carnage, Bloodless monument of fray, Shrine of Flora's fondest homage, Crumbling slowly to decay," before the late Henry C. Rouse restored it and built his mansion, The Ramparts, in its enclosure. Continuing the drive, eventually looms up the sentinel of the deep, the Eastern Point Lighthouse, and on the rise of the road, in a huge cliff is the recumbent form of "Old Mother Ann," the discovery of Mr. Thompson. 'Twas just such a drive as here described that Mr. Thompson took the day he made his discovery. Asking the driver to stop, he gazed long and searchingly at a certain, huge cliff very near the rise of the road and to the left of the lighthouse. He then asked if any of the party saw a face in the cliff—in fact, did they see a reclining form of a woman? Everyone of the party were unanimous in agreeing to its existence and corroborated Mr. Thompson's statements in regard to the wonderful nature of the discovery. The local papers then heralded the discovery. It was most amusing to see how these same critical wharf hands shook their heads mysteriously and whispered to one another, "Didn't we say the old gent up their in the fish shed went right?" But those who jump at conclusions are often times equally as inquisitive. It was but a very short time before these same credulous ones were tramping to the lighthouse to see "the old gent's old woman in the rocks," and were convinced.

Thousands of tourists have visited her and have made frequent inquiries of the stoic "old lady's" history. She has brightened the rather monotonous life of the light keeper, her neighbor, and has aided materially in giving renown to the North Shore.

SOME INTERESTING TRADITIONS OF HAMILTON

BY MARY TAYLOR FALT

This noted inland resort of the North Shore, the pleasure ground of a President of the United States and the summer residence of two personages of note in national affairs, Secretary of the United States Navy, George von L. Meyer, and Congressman A. P. Gardner, the rendezvous of wealth and distinction for hunting and golf has likewise a traditional charm which adds to its natural attractiveness.

Its broad, fertile and picturesque farm lands and hills, which now embrace the beautiful estates of people of social prominence, were first settled by Ipswich colonists, of which town Hamilton was once a part.

Prior to 1787, Hamilton was known as Hamlet, but during that year, Rev. Dr. Cutler, pastor of the Hamlet church, agitated a new name and his suggestion that the hamlet be called after Alexander Hamilton was universally favored.

Hamilton colonists played an important part in the building up of the West, for it was through the migration of a number of her colonists that Marietta, Ohio, was founded.

Sagamore Hill, Hamilton, has a particularly inter-

Autos in Head-on Collision.

Two autos came together on Summer street, Manchester, Wednesday afternoon about five o'clock, in a head-on collision and both cars were considerably damaged, though nobody was injured. A Lancia car, owned by Lawrence W. Morgan, son of George M. Morgan, occupying a cottage this season at Manchester Cove, was proceeding along Summer street toward Manchester village. A seven-seater touring car owned by C. W. Wall of St. Louis, and driven by the chauffeur, was moving in the opposite direction. Both cars were going at about eighteen or twenty miles,—so each driver says. There were no other cars in sight. The road is straight at this point,—opposite the little pond near the overhead railroad bridge. In some unaccountable manner the cars collided. Mrs. Wall and two other women were in the Wall car, but nobody was hurt. Both cars were put out of commission. The scene of the smashup was photographed by the Pierce Studio at the request of Chief of Police Gorman.

Haughton Won Medal Handicap.

The medal handicap golf competition at the Essex county club last Saturday was won by Percy D. Haughton, with a net score of 74. George H. Crocker and S. Borden, Jr., with net scores of 77, tied for second honors. P. Gilbert won the best gross score medal with a card of 76-1-75.

The competition brought out a number of players, who took advantage of the tournament to get in some practice for the Massachusetts state championship matches on the links the first three days of this week. Owing to the recent rain the ground was quite heavy and prevented good scoring. The scores:

BEACH BLUFF.

A very enjoyable and appreciated entertainment given in the Hotel Preston casino, Beach Bluff, last Friday evening was the illustrated lecture-recital by Clarence Manning Falt, the Gloucester poet and author, on the New England Fishermen — especially the Gloucester Fishermen. The scenic beauties of Gloucester, Cape Ann and vicinity were also shown in the stereopticon slides. Of particular interest to the large and representative audience present was Mr. Falt's fine delineation of his own ballads to famous water front phases and characters, such as, The Rigger, The Scrubbers, The Call in the Night and The Calling of the Dead. Impressive incidental music was rendered by Miss Abbie Bray, pianist. Mr. Falt in his lecture gave a great fund of information on this far-reaching industry and appeared himself in typical fisherman's rig, oil suit, sou'wester and red jacks, making a very picturesque appearance. A noteworthy contribution to the hundred or more slides shown were reproductions of marine paintings personally contributed for this lecture by several of the most famous marine artists of the country.

WEEKLY MARKET LETTER

W. C. Langley & Co.

Oceanside Hotel Magnolia
Members of New York and Boston
Stock Exchanges:

In spite of pessimism, in spite of labor troubles, and in spite of foreign complications, the market during the past week has been strong, at times even buoyant. It begins to look as if liquidation had run its course, at least temporarily. Many serious problems are still unsettled, and with the approaching fall elections we see little chance of any bull movement in the immediate future. But all signs point to a rally of several points from the recent low level. There is nothing radically wrong with general conditions excepting the fact that the expectations of a bumper crop have had to be revised. All other matters are traceable to the general feeling of business and political unrest. Of all of these the one whose effects might be most embarrassing is the labor question which is still being agitated on three of our largest railway systems. On the other hand the earning statements of roads generally are making better showings. Sentimentally this is encouraging, but in reality the result was to be expected, because by this time a year ago the roads had begun to feel the burden of increased wages and had not yet learned to adjust their expenditures to the new conditions.

The steel trade has kept up remarkably well and heavy bookings have been reported during the first week of this month. The unfilled tonnage of orders is expected to show a further increase of over 100,000 tons over last month. In view of general conditions this is the most hopeful sign we have noticed. It should soon be followed by activity in the equipment stocks.

American Locomotive has just handed down a report showing over six per cent earned on the common stock, and although part of this was the result of orders on hand at the beginning of the year, yet the stock is selling low enough to be a pretty safe purchase. Car Foundry we still feel very bullish on and we have given our reasons in a previous letter. The outlook for renewal of equipment buying is better than it has been for some time.

Our local market has acted much as we suggested it would. Liquidation of all weak points has placed it in a strong technical position and already there has been some rally from the low point. Calumet & Arizona and the other issues such as East Butte, Isle Royale and Old Dominion that we recommended to you have advanced somewhat but are still far below their real value.

The copper situation is still good statistically but the price of the metal is off a little. In sympathy with the steel business, however, there has been a revival of buying, and over 100,000,000 pounds have been taken for September and October delivery. Therefore we still continue to feel that market conditions, and business conditions taken together the copper stocks at the present low level are the most attractive speculation on the whole list.

HAMILTON-WENHAM.

The family of Sec. George von L. Meyer, who have been spending August in Maine, returned to Hamilton last Friday, in time for the Myopia Horse Show.

Hamilton was the centre of much North Shore interest on Labor Day as the Myopia Hunt club had its annual horse show. The Hamilton horse races were also a holiday event which interests the permanent as well as the summer residents, as the racing course goes over the Brown estate and part of the polo field. The permanent residents also had the free privilege of watching the horse show, a return courtesy since they allow the hunting contingent free run of their fields when the hunting season is in progress.

Among those entertaining with dinners and luncheons during the holiday season were the Daniels family and Dr. John C. Phillips and family.

Miss Laura Merriam, a member of the Mitchell family party from Washington, occupying the small Meyer cottage at Hamilton, has returned from her sojourn at Nantucket.

MYOPIA HORSE SHOW. Annual Labor Day Event Brings Out Society.

Labor Day ushered in the 17th annual horse show and gymkhana at the Myopia Hunt club, Hamilton. The event was made notable by the presence of President Taft and suite, who were interested and enthusiastic spectators. Judge Moore also appeared at the show with his famous coach and four. He was accompanied by Mrs. Moore. Another noteworthy group was composed of the Misses Helen Taft, Alys Meyer, Hilda Rice and Miss Delamon of New York. Society folk from all the North Shore resorts was largely represented and the display of gowns by the fair sex was superb.

The show was an all-day affair, the first class for jumpers by junior riders being called at ten o'clock in the morning. The entry list this year was the largest ever received at a Myopia show, there being sixty-four. A notable trophy contested for was the Master's Cup.

The stars of the show were Miss Mary Curtis in the jumping class with Typhoon and S. P. Mandell, 2d, did excellent work upon Aspiration and on other horses in several of the classes winning ribbons in eight events and in several cases two ribbons in one event. Newcomers for equestrienne honors on the North Shore were the Stephen sisters of Detroit and Pride's. Miss Gail Stephens riding Miss Esther won the blue ribbon in the class for park hacks.

Among the other North Shore horsewomen contesting were the Misses Alice Thorndike, Elizabeth Cutting, Frances Bradley, Julia Appleton, Elaine Denegre, Hope Norman, Anna Agassiz, Leslie Bradley and Miss R. L. Whitman.

The first event was for junior riders on jumpers and presented a close contest. T. P. Mandell's Colette took the blue ribbon. S. P. Mandell, 2d, known as "Sam" Mandell, took the red ribbon with Mahogany. Ward Bird, a post entry by J. H. Proctor and ridden by John Proctor, received the yellow ribbon. Miss Anna Agassiz, riding Headlight and jumping well, received the white ribbon. The jumps in this class were three feet three inches.

In the next event, that of saddle horses for junior riders, Miss Mary Proctor, riding Success, was presented with the blue ribbon. Miss Frances Bradley, showing Raven, was awarded the red ribbon, and T. P. Mandell's Colette took the yellow ribbon, making the second ribbon in two events. C. G. Rice's Pilot got the white ribbon.

The first big event for hunters was the third class. It was for the Abbott cup for best green hunters owned by members or subscribers of the Myopia Hunt Club. Riding Leeton Belle, S. P. Mandell, 2d, added another blue ribbon and cup to his collection. Just to keep up the good work he took the red ribbon, jumping with Milch. John S. Lawrence with Peter Pan jumped well enough for the yellow ribbon, and James H. Proctor's Success, was awarded the white ribbon. The last horse was ridden by Miss Proctor.

In the class for polo ponies there was some spirited short distance sprinting. The class was divided into light and heavyweight classes. In the lightweight class Quincy A. Shaw, 2d's, Harry H. took the blue ribbon. D. P. Rogers' Mellie received the yellow ribbon, and Miss Hope Norman's Silver Heels the white ribbon. In the heavyweight class G. G. Amory's Baldy took the blue ribbon, and D. P. Rogers' Cute was presented with the red ribbon. Quincy A. Shaw's John B. took the yellow, and Mollie, owned by E. C. Fitch, the white ribbon.

"Sam" Mandell took the blue ribbon in this event, jumping First Mate. The young lad did some splendid jumping and outclassed his older rivals. Miss Elsie Ames was loudly applauded when she captured the red ribbon in this event. She went over the five jumps on Lady Frivolous. T. P. Mandell's Third Note was awarded the yellow ribbon, and young Mandell on Mrs. F. J. Alley's Odd Locks received the yellow ribbon.

The last event of the morning was the saddle horse class for park and road hacks. The class was divided by the judges. In the division for park hacks one of the most popular awards of the day was when Miss Gail Stephens of Detroit on Miss Easter won the blue ribbon. Miss Elaine Denegre riding Elsa took the red ribbon. Miss Frances Bradley on Woodside won the yellow ribbon and Miss Elsie Ames the white ribbon. In this event all the prize winners were society girls. The men riders were outclassed.

In the division for road hacks Miss Appleton on James W. Appleton's Cinnebar took the blue ribbon. Miss R. L. Whitman riding her Lady Frivolous won the red ribbon. Miss Mary Curtis on her old reliable Typhoon received the yellow and Fred G. Hostetter on Autoerat the white ribbon.

After the Master's challenge cup the gymkhana events were held and provided considerable amusement to the several thousand spectators. About 23 horses started in the Road to Jerusalem, where the horses find a stake when the music stops. After clever and daring riding Miss Leslie Bradley, one of the prettiest girls in North Shore society, remained alone and was awarded the cup. Frederick G. Hostetter who was just nosed out by Miss Bradley, received second prize.

In the push ball contests two teams survived the elimination process. A girl's team consisting of the Misses Mary Curtis, Alice Thorndike and Julia Appleton, and a men's team, consisting of Messrs. Vonstaele, Appleton and Hadden. The young men very gallantly presented the girls' team with the cup.

In the obstacle race for ladies, the team comprising the Misses Julia Appleton, Alice Thorndike and Mary Curtis won. Messrs. Allen, Rice and Pingree won the men's obstacle race.

Jumping.

The first event was won by Miss Leslie Bradley, the second by a team captained by Miss Mary Curtis, which also took the third event, Mr. Rice's team capturing the fourth.

NORMANDY MARKET.

Big Out-Door Fete for Charity—a Brilliant Success.

Manchester again took the lead as an important social center on last Friday and Saturday, when the Normandy Peasant Market, a most successful society and charitable fete, was held on the S. V. R. Crosby estate, West Manchester, in aid of the Sunnyside Day Nursery of Boston. There were so many admirable and important contributing causes that it is not surprising that the patronage swelled to 5,000 people, it is estimated. On Friday afternoon the occasion was honored by the presence of the President of the United States, Mrs. Taft being present also as a patroness. It was likewise a privilege to see one hundred and more matrons and young women prominent in the social and philanthropic world garbed realistically in most artistic Normandy peasant costumes barter their wares with sincere earnestness. The beautifully gowned women in attendance at the fete did honor to the costumers' art and the whole ensemble made a most brilliant scene.

Everything in the market was sold under its French name. Those of epicurean skill could find produits du potage in charge of Mrs. Richard S. Russell and her seven assistants. Mrs. Russell had most of the articles brought in from her farm in Andover. Fruits and flowers were in charge of Mrs. James Procter. Assisting her were seventeen young women and flower girls. All sorts of imported and domestic baskets were on sale at Mrs. I. McDowell Garfield's booth. Assisting in selling the "panier du pays" were four other matrons. If you wished some particular novelty for your boudoir you consulted Mrs. R. L. Agassiz or Mrs. Quiney A. Shaw, 2d, or their six assistants. Mrs. Hall Curtis was in charge of the tea table and Mrs. Lester Leland supervised the booth for the very latest novelties. Playthings, fancy goods, pottery, French corsage flowers, rustic furniture and furnishings were all temptingly displayed and kept the well-filled purses of the patrons open constantly. There was a temperance bar, a dancing pavilion, pony grab, fortune teller and water melon christening, all typical of village festivals of the peasantry of Northern France.

The costumes of the assistants at the fete were very typical of the people they represented. They were carried out to the letter,—the wooden sabots and high lace head dresses, the black silk aprons, heavy jewelry, black velvet bodices with bright-hued guimpes and the scarlet skirts. Great credit is due the managers of the fete for their original ideas and the very artistic and successful development of them. The board of managers were: Mrs. Q. A. Shaw, Jr., Mrs. A. Blanchard, Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, Mrs. T. Motley, Jr., Mrs. P. V. R. Ely, H. R. Dalton, Jr., and Boylston A. Beal.

The committee was honored by the following list of patronesses:—Mrs. Wm. Howard Taft, Mrs. Wm.

Appleton, Mrs. Henry L. Higginson, Mrs. Walter C. Baylies, Mrs. James R. Hooper, Mrs. Wm. A. Burnham, Mrs. Arthur Hunnewell, Mrs. Alexander Cochrane, Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, Mrs. P. V. R. Ely, Mrs. Wm. P. Lyman, Mrs. J. Murray Forbes, Mrs. Wm. H. Moore, Mrs. John L. Gardner, Mrs. Chas. S. Sargent, Mrs. Edward S. Grew, Mrs. Francis W. Sargent, Miss Charlotte H. Guild, Mrs. Robert G. Shaw, Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Mrs. Washington B. Thomas.

The great generosity of Mr. and Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby in opening their estate for the fete was a highly appreciated factor in its success.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Pres. and Mrs. Taft previous to sailing for Islesboro, Maine, last Friday night for a week-end visit, made a call about six o'clock at the Normandy Peasant Market at the S. V. R. Crosby estate of which affair Mrs. Taft was a patroness. The President was a liberal purchaser, buying a basket of eggs for $5, a basket of peaches and a prize pumpkin. The party on the Mayflower, who went to Islesboro as the guests of President and Mrs. Taft, were the president's brother, Horace Taft of Watertown, Conn., and Miss Mabel T. Boardman. Capt Butt and Master Charlie Taft also were on board.

MAGNOLIA HOTELS.

There has been a noticeable decline in the hustle and bustle of the busiest season Magnolia has ever had, during the past week. Take a couple of hundred people out of Magnolia and there is a big hole left, figuratively speaking. There are not more than 400 guests at Magnolia today. The Hesperus closed this morning. The Oceanside will be open until the last week of the month. The hotel has the largest September booking in its history, which emphasises two things,— that Magnolia is increasing in popularity as a summer resort, and that The Oceanside is a big factor to this end.

The finals in the Oceanside tennis tournament were played this week. The only match not yet played is that between Miss Alice Thorndike and Miss Eleanora Sears. Miss Thorndike won the ladies' singles and Miss Sears holds the cup. The match between the two is to determine the holder of the cup for the coming year. The finals of the five tournaments will be found in another column on this page.

Many of the guests bidden to the Stevens-Coolidge wedding at Magnolia Saturday afternoon are making the Oceanside their headquarters.

Judge and Mrs. Woodmansee of Cincinnati, who have been spending the summer at the Oceanside, have returned to their home. Judge Woodmansee, though not as young as most of those competing in the tennis tournament, is still a very active player and knows many of the better points of the game. He put up a good game in the mixed doubles with his young daughter as partner, and succeeded in defeating Miss Helen Taft and Miss Curtis. Judge Woodmansee was the one to succeed Miss Taft's father, our Honored President, on the supreme bench of Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Devlin and daughter have gone on to the Woodstock Inn, Vermont, after a delightful stay at the Oceanside. They will remain there through the autumn before returning to Detroit.

Mrs. J. M. Hood of Baltimore left the Oceanside Wednesday for the Homestead at the Virginia Hot Springs, where she will spend the autumn.

Mrs. J. M. Withers, Miss Withers and Pierce Withers are among the westerners remaining at the Oceanside until the season closes. Miss Withers is among the most popular of the younger set at the Oceanside this season. She was one of a party of young people to have dinner at Ferncroft Inn last night and to enjoy the informal dancing. The Withers are from Kansas City.

General and Mrs. George L. Andrews after a summer at the Oceanside, as usual, are spending a few days at Mrs. Andrews' old home in Salem, before going on to Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Hood, who have been coming to the Oceanside since it was built years and years ago, have just concluded another season and have gone to Bretton Woods for an autumn sojourn before settling at their Lowell home for the winter. Miss Wilder is with them.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Upton returned Thursday from their trip at Maine, and are renewing acquaintances about the hotel. Mr. Upton, it will be remembered, was the former owner of the Oceanside.

Among those remaining at the Oceanside until it closes are: Miss Irene Cramp and maid, Mrs. J. S. Coates and Miss Helen Coates, Philadelphia; Mrs. J. M. Gilkerson, St. Louis; the G. H. Crockers of Fitchburg; Mr. and Mrs. George E. Carter and Miss Eleanor Bradley, Brookline; Mr. and Mrs. Roger M. Wendell, Jr., Miss Wendell and Mrs. M. R. Wendell, Miss L. M. Wendell and Mrs. Albert W. Hobart of Boston; Miss Mary I. Lewis, Philadelphia; Mrs. William H. Willis and Misses Fiffelle and Florence Willis, Columbia, Mo.; Mrs. A. P. Tapley and Miss Tapley and maid, and Clarence G. Croll, Boston; Captain W. F. Pinckard, New Orleans.

Prominent among the arrivals at Magnolia for an early autumn stay are P. T. Francis and Miss Francis of Troy, N. Y. Mr. Francis was formerly U. S. Minister to Belgium. He is now owner of the Troy Times, one of the most influential newspapers in New York state.

Mrs. Reginald Gray and her son, Reginald, left the Oceanside Thursday, after a delightful summer. They have returned to their winter home at Chestnut Hill.

The J. C. Kerrs of Brooklyn, N. Y., intended to leave the Oceanside today for a round of visits on Long Island. Miss Kerr is remaining at Magnolia until the season closes.

Ovington Bros., the New York concern with summer branches at Magnolia and Bar Harbor, have at their Magnolia shop an unusually attractive display for season-end purchasers, of very latest novelties from Paris, Vienna, Berlin and Florence, including a large assortment of specialties for Christmas gifts.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The Clement S. Houghtons will be among the first of the Manchester cottagers to close their houses for the season. After a delightful summer at their own house on Coolidge Point, they will return to Chestnut Hill on the 15th. Mr. Houghton leases on that date for the Canadian Fishing club for his annual fall fishing trip.

The management of the Sales-room of the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children at 28 Central street, Manchester, wishes to announce that there are many attractive and useful articles still unsold which they hope to sell before closing September 20th, in order to end a successful season for this charity.

Miss Ella Harding of New York, is showing a very stunning line of autumn and winter models in ladies' and misses' gowns at her summer shop in the Donchian building, Magnolia. Through a typographical error last week, we made it appear in Miss Harding's advertisement that her shop was on 4th street, New York. As a matter of fact she has splendid new quarters at 6 and 8 East 46th street, opposite the Ritz-Carlton.

Miss Fabyan's Boat Won Saturday's Race.—Season Trophy Won by Gnat.

The Ketchup, sailed by Miss Edith Fabyan, was an easy winner in the race last Saturday by the one-design boats of the Manchester Yacht Club, beating the Asteria 2 minutes and 57 seconds. There were nine boats entered, and furnished one of the most interesting races of the entire series.

The wind was brisk and quite steady from the southwest, and a heavy, choppy sea was running. It was quite an even race, the boats getting away well bunched, and were not separated on either leg. The Ketchup got the lead, and held it to the finish. The Minx protested the Hiccough for fouling at the first turn. The summary:

Name	Owner	h.	m.	s.
Ketchup, Edith Fabyan		1	50	10
Asteria, Charles Hodges, Jr.		1	53	07
Gnat, Oliver Ames		1	54	14
Terrapin, Dr. Frank Balch		1	56	38
Vosetta, George Wigglesworth		1	58	25
Hiccough, Elinor Fabyan		2	01	10
Clarise, John Caswell		2	01	17
Minx, Henry Grew		2	02	25
Quawk, F. P. Motley		2	10	09

The last race of the season by the Manchester yacht club was sailed Monday morning by seven of the one-design boats and was won by the Clarise, sailed by Bessie Lee. The wind was light from the south-east at the start, freshening quite a bit at the finish.

The start was a pretty one, the Minx being first away, followed by the Ketchup and Asteria, the Minx being in the windward position. The Vosetta and Clarise got a lift on the beat to Southeast breakers, the Vosetta turning the mark in lead of Clarise. On the run to the second mark this order was reversed and was maintained to the finish, the last leg being a reach, the Clarise leading the Vosetta at the finish 1 minute and 33 seconds. The Terrapin was disqualified for sailing the wrong course.

The deciding race gives the highest percentage for the season to the Gnat, which takes the trophy, a ship's clock offered by Commodore C. Howard Clark, Jr. The Asteria and Ketchup are tied for second honors, which is subject to a protest. The summary:

Clarise, John Caswell	2	03	21
Vosetta, George Wigglesworth	2	04	54
Ketchup, Edith Fabyan	2	05	25
Minx, Henry Grew	2	07	15
Asteria, Charles Hodges, Jr.	2	07	44

MANCHESTER TAXES.

Rate $8.60; Bills to go out Next Week.

Treasurer E. P. Stanley of the Town of Manchester expects to mail out the 1911 tax bills next Monday. The assessors completed their work some days ago and turned the books over to the collector for collection. In order to rush the work along Mr. Stanley has been keeping two assistants busy this week and it is expected the bills will be ready the first of next week.

Meanwhile, the Breeze has gone over the entire list and presents its readers this week the customary list of tax-payers in the town, both resident and non-resident, assessed $50 and upwards. The distinction, if such, of paying the largest tax falls this year to Mrs. Lester Leland, or to be more exact, the "Trustees under the will of Elisha Converse for the benefit of Frances E. Leland." The amount is $12,900, the largest single tax levy in the history of the town. Mrs. Leland in addition is taxed directly $1823.20. Hon. T. Jefferson Coolidge has been Manchester's largest taxpayer for many years. His tax this year is $8843.66. Others assessed over $1000 are: the Chas. Head estate, $2171.50; Helen Hooper (Mrs. Lathrop Brown), by Philip Dexter, guardian, $1720.00; T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., $1107.10; Nelson S. Bartlett, $1095.92; Trustees will of M. W. Borland, $1372.54; Gordon Abbott, $1222.34; C. S. Houghton, $1357.36; Trustees will Augustus Lowell, $1935; George Putnam, $1566.34; William L. Putnam, $1077; Richard D. Sears, $1378; Margaret Sturgis, $1139.72; Mrs. W. B. Walker, $1243.56; F. M. Whitehouse, $3270.43; Greeley S. Curtis heirs, $1058.23; Philip Dexter, $1040.17; Mary Hemenway, $1569.50; Mrs. H. L. Higginson, $1299.89; E. D. Jordan, $1238.40; James McMillan heirs, $1670.55; Mrs. W. D. Denegre, $1021.68.

The following figures are copied from the Assessors' books: Tax rate, $8.60 on $1000 of valuation; number of residents assessed on property, 571; non-residents, 279; total, 936; for poll tax only, 538. Number of male polls assessed, 841. Total valuation of assessed estate, $15,549,026, made up of $7,735,366 personal and $7,813,660 real estate. Number of horses assessed, 331; cows, 88; oxen, 4; dwelling houses, 751; acres of land, 4434; fowl, 600 (value $400).

The list of taxpayers paying $50 or more will be found on pages 32 and 33.

Educational Opportunities.

The school year has begun and the boys and girls have taken up their books for another year. The recurrence of these starting days brings up the already old question: are the advantages of our modern systems of education appreciated by the parents and seized by the pupils? Parents owe their children the very best training that can be given them. At this season of the year thousands of parents face the problem. Shall the boy or girl return to the school? The responsibility cannot be shirked.

A millionaire broker came upon his chauffeur suddenly and surprised him at his work. The chauffeur stood wrench in hand expecting instructions. "John, if you will let me have that boy, renouncing all claim to him, I will arrange the matter with you to your satisfaction and I will bring the boy up as my own. My position and possessions will be his," said the millionaire. The astonished chauffeur dropped his wrench in his indignation and lifting his hand upward, said, "Mr. A—, that boy is my boy, and there is not enough gold in the mines of the country to buy,—sell my boy? Never! He is mine. I know that I am a poor man dependent upon my month's salary for my living but I will do everything I can for him. When I can't—well that never will be—God will give me light to raise him. He gave him to me. Mine he'll be. I will do everything I can for him. Can a man sell his life?" The man was right—there is a power to help. The boy and girl in the home bring with them their own joys and responsibilities.

The parent and the school are responsible for the child's will. It is a great treasure and by it life may be made or marred. The parent may help him develop that will. If you can bequeath to the child a strong will you will have given him a pearl of great price which no man can take away. It is the key to success and it will open the door to life's blessings. It is better than silver and gold. Stubbornness is the sign of a strong will. All that remains is to train that tenacity in right lines. The man who has a foolishly strong will is headstrong and the man who has a wise strength of will is tenacious. It is the attitude of the will which determines it to be a vice or virtue. No greater folly can be made by a parent than to endeavor to break the will of a child. "I must break that child's will, it will ruin him," says the mistaken parent. Break that will and ruin the child. The discipline of the home and of the school should cooperate to train the child's will. If the child can be well equipped with a strong will the true aim of education will be attained.

The school should cooperate with the parent and the parent with the school in giving the child a proper conception of his place in the world—and his attitude toward life. The problem of existence and the maintenance of high ideals are struggles which end only at the grave. Sooner or later for his or her own good the boy or girl must be transplanted into the life of the world. It is inevitable. At this hour thousands of parents are trembling as they send their children out from the home to the school for the first time. "I tremble for the thought that my child must go to the school and mingle with all those," said the mother. Bless her mother's heart but the mother bird must push the tiny fledglings out of the nest to try the little wings. The little bird must learn to fly. It is the attitude which the child takes to the world into which the child is put for which the parent and school are jointly responsible. At the school age the attitude of the child to the world is being formed and can be shaped. He must learn duties and seek them more than rights. A veterinary surgeon tied his colt tightly for the first time in the halter. The editor was surprised at his care and the strength of the rope. "Why so careful?" he asked. The reply was significant. "It is important that the colt learns at beginning that he cannot break away from that halter. If the colt should break the first time and he discovers he can get away from it, the owner will always have trouble. If he discovers at the first that he cannot break from it he will very quickly learn to stand easily and will have a restful time of it. Otherwise he will go through life pulling at the halter." What a significant statement, "going through life pulling at the halter." This is a picturesque way of saying that the attitude which one takes to life will contribute much to life. The young life must for his or her own good learn to bear responsibilities and do the duties of life with cheerfulness and alacrity. There must be no pulling at the halter.

The parent and the school jointly owe it to the children to make them economically independent. In the very plainest words, to provide them an adequate training to earn their own living. Work has an educational function which has been overlooked too long. The boy or girl who can be placed in a position of owing no man anything is taking one long step toward honorable living, the true end of all school and home training. The work itself affects character. To lay a piece of work accurately has its effects upon the mind. It will not be long before a careless workman will show his slovenliness in his character as well as in his work. If the home and school can direct the young life to congenial, honorable remunerative labor, happy child, blessed parents. To this end of honorable living the parent owes the child the best education the family purse will permit. Not infrequently an ignorant parent is found who is not willing to make the best of the advantages at their very doors for their children. Give the boy or girl a chance. If you did not have a fair opportunity yourself the greater reason why it should be given the children in your own home. You know what you missed. A certain parent said "he would send his boy to college if he sawed wood afterward for a living." By which he meant that the boy's mind would be enriched to enjoy the world in which he dwelt. Not all should go to college. But the child that will is worth the sacrifice. It will not ruin him for the true work of the world if the home and school has already equipped him with a right attitude toward life.

A Labor Creed for Every Day.

The Presbyterian Church has established a department on the relation of the Church and Labor with the intention of assisting the laboring man to mitigate the inequalities and injustices from which he suffers innocently. It is a pronounced move by a conservative church but is thoroughly in keeping with the modern social movement. Rev. Charles Stelzle was engaged to take charge of this department and went to it peculiarly adapted for his labor by training and inclination. In this department he has been indefatigable in the work for the social betterment of the workers of society and has done much to allay the unjust prejudice which has often existed against the church as an institution. This department has endeavored to interest every church in the observance of Labor Sunday and has issued the following creed which will repay reading. Every social movement is a slow one, but progress is surely being made.

"I believe in my job; it may not be a very important job, but it is mine. Furthermore, it is God's job for me. He has a purpose in my life with reference to his plan for the world's progress. No other fellow can take my place. It isn't a big place, to be sure, but for years I have been moulded in a peculiar way to fill a peculiar niche in the world's work. I could take no other man's place. He has the same claim as a specialist that I make for myself. In the end, the man whose name was never heard beyond the house in which he lived, or in the shop in which he worked, may have a larger place than the chap whose name has been a household word on two continents. Yes, I believe in my job. May I be kept true to the task which lies before me—true to myself and to God who entrusted me with it. I believe in my fellow-man: He may not always agree with me. I'd feel sorry for him if he did, because I myself do not believe some of the things that were absolutely sure in my mind a dozen years ago. May he never lose faith in himself, because if he does, he may lose faith in me, and that would hurt him more than the former, and it would really hurt him more than it would hurt me. I believe in my country; I believe in it because it is made up of my fellow-men—and myself. I can't go back on either of us and be true to my creed. If it isn't the best country in the world, it is partly because I am not the man that I should be. I believe in my home; it isn't a rich home. It wouldn't satisfy some folks, but it contains jewels which cannot be purchased in the markets of the world. When I enter its secret chambers and shut out the world with its care, I am a lord. Its motto is service, its reward is love. There is no other spot in the world which fills its place, and heaven can be only a larger home, with a Father who is all-wise and patient and tender. I believe in today; it is all I possess. The past is of value only as it can make the life of today fuller and freer. There is no assurance of tomorrow. I must make good today."

Bureau for the Protection of Human Life.

There is strong movement on foot by the American association for the advancement of science to obtain a department in Washington to conserve human life. The executive secretary of the Committee of One Hundred, organized to prosecute the work writes: "It is as important as a department for agriculture and animal protection," and with the secretary every one agrees. The Bureau is intended to make thorough study of diseases and other enemies of human life. "It does not aim to cure diseases by any one school of medicine, but to prevent disease by water purification, pure food, proper quarantine and by the spread of general information regarding the causes of chronic ailments—so that less illness will exist." The movement has been very strongly opposed by the so-called Christian Science organization.

In December, 1910, in his Message to Congress, President William H. Taft proposed such a bureau. He wrote, "In my message of last year, I recommended the creation of a bureau of health in which should be embraced all those government agencies outside of the War and Navy departments which are now directed toward the preservation of public health or exercise functions germane to that subject. I renew this recommendation, I greatly regret that the agitation in favor of this bureau has aroused a counter agitation against its creation on the grounds that the establishment of such a bureau is to be in the interest of a particular school of medicine. It seems to me that this assumption is wholly unwarranted and that those responsible for the government can be trusted to secure in the personnel of the bureau the appointment of representatives of all recognized schools of medicine and in the management of the bureau entire freedom from narrow prejudice in this regard."

The list of the committee of One Hundred, who have the movement in charge, contains the names of representative men and women of international reputation such as Pres. Eliot, Archbishop Ireland and Felix Adler. This movement is one in which every citizen is interested and when the time arrives for legislative action there is no reason to doubt that our representatives will be found voting with the President.

The Situation in Morocco.

Our foreign problems are still before us and the days of restraint, diplomacy and caution are not gone in international affairs. The situation in Morocco has been acute and one which will cause considerable anxiety for months to come in diplomatic affairs. It is a cause for rejoicing that President Taft is not a "jingo" and that with his Peace program (it is intimated that Germany may arrange for a Peace pact with the United States Government) we have no cause for worry concerning any possibility of complications in Africa. Mr. Edmund F. Merriam, editor, has made a careful study of the situation and in a brief paragraph published recently in the Watchman writes:

"It has doubtless been a surprise to most Americans that the great powers of Europe should twice be brought to the verge of a general European war by disputes over Morocco. That territory is usually regarded as practically a part of the Desert of Sahara and as containing nothing worth fighting for. This opinion is hardly correct, for Morocco contains, besides many other things, gold mines which have been sources of great wealth to Spaniards for many years, and it has the only good harbor on the Atlantic coast of North Africa, Agadir. But it is not to Morocco itself nor what it contains that the concern of European powers as to what becomes of the country is to be attributed. It is rather because the Morocco question is only a part of the far greater question of the partition of Africa. This question did not exist before the famous journey of Henry M. Stanley "Through the Dark Continent." Before that, various nations had established settlements and claims at various places around the coast of Africa, but there was almost no opportunity for conflict. With the discoveries of Stanley in 1877 the possibilities of the great unknown interior of Africa began to be realized, and the leading powers of Europe hastened to put themselves in a position to command as much as possible of its territory and resources. Wily King Leopold of Belgium was able enough to get the powers to put him in charge of a generous slice of the interior, but France seized on a territory north of the Congo, Great Britain, which was already dominant in South Africa, leaped into the territory about Victoria Nyanza, controlled the sources of the Nile, and extended its control in Nigeria, and Germany, rather behind in the race, got only some not very desirable territory east of Lake Nyassa on the southwest coast in the region of Damara land. In the development of Africa, Germany has been constantly trying to make up for its poor start in the race for the partition of Africa, and has placed increasing importance on its possessions in the Kameruns which have proved the most prospectively valuable of all its holdings in Africa. Almost the whole of Africa is now divided between these three great powers. Great Britain is dominant in all South Africa and Egypt, France in Northwest Africa, and Germany is striving to increase its strength in the Central Zone. By its influence over Belgium it intends to dominate the Congo State. This explains its recent interference with France in its movements in Morocco. Germany cares not a rap for Morocco, but stepped in so it could propose that, in consideration of giving France a free hand in Morocco, France should cede to Germany that part of French Congo which prevents the extension of the German Kameruns into the interior. This is a little difficult for France to do, as it would cut the connection between French Congo and French territory in the Sudan; but that may be done, as it is much more important that France should have undisputed way in all Northwest Africa than that it should retain power to advance in Central Africa. Meantime Great Britain, secure in the Great South and in the Northeast of Africa, wants to get from Germany or Belgium a strip along the east or west coasts of Lake Nyassa wide enough to complete the Cape-to-Cairo Railway. It is a very pretty game of chess on a big board. France is to have a greater and more productive France in North Africa, Great Britain a great new Empire, and Germany a chance for the overflow and development of its surplus population."

Anderson Won Championship.

John G. Anderson of the Brae-Burn C. C., West Newton, former state champion, and G. V. Rotan of the Merrimac Valley C. C., Lawrence, who lives in Texas but spends his summers at Bass Rocks, met yesterday in the final round of match play at 36 holes for the Massachusetts amateur golf championship at the Essex County club, and Anderson won a well-played and interesting contest 3 and 2.

Although Anderson had the advantage at the end of the morning play, leading by 3 up, Rotan came back strong on the first nine holes of the second round, making the match all even. But Rotan was not able to withstand the last nine holes, and the match ended after 34 had been played.

Anderson, who qualified with 78 last Monday, had to play good golf to reach the final. He met Rodney W. Brown in the first match, defeating the Meadow Brook player by 3 and 1; W. Whittemore of the Country club, Anderson put out of the running by 2 and 1; he also beat W. S. Wait by 2 and 1, and H. W. Stucklen, state champion up to yesterday, was another Anderson victim, being beaten by 2 and 1.

Rotan won his way to the final by defeating B. S. Evans by 6 and 4, G. H. Crocker by 5 and 4, P. Gilbert by 2 and 1, and T. G. Stevenson by 2 and 1.

The summary of the last three rounds:

Third Round

H. W. Stucklen, Brae-burn, defeated H. Schmidt, Worcester, 3 up.

J. G. Anderson, Brae-Burn, defeated W. S. Wait, Brae-Burn, 1 up.

T. G. Stevenson of Myopia defeated J. N. Manning, Brae-Burn, 1 up, 21 holes.

G. V. Rotan, Merrimac Valley, defeated Percival Gilbert, Brae-Burn, 2 and 1.

Semifinal Round

Anderson defeated Stucklen, 3 and 2.

Rotan defeated Stevenson, 1 up.

Finals

J. G. Anderson defeated G. V. Rotan, 3 up 2 to play.

It is a beautiful thing to live. Life is a fine art. It is the supreme consummation of all the arts, the final finish and flower.

Mrs. Wm. Hill of Bennett street, moved to Boston this week, where Mr. Hill is employed in the mechanical department of the Boston Globe.

It was not in respect to our Adman that the band struck up "Hail to the Chief" at the Myopia Horse show last Monday, but to our respected Neighbor, W. H. T. Both gentlemen came into the arena at the same time, in opposite corners of the field, one by motor, the other driving a livery horse and wagon.

If there is any one thing Manchester people in general should feel proud of it is that they live in a town that can afford to furnish its citizens and their friends such a series of band concerts as we have had this summer. These band concerts have been the means of attracting hundreds of people to the town every concert night, and it has served to draw out the townspeople in large numbers. Last night there were fully 2000 people in the square, despite the cool evening and the threatening appearance of the weather. The Salem Cadet Band, under the leadership of Jean Missud, —a band than which there is none better—has furnished excellent music all summer and last night's concert was none the less true.

We are pleased to say that Mr. George Forster Allen, for nearly half a century until the past two or three years, one of Manchester's storekeepers, will celebrate his 85th birthday Sunday, informally, at his home on Elm street. Mr. Allen is not in the best of health, though he is able to be about as usual and to meet his friends. Mrs. Allen was 84 a week ago last Sunday.

The Bell family held a reunion at Tuck's Point, Labor Day. Four generations were represented, the oldest being Mrs. Mary Bell of Beverly, the head of the large family, 78 years old, and the youngest being the six-months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Bell of Manchester. Those present were: Mrs. Mary Bell, Frank W. Bell, Arthur S. Bell, Fred E. Bell, Willis H. Bell, Samuel

P. Bell, Herbert B. Hinchliffe, Walter R. Bell, Charles Bell, Hollis Bell, Harry L. Bell, George E. Rowe, Ed. Dodd, Burt Eastman, Charles Taylor, Carl E. Herrick, Winthrop Foley, Phillip Rowe, Holton Bell, Arthur G. Bell, Gordon Bell, Allan Bell, Hollis Bell, Jr., Robert Eastman, Mrs. Bessie Dodd, Mrs. Mattie Rowe, Mrs. Lizzie Bell, Mrs. Jennie Bell, Mrs. Mary E. Bell, Mrs. Cora Bell, Mrs. Alice Hinchliffe, Mrs. Grace Bell, Mrs. Cleve Bell, Mrs. Ruth Bell, Mrs. Bessie Bell, Florence Eastman, Mrs. Fannie Taylor, Miss Mollie Bell, Martha Rowe, Sarah Dodd, Miss Mary Bell, Lucy Bell, Mrs. Sarah Staten, Miss Mabel Clark of Texas, Miss Grace Bell, Miss Ruth Bell, Eleanor Eastman, Ruth Eastman, Dorothy Bell.

A very pleasant musicale was enjoyed by a number of friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Rumrill, Brook street, on Wednesday evening, when Mrs. Wm. Choate Rust furnished piano and banjo selections in her most pleasing manner, assisted by Mrs. Calderwood.

Friends of the family of the late John Dillon, who made Manchester their home until recently, will regret to learn of the death at Roxbury, September 1st, of May Gertrude, wife of William J. Dillon, and daughter of Patrick F. and Mary Kelly of Fenwood road, Roxbury, aged 29 years. Funeral from her late residence, 20 Dunreath street, Roxbury, Monday, September 4th, at 8 o'clock. Services at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's Church.

The "Boy Scouts" Movement in boys for war should this become im-Manchester. perative at any time.

Very few seem to realize the nature of this new organization of the "Boy Scouts of America" in our national life.

This is not a mere play organization. There is a lot of play in it. There is the luring charm of everything that a boy loves to do out of doors, lots of it; but it is far more ambitious than this in its fundamentals and study and work. It is meant to make manly boys out of mollycoddle boys, of whom there are many in this coming generation of men. It is meant to harden them physically, brighten them mentally, and purify them morally.

The "Boy Scouts" are the young soldiers of peace, a part of a great international movement to inculcate reverence for law and order and foster the ideals of peace, while at the same time it is qualifying the

There are twelve fundamental principles in this organization: A "Boy Scout" is trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean, reverent. These things make for modern chivalry and for the practical Christianity the church teaches. It is only another form of true religion applied to that period of a boy's life when he needs a sane and healthy view of religion. The local organization now to be consummated in Manchester needs your help and your boy, but your boy needs the organization even more. Both the boy who has already received a training at home and the boy who has been pampered and spoiled, or neglected, are invited to join this movement if they are twelve years of age and over.

A word about our camp on Dana's

Island. Instead of encouragement on the part of a number, I received criticism and even positive opposition and many were the dire things predicted about our venture, all of which, I am happy to say, failed to materialize. I still hold, now demonstrated by a severe test, that Dana's Island is an ideal camp site.

Through the great kindness of R. H. Dana, we had the use of the island which he had prepared for us and also the use of the bungalow, added to which Mr. Dana granted us all the facilities attendant upon the use of the entrance through his estate, the privilege of the fine beach for bathing and sports, of getting our water supply at his house, and making it our headquarters for provisions, etc. And no one could have been more kind and solicitous about the boys, and the parents owe a deep sense of gratitude to Mr. Dana for all this, a kindness somewhat rare in general.

We also acknowledge with gratitude the interest and help of Mr. Chester Crafts in repairing the bungalow and helping to make the camp-site comfortable and healthful.

Thanks are also due to Messrs. Albert Cunningham, Harry W. Purrington, Willard Rust and Charles Dodge who helped to entertain the boys with refreshments and stories around the evening camp fire.

To the parents who entrusted their boys to my judgment and care, and to the boys themselves, who were obedient and willing to a marked degree, I am sincerely grateful; for which I am willing to do my best in the further training of the boys in the development of the manly and moral life.

There were fifteen boys, besides their scout master, that entered camp under a steady downpour of rain which lasted several days, one of which, a northeast storm, marooned us on the island. But in spite of all the unfavorable criticism and the stormy weather we had good health and a grand good time, with the exception of one case of indigestion and one case of ivy poisoning, of any consequence whatever. Today I count these fifteen boys the veterans of our "Boy Scouts," whose experience of this week of the camp is very valuable as a demonstration of what we can do and endure, an experience to inspire courage and hope in the overcoming of life's difficulties.

Rev. Louis H. Ruge,
 Sept. 8, 1911. Scout Master.

the English boy to room in the yard and also for him to have the advantages which will come from constant association with the right kind of upperclassman. It is an interesting coincidence that Mr. Catheron, as well as young Harvard, is of a family which has numbered the founder of a university among its members. It was a member of his mother's family who founded Mt. Allison University at Sackville, N. B., in 1854. This is the largest institution of higher education in New Brunswick and it was the first in Canada to confer degrees upon women. The parents of Mr. Catheron were born in Nova Scotia, but he prepared for Harvard in Needham, and has roomed at home during the first three years of his course."—Boston Transcript.

Louis Catheron is well known in Manchester, where he lived when a boy. His father was formerly caretaker of the W. B. Walker estate. He is a brother of Mrs. Benjamin L. Bullock, School street.

Writes of the "Singing Sand" of Manchester.

Louis H. Stine of Aberdeen, Miss., was a recent visitor to Manchester, a guest of Albert Cunningham. Mr. Stine was much impressed with the North Shore, and Singing Beach held a special charm for him, for in the Aberdeen (Miss.) Examiner of recent issue we find the following above his signature:

"Manchester is a beautiful village by the sea, of 2,500 resident population, twenty-four miles down from Boston. The writer spent two hours the other day on its sandy shore.

"The sand on the beach of Manchester is endowed with a musical quality. Under the touch of one's foot it gives forth musical sounds. At once the footman's attention is arrested and he begins to listen to the songs of the sand. Under a stroke of his foot, aided by imagination, the sand sings the "Star Spangled Banner"; under a different stroke it responds with the melody of "Dixie," then "Hail Columbia," and the "Old Oaken Bucket" will sing in one's ear. Where the dry, pure sand found its music would be hard to answer. Where did the robin find his note? Anyway, the sand on this unique beach has its succession of tunes; amidst the music of the spheres the white sand on the beach at Manchester has its song. For ages it has been singing its song that never grows dull and it is improbable it will ever lose its musical voice that is tuned to the harmony of the sea. There is only one other musical beach in the world and I believe it sings on a shore of Australia.

"Manchester is a luxurious summering place for a great company of wealthy people who have royal cottages on this singing shore. I venture to assert that enough men of wealth, place and power spend their summers in their silver palaces in Manchester to furnish nabobs for a state of 800,000 white population. "I wish that all my friends in Aberdeen could listen for an afternoon to the music of the Manchester shore."

The picnic and ball game between the Winnepurkit Tribe 55 of Lynn, and Conomo Tribe 113 of Manchester, held at Tuck's Point, September second, was a grand success. Umpire Gordon Slade called the game about 3 p.m. The Winnepurkit boys returned to Lynn victorious to the tune of 19 to 15. After the game, the boys sat down to a fine spread of lobster. The Lynn boys left on the 6.41 train. The committee in charge: H. Moulton, L. Harvie, J. Bates, W. J. Lethbridge, W. Roberts and J. D. Morrison. This is the third outing of the Red Men this season. All have been most enjoyable times, and the local tribe seem more alive and ready for a good time than ever.

Rev. Henry M. Goddard of the Congregational Church returned to his pulpit on Sunday last after four weeks' vacation and preached an able and eloquent sermon on the "Unity of the Christian and God." They are co-existent; no Christian work can be accomplished without that union, as the vine and the branches; failure and dearth of Christian work and achievement is due to the fact that there is little union between the great source of all strength, purity and love and the individual. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was celebrated in the afternoon. A union meeting led by Lyman D. Lowe closed the day. In the morning service delightful solos were rendered by Mrs. Brainerd Mears of Williamstown and Miss Winnifred Burnham.

Dr. and Mrs. Ellis entertained E. M. Trefethen and friends of the City Engineer Office, Lynn, over the holiday at Robbins Island. The following came by boat: W. M. James, C. O. Hurry, F. E. Gowdy, G. S. Sontat and D. Hersey.

Hardy, Perkins and Jones, three old pals of the Essex High school, enjoyed their annual outing at Camp Alice, Choate Island, last week. They report wet rainy weather but as they were neither sugar nor salt it did not harm, but they had a glorious time.

It is reported that last Sunday was desecrated by wholesale photography on the platform of the Boston & Maine railroad station.

The public schools will open next Monday. All the old teachers will resume their duties with the exception of Miss Pool, who will teach in Medford. Every year a number of our scholars leave our high school for high schools of the neighboring cities and towns. There must be a reason. It behooves the superintendent and school committee to look into this matter and do what they can to make conditions as pleasant and profitable that all parents and scholars will be loyal to Essex High school.

JUST BEING HAPPY.

Just being happy is a fine thing to do;
Looking on the bright side rather than the blue;

Sad or sunny musing
Is largely in the choosing,

And just being happy is brave work and true.

Just being happy helps other souls along;
Their burdens may be heavy and they not strong;

And your own sky will lighten,
If other skies you brighten

By just being happy with a heart full of song.

WHEN THE BIRDS GO NORTH AGAIN.

Oh, every year hath its winter,
And every year hath its rain—
But a day is always coming
When birds go north again.

When new leaves swell in the forest,
And grass springs green on the plain,
And the alders' veins turn crimson—
And the birds go north again.

Oh, every heart hath its sorrow,
And every heart hath its pain—
But a day is always coming
When the birds go north again.

'Tis the sweetest thing to remember
If courage be on the wane,
When the cold, dark days are over—
Why, the birds go north again.

The High Class vaudeville show held at the Library Hall last Friday evening under the auspices of the Men's club and the Women's club was a grand success from every point of view. There was a rattling good bill played to a packed house. Several of the sketches were worthy of Keith's circuit. The two single act sketches "The Lost Pal" and "Wanted—An Actor," were written by I. J. Hinckley, who played the part of the half-breed Mexican in the former sketch. Three of the songs used in the musical farce were written by Allen MacDuff who played the part of a comic Jew in the last sketch. Mr. Holmes, also, was author of one of the songs, "He Won't Do" which he sang. Professor Krumpeln was a great success in his act, assisted by the very fairy-like ballet dancer, Miss McCashin. This was Prof. Krumpeln's initial performance on the vaudeville stage as he begins his engagement on Keith's circuit in New York on September 11th. The entire show was so much appreciated by the entire audience that four of the best acts were reproduced by special request at the Oceanside on Monday evening, where they were received with great applause from an audience of guests which packed the Casino. "The Musical Fantasy," which created a very favorable impression at the Women's club some weeks ago was again well received as one act of the show. Marchee, a very clever juggler, received great applause for his skill. Howlett, monologist, and Woodrow, dramatic reader, were very pleasing numbers of the program and were both well received by the audience. The solo rendered by Miss Callahan in the first act showed good training and was well received. Taken as a whole every person should be complimented on their good work.

Many preparations are being made at the Women's club for the tea to be held Saturday afternoon for the benefit of the Red Cross society. Miss Boardman of Manchester and Washington, D. C., will give a short talk at four o'clock. It is hoped that all interested in the good work of the society will attend.

The last Gentlemen's Night of the season will be held at the Women's club on Wednesday evening, September 13th, for members and their guests only. Music will be furnished by Chane's orchestra.

There is no duty—we so much underrate as the duty of being happy. By being happy we sow anonymous benefits upon the world, which remain unknown even to ourselves, or when they are disclosed, surprise nobody so much as the benefactor.

Helen Ware at the Hollis Street.

Miss Helen Ware will begin the second week of her engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre next Monday evening in George Broadhurst's new play "The Price." There will be the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. "The Price" is a modern drama in three acts and Henry B. Harris has selected the company to support Miss Ware with such care that an absolutely perfect performance of the play is given. The stage settings are in perfect accord with the unusual play and its performance.

Those who remember Helen Ware as Annie Jeffries in "The Third Degree" will realize that as an emotional actress she has power excelled by few players on the stage today. It takes a big play and a big part to give scope to her talents. Yet in "The Price" Mr. Broadhurst has succeeded in providing just the sort of a drama in which Miss Ware appears to the best advantage. The part of Ethel Toscani, which Miss Ware created, is big, human and touching. It makes an irresistible appeal to the audience and through the tremendous scene which caps the story of the play she holds her audience spellbound. It is a character study to be long remembered by those so fortunate as to see it.

"The Price" is the first play in which Miss Ware has appeared in this city as a star, and in it Mr. Harris has given her a play which is worthy of the talent that gained her that eminent position.

Aviation Accidents.

It is not strange that there have been lives sacrificed in the fight for supremacy of the air. But the fact that only two men in the army have been killed while using aeroplanes seems to indicate, that under proper restrictions, and capable supervision there is not so much danger in navigating the air as might be supposed. The army aviators are at work every day, and the number of machines at the College Park grounds is increasing steadily. The men devoting themselves to this work are as intrepid and fearless as any, but they are trying to work out problems and secure mastery of their craft rather than to make showy, dare-devil and reckless flights.

Keith's Theatre.

Another all-star vaudeville show is announced for next week at B. F. Keith's Theatre, one that abounds in novelties and with the same wealth of headline features that is making the current week memorable in the annals of this popular resort. Rose Coghlan, one of the cleverest actresses on the legitimate stage, will appear in a new dramatic sketch entitled "Between Matinee and Night." This piece tells an intensely interesting and at the same time amusing story of that side of theatrical life of which the public has little or no knowledge. Miss Coghlan will be supported by a splendid company, including her daughter Rosalind. One of the most pretentious novelties in all vaudeville is Joseph Hart's "Bathing Girls," a tabloid musical revue in which a dozen scenes of dazzling splendor are unfolded, a host of pretty girls take part in lively songs and dances, and the amazing bathing effect, where a number of shapely misses disport themselves in the dashing surf at Long Branch. Ray Cox, "the girl from Dixie," will bring her famous imitations, including the "The Baseball Girl."

Baseball in Manchester.

With the waning of the season in baseball, the enthusiasm seems increasing. The Crickets are playing much better ball than they have all summer, and the people are delighted to see so many games that mean victory for the home team. The game on Saturday with the Rivals of Gloucester was well worth seeing. The score:

The game Monday morning was, if anything, equally as good as Saturday's, but was dearly bought for both teams. Alfred Walen, who has been doing such splendid catching for the Crickets, had his right hand split open, and several stitches were necessary. Although doing well now, it will be a couple of months before he can use his hand with any comfort. Hallowell, the catcher, and Smith, first baseman, of the Wesleys, came together while trying for a high fly and both were hurt. Hallowell was severely hurt, his face being cut open. A number of stitches were necessary. Both teams were playing good ball up to that time. The Wesleys made several costly errors after this mishap and the Crickets got in a couple of runs thereby. The game was 6-6 in the seventh inning. Neither side scored in the eighth. Goodwin made a sensational one-hand catch of a fly in center field in the seventh inning. The Peabody nine is as nice a crowd of young men as have played here this season. The summary:

MANCHESTER.

Miss Margaret Gillis will attend the Salem Normal School this year. Archibald McDonald is enjoying his vacation with friends in Nova Scotia.

There was great local interest in last Friday's playgrounds meet at the Salem common, since two Manchester young women played so important a part in the preparations and results. They were Mrs. George Dean, the assistant supervisor, and Miss Alice Knight, one of her assistants at the Bridge street playground. Two thousand boys and girls in parade and 2500 spectators is an inspiring sight. The parade took the form of a pageant headed by the U. S. M. Co. band. Outside the parade ground were booths and tables maintained by each playground for the sale of refreshments and foods. There were exhibitions of embroidery, basketry, sewing and raffia. There were prize games and contests and a prize baby parade. Three distinguished women served on the board of judges: Miss Shepard from the State University of Missouri; Mrs. Charles M. Cabot of Boston and Beverly Farms, and Miss Murphy, supervisor of the Boston playgrounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Packard of Gardner, are visiting friends at the Farms this week.

The work of cleaning the Farms streets and sidewalks, especially that section from the Farms depot to West beach, under the direction of and at the expense of the Improvement Society, has effected a decided change, so much so that favorable comment is heard on all sides, and it is particularly noticeable how much more attractive our village really is. It would be much more so if the city would allow a small appropriation for the work during the summer months.

esting history, being the reputed site in 1658 of the burying place of Masconomo, Sagamore of the Agawams, who made the famous seashore town of Manchester his territory and whose life of power and leadership had so sorrowful and so tragic an end. In June 18, 1658, Masconomo's widow was given a grant of land in Ipswich, the reputed year of Masconomo's death. Thus the early history of Manchester, Hamilton and Ipswich was dramatically intermingled through the rule of this patriarch of the Red Skins, who was such a prominent figure of the Indian period of Essex County.

Masconomo's chief camping place seems to have been at what is now Ipswich. He stood out a noble figure in Indian lore, kindly disposed and peaceable to his white neighbors; therefore no conflicts with the early white settlers have been recorded. It was in 1700 that Manchester settlers paid the grandsons of Masconomo three pounds, nineteen shillings for relinquishing all right, title and interest in the land then comprising Manchester's township. These ancient records are not without their pathetic touches, since early in his career the once independent chief lost every vestige of his power and the wooded lonely confines of Hamlet were a solace to the old chieftain shorn of his power.

There is inspiration in his life and deeds which gives a hallowed charm to his traditional haunts in Manchester, Ipswich and Hamilton.

On June 11, 1630, is recorded the visit of Gov. Winthrop to Manchester which introduced Masconomo in a most friendly guise. This famous colonial official is believed to have anchored off Gale's Point, the inland cove portion of Smith's Point, Manchester. 'Tis pleasant to paint an imaginary mental picture of the "Arbella," the Governor's flagship, the impressive governor,—grave, modest, intelligent and scholarly—receiving the great Indian Sagamore, Masconomo, who remained on board the ship all the day she remained in Manchester.

Thus as in the past, these sections of the North Shore built their public prosperity on the foundations of intelligence and inherited Puritanism of the best stock.

Today both permanent and summer residents are enjoying the inestimable blessings which the sacrifice of their predecessors secured for them. The most substantial emigrants left the mother country for the North Shore and today the most wealthy and aristocratic seek her shores and inlands and the uplifting traditional charm, which clings to her fields, woods, rocks and inlets, adds deeply to the interest of the social and civic life found there. Great pleasure is derived from sojourns in the communities in which the Puritan commonwealth was aided in its foundation and it is not surprising that it should have eventually become the popular residence of personages who founded the future state of national affairs and who endeavor to maintain the ancestral standard of high principle.

Charles E. Lee.

Charles E. Lee, a former resident of Manchester, passed away in Beverly Thursday of last week, at the ripe old age of 73 years and 11 months, after a long illness. Mr. Lee when but a young man came to Manchester to live, occupying the old Lee house on Summer street, long since destroyed, the lot being now occupied by P. H. Boyle's livery stable. In 1858, he entered the employ of Alfred Jewett as a cabinet maker apprentice and served under that firm until the civil war, when he enlisted in Co. D, 40th Massachusetts, and was severely wounded at the Florida campaign. He remained a cripple all his life from this accident. Returning from the war, he again came to Manchester and becoming able to work once more, started in at his old place with the Jewett Furniture Co., whose factory was at the end of the old Swett homestead on Central street, the building now occupied by the Manchester Wet Wash Laundry. He resided in this town for a number of years and then moved to Beverly where he has resided the remaining years of his life. He married Miss Elizabeth Young, a sister to William Young of this town, in 1869. His father's name was James Lee and his mother's Nancy Lee. He was of a quiet demeanor, a pleasant word for everybody and a whole heart for doing good to every one he came in contact with. He was a member of GAR post of Beverly and will be greatly missed. He leaves a widow Elizabeth Young Lee and five sons.

SWAT THAT FLY!

Biggest Murderer That Ever Lived

Some Fly Don'ts

Don't allow flies in your house.

Don't permit them near your food—especially milk.

Don't buy foodstuff where flies are tolerated.

Don't have feeding places where flies can load themselves with dejections from typhoid or dysenteric patients.

Don't allow your fruits and confections to be exposed to the swarms of flies.

Don't let flies crawl over the baby's mouth and swarm upon the nipple of its nursing bottle.

Death to the House-Fly!

This is the slogan of all celebrated physicians, scientific associations and boards of health of all large cities in the United States and foreign countries: Ten very strong reasons why this pest should be exterminated—

Because, it is the bane of the family; the world's greatest murderer; the worst and filthiest foe of mankind; the worst deadly enemy of public health in summer.

Because, it lessens the average span of human life at least 2 years; spreads diseases that cause the loss of 170,000,000 lives every generation; disseminates typhoid fever and all enteric diseases; plays an important part in spreading cholera, small pox, consumption and many other disease epidemics too numerous to mention.

Because, it kills thousands and thousands of poor innocent children every summer in our large cities, and murders 75,000 every year in the whole United States.

Because, it is recognized today by all scientific men all over the world that the common house-fly is the most dangerous insect to mankind—more dangerous than the Tiger or Cobra.

The human race sooner or later must systematically combine to exterminate this pest.

Now, the question arises: How can it best be done?

The best, the surest, the cleanest and the most effective way of destroying the house-fly is by using the U-Need-Me Fly Trap manufactured by the National Fly Trap and Novelty Company, of Boston, Mass.

The U-Need-Me Fly Trap is a neat article and surely the best fly destroyer that ever was placed on the market. No hotel, no restaurant, no public place, no household, can afford to be without it.

It is not only a fly destroyer, but is also a beautiful ornament. It is the best device ever invented for the destruction of flies. Be sure to try it. The price is only 50c each. Do not be without it. The National Fly Trap and Novelty Company, Boston, Mass.

WELL, drop in now again, soon, changes for the better are going on each day, store's gradually filling up with pretty things for the Fall, that so far as we've yet seen, are most decidedly to your liking. The rather "letter grade" goods are affected, perhaps, the most, and this, of course, is where you all are decidedly interested.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Miss E. Stevens, daughter of H. H. Stevens of Summer street, Magnolia, won the title to the silver trophy offered by Amory Eliot for the best woman player at the Essex County club. The tournament was played last Friday, in the rain, Miss Margaret Thomas, Miss Edith Fitz, Miss Marion Tucker, Miss Helen Covell, Mme. Bonard and Countess de Chambrun being the contestants. Countess Chambrun won the tournament, which was a handicap competition, with a card of 108-10-98. Miss Stevens was the holder of the cup from last year, and it was up to Countess Chambrun to challenge Miss Stevens for the cup. Consequently the round was played Monday, at medal play, 18 holes, and Miss Stevens successfully defended her title to the cup 4 up and 2 to play. Miss Stevens won the cup in 1909 and 1910 and her victory this year gives her the permanent title to the trophy, as one of the stipulations going with the trophy is that it shall be won three times, not necessarily successive, before becoming the absolute property of holder.

Noted Old Revolutionary Houses of Cape Ann Still Exist

BY MARY TAYLOR FALT

THE Ellery house on Washington street, Gloucester, located on the "Green" or the famous "Meetinghouse Green" of colonial history, has a very interesting connection with the traditions of the olden times in that city. It was the original home of the first pastor of Gloucester's first parish, Rev. John White, whose long and peaceful ministry lasted fifty years. He was born in Watertown in 1678, and was graduated at Harvard College in 1698. He was ordained in Gloucester, April 21, 1703. This venerable, colonial divine lived to the advanced age of 83 years and his "learned, pious, humble, prudent and faithful" characteristics made him one of the most useful men in the broadening aspects of colonization in Gloucester. Some of his learned religious productions have come down to us in printed form.

Rev. John White's parsonage later became the home of Capt. Wm. Ellery, who followed the sea and likewise conducted one of the noted Colonial taverns of Gloucester. Today this famous old house is standing and its external appearance is significant of its antiquity.

The lineal descendants of the original Wm. Ellery, who settled in Gloucester before 1663, have two ancestors of distinction,—Wm. Ellery Channing, D. D., the distinguished theologian and divine, and Wm. Ellery of Newport,—who was a great grandson of the original settler, was noted as a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The old "Witch House" or "Garrison House" at Pigeon Cove, Rockport, revives the traditions of the colonial seafarers, who discovered the merits of Rockport's shores and waters for maritime pursuits and who aided in founding her first settlement known as Sandy Bay, a territory fertile for planting with primeval forests and with the broad Atlantic, in all her varying moods, at her very footstool, assets for founding the flourishing town now such a rapidly growing and such a popular summer resort.

The first two permanent settlers of Rockport were Richard Tarr in 1697, and John Pool in 1700, and their numerous descendants are still among the leading citizens of Rockport.

During the Witchcraft era of 1692, the old "Witch House," later called the "Garrison House," on Pigeon Hill, Pigeon Cove, Rockport, according to tradition, concealed a Salem woman accused of witchcraft, her sons bringing her there for safety and retirement.

The old "Garrison" or "Witch House" stands in a field bordering on Granite street and nearby and across the street from the modern summer mansion of Clarence W. Seamans, of Brooklyn, N. Y. It is said to be one of the oldest, if not the oldest house on Cape Ann. There are old trees in the yard and the house has been modified considerably, but its thick oak walls, low-studded rooms, great corner posts, cross-beams, chimneys and small window frames are significant of its antiquity.

Joshua Norwood, another early Rockport settler, lived in this old house, afterward enlarging and improving it and for some length of time made it his home. In 1740, he left it and bought land at Gap Head on the Straitsmouth end of Rockport, and settled there with his son, Joshua, in that section of the Sandy Bay settlement which now embraces Marmion Way, one of Rockport's leading summer resort sections with its fine array of summer homes and its picturesque Straitsmouth Inn on its bold and rocky promontory.

The old "Witch House" is still a landmark of great interest in a growing summer community and has itself dispensed summer hospitality to many men eminent for taste and culture.

Another tradition, which introduces the former owner of the Witch House in relation to Rockport's early history, was Joshua Norwood's purchase of land at Straitsmouth from the "Chebacco fishermen," who were believed to have been Jefford Cogswell, Jacob Perkins and James Smith of Ipswich, who purchased the original land from John Babson, who had a grant at Straitsmouth in 1695.

Either Babson or a member of his family were attacked one day by a bear and after a terrible struggle with their wild antagonist succeeded in slaying him with a knife. His skin was preserved and laid out on the rocks near the sea to dry. This neck of land was plainly visible to the fishermen, who frequented Sandy Bay's shores and they gave it the name of Bearskin Neck, from this incident, the name it now bears.

The old Revolutionary House on Middle street, Gloucester, is quite the most interesting and notable of the trio of houses described in this article and stands out as a refreshing landmark of the old fishing port's quaint and individual, by-gone days.

The "Old Revolutionary House" was originally built for John Stevens, a Gloucester merchant and trader, who had a hazardous business career and became a bankrupt. To avoid arrest for debt, he fled in a vessel belonging to his father-in-law to St. Eustatia, where he died. His foreign voyages were of some fruition, however, for all the beautiful woodwork of this old mansion was brought from abroad.

Ionic and Corinthian pillars adorn the beautiful portico which faced the harbor in the olden days, and the ground sloped to the water to "Front street," now Gloucester's busy Main street, the grounds being laid out in terraces and tastefully arranged flower plots. The old portico still remains and a portion of the terraces. The old mansion, which has been preserved, consists of nineteen rooms and was hand-made throughout as its present substantial appearance attests and is as habitable as when the old merchant erected it. To appreciate its rich colonial charms, one must personally examine the beautifully carved and decorative mantles, the exquisitely hand-carved staircase, the beautifully frosted window on its first landing surmounted by the Corinthian pillars.

It is not surprising that the merchant's widow, who was Judith Sargent, the daughter of his close friend, Winthrop Sargent, born in 1751, should have won the heart of Rev. John Murray, the founder of Universalism in America, the site of whose first church of that denomination which bears the modern church of that name stands today nearly opposite the "Old Revolutionary House," a lasting monument of his endeavors to found that denomination with Gloucester, the initial locality, for his religious activities in that direction.

SOCIETY NOTES.

There was more than a passing interest on the North Shore in the wedding of Howard Gillette of Chicago and Miss Cornelia Forbes Brookmire of St. Louis at Biddeford Pool, Me., on Tuesday afternoon, since the parties in the marriage were earlier in the season guests at Beverly of the Daniel B. Wentz family of Chilton Hills, Pa. Mr. Wentz was also Mr. Gillette's best man at the wedding. All the world loves a lover and a deep-seated romance. Mr. Gillette and Miss Brookmire were the dramatis personae in a romance that has had national publicity. Mr. Gillette's first glimpse of his bride was at Philadelphia when she was giving a number of poor children an auto ride in the park. Miss Brookmire was in mourning for a dead fiancée.

Mr. Gillette's persistent wooing of months won him his desire. Every week-end he has come on from Chicago traveling 3,000 miles to visit his fiancée. Brook Knoll, the Maine summer home of the Brookmire family, was the scene of the wedding. The wedding breakfast was served on the lawn. Mrs. Brookmire is dearly beloved and admired at Biddeford Pool for her kindness and philanthropy to the children and fisher folk. Mr. Gillette is a very wealthy Chicago broker and a member of the exclusive Bachelors' club of that city. Such prominent Chicago men as Eames McVeagh, Harold and Robert McCormick served as his ushers at the wedding.

Editor North Shore Breeze,
Manchester, Mass.

Dear Sir:—The Beverly Farms branch of the Beverly Improvement Society, of which I am a member, have deputed me to call your attention to the condition of the trees on the public streets, and on private estates, infested as they are with nests of the gypsy moth and other insect pests.

The gypsy moth nests are easily removed by the use of a brush at the end of a long pole, the brush having first been dipped in Creosote or even kerosene. A ladder and a stout heart to climb will enable one to reach the most distant, and now is the accepted time, before the trees become covered with snow and ice.

The brown-tail nests are on the extremity of the branches, easily seen and easily cut off by a pair of shears at the end of a long pole. When they drop to the ground they should be immediately burned. All burlaps or loose bark should be removed since they only form shelter for insects.

The Leopard Moth, which it will be remembered destroyed so many beautiful elms in Cambridge, has made its appearance in the oak trees here. This insect bores a hole in the main trunk or in the large branches, showing its presence by the sawdust near the hole or on the ground beneath it. This borer can often be killed with a wire following its track, but to make sure, it is well to inject with a small syringe Carbon Bi-Sulphide, obtainable from any druggist, taking care to afterwards cover the mouth of the hole with putty or some elastic substance. With this treatment and left to its own reflections, the borer will cease from troubling and will soon be at rest.

Let every citizen carefully scan the trees in front of his home, on his avenue or in his back yard where he will find that seeing is believing and perhaps he will add to his "Now I lay me down to sleep" the wish that he may be granted the will and energy to enable himself, with the aid of the constituted authorities to rid this part of the world of its insect enemies.

Yours truly,
CHARLES L. PEIRSON.
Pride's Crossing, Sept. 14, 1911.

An Appeal.

The Breeze has been asked to make a little appeal for Robert Buckman, 23 years old, who is one of the first known infantile paralysis cases in this part of the country. At the time he was smitten, Robbie was 11 years old. He was in the Children's hospital in Boston for a long time, being the son of a widow, who has long since spent the small inheritance she had on him in a vain endeavor to help him. A friend writes to the Breeze that she purchased crutches so that he could get to the railroad station from his home in Boston, and he learned telegraphy. He was able to work in the freight office until his condition has now reached a critical stage. His leg is withered so that it drags along. An eminent physician has told him that it must be amputated and an artificial limb substituted. This will save his health and very likely his life, which is needed for the sake of his widowed mother.

"He is one of the most gentle and withal ambitious boys I have ever met and it seems a pity that he should not get this aid. He is a true American, his mother, Martha Sherman, is a great grand daughter of Roger Sherman, a signer of the Declaration of Independence and at one time governor of Connecticut," writes a friend, who heads a subscription list with $20.00 and $10.00 from another friend. We have on the subscription list $30.00 to help this young man. Who else will help? Subscriptions will be acknowledged in the Breeze.

MAGNOLIA HOTELS.

W. S. Warren, manager of the Oceanside, is planning on a gunning and fishing trip in the Maine woods soon after the close of the house. After the annual business meeting of the directors of the Oceanside corporation, this fall he plans to go to his ranch in the west, for a prolonged stay.

Joseph Nelson, the room clerk at the Oceanside, returns to New York after the hotel closes, where he will be associated with one of the New York hotels for the winter. Harry Loud, the head bookkeeper will go to Palm Beach for the winter, where he has been for several years. Geo. P. Bell, head front clerk at the Oceanside for the past five years, will return to the Hotel Raymond, at Pasadena, Cal., where he was head front clerk last winter.

W. B. Holland of Boston, who has been at Magnolia this summer associated with the brokerage office of W. C. Langley & Co., at the Oceanside, has returned to the Boston office of the same company.

SOCIETY NOTES.

President Taft left the South Station at 7.35 today on his 13,000-mile tour of the country. He occupied the private car "Ideal," which is equipped with all up-to-date conveniences. The route will take the President in 40 states in 45 days.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Two of the largest dinners of the week were given on Sunday and Wednesday evenings by the George D. Wideners of Philadelphia, at West Manchester. Twenty guests were entertained on Sunday. Edward H. Winslow of North Beverly entertained fifty of his young friends at a dinner dance on Monday evening. Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Philip Dexter were at home to a dinner company of fourteen at their beautiful summer residence at Manchester. Mrs. Henry W. Stephens of Detroit was also a dinner hostess on Tuesday at Pride's. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Ames are giving a dinner party this evening at Pride's.

Mr. and Mrs. James Higginson of Chicago, concluded a visit with Mrs. Henry Pratt McKean at Pride's Wednesday. They will sojourn in Pittsfield before going to their western home.

Walter Scott Fitz, formerly of Boston and Newton, was married Tuesday noon at Trinity Church in Seattle, Wash., to Charlotte De Wolfe Whittlesey, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Whittlesey of Seattle. The wedding ceremony was performed by Right Rev. Robert L. Paddock, D. D., and following the church service there was a reception, with a wedding breakfast, at the home of the bride's parents. The bridegroom, Mr. Fitz, is the son of Charles Francis Fitz of Newton and the late Mrs. Fitz. He is a nephew of the late Walter Scott Fitz, whose widow resides at 75 Beacon street, Boston, and has a summer home at Manchester, and also of Dr. Reginald H. Fitz, who lives in Arlington street, Boston, and is also a summer resident of Manchester. He was active in athletics when at Harvard, where he was graduated in the class of 1899, and was pitcher on the baseball team when in college. Since his graduation he has been in the rail-roading business in the Far Northwest, with headquarters at North Yakima, not far from Seattle.

SOCIETY NOTES.

John W. Blodgett of Grand Rapids and Pride's, who is prominently connected with the lumber interests of his home city, is on a western business trip which will probably extend to Oregon.

John Hays Hammond has added to his munificent gifts to Gloucester recently, the much desired home for old-time fishermen. Mr. Hammond has purchased the fine estate of the late Samuel Colby on Eastern avenue, Gloucester. It contains fifteen acres and the house twelve rooms. Public announcement of the gift was made yesterday in the Gloucester papers. Dr. John Dixwell of Boston, and Judge Sumner D. York of Gloucester, were responsible for this philanthropy. Judge York deemed it very pathetic to have the veteran, homeless fishermen of Gloucester plead vagrancy in the courts to be free from winter fishing and to be obliged to find a haven in public institutions. A fund was started for such a home and a recent generous contributor was Henry Clay Frick, who sent a check for $3,000. Mr. Hammond has done even better in at once providing the home. He has also purchased ground at Beechwood Cemetery, West Gloucester, for a burying ground for the fishermen and is to have a memorial tablet placed on a sea boulder in its centre to appropriately commemorate the heroic lives of the followers of the sea. Such a gift as Mr. Hammond's, speaks for itself, and is a most touching philanthropic act, far-reaching in its abundant generosity to those less fortunate than he in the world's goods and a monument to this hazardous industry so fearlessly operated by Gloucester's brave fishermen.

After a very happy introduction to the North Shore as guests of the Misses Eustis of Brookline and Hospital Point, Beverly, Mr. and Mrs. Le Boutillier of Philadelphia have returned to their home. Mrs. Boutillier is a niece of the Misses Eustis.

Col. and Mrs. Cranmore A. Wallace of the Beverly Cove contingent, are mountain tourists who have returned from their motor trip in those sections.

T. Dennie Boardman is still absent from West Manchester. He is participating in a very interesting cruise to Labrador, being one of the yachting party on board the Intrepid of New York.

MANCHESTER.

Elmer Smith is to enter Burdett college this fall.

Thomas Cameron, teamster for S. Albert Sinnicks, met with a serious accident late Monday afternoon. He was coming to Manchester from Hamilton with a load of manure. He took the Water Works road, which is being built between Hamilton and Manchester which is very rough and practically impassable. It is thought Mr. Cameron fell from the driver's seat under the wheel. At any rate, his leg was broken between the ankle and the knee. Elmer Martin riding home from Hamilton on his bicycle, found Mr. Cameron and came to the police station after 6 o'clock to notify them of the accident. Chief Gorman and Dr. Blaisdell and others started out and it was nearly 9 o'clock, when Cameron was found and had his injuries taken care of temporarily by Dr. Blaisdell and was later removed to the Beverly hospital.

A bowling match will be rolled by local talent in Magnolia tonight.

Press Club to Meet at Danvers.

The Essex County Press Club, to the number of 100 or more, will have a field day and banquet at the Danvers Country Club. Saturday afternoon. Special electric cars will leave Town House square, Salem, at 2.30, for the Country Club, and the Lynn delegation will make the trip by tally-ho. Baseball, tennis, golf and other sports are on the program followed by dinner at the clubhouse at 5.30. This is distinctively a newspaper men's gathering, and the members will listen to an address by Robert Lincoln O'Brien, editor of The Boston Herald, and remarks from one or two other prominent newspaper men of the county. The Breeze will be represented at the outing by J. A. Lodge and R. E. Newman.

For Protection of Depositors.

For the protection of the depositors and borrowers in the savings banks of Massachusetts, the state bank commissioner's office is sending out notice to all borrowers, showing a statement as to the amount of the loan charged against them by the bank, together with the rate of interest the bank books show that they are having. The verification of the mortgage loans, through the means of correspondence is state wide and the plans of all savings banks doing business in the state are being looked up.

Poise.

Poise is a sign of greatness. Deep rivers move noiselessly to the great sea. Shallow streams go pounding, surging, roaring, gurgling over the stony bottom of the exposed riverbed. The boiling pot, nearly empty, sizzles, crackles, sputters and bursts. The light, broomy shrubbery whisks and whips itself to destruction against any obstacle in every puff of wind, while the great tree gently gives to but withstands the moving powers of mighty winds. Weak men are always nervous, irritable and restless, easily disturbed, weak in their neurotic action and never gaining power through repose. Such men lose their nerve, unloose the tongue, break the bindings of the will over tempers, moods and emotions and abandon themselves at the slightest pretext or occasion to nerve dissipation and life destroying anxiety. The weaker the man the less difficult it is to disturb his repose. The stronger man cultivates every virtue that weakens his fellow sufferer. This quality of poise in character ought to make the strongest appeal to the modern man.

Never before in the history of the world has there been such a mad rush, such unrest, such mental disturbances and such brain storms of nervousness, even to the breaking edge of insanity. It is the age of the telephone, the telegraph and adaptive electric energy. Men wish to do what they have to do when they want to do it. They are not content to wait on time. Time must wait on them. The stage coach, the canal boat and the sailing pack have gone and the automobile, the steam railroad and the ocean greyhounds have taken their places.

It is an age of commercialism, restless energy and perpetual rush. The sign of the Elevated railroad "Please move quickly" is the motto of the age. This is due to the awakening consciousness of the value of time, of the real value and conservation of energy and the laws of productivity and adaptability which are written on the very face of nature. Men of other ages went insane from inertia and ennui and broke the monotony of their existence trying to solve the perplexing enigma as to how many angels could comfortably dance at the same time on the point of a needle. The present age has learned its lessons too well. It must learn the pleasures and joys of rest, of leisure and of repose.

Professor Palmer in one of his lectures at Harvard University succinctly puts this truth in this thought, that the work of the world must be done, but the provision for rest, recreation and change is as vital to the career of an individual and his true success as the provision for industry and labor. A man may live to work, he ought to work to live, but he will discover very quickly that the life work is more quickly and profitably accomplished when provision is made for weary nerves and tired muscles. It is labor which makes repose sweet. It is labor after rest which makes the rest valuable.

Let the age seek repose after labor. Time moves on slowly and will grind the restless spirits of men beneath its juggernaut wheel. Be not deceived. You can not mock nature; for a while the man may break her laws but eventually her laws will break the man. The strong man has poise, symmetry and restraint because he reads and obeys nature's great law.

The Canadian Side on Reciprocity.

The fact that the United States government has committed itself to a reciprocity policy does not end the controversy. It looks as though the plan may be defeated in Canada. The campaign is being conducted with unprecedented zeal. Unfortunately the economic feature is not the basis upon which the plan has been assailed. National pride, religious prejudice and other otherwise unrelated arguments are being used with the greatest vote getting expedition. The United States has been falsely accused of ulterior motives and those of annexation. It is being argued that reciprocity is but a step toward national acquisition of the United States of Canada. Many of the statements of our representatives have been equivocal and misquoted and misconstrued. As careful a speaker as President Taft has been some of his most harmless utterance are and have been twisted and turned by the "insurgents" in Canada against reciprocity. Many newspapers have printed editorials on annexation and Boston has been a great sinner in this respect. These have been used and are being used with tremendous results. The hospitality shown by the "ins" to the representatives of a high potentate of a religious organization has been used to arouse the element of religious antagonism and effectively. Certain yellow journals in America have interfered in the campaign and it has aroused consequently an antagonism which would have remained latent. In fact, the owner of one American newspaper syndicate has been invited to appear at a mass meeting in a Canadian city and give his reasons why he has interfered in the campaign. This has damaged the pro-reciprocity party. On the economic side the problem of a uniform American tariff "made in Washington" has been advanced. It being claimed that with a difference of tariff on the coastline with Europe there will result a system of wholesale smuggling along the border between the countries which will only be obviated by a uniform continental tariff. So the battle goes on. Students of the situation are puzzled and to prognosticate a victory or defeat for reciprocity must be a guess blindly made. It can be said, however, that affairs look dark and doubtful. Reciprocity will be a great help to New England and its failure will be a loss. New England is interested in Reciprocity and not in Annexation.

Sarah Wyman Whitman Hall.

Radeliffe, unrivalled in its educational possibilities for young women has been seriously hampered in its work by the lack of dormitories. "Here is a college of uncommon opportunity for girls from a distance, yet unable to house in its own buildings one-sixth of its students. The girls who live in our halls are sympathetically cared for, judiciously advised and admirably chaperoned. But without the assurance of college rooms at reasonable rates only the enterprising come and only courageous parents will part with their daughters. Radcliffe college is obviously the one college for girls that constantly avails itself of Harvard tradition and Harvard teaching," says President Le Baron R. Briggs. To meet this great need it has been planned to erect in Cambridge at the expense of eighty thousand dollars, a new dormitory to bear the name of Sarah Wyman Whitman, who in life was a devoted friend of Radcliffe. Mrs. Whitman is well known on the North Shore and much interest has been taken by her many friends in Beverly Farms and Manchester in the new movement. The treasurer, Ezra H. Baker, 23 Ames building, Boston, already has $13,000 subscribed provisional to the raising of the entire amount and in addition to $20,000 previously given. Concerning the new enterprise, Dr. Eliot explains, "that it is not wise to invest funds of the college itself in building dormitories, since as time goes on, they require extensive repairs and bleed income. The very fact, however, that college authorities continue to make these expensive changes to keep up dormitories, instead of abandoning them to other uses when they grow old-fashioned, makes a dormitory a peculiarly attractive form of memorial to one whom we wish to honor. It is loved by whole series of college generations, who look back to their life there with affection and gratitude, to those who taught them while they lived there, to those who guided them while they lived there, to those whose memories are sweetly preserved there. It is an additional reason for promoting this hall that it is to bear the name of a person whose name is precious and honorable,— Sarah Wyman Whitman. Success is assured and no better memorial could be conceived for Mrs. Whitman.

The Ephebic Oath.

The front cover of the American Issue for August displays attractively and worthily the Ephebic Oath taken "by the young Athenians when assuming the responsibilities of citizenship." The oath is worthy of the prominence given it and would repay committing to memory. In truth it would not be an unworthy proposition to suggest that it might be taught to each high school pupil. It has in it elements of instruction which will remain in the mind long after the instructions of civic government teachers have been forgotten. "We will never bring disgrace to this our city, by any act of dishonesty, or cowardice, nor ever desert our suffering comrades in the ranks. We will fight for the ideal and sacred things of the city. We will revere and obey the city's laws and do our best to excite a like respect and reverence in those above us who are prone to annul and set them at naught. We will strive unceasingly to quicken the public sense of civic duty and thus in all these ways, we will transmit this city, not only not less, but greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

Essex County WRC Meet in Manchester.

The Essex County association, WRC, met in Manchester Wednesday of this week. As early as nine o'clock, the guests began to arrive. They were met at the station and escorted to the Town hall by members of the local corps. The visitors, numbering about 250, were delightfully entertained and returned to the Corps they represented with great praise for Manchester's hospitality. Norfolk, Middlesex and Suffolk, as well as Essex County were well represented in the gathering. The business meeting was held in the morning, when the following officers were elected and duly installed by Mrs. Haynes and acting Conductor Mrs. Libbey:

Burnham, Essex; guard, Mrs. George Smith, Georgetown. Various reports were read, showing that the past year had been a most successful one and the benefits derived from the work was such that the entire association feels inspired in their work for the coming year. Among those present was Mrs. Libbey, the dept. president; Mr. Fiske, commander Essex Co. G A R; Mrs. Haynes, national inspector; Mrs. Fannie Wheeler, past patriotic instructor; also Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Knowles and Mrs. Wales, all energetic workers. The presence of assistant adjutant Wetherbee of the G A R, was a valued addition to the company.

Emerson, Douglas and Nesmith oxfords at Bell's. *

An unusual sight attracted a large crowd of people to the little inlet near Sheldon's market and the Police station last Saturday. The rough sea outside had driven millions of little fish, mostly herring, into the harbor and these had followed the stream and had packed into the little inlet referred to almost in a solid mass. Fishermen and others helped themselves to what they wanted of the fish and those not carried out by the tide were buried in the mud. So thickly packed in were the fish that they formed an almost solid mass.

Dinner was served the company in G A R hall at one o'clock by an efficient committee of which Mrs. Hannah Tappan was chairman.

During the afternoon the following program was presented: Drum solo, Miss Isabelle Lee; vocal solo, Mrs. J. W. Lee; selection, Fiji orchestra; reading, Patrick Boyle; address, F. M. Stanwood. There was also a number of other speakers, whose remarks were well received and enjoyed. F. M. Stanwood of the summer colony gave a most interesting address. The drum solo by Miss Lee was well rendered. The Fiji orchestra made a decided hit. The trombone solo by Madame Barakima was the great feature. The orchestra was led by Queen Alikema.

At five o'clock the company dispersed going to their various homes after a day well spent in both pleasure and business.

The dance of Friday last, given under the management of the Misses Meta Frye and Martha Graham of the Brownland cottage staff of employees was a decided success. A large number attended and the hall was prettily decorated. The stage was very pretty with its lattice of hydrangeas used as decorations. The miniature Brownland previously used was noticeable on the stage. At intermission the Brownland girls were treated to a surprise in form of a large cake and ice cream served on the stage.

Miss Abbie P. Floyd is spending the week at camp at Annisquam.

This entertainment brought to a close the series of dances which have been so properly conducted this season.

First Unitarian Church, Masconomo street, Manchester-by-the-Sea. Service 11 a. m.; On Sunday, September 17th, the closing service of the church for this season. Rev. Howard W. Brown of King's Chapel, Boston, will preach. All seats are free and every one will be welcome.

Seldom has the Manchester Town hall presented a more attractive appearance than Monday night when the 16th annual concert and ball, of the Essex County clubhouse employees was held. Always the largest and best party of the summer, the affair this year was more pronounced in this respect than any of the many preceding. Several hundred miniature electric lights, vari-colored, were strung about the hall, and potted plants, palms, ferns and the like set off the stage and almost completely hid the orchestra from view. The young men in charge were in full dress and very pretty badges significant of their office in connection with the dance. The young ladies were very handsomely gowned and many came from other resorts along the shore, and from Boston and Cambridge and many other places to attend. The Salem Cadet orchestra, composed of members of the Salem Cadet Band that has been furnishing the band concerts in the square as well as at the Essex County club during the summer, played for the dance. Prior to the dance, the orchestra rendered a splendid concert program of four numbers consisting of: Selection "The Spring Maid," by Rheinhardt; intermezzo "Hula, Hula" by Wenrich; cornet solo by Nelson T. Bernier; final "The Winning Fight," by Helzmann. The officers of the association are Wm. A. Heaman, Manchester Man Helped Burn the Judah.

Wednesday Dennis O'Sullivan, a veteran of the civil war and color bearer of post 67, G. A. R., of this town, celebrated the 50th anniversary of the most thrilling engagement in which he had a part during his long term of service, the destruction of the schooner Judah in Pensacola harbor.

Mr. O'Sullivan enlisted at the Charlestown navy yard May 3, 1861, as a marine and on June 18, sailed from Boston on the frigate Colorado to Key West, and then to Pensacola, where the engagement took place soon after his arrival. The attacking party of 100 left the ship on the night of Sept. 13, the attack being made at three the next morning. The boats were quickly discovered, the alarm given and firing commenced by the guard on the wharf where the Judah was tied up.

The attacking squad first rushed for the wharf, where a number of guns were found and spiked, and then, going on board, a hand-to-hand conflict took place with the crew, several of whom were in the foretop and were pouring a murderous fire on the invaders below. The schooner's crew were finally driven ashore, where they were re-inforced by a guard that heard the firing. In the meantime the Judah was set on fire, the light from which helped them to locate the rebels, who had been increased to large numbers. The Judah burned to the water's edge, drifted into the stream and sank. After staying until they saw their work of destruction was complete the remnant of the attacking party returned to the Colorado, arriving at day-break, one-fifth of the entire number having been either killed or wounded.

He worked at the cabinet business for a number of years, his last years of work being in the Leach & Annable shops. Cheever. Mr. Cheever's father, Jacob Cheever senior, died at the age of 94 years.

Mr. Cheever's death removes another of the men that have been identified with the town for the last three generations, and that have seen the town pass successively from the fisher village to a cabinet and furniture making center to a summer resort. He came from some of the "good old stock," identified with the town's early history. He was a direct descendant of Ames Cheever, the first minister of the Orthodox Congregational meeting house. He was also a descendant of Ezekiel Cheever, the first Latin teacher in the Boston public schools, who came from Oxford, England, to Boston, to teach.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. The Rev. Dr. Williams of Gloucester, officiated. Burial was in Rosedale cemetery.

A special selection was "The Flower of Italy," which drew forth repeated encores. Light refreshments were served.

The cold weather of this week put a damper on bathing at West beach, which together with the children at school, has had the effect of making the approach of fall a realization and the attendance at the beach grow smaller. The new water plant installed at the Herbert M. Sears estate at Pride's is now completed. It is a most up-to-date building equipped with a fine engine worked automatically by electric power with a capacity of 35 gallons a minute. Three artesian wells sunk in the meadow of the estate supplies water which has been scientifically analyzed and is filtered at the plant. Conolly Brothers of Beverly Farms had the contract to install the plant. Erickson of Boston, furnished the engine. The Sears estate will now have a bountiful supply of water, as city water is also used there. The family are fond of having week-end parties at Pride's during the winter and they are now sure of water at their disposal the year round.

Houdini at B. F. Keith's.

After a sensational three years' tour of the globe; during which period he has covered himself with fresh laurels in every civilized land under the sun, Harry Houdini, the world famous jail breaker returns to B. F. Keith's theatre next week. Since his last appearance here Houdini has demonstrated that it is practically impossible for bolts, bars, locks, and stone or iron walls to hold him captive. During his stay in Holland Houdini escaped from a cell in the Amsterdam city prison where he had been shackled to the wall by the local police; in St. Petersburg he escaped from the steel van used for the transportation of dangerous political prisoners from the courts to the imperial prisons, and at the recent Chicago aviation meet he plunged headfirst from an aeroplane into lake Michigan with both hands and feet shackled together. Rising to the surface with his limbs freed, Houdini swam ashore. For this engagement Houdini has evolved a new feat, more incredible than any that have preceded it. He is placed in an airtight galvanized iron can filled to the brim with water, into which he is securely locked with six locks. While Houdini is in this helpless condition, the can is placed and securely locked within a heavy hermetically sealed iron bound wooden chest, from which the wizard escapes in an incredible short space of time.

Unfearing and unshamed to go
In all the uproar and the press
About my human business!
My undissuaded heart I hear

With voiceless calls, the ancient earth
Summons me to a daily birth.

Ye call me by the ear and eye!

Concluded from Page Eight

Mrs. Stevens, who became Mrs. Murray, was a woman of uncommon beauty, gifted with a superior mind, cultivated and enriched by education, and just the wife the Rev. John Murray would seek to win, since they had many tastes in common which are recorded. In literary pursuits, Mrs. Stevens was successful, publishing in 1798 "The Gleaner" in three volumes, a romantic story of "Margretta" and originally published in the Massachusetts Magazine. Under the pen name of "Honoraria Martesia," she also wrote poetical essays for the Boston Weekly Magazine. The fruits of their union were a son, who died at birth and a daughter, Julia Maria Murray, who married A. L. Bingaman, esq., of Mississippi, the latter dying in the autumn of 1822 leaving a son, who married a Miss Livingston of New York. Mrs. Murray died in the south at Natchez, June 6, 1820, aged sixty-nine years.

Thus in the old mansion lived the gifted woman who was to brighten the latter days of this admirable founder and advocate of Universalism, who was described as a man of medium stature, intelligent, good-natured and benevolent, easy in address and the gentleman in manner.

As a preacher, he excelled in power, ease and grace, being highly gifted with facility and felicity of diction, his impressive personality and sincere belief in his new doctrine eventually overriding the bigotry and intolerance of those who sought to destroy the views he sought to expound and establish.

Thus around this old mansion was woven a delightful romance of a noted personage of religious history. Its preservation today is due to the efforts of Mrs. Ellen M. Shaw of Gloucester (nee Lowe of Essex, Mass.), the present owner of the house.

Mrs. Shaw's taste for the antique and historical is an inherited one, she being a near relative of T. O. H. Burnham, the noted antiquarian, who amassed a large fortune from his bookstore, which his descendants now conduct under the Old South Church, Boston. Mrs. Shaw's parents were old and prominent Essex residents, her father being Col. Joshua Lowe and her mother, Mary Burnham, being an aunt of the noted Boston antiquarian. Her grandfather, Thomas Burnham, fought under Washington during the Revolution and her brother studied law with Rufus Choate.

Mrs. Shaw's fine inherited taste for the richness of historical associations and her own personal fortune has been used to restore the famous old house to its original atmosphere and give to the public a museum to visit filled with the rarest of colonial relics representing her own private collection of over forty years' accumulation.

Rev. John Murray's remains repose in Mt. Auburn cemetery, Boston, near where are those of Mary Baker Eddy, founder of Christian Science, rested temporarily last winter, also those of Edwin Booth, the master of the American stage and Dorothea L. Dix, sociologist and not far away are the remains of O. W. Holmes, James Russell Lowell and Henry W. Longfellow.

National Theatre.

On Monday evening the first performance will be given at the new National Theatre, the largest theatre in Boston, and the largest vaudeville theatre in the world. A great minstrel street parade will start from in front of the theatre at noon and march through the streets. In the evening a band concert will be given in front of the theatre from seven to eight o'clock.

An all-star bill has been arranged for the opening week. It will be headed by the National-Boston consolidated modern minstrels with Hughie Dougherty and Lew Benedict, the two famous veterans of minstrelsy. The National theatre has indeed been fortunate in securing these men for the opening week. By urgent request Mr. Dougherty will sing the famous and never-to-be forgotten melody "Evelina."

The sensational prices of five, ten and fifteen cents to be charged at the National have been declared an epoch in the theatrical world. Patrons at the National will witness a dollar show for the regular National prices. It is only the tremendous seating capacity of 3500 people that makes these prices possible. For the sum of twenty-five cents a family of five people can enjoy a clean, wholesome and amusing performance in a beautiful, modern and safe playhouse. It is especially equipped for the comfort of women and children.

Out of town patrons will find the National Theatre easy to reach. All Tremont street cars pass the door, and the theatre is but a short distance from the Dover street elevated station and the Back Bay Station.

SWAT THAT FLY!

Biggest Murderer That Ever Lived

Flies should be kept out of our houses, killed if they enter them, and prevented from hatching eggs in stables, manure-heaps, swill pails, and other filthy places.

Because Flies are Filthy.

They are born in filth; they feed on filth; they walk on filth; and then, with filth sticking to their feet, legs and bodies, they feed and walk on food which has been prepared for human beings to eat. It would disgust you, wouldn't it, if you saw a fly feeding on the filth of the street, the stable, the garbage can, or on something worse, and then saw the same fly go through the open door or window of your dining room and wipe his feet on the sugar, tangle his legs in the butter or take a bath in the milk? If you should watch every fly that comes into the house, you would see that most of them had come from such filth to the food on your table.

Because Flies Are Dangerous.

Bad as filth is, it is not the worst thing that flies carry about. They swarm about open sewers, drains and outhouses which receive millions of disease germs which have passed through the bodies of sick people. Flies in this way pick up and carry on their bodies, heads and legs (which are covered with fine hairs—just suited for catching and holding this sort of thing) the germs of typhoid fever, cholera infantum (or the summer diarrhoea of children), tuberculosis and several other diseases. Dr. L. O. Howard, Chief Entomologist of the United States Department of Agriculture, calls the common house-fly the Typhoid Fly, because so many cases of typhoid fever have been caused by his carrying the germs from one sick person to another. These germs are so small that you cannot see them without a microscope, but the fly that is eating from the same plate with you may be carrying a million of them.

Flies kill more people than wild beasts and poisonous snakes. Many of these beasts and snakes never get a chance to kill any human being; but any one of the millions of flies found in most of our towns and cities has a chance, if he comes into a house carrying typhoid germs, of killing a whole family.

You have been told why you should kill flies and prevent their breeding; this is

How to do it

Most house-flies in cities are hatched from eggs which have been laid in horse manure. Some breed in other forms of filth, such as garbage cans, heaps of refuse in back yards, etc. The fly lays 120 or more eggs at a time. These, if they are not disturbed, become maggots in about twelve hours. In from five to eight days more, the maggots enter the pupa state, as caterpillars do, and after from five to seven days come out of the earth or manure in which they have buried themselves in the form of flies, ready in a few days to become the fathers and mothers of large families. They breed so rapidly that in one summer the children and grandchildren of one pair of flies may amount to thousands of millions. And remember that the germs they carry multiply much faster than the flies.

To Prevent Flies From Breeding:

Screen stables if possible.

Remove the manure at least twice a week.

Keep the manure, while it is in the stable, in a closed bin or pit.

Every time the stalls are cleaned, and the manure placed in the pit or bin, sprinkle it with dry plaster (powdered gypsum) or slaked lime.

Be sure that you sprinkle the cracks and crevices of the bin or pit, as well as the cracks between the planking of the stable floors.

If flies begin to breed in stored manure they may be killed by thoroughly spraying it with kerosene or Paris green, and then pouring on enough water to wash the oil or poison well in.

The objection to the use of kerosene is that it ruins the manure for fertilizing purposes. A solution of iron sulphate (one pound to a gallon) applied at the rate of one gallon a day in a stable where one horse is kept, will kill all the maggots. It costs about $1 per hundred pounds; so that the cost of keeping flies from breeding in a one-horse stable is about one cent a day.

It is well to abolish old-fashioned outhouses where possible. Where this cannot be done a liberal amount of lime should be used, applied in small amounts daily. Chloride of lime is better than slaked lime, but slaked lime is better than none at all.

Garbage cans should be thoroughly cleaned after emptying, and the contents should be sprinkled with crude oil, lime or kerosene oil.

Keep garbage cans closely covered, unless you have a fly-trap attached to them. Such traps may be obtained at most hardware stores.

Screen the doors and windows of your home, especially those of the kitchen, dining-room and pantry. If you cannot do this at least screen the food itself, especially the milk, in which germs multiply with more than ordinary rapidity.

Screen sick-rooms, or at least the bed of the patient, and do not allow flies to have access to his excreta, which should be treated with chloride of lime or some other disinfectant.

Screens are especially needed in towns which have no sewer system, or in which the sewers drain into a stream, on the banks of which flies swarm, attracted by the filth from the sewers.

Sticky fly-paper and a variety of traps may be used, as well as poisoned fly-paper.

You, of the vast, healthy community whom we are not privileged to know. Not a day, nay not an hour in the short, busy business day, but we are complimented by a customer or more, who once coming here, continues to trade.

They say of us—"We surely get our money's worth here"—" 'Tis safe to rely on your word"—"We can always find pretty things here"—"We know you stand back of your goods." Such expressions have a far-reaching influence. They keep us at work along the same path and inspire in us a desire to go looking through this country after trade that at present for some reason we have not. It prompts us in the belief that we can serve you better—give you wares at a less price than you now pay, and have in them a look that is far different, than goods that come from the average stores. Salem's Contribution to the North Shore Fame

SALEM is one of America's unique cities. Adown the vista of years one looks through two centuries and more of fascinating and individual historic growth and marked literary significance. It is the North Shore's noted, modern county town where centres its important county affairs, but the primary interest in Salem to the tourist centres in her connection with the Witchcraft Days and her fame in literary and civic history.

As a neighboring city of Marblehead and Beverly, the latter city now famed as the seat of the "Summer White House," it recalls the historical chronicle of several distinguished national characters, who have visited Salem's confines and given brilliant and notable touches to her famous annals.

During the siege of Boston, there is evidence that George Washington, when a young man, visited Salem as a guest of the Clark family. He also visited Salem on his northern tour, October 29, 1789. Washington came through from Marblehead by way of Lafayette street, which was then a rural lane.

The present Washington House, Salem's well-known historic hotel, was then the Joshua Ward mansion. It was placed at Pres. Washington's service during his visit by the Ward family. Washington is said to have passed the night in the northeast chamber, second floor of the mansion, now the hotel. Washington attended a ball in his honor at the Assembly House, 138 Federal street, now a private residence. This house was built in 1784. Lafayette dined there in 1784.

Other Presidential visitors were President Polk, who on a very rainy July 5, 1847, passed through Salem. He did not leave his carriage to visit points of interest. President Grant passed through Salem, October 17, 1871. He was received by the city government on a temporary platform erected on Washington street to which he stepped from his car to make a brief address. President Grant was at that time on a cruise in eastern waters, having landed from the United States steamer, "Dispatch." President Munroe visited Salem, July 8, 1817. He was a distinguished visitor at the opening of the Town Hall. He spent two or three days that summer in Salem. He lunched and dined with Senator Silsbee, Secretary Crowninshield and Judge Story. He was guest of honor at a ball at the residence of Stephen White. President John Adams frequently visited Salem unofficially as the guest of a relative, the father of Judge Wm. Cranch, who served on the U. S. Supreme Court bench in 1805. President Jackson visited the city of Salem, June 26, 1833. He passed the night at the Capt. Nathaniel West mansion, which was located on Essex street, opposite Central street.

The late King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales, was received in Salem, October 20, 1860 by the Salem government while on his Eastern tour.

Existing today are relics and points of interest, which will refresh the memory and elicit wide interest in this city of striking individuality and traditions particularly in connection with the Witchcraft Days and Salem's fame in literary history. At the Court House on Federal street can be found the death warrant of Bridget Bishop, one of the witches. Other witchcraft records are also there. The "Old Witch House," 310 Essex street, tradition tells us was called so because some of the preliminary trials were held there for conviction of witches. A tablet has been placed in the front of the Kinsman Block, Washington street, to mark the site of the Witchcraft Court House. Gallows Hill is the site of the execution of nineteen witches in 1692. At 4 Federal street is the site of the Witchcraft Jail where persons accused of witchcraft were incarcerated. In Broad street cemetery can be found the gravestone of Sheriff Corwin, who arrested and executed the witches and of Judge Hawthorne, one of the judges at witchcraft trials.

Distinct literary interest surrounds Salem in relation to her distinguished author resident, Nathaniel Hawthorne. At number 27 Union street is the birthplace of Hawthorne. He was born there July 4, 1804. On Derby street is the Custom House where Hawthorne began "The Scarlet Letter." The desk upon which he wrote can be seen at the Essex Institute, Salem.

Dr. Grimshawe house is located at 53 Charter street. It was the home of Miss Sophia Peabody before her marriage to Hawthorne. It is the same house which figures in his story, "Dr. Grimshawe's Secret."

Hawthorne's most celebrated romances are "Scarlet Letter," "House of the Seven Gables," "Blithedale Romance," and "Marble Faun." The Turner house, 54 Turner street, built about 1662-67, was a favorite haunt of Hawthorne, the "House of the Seven Gables." Hawthorne wrote "The Scarlet Letter" at his residence, 14 Mall street. It was published in 1850 and it established his fame. "The House of the Seven Gables" was laid in Salem, but written in Lenox. Its denouement was suggested by a curse invoked on John Hamilton by a fainting witch. Judge Pyncheon, the leading character and his manner of death was suggested by seeing Judge Pickering of Salem, asleep in his chair.

The scenes of "The Scarlet Letter" were laid in Boston, but the book was written in Salem. It is unparalleled in imaginative writing. It introduced graphic and humorous sketches of the inmates of the Salem Custom House. It taught the story of the effect of the same sin on opposite natures. Salem is immediately recalled in song or story when we speak of Hester Prynne, Arthur Dimmesdale and Pearl Chillingworth, the immortal and leading characters of "The Scarlet Letter."

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mr. Russell of Cambridge spent the last week-end with Joseph Dorr and family of Boston at The Brownlands. The Dorr family concluded their season's stay at the hotel Tuesday and returned to their winter home. Others leaving The Brownlands Tuesday were Mr. and Mrs. George P. Sanger, who settled at The Ludlow, Boston, for the winter. Yesterday Miss Gertrude R. White of Boston brought her stay at The Brownlands to a close as did Harold M. Sill and family and Dr. Currier, who returned to Philadelphia. Miss White will sojourn in the country and in the mountains the coming weeks.

Wm. Endicott of Boston, is bringing his season's stay at Pride's to a close on September 26th.

The Walter J. Mitchells of Cincinnati will be among the late sojourners at Manchester. They will not leave Manchester Cove until January, when they will make their customary southern trip.

Isaac Kinsey and family of Toledo who have enjoyed the charms of the North Shore as the guest of J. N. Willys and family of Toledo, at Pride's, concluded their stay last Friday and went to Saratoga.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Miss Georgiana Goddard Eaton, who had been summering at Manchester, died Tuesday of last week at her Boston residence, Commonwealth avenue, after an illness prolonged through the summer. Miss Eaton, who was the daughter of the late William Storer Eaton and Frederica Warren (Goddard) Eaton, was born in Boston fifty-four years ago. She received her education in private schools in Boston and since her schooldays had lived quietly in the retirement of her home. She was interested in various charities to which she contributed and was an attendant at Trinity Church. Miss Eaton is survived by two brothers, William Storer Eaton, of 48 Beacon street, and Francis Storer Eaton, of 369 Beacon street, Boston. Her funeral was held at Trinity church, Boston, last Friday. Miss Eaton leased the Randolph Coolidge cottage, "Rock Ledge," Smith's Point, Manchester, and was there nearly all summer.

Mrs. E. D. Beylard of Sanmateo, Cal., has been the guest of Mrs. Gordon Dexter, at Beverly Farms. Mr. Beylard, it will be recalled, was one of the promoters of the coach Independence, which ran between Pride's and Turk's Head Inn, Rockport in the 90's.

SOCIETY NOTES.

There are many increasing evidences that the horse has by no means been relegated because of the popularity of the automobile. It has been very evident all this summer that North Shore people have not put the horse aside, but on the otherhand that the equine and the fine equipages will be much in evidence as ever within another season or two. We have noticed a very nice looking hitch bowling over the Pride's Crossing roads,—a coach and four, the ribbons of which were held very skilfully by Miss Frances Bradley, the youngest of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Bradley's daughters. Miss Bradley won one of the cups at the Magnolia show this year, it will be recalled.

Mrs. C. Howard Clark, Jr., of Philadelphia and West Manchester, has had a house-party. Her guests included Mrs. Donaldson of Devon, Pa., Mrs. Wilcox and Mrs. Brewster of Boston. Her daughter, Mrs. Hollingsworth, is still with her. The Clarks are leaving West Manchester for their country estate at Devon, Pa., on September 26th. Miss Price of Philadelphia was also a member of the Clark house party. The Clark yacht has also proven a delightful medium for entertaining the family's guests.

Death of Former Magnolia Summer Resident.

The sudden death in Chelsea this week of Hon. George E. Mitchell, an ex-mayor of the city, will be learned with much regret by his large number of friends and acquaintances on the North Shore. Mr. Mitchell married for his first wife, Annie M. Knowlton, daughter of John C. Knowlton of Magnolia, and was one of the pioneer cottagers of Magnolia, having built there in 1878. Until within a few years he has been a summer resident at Magnolia, and was one of the founders, and for years was treasurer of the Magnolia Improvement Association. Mr. Mitchell has spent part of each summer of late with his daughter, Mrs. William H. Wyeth at her bungalow at West Gloucester.

From the Chelsea Gazette of September 16th, we reprint the following concerning Mr. Mitchell:

"Ex-Mayor Mitchell was one of the city's most prominent and active citizens. He was born in Cambridge May 8, 1844 and received his education in the public schools of that city and Somerville. At the age of 18 years he enlisted in the War of Rebellion as a member of Company B Fifth Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry serving in three campaigns and receiving an honorable discharge at the expiration of his enlistment.

In 1872 he engaged in the wholesale butter, cheese and egg business being the senior member of the firm of Mitchell, Dexter & Co., and through death of one of the partners the firm name changed about ten years ago to Mitchell, Duffey & Co. The firm has been located at 5 Blackstone street, Boston, since it opened for business and is one of the largest of its line in New England.

"Mr. Mitchell had always taken a deep interest in city affairs and in 1878 was elected a member of the old Common Council and was re-elected in '79. His ability as a councilman was recognized and in 1880 he was elected a member of the Board of Aldermen and reelected in 1881. He was urged several times to become a candidate for mayor and in 1887 acquiesced to the request of his friends and became a candidate, winning the nomination and election after a warm contest. The next year he was honored by his fellow citizens with an unanimous renomination from all political parties. During his term as mayor many important improvements were carried out, prominent among them being the adoption of the high water service which included the building of Powderhorn Hill reservoir, and the pumping station near the old City Hall, electricity adopted for street lighting, main streets macadamized. His administration was very successful.

"He was a member of the E. W. Kingsley Post, 113, G. A. R., of Boston, and had been secretary of the Fifth Regiment Massachusetts Veteran Association since its organization, more than twenty-five years ago. He was also a member of W. S. Hancock Command, U. V. U. and of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and affiliated with the Rufus S. Frost General Hospital Association, the Review Club, of which he was a past president, and the executive board of the Children's Day Nursery. For many years he had been a member of Star of Bethlehem Lodge, A. F. and A. M., Naphthali Council, R. and S. M., Palestine Commandery, Knights Templar, Old Suffolk Chapter, S. A. R., Mayor's Club of Massachusetts.

"Mr. Mitchell was a public spirited citizen and never wavered in his opinions on all matters pertaining to the city. He was frank, honest and fearless, and the marked candor of his expression in all his public utterances won for him the respect and confidence of the community. His last public appearance was at the Williams School last December when the question of new city charters was discussed.

"Mr. Mitchell is survived by a wife, two daughters, Mrs. Eugene R. Atwood of Quincy, and Mrs. William H. Wyeth of Chelsea, and one son, Charles E. Mitchell of New York."

Fear.

Fear is man's greatest enemy. It hampers all men in every walk of life and because of it, hours which otherwise could have been spent in happiness and peace are ruined and go by beyond recall, leaving the mind and nerves the weaker for its dread work. Fear and prudence are often associated. Fear as a wholesome deterrent is valuable but as a governing power over all life it is paralyzing. Prudence moves into the future cautiously but over prudence ending in inertia is fatal to action and consequently to character. In every walk of life there is an element of chance which must be taken in faith. A farmer plants his seeds to the best of his judgment and takes his chances. He cannot wait for perfect climatic conditions for these never come because, "he that observeth the winds shall not sow and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap." He works in faith and the season teaches him that every season will bring forth his harvest if he but labor. Nature is a faithful rewarder of the diligent laborer. Each business day the merchant takes a prudent chance and moves forward taking his loss and making his gain. To keep his goods is ruin, and he takes on more to cover the loss on the old.

The operator and manufacturer all profit by honorable business faith and each loses when fear, which is the lack of confidence possesses the mind. The soldier and sailor in action take their hazard and where fear possesses the mind no gains are made. Chaplain Crawford of the Navy tells how in the Battle of Manilla the gunners pounded away through the smoke while he ran aloft occasionally to see if they were doing any execution. To wait until they were sure of every shot would have been folly. Through fear men failed to seize present opportunities and shackles are bound to the hands. It was the faithless investor in the great parable who said, "I was afraid and hid my talent." Fear is an enemy every man and woman must conquer and must continue to do so for fear has as many different forms as the sands of the sea and no one is immune. He is the common Arch Enemy of all humanity. Industry plunges into the stream and boldly swims across, its own efforts giving warmth to the body, while Fear stands trembling on the bank.

The United Shoe Machinery Case.

It is of commercial value and for the public good that the status of the Shoe Machinery Company be established. The North Shore, particularly Beverly, has for some years had an interest in the affairs of this great concern. It is to be noted that the case has merely been indicted in a United States Court which indicates that the case if there be a case has only been opened and a final decision must of necessity be remote. There are open questions concerning the methods of management of the United Shoe Machinery Company not germane to the Standard Oil or the Tobacco Company Cases. The United States Courts alone can determine the legitimacy or illegitimacy of the corporation's business methods. Unlike the other issues the case is being prosecuted against the individuals and not against the corporation. If a case is found against the organizers of the corporation it is apparent that there will be a case against the corporation and an order to dissolve will ultimately follow after the usual legal procedure. The corporation has determinedly fought every inch of ground up to the present issue and will doubtless carry the case to the highest courts. If the corporation has not violated the United States laws in restraint of trade, they can have nothing to fear from an investigation. In truth they will gain, for it will set at rest the antagonism of varied interests. No harm can come from the investigation and the shoe company will be able to adjust itself to the new conditions if such new conditions be found mandatory by the courts. No business corporation which violates the higher laws of equity and justice can or should endure. If the Company has been maligned the opening of the case in an established court of the people will grant an opportunity for it to justify its conduct and give the alleged oppressor and the alleged oppressed an impartial tribunal before which to present their respective claims for judgment.

Tuesday the Twenty Sixth.

Next Tuesday will be the first direct primary held in Massachusetts. For years there have been attempts to commit the State to the new program. The last legislature committed the State to the new direct primaries and on Tuesday all of the State officers will be nominated at the polls by the people. It will of course, do away with the nominations by conventions. The muddle into which the democratic state convention fell last year, resulting in the nomination of the present incumbent of the gubernatorial chair will be impossible. There are many arguments which may be used against the new method but there is no doubt about public sentiment on the question. They wish to see it tried out. The new primary law is not an innovation for states in the Mississippi Valley have tried the plan. It is now in vogue in New Hampshire, and the present governor was nominated in a direct primary. The representatives of the Beverly-Danvers district, Herman A. MacDonald and John L. Saltonstall voted for the measure in the last legislature. They are candidates for re-election and will receive the support of the republican voters.

Herman A. MacDonald.

Since the service of William R. Brooks, Beverly Farms has not been represented in the legislature until the election of Mr. MacDonald. Mr. MacDonald went into the office as representative of the people unusually equipped to do good work for his constituents. For four years, assistant secretary to the Governor of Massachusetts, first under Governor Guild and later under Governor Draper, he received an excellent training in the practical school of legislation. He has enjoyed the confidence of ex-Governor Guild and the address of confidence delivered by the present Ambassador to Russia at the Mass Meeting in Beverly made friends for the representative of this district. He is a graduate of a law school and practices in Beverly and Boston. As a representative, Mr. MacDonald has been untiring in his efforts to serve the district for he appreciates the truth that an office holder is a servant, in the highest sense, of the people. His record is clean, his ideals are high and his work has commanded the respect and confidence of his constituents. He has always voted right on questions where morals have been involved and in lesser matters his judgment has been good. He voted for the Primary Bill. He introduced and successfully engineered the railroad bill providing that the companies in Massachusetts shall grant rebates on unused season tickets, and permit the deposit of the daily tickets during the periods in which the book is not in use. Through his industry the Danvers Bridge Bill was passed. The Y M C A of Boston is in debt to him for his service in the bill for granting degrees in the commercial course. Mr. MacDonald is worthy of a second term in the legislature and should receive the nomination on Tuesday. Ward Six has always been loyal to its candidates for office and will poll a large vote for Mr. MacDonald on Tuesday.

The Gubernatorial Contest.

There are three republican candidates for the nomination for Governor. Mr. Walker, Speaker of the legislature of 1911, Mr. Norman White, representative also from Brookline in the legislature of 1911, and Mr. Frothingham, the present republican Lieutenant Governor, under the Democratic Governor. All three of them are free of the so-called republican machine although Norman White has accused the majority of the republican state committee of being loyal to Mr. Frothingham despite their avowed neutrality as a committee. Mr. Luce is unopposed and is virtually elected Lieutenant Governor. He will receive the republican nomination, which is tantamount to an election if other years furnish any test. While the contest for the nomination apparently has been quietly conducted there has been an unusual amount of work done. Mr. White has relied upon the correspondence method. One voter has received no less than ten requests from different individuals of personal influence with him to give his support to Mr. White's candidacy. All of the candidates are men with good records and for the first time in the history of Massachusetts the people will decide directly who shall contest for the Governorship. The republican party will rally around the nominee which ever one and he will be voted in Governor.

The New Congressional Districts.

Under the new apportionment Massachusetts is to have two more congressmen in addition to the present quota, fourteen. This has necessitated a new division of the state into congressional districts. According to the plans laid by the special committee appointed by the legislature each of new congressional districts will have a population as nearly 210,401 as possible. By the new arrangement the sixth district, Augustus P. Gardner, Congressman, will have an excess of nearly sixteen thousand persons. It is proposed to add Peabody to the seventh district taking it from the Sixth District. The new plan provides for two additional congressman a real gain for Massachusetts. It is not likely that the removal of Peabody from this district to another will "gerrymander" to the detriment of the sixth district and consequently is of negligible interest to the republican party in the district.

The World As It Is.

It's a gay old world when you're gay,
And a glad old world when you're glad,
But whether you play
Or go toiling away,
It's a sad old world when you're sad.

It's a grand old world if you're great,
And a mean old world if you're small;
It's a world full of hate
For the foolish who prate
Of the uselessness of it all.

It's a beautiful world to see,
Or it's dismal in every zone;
The thing it must be
In your gloom or your glee Depends on yourself alone.

—S. E. Kiser.

Let the howlers howl,
And the growlers growl,
And the prowlers prow,
And the gee-gaws go it;
Behind the night
There is plenty of light,
And things are all right
And I know it.

Use of Odd Lengths of Lumber.

The investigation carried on last year by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, co-operating with lumber manufacturers in the South, to determine the saving that can be effected by using odd lengths of lumber as well as even, has begun to bear fruit. That investigation showed that a material saving was practicable, and at a recent meeting of a southern lumber manufacturers' association the fact was brought out that a beginning has been made in putting the new plan into practice, and that an increase in the sale of odd lengths is anticipated for near future.

It was formerly the custom, and generally is so still, to sell lumber in even lengths only. Waste resulted from cutting off the ends of odd lengths to make them even. A considerable percentage of a sawmill's output is defective. That is, boards have had knots, decayed spots, or split ends, and the defective parts are cut out. To make an even length of what remains, it is often necessary to cut off a foot of good wood with the bad, and it is wasted. The practice of marketing odd lengths as well as even is meant to lessen this waste. The sale of odd lengths of lumber will frequently lessen waste in the woods also; for example, a log may be cut fifteen feet long, which, following the old custom, would be cut only fourteen, and the extra foot would be left in the woods.

The introduction of odd lengths meets with opposition from many builders who are prejudiced in favor of even lengths simply because they have never used any other kind. Nevertheless, there are many places in which odd lengths are more economical than even ones—for instance, where nine-foot studding is used. Following former custom, the ends must be cut from even lengths to make the timbers fit. Some manufacturers of flooring successfully sell odd and even lengths, thus lessening waste in the woods, at the mill, and in the construction of buildings.

Beekeeping in Great Britain is to be encouraged by the Government, which has just given a preliminary $2,500 to the British Beekeepers' Association. A further grant of $1,750 has been made to aid in establishing an experimental apiary.

I find earth not gray but rosy,
Heaven not grim but fair of hue.
Do I stoop? I pluck a posy.
Do I stand and stare? All's blue.

Business Change.

One of the most important business changes in Manchester in the past year was the sale, this week, by Arthur S. Dow, of his fish business, conducted in Manchester for the past 32 years. Mr. Dow has sold his business to Harry E. Slade, a Manchester young man, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Slade of Brook street court. Mr. Dow has conducted a very successful business, one of the best in fact, on the North Shore. He has catered especially to the summer trade and has built up a reputation among them of furnishing first class goods.

Mr. Dow will continue with Mr. Slade at the present location on Beach street until November 1st. Mr. Slade expects to move the business into the building opposite the police station, owned by his grandmother. He will probably have a fish cart on during the winter, a practice which Mr. Dow has not maintained in the past. Mr. Slade has the best wishes of his many friends for success in his new venture.

Manchester Baseball.

The game with the "Collegians" on Saturday did not materialize as the boys did not show up. But local "fans" were not disappointed as the Mayflower team arrived in town, and a game was soon arranged with them. It proved to be an exceptionally interesting game and both teams did splendid work, as can be seen by the even score 7-8. Tomorrow the game will probably be with the Mayflowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fleming went to Lynn Monday, where they will make their future home, as Mr. Fleming is employed there.

To the Editor:—

As Chairman of the Republican Town Committee, I should like, through the columns of your paper, to call the attention of Republicans to the importance of the primary election on September 26th.

There is a contest for the Republican nomination for Governor and for other State officers. There should be a full expression of opinion by Republicans in the primary. A large caucus vote will indicate a healthful interest in the campaign and will forecast the election of a Republican Governor in November. The new direct primary law puts the selection of candidates directly up to the voters themselves and consequently they are responsible for these selections.

The Republican Town Committee, therefore, urges all Republicans to vote in the primaries.

Very truly yours,

P. H. BOYLE, Chairman,
Republican Town Committee.

Postmaster Samuel L. Wheaton had a narrow escape from serious injury last Saturday, when he fell from a second story balcony, at his home on North street, to the ground, a distance of some fifteen feet. Mr. Wheaton was repairing a door leading onto the balcony. He pulled it too quickly and the door knob came off letting him fall backwards over the railing onto the concrete below. He injured his shoulder and it is thought he may be injured internally. He is still at his home though it is hoped he will not have to go to the hospital.

George E. Willmorton is building an addition to his home on Pleasant street.

Sunday school at the Village church opened last Sunday for the winter with 34 present. It is hoped there will be 50 next Sunday. The Sunday school Quarterlies can be obtained before Sunday of Miss Amy Lycett. The sessions begin at 11.45 o'clock.

On Sunday, October 1, Rev. F. J. Libby will preach his farewell sermons, his resignation, which was tendered last spring going into effect on that date. Mr. Libby will sail for Europe early in October where he will travel for a year through the old countries. He will be accompanied by his sister, Miss Alice Libby. It is with sincere regret on the part of the members of his church and his many friends that his resignation is accepted and it is sincerely hoped by all that he will meet with great success and much happiness in his new undertakings.

The directors of the Men's Clubhouse association of Magnolia held a meeting at the clubhouse Thursday evening at 7.30 o'clock. The treasurer reported that the club had been self-supporting since it was opened June 1, 1909. Plans were formed for keeping the club open three evenings a week this winter as last winter, and a committee was appointed to have the matter in charge. This committee consists of William Macdonald, Jonathan May and Fred Dunbar. A meeting of stockholders of the Men's club was held immediately after that of the directors and the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: Wm. L. Wilkins, treasurer; Oscar P. Story, clerk; Geo. A. Upton, Jonathan May, Henry W. Brown, Holden P. Williams and William Macdonald as the other five members of the board of directors.

A meeting of the directors of the Women's club was held last Saturday at the parsonage, at which it was voted to purchase the lot adjoining the clubhouse, of the McClure heirs. The special price of $4,000 for the land and buildings was given to the club and purchase has since been made at that price. The land contains 5671 square feet and is one of the most desirable lots in Magnolia. It is the purpose of the directors to tear down the carriage house and grass over the land on which it now stands for the use of the club members. The building now used as a stable will be fitted up with rooms to let in order to pay the interest on the investment.

MAGNOLIA.

A reception was tendered Rev. Frederick J. Libby at the Men's club on Friday evening, by his many friends in Magnolia. Mr. Libby will leave early in October for Europe and expects to be absent a year and possibly longer. During the evening the sum of $125 in gold was presented to him by Mrs. Timothy McCarthy who had the affair in charge, in token of the high esteem in which he is held by all the residents of Magnolia. Ice cream and cake were served by the ladies. Chane's orchestra furnished music for the dancing which was greatly enjoyed by all. A further sum of $51 was presented Mr. Libby by Mrs. Willard R. Boyd in behalf of friends and members of the church. Mr. Libby has won many friends during the time he has been pastor of the Village church through his kindness of heart and willingness to lend a helping hand to all, of whatever creed. Mr. Libby has been a tireless worker for the welfare of Magnolia and great honor and credit is due him for his many good deeds. Since coming to Magnolia, he has built up the church in many ways and brought in many new members. He has also solicited for, and built both the Men's and Women's clubs which are both of great benefit to both Magnolians and summer visitors and leaves same free from debt. The best wishes of all are extended to him in his new field of labor.

The bowling and checker tournament at the Men's club ended this week. The cup for the bowling tournament was won by Wm. Howlett and the checker tournament was won by Fred Dunbar.

A short dance will be held at the Men's club tomorrow evening. Admission ten cents.

A team from Manchester bowled with the Magnolia team on Friday evening, the result being a tie.

Miss Marjorie S. May has ended her engagement as bookkeeper at the Kettle Cove Golf club and is substituting for her sister, Miss Ethel, at her father's office.

A number enjoyed the trip to Lake Winnepesaukee on Wednesday. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. James Wolfe, Miss Lillian Dennett, Martin V. Burke and Jonathan May.

The motor boat owned by H. L. Hannaford, which broke from its mooring in the heavy seas the first of the week, was washed ashore near the pavilion and was badly damaged. No insurance was carried on same at the time.

A meeting of the stock-holders of the Women's Clubhouse association of Magnolia, was held at the Women's club Thursday afternoon, September 14, at five o'clock. The treasurer reported the association free from debt with a substantial balance in the treasury. The mortgage of $1500 and all outstanding bills have been paid from a fund raised this summer for the purpose. It was reported to the meeting that the lot adjoining the clubhouse and owned by the McClure estate was for sale and a vote was passed recommending that the directors consider the purchase of it for the club. The following directors were chosen, Ethel P. May, Treasurer; Frederick J. Libby, clerk; Geo. A. Upton, Miss Elizabeth G. Houghton, Mrs. Geo. H. Crocker, Mrs. Frank F. Story and Henry W. Brown the other five members of the board.

Frank F. Story.

Frank F. Story, a well known and deeply respected citizen of Magnolia, passed away at his home 635 Western avenue, Saturday afternoon, aged 65 years, 1 month, 23 days. Although he had been in ill health for several years, the end came suddenly and unexpectedly, he being about and working in his garden nearly all day. Shortly before five o'clock, he went into the house complaining of a severe pain in his head and passed away before a physician could be summoned. He was the son of Lorenzo Dow and Mary A. (Farrar) Story, and was born in Swampscott, but spent practically all his life in Magnolia where he was engaged as a fisherman before going into the fish business for himself, which he continued until the time of his retirement from active work. He married Miss Abbie Burnham of this place, who survives him, also one daughter, Grace, and two sons George and Fred, his daughter Alice having passed away in April of this year. He is also survived by one brother, Henry, of Magnolia, and one sister, Mrs. Chas. Haskell of Newton, besides a large number of relatives.

He was a member of the Masonic Fraternity.

Funeral services were held from the Village church, Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. M. W. Stackpole and Rev. F. J. Libby officiating. Interment was in the family lot in the Magnolia cemetery.

The deepest sympathy of the community is extended to the members of the family in their sorrow.

Plans and specifications are out and bids are being asked for the drainage, filling and improvement of the land purchased by the city some few years ago for a playground at the Farms. Recently more land has been acquired, giving an area of sufficient size to work out the general improvement plan. Included in the general development are three features, especially dear to the young people's desires: a baseball diamond, a football field and a skating pond. The improvements are in charge of Rept. John L. Saltonstall, who has taken a great interest in bringing about the changes, also city engineer Harrie L. Whitney.

The estimate for the proposed improvement of the Beverly Farms playgrounds was opened at 5 o'clock last evening at the office of City Engineer Harrie L. Whitney. They are as follows: M. & J. L. Grady, $16,274.75; James J. Welch, $13,797.42; John A. Gaffey, $14,462.02; Connolly Bros., $11,925.87; D. Linehan & Son, $11,612.28. The contract had not been awarded this morning.

The Beverly Farms women, including those among the summer visitors, are arranging for a complimentary dance to be held in Neighbor's hall next Thursday evening, September 28th. Included in the guests are members of the U.S. S. Mayflower crew. All ladies who wish to take part in the event may do so by securing tickets from Miss Florence Slavin, Beverly Farms.

Rev. F. M. Gardner of Winthrop will preach at the Baptist church, Sunday.

A large party of Farms young people attended the invitation party held in the Manchester Town hall Wednesday. They report a most pleasant time.

Michael Crowne has been enjoying a week's vacation on an automobile trip to Washington, D. C.

A party of Beverly Farms young men will give a social and dance in Neighbor's hall tonight to which they have invited a large party of the local young people.

Mrs. Thomas W. Hannable of Salem, formerly a Farms resident, is reported to be critically ill.

Don't forget to attend the dance and social in Neighbor's hall next Monday evening. The event is being conducted by a committee from John West colony, Pilgrim Fathers.

Miss Alma C. Webber of Springfield, is spending her vacation at the Farms, the guest of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Harlow left yesterday for a vacation period to be spent in New Hampshire. They are now located in North Conway.

The fair and dance held the latter part of last week by Preston WRC was very successful notwithstanding the stormy weather. The hard work done by the ladies will repay them by being able to turn into the relief fund a neat sum of money. The corps members are very grateful for the aid given them, and wish to express their sincere thanks.

Elmer F. Smith was a passenger on the Merchants and Miners boat Wednesday for a vacation trip to Newport News, Va., and Baltimore, Md.

One of the most pleasant parties of the season was the "stag" and "smoker" party given last evening by some of the crew of the USS Mayflower to the young men of the Farms. The program of entertainment was varied, and included novel features, each number of which received hearty encore. On the program were the following:—Three three-minute friendly boxing bouts, between Matson vs. Wilhite, Meman vs. Enos, of the Mayflower, and Quirk vs. Callahan, of the Farms; a wrestling bout between Whitely and Wisegruber of the Mayflower; especial dancing by Messrs. Judge and Kelliher; songs by Cook, Bersnahan and others. One side of the hall tables were spread at which a Bohemian lunch was served.

Unclaimed letters remaining at the Beverly Farms postoffice, September 20th: John P. Bailey, Mrs. L. B. Boutwell, Clifford Etherrington, Wm. Gordon, Mrs. J. Macauley, Miss Bride Martin, James Mulligan, Chas. Morgan, Mrs. B. H. Nack, Mrs. P. Preston, Miss Annie Phipps, Miss Marie Sequine, Mrs. F. C. Shaw, Miss Cameron of the George Dexter household, has returned from a six weeks' Canadian-Pacific trip to Vancouver, B. C., where she made a very delightful stay with friends.

West Beach has now taken on the appearance of the season's ending, although on pleasant days large parties congregate there and there continues to be a few daily bathers. The matter of daily beach cleaning has been given up for this season and the swimming rafts have been taken ashore for the winter.

As yet no official notice as to the time of the departure of the U. S. Mayflower from off West beach has been given. It is the general opinion that the ship will remain here until about the 15th of October.

Ground was broken this week at Montserrat for the new cottage house of Thomas P. McKeigue of Everett street.

Preston Relief corps is to endow a bed at the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea, another of the many benefits that this patriotic organization of Farms ladies has done for the old veterans.

The ball team from the Mayflower crew will play a second game with the Crickets at Manchester Saturday afternoon.

Miss Margaret Sullivan, formerly bookkeeper at John Daniels', has accepted a similar position at Brewer's market.

Police officer, Thomas F. Hassey, who has been stationed at the West beach pavilion, will conclude his season's engagement there tomorrow. Officer Hassey has, through his strict attention to his duties, his courtesy and kindness, made a friend of every visitor at the beach and proved to be the right man in the right place.

SWAT THAT FLY!

Biggest Murderer That Ever Lived

Remember That Where There Is No Filth There Will Be No Flies.

Clean up your own premises. If you still have flies it is because your neighbors are harboring filth. If they won't clean up ask the Board of Health to force them to do so.

When merchants screen their goods against flies, patronize them, recommend their goods to others and give them "honorable mention" in the newspapers.

Your State Board of Health is interested in the fly-fighting campaign; your State Entomologist may also be able to give you the results of recent investigations into the habits of the fly. Write to them for further information.

Fly Poisons

A cheap and reliable fly poison, which is not dangerous to human life, is bichromate of potash in solution. Dissolve one dram, which may be bought at any drug store, in two ounces of water; add a little sugar, and place about the house in shallow dishes.

To clear rooms of flies use carbolic acid, heating a shovel and pouring on it 20 drops of the poison. The vapor will kill the flies. Another method: Burn pyrethrum powder in the room. The flies will fall to the floor stupefied and may be swept up and burned. The powder should be moistened and molded into cones, and, after drying, each cone should be placed upon a dish and lighted at the top. It will burn slowly, and the odor is not disagreeable.

Be sure that all drugs and chemicals used are fresh and pure, otherwise results may not be satisfactory.

Description of the U-Need-Me Fly Trap.

The U-Need-Me Fly Trap is 8½ inches high and 5 inches in diameter. It is made of the finest material. The dome is of clear crystal glass and the base of dark blue glass to prevent the sight of the dead flies. There are two places to put bait in to draw the flies—a groove in the base and a wooden cup under the trap.

The dome and base are connected together by a polished brass band in which there are several holes about ½ inch in diameter outside and perfectly smooth, but small in the inside and rimmed by a series of sharp points; this allows the flies that are attracted by the bait to go in with ease, but prevents their coming out. Furthermore, there is also a wire cone in the base in which there are more holes for the flies to go in.

Bait

Almost anything sweet is good to attract flies, but the bait that we specially recommend to use is condensed milk with a few drops of tomato ketchup or stale beer mixed in.

Price of the trap is only 50c. Try it! You need it! You cannot afford to be without it! It is surely the best fly destroyer in the world. Manufactured by the National Fly Trap and Novelty Co., Boston Mass.

And still there's more to follow. First one was full of the absolutely practical, then came along one full of the ornamental. This one contains beautiful specimens embodying both sorts.

'Tis Loaded With Choice Samples of the Very Highest Type of the Cabinet Maker's Art

It's full of Reproductions of old Colonial Period pieces. Four-poster beds, Napoleon Beds, Low Boys, High Boys, Buffets, Tip-up Tables, Sewing Tables, Old Secretaries, and a hundred and one other pieces, absolutely true in every detail to the original pieces from which they were copied. We've no doubt but that some of you have old pieces exactly like the new of which we now speak, and put side-by-side would so closely resemble in color and design, one another, that 'twould be difficult for you to tell them apart. They are here, rightly priced, no sentiment to affix a cost to, no "antique" shop story to run the price up; but sold on the same basis we'd sell you a kitchen stove. It makes heaps of difference in comparison with what they generally sold for; in fact, the way we put our prices on them makes them as cheap as the every-day sort. Rocky Neck's Development as a Summer Resort

BY MARY TAYLOR FALT

This picturesque section of East Gloucester and the North Shore was in 1849, a grazing field or pasture. The late Cyrus Story of Gloucester was able at that time to purchase an undivided half of the Neck for $500.

Like all other sections of the Shore its growth as a summer resort has been quick and remarkable. Until within recent years, there was no marked tendency toward an influx of summer residents.

The present Pilgrim House was for many years an old-time summer boarding house. It drifted like an old derelict to practical decay, then again arose out of its ashes into a new being to meet a new epoch in Rocky Neck's history. But aside from that hostelry, Rocky Neck had kept her old-time ideals and ways as a fisher village. To the artistic contingent who frequent East Gloucester, her sudden rise in popularity is considerably due. They found her in all her scenic beauty very paintable. She and her environs became the stamping ground of artists and art students from all over the country. They set up their studios in old buildings on the causeway and in grey old wharf sheds.

For a number of years such well known marine painters of note as Walter L. Dean, A. W. Buhler, and Victor Valenkamph have maintained studios on the causeway. Many of their notable canvases have been painted in their artistic workshops there. Other knights of the brush followed their example and Rocky Neck has been able to add to her list such notable men as Frank Duvencamp, the late John Twachtman, known as the "American Monet," De Camp, Potthast, Corwin, Hazard, Miss Eugenie Heller and many others.

The "at homes" Saturday afternoons at the studios served also to introduce delightfully to the stranger in East Gloucester the charms of Rocky Neck.

The festivities, too, of the many art students, who have followed their teachers to Rocky Neck, aided in establishing an interesting clientele and an individual coterie.

The college girls next made Rocky Neck a fad and this section of the North Shore is one of their chosen places for the Easter pilgrimage. Here they revel for ten days each easter vacation and learn all the arts of seamanship under the tutelage of professional fishermen.

Another important factor in the growth of this resort is its importance as a yachting centre. The Gloucester Yacht clubhouse is located at the Neck. This club acts annually as host each summer for the M. Y. R. A. Rocky Neck has materially profited in summer publicity through its existence. The Gloucester Yacht clubhouse adjoins the spacious grounds of The Rockaway hotel. It commands a fine view of the outer and inner harbors of Gloucester and the Magnolia shore. Ten Pound Island is a short run by water from the clubhouse. Upon the island is located the U. S. Fish Hatchery.

Literary distinction has been afforded Rocky Neck by the presence for some seasons of George Cable of Northampton, the author, and family, at the Pilgrim House.

The Rocky Neck of today has indeed been touched by the hands of progress. The summer hostelries are now big and fashionable hotels. The cottage settlement, a large and growing one. The stranger is gradually acquiring the properties of the natives. Cement lungalows on the Neck's picturesque and rocky promontories are elbowing out the shore fisherman's old-time homes with their heaped-up yards in which repose old dories, lobster pots, fishing gear and such equipment of the shore fisherman. The stranger likes this picturesqueness, but not so the old fisherman. He clings to the olden days. These radical changes almost make him weep. He is oftentimes seen lost in contemplation of the "curse" that has overtaken Rocky Neck.

Many owners of summer homes have found Rocky Neck so attractive that they remain all the year round now.

The fishing industry here today is limited. The famous Rocky Neck marine railways, however, remain. They always delight and interest the stranger particularly the inlander. Many of famous cup defenders, crack fishermen and noted yachts have been made seaworthy on these railways. To this day the Mayflower is annually perched on these ways for her season's overhauling and equipment. The vessel in which Dr. Cook sailed to the Arctic regions in search of the elusive North Pole was made ready for sea at these ways giving the Neck a historic part in Arctic history.

Here also is the ferry pier of the steam ferry, Little Giant, which plys between Gloucester, Rocky Neck and East Gloucester. This trip by water is a popular one with the tourists. Rocky Neck is the termination of the street railway line of the B. & N. R. R., which encircles Cape Ann. It is an objective point for one of the North Shore's most varied and picturesque trolley trips.

Industrially and commercially famous is the Tarr & Wonson copper paint factory. It is located on the extreme end of Rocky Neck. Its product is world famous. For that reason so is Rocky Neck.

As the Gloucester mariner adjusts himself to new fishing grounds so can he in many cases find his new bearings on land. In 1896, Capt. Frank Foster, a retired sea captain, remodeled his wife's homestead, the Rackliffe house on Fremont street, Rocky Neck, into a boarding house called The Rockaway. The property commanded a grand view of the outer harbor, Ten Pound Island, Magnolia and Fresh Water Cove. With its quaint surroundings, extensive grounds, proximity to the electric and ferry, its short distance from Eastern Point, it became a most attractive retreat to the tourist. After a few seasons it was purchased by Wm. Publicover. Here was another instance where a seafaring man was able to successfully assume the role of mine host. Mr. Publicover commanded a large sum monthly as cook on one of the big schooners sailing out of Gloucester harbor. If he could cater satisfactorily to a big crowd of stalwart hungry fishermen, who demand the best, he thought he'd try his luck on shore.

His venture as a landsman has proven very successful and the imposing and commodious Rockaway is a fitting monument to his endeavors to please.

Capt. Jeremiah Hopkins who presides over the Pilgrim House with Mrs. Hopkins, is a retired sea-captain too. Part of the charm of this hostelry is the interesting sea yarns the captain is able to rehearse to his many guests which add to the charm of their surroundings.

Thus Rocky Neck has a tangible hold still on her old traditions but is fast reaching out and taking an important place in the list of popular summer colonies.

Magnificent New Establishment of the Daniel Low Concern at Salem

One of the most notable changes in the mercantile establishments of Salem during the past year, has been the enlargement and re-arrangement of the store of Daniel Low & Co., the world-famed silversmiths and jewelers of that city. These changes have been in progress since last January and have just been completed, which gives some suggestion of their extent. In fact the entire establishment today is practically in new quarters, in size and point of equipment, unequaled east of New York.

ington street. Both are of the latest circular vestibule type. The revolving curved-wing doors on the Washington street entrance are said to be the first of their type in this section.

The finish throughout the store is solid mahogany. The show cases are particularly beautiful, the burl of the mahogany being veritable gems in artistic tracing. All of these cases are new and the one used for the display of solid gold jewelry, etc., is said to be the largest east of New York.

On the left of the main entrance of the innovations here. In the centre of the store, right, is the souvenir department, brass, copper and general novelties, with departments for silver, gold-filled and imported jewelry adjacent.

In the centre also, is the china department with wall cases in the rear for the display of dinner services and silver plate. In the extreme rear on the southern side of the store, is another of the several unique and tasty ideas to be found at every turn. This is a cut-glass room. The walls of this room are

The Daniel Low Co. is known all over the civilized world, through its tremendous mail-order business, which reaches every part of the globe. In fact, the name of the firm and the name of Salem are so intertwined by association, one with another, that the two are almost identified one with the other. Salem is famed for its colonial architecture, among other things, and it was but appropriate that in remodeling and enlarging the store that the Daniel Low Co. should follow the strict Colonial type of architecture and designs through the entire establishment. In this it, like Salem, stands alone and already the fame of its beauty has commenced to spread.

Last January the Low company secured the former quarters of the Naumkeag Trust Co. and began the work of remodeling the entire first floor of the First church building. This has been successfully accomplished. Shortly after the work began, the senior member of the firm, the late Daniel Low, died suddenly. His son, Seth F. Low, however, continued the alterations planned by them both and a visit to the store today will demonstrate how well he has accomplished the task.

The main entrance to the store on Essex street is now in the centre of the First church building. A new entrance has been made from Washington street, adjoining which is the ring department. Then follows along the eastern wall the diamond section and the solid gold jewelry as above cited. The display cases are lined with green velvet, with the exception of the diamond cases, where champagne color velvet is the scheme. Back of this is one of the great vaults used for the safe-keeping of the diamonds.

Further along is the solid silver table ware department with a novelty in the shape of a special exhibition alcove for the display of reproductions of the famous Sheffield plate. Adjoining this section is also a special room to be known as the model colonial dining-room.

Over the solid silverware department is the office. There are also two safety vaults for the keeping of the silverware. In the middle section, left, is the leather goods department and back of this a novelty in the shape of display ideas. This is a glass stack, so to speak, backed by great plate mirrors. On the glass shelves in front are displayed all sorts of souvenirs and novelties, changed every day. It is an idea brought by Mr. Low from Berlin.

To the right of the main entrance is the stationery department, the watch and clock sections. A glass-covered display table for the forms of engraving, die-work, etc., is one lined with plate-glass mirrors. It is called the Colonial cut-glass room and is aptly named, for the equipment throughout suggests this stately and beautiful design.

Adjoining this is another storage vault in front of which are the cases for sterling silver toilet articles. In the southwestern corner is the repairing department, where all articles for repair should be left.

The whole store is furnished with a tube carrier system, the tubes being concealed between the partitions. It is of the "stop and start" system and operated electrically, with 16 stations running to a central station. This carrier system connects the main store with the mail-order building in the rear and is not only a time-saver but a labor one as well. It is the largest of its kind in the east. The floor of the store is covered with a green battleship linoleum. The width of the aisles between the various departments is a striking feature, ensuring not only accommodations but comfort in shopping to the patron. These alterations give the firm more than double the floor-space than formerly.

In all truth the store is one of which any community might well be proud and will still further add to the fame and laurels of not only the firm of Daniel Low & Co. but to the city of Salem as well.

SOCIETY NOTES

Ex-Governor Eben S. Draper's former home, the John C. Phillips mansion at 299 Berkeley street, Boston, has been sold to Frederic Winthrop of the Hamilton colony, the deed being recorded Tuesday. It is one of the largest estates in the Back Bay and bears the distinction of being the only house in the older Back Bay that stands in the centre of a lot and thus is exposed to the air on all sides. The property was purchased in July, 1910, by J. Sumner Draper and Mark Temple Dowling. It was occupied by the former Governor for a considerable time, following a fire which destroyed his Beacon street home. The land area is 9912 square feet, valued by the assessors at $84,200.

Miss Eleanora Sears has been distinguishing herself on the Longwood (Boston) tennis courts this week where the annual open tournament of the Longwood Cricket club has been in progress. She also displayed her courage there Wednesday by stopping a runaway horse and preventing him from galloping through the gallery of spectators. Miss Sears will drive Miss Dorothy Forbes' horses at the Brockton fair next week.

Reginald Foster of the Manchester colony has been re-elected a director of the Boston & Albany railroad. Wm. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., was elected a director. The meeting was held in Boston, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Saltonstall of the Beverly Cove colony, are receiving numerous congratulations on the arrival of a little daughter at their summer home on Hale street some ten days ago. Mrs. Saltonstall was Miss Gladys Rice of New York. Mrs. Wm. Gordon Means of Beverly Farms is Mrs. Saltonstall's sister.

Louis Baer and family departed Wednesday for their Boston home after a season's stay at Oak Bluff cottage, Ober street, Beverly.

North Shore friends of Miss Edith Deacon are learning of her sojourn abroad through greetings from Paris and nearby localities.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stewart Spaulding and John T. Spaulding of Boston and Pride's, were passengers on the Zeeland, which sailed from Boston Tuesday. They are to make a world-trip.

Frank Gair Macomber of Beacon street, Boston, has rented for the winter, "Rockledge," his Marblehead cottage on Cliff street, to John A. Burnham of Boston and Wenham and his recent bride, who was Miss Grace A. Luther of New York, a summer resident of Marblehead Neck. Mr. and Mrs. Burnham are now on their wedding trip to Europe. They will return to Marblehead early in December.

Mrs. Ruth See of Gramercy Park, New York, who spent August and part of September at Magnolia with her sister, Miss Mary A. Dobbins of Philadelphia, at "Shore View" cottage, has returned to New York. Mrs. See, who is a member of the New York State Historical society, a Daughter of the American Revolution, and a life member of the American Forestry association, is very active along these lines in the metropolis. On October 3d, 4th and 5th, she will supervise a big flower show in the public schools of New York to bring the teachers and children material for their nature study. Mrs. See is a great devotee of the North Shore and Magnolia, and enjoys keenly her sojourns there and her visits to the surrounding places of interest.

Although there is a forward tendency toward winter homes, North Shore society folk are rounding out the season with many gaieties and are doing much entertaining. A very delightful function for the young people was Mrs. Oliver Ames' dinner-dance last Friday evening, given in honor of her daughter, Miss Elise Ames. Eighty young people participated and the orchestra was brought over from New York. Miss Lily Sears entertained a house party of five young people at Pride's, guests at the dinner-dance, over the last week-end. Saturday evening there was a dinner at the Sidney E. Hutchinson summer home for 12 guests and 16 guests

C. Fricks and Harold Coolidge summer homes, at Pride's. J. H. Harding and other New York guests have been visitors at the Frick mansion this week. The F. P. Mitchells of Washington and Hamilton entertained extensively over the last week-end also.

Mrs. Washington B. Thomas and daughter, of the Pride's colony, returned Saturday from a week's motor trip. They returned by way of Poland Springs.

Lindsay Hopkins of Atlanta, Georgia, spent a few days recently with the J. N. Willys family of Toledo, at Pride's.

Mrs. R. L. Patterson and daughter of New York and Bar Harbor, are guests of the P. B. Thompsons at Beverly Farms. Mr. Thompson has returned from New York and brought over friends for a visit also.

On account of the bereavement the bridegroom had sustained through the death of his father last November, the marriage of John Appleton Burnham of Boston and Wenham, and Miss Grace Aline Luther of New York city was solemnized in quaint old St. Michael's Church, Marblehead Wednesday of last week, in the presence of the families of the contracting parties alone. Mr. Burnham is the son of the late John A. Burnham of No. 57 Commonwealth avenue, Boston. He was graduated from Harvard in the class of '99. The Rev. William M. Partridge performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Abbott and children of the West Manchester colony have returned from a sojourn in Newport.

There is much North Shore interest in the Crimson football players, who are lining up daily for practice on Soldiers' Field. Coach Haughton of the Manchester colony is on hand and allows his men only dummy scrimmage. Richard Wigglesworth and Huntington, the latter a recent guest in Manchester of Mr. Wigglesworth, are in team A, Huntington at center and Wigglesworth quarterback.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Thomas have just returned from a two weeks' motor trip through the Berkshires and White Mountains.

Among the Manchester contingent who will prolong their autumn stays to October 20th will be the Misses Bartlett, whose beautiful estate is located on Masconomo and Sea streets.

Magnolia Hotel and Cottage Notes

This week ends the Magnolia season. Shutters are going up on the Oceanside hotel and but few cottages remain open.

Miss Mary C. Bancker of Green Gables Inn, took her departure this morning for New York.

Last Saturday witnessed the departure of the Claude Kilpatrick for St. Louis. Monday the Frederick H. Warners of Boston, vacated the Kirby cottage, and the H. W. Fanums of Chicago, returned to their western home. They occupied "Sun Dial" cottage.

Yesterday Alfred S. Gillette and family of Washington, took their departure.

Mr. Brown of the Grande Maison de Blanc concluded his long season at Magnolia Wednesday.

Numbered also among the leavetakers are the Col. Nelsons, the Dulin family, Capt. and Mrs. Charles W. Littlefield, Miss McVickar of Providence, Mrs. H. J. McGowan and family of Indianapolis from the Covell house. Mr. Covell and family have moved to their cottage and will remain at Magnolia until November 1st.

Another St. Louis family who have departed are the Samuel M. Kennards. They were members of the Fuller street contingent.

Andrew M. Moreland and family, who enlarged the Pittsburg contingent at Magnolia this season, also departed this week. They have been tenants of the J. S. Lee cottage.

Well known members of the Philadelphia colony to leave Wednesday were the C. W. Smiths of Germantown.

Mrs. R. K. Walter is at her Baltimore residence after a season's stay at Magnolia. She was located on the Shore road.

All has been hustle and bustle at the various summer studios and stores this week at Magnolia. The packing case and barrel have played an important part in the operations as have the local expressman.

The busiest place at Magnolia is at the new summer home of J. Harrington Walker of Detroit. The contractors are trying hard to get the exterior of the house cemented before cold weather sets in. It will be a very fine and spacious summer home when completed.

ON THE DAWN OF PEACE

Rev. Edward A. Tuck Delivers Timely Discourse at the Manchester Baptist Church; Facts and Figures Against the Continuance of War

Rev. Edward A. Tuck of Concord, N. H., a son of one of Manchester's best known old time families,—the Squire Tucks—preached at the Baptist church Sunday, September 10th. He selected for his subject: "The Message of Peace." In his discourse he said:

"It is perfectly certain that at a date no longer remote peace will take the place of war, and arbitration and justice be substituted for brute force, in the settlement of international difficulties. It is an old maxim of the law books that 'he knoweth not the law who knoweth not the reason thereof.' I want to speak this morning of the forces that make for peace, that your faith in it may not be a sentiment merely but may rest upon reason, and that you may thus perhaps be equipped to both enjoy and support this greatest of reforms which (as Secretary Root said recently) no longer waits for diplomacy but for education.

"While we think of Alexander, Caesar and Napoleon as scourges and of their wars as inhuman and unjustifiable, yet we assume that our own wars were necessary and justifiable. I submit to you reasons that they were neither. Since becoming a nation we have had three foreign wars, the war of 1812; the war with Mexico and the Spanish War.

"The provocation for the War of 1812 was the unjust act of England in seizing American vessels and taking from them men who, she claimed, were deserters from her navy, but who probably in a majority of cases were Americans. President Madison was opposed to the war, and the better sentiment of the country supported him. The declaration of war by Congress was opposed by a large majority. But fiery spirits like Henry Clay and John C. Calhoun overruled, playing upon the hostility to England, at that time still fresh, and vaingloriously predicting that we would easily whip England and dictate peace in Quebec or Halifax.

"Now, five days after the declaration of war and before it had actually begun, the Orders in Council were repealed in England and the main cause removed, and instead of the prophesied easy victory the distressing war dragged on for two years, and peace was gladly concluded on both sides—but not one thing contended for was alluded to in the treaty. Never was a war more barren of results. It was neither necessary nor justifiable.

"It is the general judgment of mankind that the war with Mexico was unjustifiable. The war was due to slavery. Texas, one of the fairest and dearest of the provinces of Mexico, had been annexed; the boundary line was to be determined by arbitration. Without authority from Congress, President Polk sent General Taylor with an army to occupy the disputed territory. This caused the war.

"Now, at the same time we had a controversy with Great Britain over our northwest boundary. Polk himself was elected on the issue 'Fifty Four Forty or Fight'—that is, if England did not concede every inch of the territory we claimed, we would settle it by war. But just at that time England concluded a war with China, and had a strong army and navy disengaged, and we wisely compromised, surrendering one-half of our claim. Had reason and justice prevailed similarly with Mexico, we should not have had what General Grant said he regarded as one of the most unjust wars ever waged by a stronger against a weaker nation. It was unnecessary and unjustifiable.

"We have had time for sober second thought about our declaration of war against Spain. Recently published documents of Ambassador Woodward to President McKinley state that Spain was ready to grant all reasonable demands of the United States. The yellow press and Congress wanted war, the President opposed it. The President was a good man, but weak. Had he been as strong as he was good, war might have been averted; but after the destruction of the Maine, he yielded the issue to Congress, which hastily declared war against a weaker nation—seventy millions against sixteen millions. Spain proposed an international court of inquiry to investigate the cause of the destruction of the Maine, but it was rejected. The army and navy did not want to wait. We are now making an investigation ourselves—an illustration of the saying, 'Hang a man, then try him.' Will you say that this war was either necessary or justifiable?

"In every one of our foreign wars, the war was begun by ourselves. They all illustrate what could be shown as well by the history of other nations—that war is neither necessary nor justifiable.

"The best definition of democracy is that phrase of Lincoln's: 'Government of the people, for the people, by the people.' The increase of popular government is world wide. It is rising in despotic countries like Turkey and Persia; it has just made Portugal a republic; already a decree has issued from the throne in China, calling for its first parliament in 1913; India is filled with unrest of people claiming a share in government; the House of Lords in England has just yielded up its privileges to the representatives of the people in the House of Commons.

"The rise of the people is no less apparent in the United States. It is seen now in the demand that there shall be no privileged classes, in the revolt against bosses and independence of party and machine, in control of primaries, in the initiative and referendum, in trade unions, in free trade and reciprocity. When government was in the hands of the few, in despots or kings or privileged classes, the people had nothing to say about war; but it is the people who bear the cost and who are slaughtered. The glory is for few, the sufferings for the many. The people are against war, and with the increase of popular government there will be decrease of war. The men with the ballot will abolish the bullet.

"I need not dwell upon this self-evident argument, but we know that education is increasing throughout the world. China has just adopted modern education and new schools will spring up all over that greatest empire. Think of the constantly increasing sums of money spent for education in our country. Now this is a vast force that tends for peace, and it strengthens the previous force of democracy in the same direction. For a democracy without education might be a 'mobocracy,' and it is fortunate that education is increasing along with popular government.

"Education is an appeal to reason, war is a dethronement of reason and an appeal to force. The educated man knows that might cannot make right. He best understands arguments for peace, and it is a significant fact that the great educators are leaders of the peace movement. It appeals to them that questions of international justice should be determined by international courts.

"The waste of war is a force that makes for its abolishment—the cost is incomprehensible. A battleship costs $18,000,000, more than the combined cost of all the lands and buildings of all of our New England colleges. In a dozen years this battleship goes to the junk heap. A single shot costs $1,700, as much as the education of a boy. In 1910 our government spent $409,040,714 for the army and navy and for pensions, while all the other expenses for the legislative, judicial and executive branches cost $32,000,000. That is twelve times as much for war as for all other things in time of peace.

"We spend 72 per cent of our revenue for war and 28 per cent for the commonwealth. This is a war tax of $60 per family. We lead the world in the expenditure for armaments, which is a race to bankruptcy. There are over 4,000,000 idle men in the barracks of the world to be supported by the toilers. The nations of Europe in the past 37 years spent $111,000,000,000 for war, an unthinkable sum, nearly equal to the aggregate wealth of the United States, the richest nation in the world.

"Our Civil War, which has been characterized as the one justifiable war—but concerning which General Grant himself said that in his judgment there never was a time when the drawing of the sword might not have been avoided—cost one and one-half billions of dollars per year, and the debt is not yet paid.

"But the cost in blood is more appalling than the cost in dollars. The Civil War destroyed a million men, the European wars in the last century destroyed fourteen million men. Since recorded history, war has destroyed one billion, five hundred million men—a number equal to the present population on the globe. Surely it has been well said, 'Peace is the supreme object of government.'

"You would tire if I should go on giving the figures describing this monumental waste.

"The lives thus needlessly sacrificed to the god of War were the flower of the nation. Think of the loss to the world through a system which selects the stronger for destruction and the weaker for survival and propagation. What genius, what talent, what leaders for the world have thus been swept away by cannon. Had the billions of dollars spent in the Civil War been spent on the South it would have made it a Garden of Eden; and who can estimate what contribution that million of lives, if spared, might have made to the progress of the nation? What could we not do if we had the whole one hundred per cent of our revenue instead of the twenty-eight per cent to spend on the commonwealth? Think what forests we might reclaim, what lands we might irrigate, what canals we might dig, what highways we might build! What diseases like tuberculosis, hookworm and cancer might be destroyed! What improvements in the living of the toilers, what pension for old age to brighten life might be provided for! What training in arts and industries might be given to his children, through the founding of new schools! All these things wait for money, and the money is spent for wars and the preparation for wars. We are in bondage to the army and navy.

"But, than God, the key to the prison is on the inside. None can compute the cost of war in the broken hearts, in the wrecked homes, in the orphaned children, in the loss of production, in characters wrecked by idleness and dissipation and the bitternesses that surely sow seed for future wars.

'Were half the power that fills the world with terror,
Were half the wealth that's spent on camps and courts,
Given to redeem the human mind from error
There were no need of arsenals or forts!'

"Someway I feel that you are waiting for this argument. It is the supreme one. What is God's purpose in this matter? What saith the Lord? He puts His message into two chapters, a prophecy and a history. In the prophecy we read of a radical transformation; 'and he shall judge among the nations and shall rebuke many people, and they shall beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.' And in the history we read that He, this Prince of Peace, has come, and that at His coming a multitude of the heavenly host sang 'Glory to God in the Highest, on earth peace, good will to men.' The world has never lost that vision or forgotten that music. This history further says that God made of one blood all nations of the earth, and that He also redeemed them by the one blood of this Prince of Peace, overarching us with the Fatherhood of God, and binding us into an indissoluble brotherhood—that He is thus a God of love and that our religion is nothing less than the life of God in our souls, so we will love God and love man. Let love work no evil to his neighbor but as ye would that men should do to you, do you also to them likewise.'

"This Prince of Peace sends his disciples to all nations with this transforming message of love. For wherever it goes, it changes their lives. It reforms the soul, which is the soul of reform, it obliterates geographical boundaries, it breaks down the walls of partition between peoples, it cares not under what flag a man is born nor for the color of his skin. 'A man's a man for 'a that.' There is neither Jew nor Gentile. He bids us to put up the sword, for ye are brethren, and sends us forth to all nations, to win them to the kingdom of peace.

"But has the church actually been doing this? No; too often, she has been tithing mint and anise and cummin, and neglecting the weightier matters of righteousness, peace and joy. Sometimes she has given her attention to creeds instead of to deeds. Sometimes she has been taken up with the millinery of worship. Sometimes she has not only forgotten that she was here to serve, but she has forgotten her example and mission that she strode forth with boots of war instead of with sandals of peace, and, like the first murderer, made the blood of her brothers cry to God.

"What shall we say to these things? Let us return to God. Our mission is to bear His image and to carry His message. That image, that message, is love. Its banner is the cross. Let us not repeat the mistake of Constantine who before a great battle saw a cross in the heavens with the words 'In this sign, conquer,' and went forth to destroy with those words on his banner but not on his heart. The only way to kill your enemies is by love.

"In yonder park there is a cannon blazoned with the words 'The last argument of kings.' What is the

Manchester Man Burned to Death

William Kiss, a former gardener at the estate of Mrs. W. Scott Fitz, was found suffocated in a room at the Lincoln House, 75 Causeway street, Boston, about ten o'clock last night. The proprietor looking into the room, saw the bed afire on which Kiss was sleeping. Kiss was taken from his perilous position, but it was too late, as life was extinct. Dr. Murphy of the Relief Hospital staff was summoned. He found Kiss dead.

Mr. Kiss registered at the hotel on Wednesday, but little was seen of him by the proprietor. The latter was attracted to the guest's room by the odor of smoke.

It is believed that the dead man had fallen asleep while smoking in bed and that in this way the bed clothing had caught afire.

The body was removed to the North Grove street morgue awaiting a claimant. The deceased boarded at 128 School street, of this town.

"Stolypin."

The death of the Russian Premier Stolypin from the wound inflicted by an assassin during a festival production at the Municipal Theatre two weeks ago, tells in very forcible language that the days of anarchism and unrestrained enmity against rulers are not at an end. It must be remembered before criticisms are made of Russian law and order that three of our own Presidents have been killed at the hands of assassins, the beloved Lincoln, the honored Garfield, and the lamented McKinley. Such methods of gaining an end are cowardly, asinine and barbaric. The hand of the assassin in governmental problems is a return to the childhood of the race when force ruled and undesirable rulers were "eliminated" in the swiftest way, at the edge of the sword.

Peter Arkatievich Stolypin came into power as premier in troublesome days and the cares of state, the fears of anarchy, murder and massacre, accompanied by personal danger have been his hard lot. The conditions in Russia are still unsettled and when careful thinkers in Russia are uncertain as to the outcome it is correspondingly true that American students are not in a position to judge of the effect the death of Stolypin will have upon the problem of government in Russia. For Russia is passing through a transition period. The governmental policy is archaic and to the American it lacks freedom, liberty and progress. The will of the people will prevail. The hours of dynasty, monarchy and despotism are numbered and consequently the hope of Russia lies in the direction of greater religious, educational and political freedom. England has solved her problem of government in part in its limited monarchy and in the limitations of monarchical despotism Russia will gain. Russia may not be ready for a democracy but step by step in the limitations of the monarchy the republican form of government may be approached and the liberties of the people increased. That the death of Stolypin must mean a change of policy in Russia, to a less or a greater degree, is apparent. The choice of his successor will be watched with interest, for it will in a measure, forecast the policy of the Czar of Russia for a few years and perhaps longer. The statement from the Russian Secretary of the Embassy here in Manchester should be a sufficient answer to the fears aroused by the death of Stolypin in Jewish communities.

"I left Russia before M. Stolypin came into prominence—he will be hard to replace. The appointment of premier rests, according to the Russian constitution, entirely in the hands of the Czar, and, though I can think of several probable successors, it would not be discreet to name one in particular.

"No change in Russian policy is to be looked for, and I want to protest against the assumption published in so many papers that the Jewish community is in any particular danger, owing to the assassination. If trouble were contemplated, disorderly elements in Russia would have begun before this."

Ambassador Curtis Guild, formerly Governor of Massachusetts may be depended upon to present the condolence of the United States to the Czar of Russia in keeping with courtesies due from one nation to another in such an hour as this.

Misfortune.

All evil cannot be considered merely as discipline but this is certainly the result of the severest losses in life. The more severe the trial, the more searching is the revelation of weakness. And under the severest trials the apparently weak folks reveal the most stalwart characters and there is in everyone that mysterious talent that can make, in the face of losses, a hero of every man and a heroine of every woman. To be immune from suffering is not the human lot but to live in its atmosphere when it is the figment of our imagination and not our real lot is more than criminal. To bear losses, to meet misfortunes and failure with equanimity is a necessary and indispensable quality in the education and development of a human life. To meet inevitable and unpreventable failure with courage and hope is a triumph. There is no question of the presence of suffering in human life but how surprisingly different are its results upon character. It mellows the life of one, and as the product of their affliction, they have been able to radiate sunshine and happiness all along the path of their life. Others have had the fruit of their lives transformed into the vinegar of acerbity, rebellion and discontent. Experiences have thus enriched one and ruined the other. Small disappointments are more severe than great trials. Often human lives have been able to bear up under the weight of heavy sorrows with more calm and peace. Like mighty ships weathering a heavy storm in a rough and terrible sea with triumphant endurance only to be held captive by a rising shoal of sand that appears and disappears with the rising and falling of the tide. Of all this, Robert Louis Stevenson writes: "That which we suffer ourselves has no longer the same air of monstrous injustice and wanton cruelty that suffering wears when we see it in the case of others, so we begin gradually to see that things are not black, but have their strange compensations . . . I should bear false witness if I did not declare life happy."

Misfortune is only a passing of a cloud—there is light behind; our light is from above but our strength is from within. The trellis will bear the vine but it must cling with its own tendrils. The stake holds a young tree, but it must soon outgrow it and stand alone. Sympathy, love, affection and help are beautiful in life but they cease as powers when they are the sources of weakness. A misfortune ruins that weakens. A misfortune makes a man when it obliges him to stand alone and face life with courage and determination. This will broaden one's life for as Walter Scott makes Jeannie Dean to say: "Alack! It is not when we sleep soft and wake merrily, that we think of other people's suffering but when the hour of suffering comes."

The Good of Beverly Farms.

Has there been a civic awakening for the good of Beverly Farms? It looks that way and the awakening should be continued and the gain already made held and new additional gains made. The old booths have been removed and a beautiful pavilion, or bathing house, has taken its place. The outworn and valueless fire equipment will soon be replaced by a modern piece of apparatus. Beverly Farms should have had these things before and the success which has attended these two movements is only a foretaste of what can be done in other directions if there be a unity of purpose and action. When the time comes, there will be a new municipal building to house the public library. (Any time will be a good time.) The Beverly Farms Improvement society has taken an interest in "spotless town" and the barrels in the square and "the goodies" at work each day cleaning the streets of papers and refuse have added much to the attractiveness of our village. Now, at last, a concerted move is to be made for a larger street cleaning appropriation,—those in authority locally have always been faithful to the limits of their appropriation,—and better sidewalks. This is another sign of the awakening. The movement has started right and only in this way can Beverly Farms gain. In the plainest English, nothing can be accomplished until the all-year residents and (for the want of a better term), the summer residents, work together for civic ends. One of the encouraging features of the new movement is that the committee is representative. The distance between the local population and the owners of estates is too great for wholesome, democratic, town life. When there is agreement along civic lines there will be a rich reward in local improvements and not until then. The ward pays enough in taxes to have anything it wishes,—within reason. The ward must speak up "real loud" to be heard. The petition signed by the "summer people" turned the tide in the matter of the new engine. The mayor was frankly against the order and it looked like a "veto." The ward was surprised when the order was signed. This should teach the ward a lesson and particularly the summer residents. The permanent residents are united in their requests. Let it be fortified by a well planned civic movement participated in by both the permanent and the summer residents and results will be accomplished. The appointment of the new committee on sidewalks is representative and appointed in harmony with such a plan and with a unity of action the sidewalks will be laid. It is a time for the sinking of selfish interests to unite in a specific plan of village improvement. It is already known that the ward through its alderman can ask for a division of the sidewalk appropriation. One-sixth of the total amount should be available in Beverly Farms. Then, when it is available a plan of construction should be made. There should be a method of construction united upon. A plan of the village should be laid and all of the money used to lay sidewalks according to the agreed upon plan, then it will not be many years before Beverly Farms will be provided with sidewalks of uniform construction on all its streets. The Improvement Society have set for themselves an interesting task and their efforts are bound to be successful.

Massachusetts Banks

There is no state in our country wherein the public has better protection and service from its banks, particularly the savings banks, than in Massachusetts. It has been the policy of the legislature to protect the public by wise banking laws in order to give the maximum of return with the minimum of risk. Primarily intended to assist small investors to place their funds at interest, the Savings Banks have been successful and enjoy a confidence with the people which is invaluable. Every effort has been made and exercised to teach the citizens of Massachusetts, thrift and the laws of financial increase, without weakening their own business initiative. In this respect the bank laws and state protection methods of Massachusetts have been copied, as models, frequently, by other states.

The State has a practical oversight of the banking system for the protection of investors. This oversight and care has resulted in great gains to the community. It has placed funds at the disposal of borrowers to continue legitimate propositions to a successful termination. It has also given the lender a safe custodian for unused capital with an assured income. The state has profited. Many a citizen today owes his home, owned now outright, to the helpful agency of the Savings Bank. The number of homes which have been built directly or indirectly by the funds advanced by Savings Banks would be surprising. Now added help and oversight is to be given. Borrowers and depositors are to receive notification of the amount of the loan charged against them or the rate of interest the bank books show. This is a valuable check which must be productive of good. It will mean a state wide "taking of stock." It is a lamentable fact that many men are deficient in business acumen and care and this work of the state will help him as well as give an official verification to him who is a careful accountant.

Red Cross Is Now Official.

The relation of the American National Red Cross to the military arms of the United States was definitely established by President Taft in a proclamation made public Wednesday. It announced that the Red Cross "is the only volunteer society now authorized by this government to render aid to its land and naval forces in time of war." Any other body desiring to render similar assistance could do so, the President said, only through the American National Red Cross.

National Director E. P. Bicknell of the Red Cross explained today that the proclamation settled all doubt as to the authority of the Red Cross and obviated any friction which might lessen the efficiency of relief work.

Little Miss Mary R. Lethbridge celebrated her 12th birthday anniversary on Wednesday evening at her home, 100 Summer street. The evening was spent very pleasantly playing games. A number of her schoolmates and friends were present, and remembered their little hostess with pretty gifts. Her most cherished gift was a piano from her parents which was a great surprise.

Mrs. Curtis Stanley is receiving the sympathy of her many friends through the death of her mother on Wednesday of last week, in Salem. The deceased was Mrs. Mary Leach, wife of Thomas W. Hannable of Salem. Mrs. Hannable was the daughter of the late Samuel and Eliza (Leach) Ayers. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley attended the funeral in Salem last Friday. Mrs. Stanley is doubly bereaved as she was called to Newcastle a few weeks ago owing to the death of her sister. The journey there, by her late venerable mother contributed to her illness and eventual death.

Mary Edith (Lane) Allen

On Saturday, Sept. 23d, at Rochester, N. Y., Mary Edith (Lane) Allen, wife of James C. Allen, of this town passed away. Mrs. Allen has been an invalid for a number of years and went to Rochester to visit George Allen, her brother-in-law, and family, in hopes that the change would be beneficial. Her daughter, Nellie, and son, William, were also with her in Rochester at the time of her death, which although not unexpected, was a sad blow to the family. Besides the children with her, the deceased left two sons, John and Charles, and a husband. For a number of years Mrs. Allen's home has been in Manchester, where she made many friends in her quiet way. The funeral services and burial was in Rochester, at the deceased's request, it being her first home when she came from Gloucester, England, a number of years ago.

MANCHESTERManchester Young Woman's Success
—Miss Florence Forster Leach.

The many Manchester friends of Miss Florence Forster Leach, as well as her host of friends in Boston and elsewhere, are pleased to note the success of this promising young Manchester woman. Only last week did Miss Leach pass her 18th birthday, but at this age she possesses talents in musical and dramatic lines which many with years of experience would envy.

We speak of Miss Leach as a Manchester girl, for though she has lived most of her life in Boston, Manchester is her home and the home of her family for more than 200 years back. Miss Leach was graduated last June from the Girls' Latin school in Boston, and was to have entered Radcliffe this fall, having passed her examinations for that institution. She is very desirous, however, of taking up some work along the line in which she possesses such talent, and to that end she has gone as an extra girl in the Castle Square Stock Co., of which John Craig is the head, hoping in this way to work her way up. She has already been given a little part as maid in "Why Smith Left Home," which is to be presented at the Castle Square Theatre next week.

Miss Leach has been studying music and dramatic art since she

The building will be heated by hot water and modern conveniences will be put in. This work will be done by the R. Robinson Co. Howard A. Doane has the contract for the carpenter work.

Miss Leach is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Leach, who summer at the old Forster house on Central street, Manchester, one of the oldest houses in town, built by Mr. Leach's great-grandfather, Major Israel Forster, so prominently identified with the Manchester of four or five generations ago. The family has spent their winters at the Oxford in Boston, but this year they have taken a small apartment in Huntington Hall.

Sailors Defeat Crickets

The last few ball games have been all that a baseball fan could wish for, and Saturday's game was no exception. A large crowd gathered and there was universal disappointment when the band from the Mayflower did not appear. A number of young people from the Farms were present. The Mayflower team is a fine crowd of sports and play a good clean game, their mascot was an interested spectator. Gray's batting and Holland's fielding were the features—Gray getting a home run and a two bagger. Holland captured some very hard flies. While running after one, he ran into a fence and was winded for a few minutes. Walen played very good ball also. After the first inning both teams settled down and played a steady game. Crocker pitched exceptionally good ball and Dunbar was right on the job as catcher. To-morrow's game, weather permitting will be with the Mayflowers and will probably be worth seeing.

Wednesday, September 20th, when Miss Marion Dudley Endicott, daughter of Henry Endicott, of Marlboro street, Boston, became the wife of Dr. George Plummer Howe of Lawrence. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles E. Park of the First Parish Church, Boston, assisted by the Rev. Charles F. Russell, pastor of the Weston Church. Miss Endicott was gowned in a handsome costume of white, with long flowing white veil; in her hands was a bunch of bridal roses. Her only attendant was Miss Marian Jeffries of Boston. The church was decorated with Southern smilax and roses, while at the summer home of the bride's parents a profusion of roses was scattered about in every room of the spacious home. A special car attached to the 11.54 o'clock train from the North station carried a party of 64 guests to the wedding service. Dr. Howe is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Octavius Thorndike Howe of Lawrence, and Bass Rocks, and has made quite a name for himself as an explorer. Thorndike Dudley Howe, who married the eldest Miss Rotan, was his brother's best man. Dr. Howe graduated from Harvard in 1900 and from the medical school four years later. The Nocturne from "Midsummer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn was played by John P. Marshall, organist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and of the Rockport summer colony, as the bride, on the arm of her father, walked down the aisle to the MAKING TRIP TO FLORIDA.Capt. Wm. S. Douglas of Magnolia Traveling in Auxiliary Yacht.

Capt. William S. Douglas, a well known resident of Magnolia, started Wednesday morning, September 13, before daylight, on a unique trip to Florida in the 30-foot auxiliary yacht Rosebud.

Capt. Douglas is well known to the summer residents of Magnolia, especially to those who have been coming there for a number of years. He has been engaged there in taking out boating parties and nearly all knew him.

The trip is unique in that it is different than any attempted before and Capt. Douglas will be the first to accomplish it. Instead of putting out to sea and heading straight for the southern coast, he is to follow the canals along shore and the first cut is through the Cape Cod canal, for which it was necessary to secure a special permit.

Passing through the canal into Buzzards Bay he will sail through Long Island Sound to Hell Gate and from there through the state of New Jersey by way of the Raritan canal to the Delaware river. He will keep close to the shore and through Chesapeake Bay, and by passing through the Dismal Swamp canal, he will avoid Hatteras and will strike the coast again near the Carolinas, and in this way it is figured that Capt. Douglas can reach his destination at the winter resorts in Florida, where he will engage in the business of taking out boating parties in southern waters.

The boat he is making the trip in is about 30 feet and is equipped with a five-horsepower auxiliary gasoline motor. The boat is cabined over to provide shelter in bad weather.

First Class Groceries and Kitchen Furnishings

Telephone 63-2

The captain is making the trip alone and is doing his own cooking and will only travel during the day time, making a stop over night wherever he happens to be. It is estimated that it will require about a month to make the journey.

Capt. Douglas is a man of 66 years, and has followed the sea for years, except the past few years, which he has spent taking summer residents on fishing trips along the shore. For a number of years he followed the fisheries from Swampscott and he is also well acquainted with the whaling industry, being a whaler of some experience.

He is a great friend of the summer residents of Magnolia, and some of the older members of the colony count it one of the pleasures of the summer's sojourn here to spend a summer's evening in Capt. Douglas' hut and spin yarns of past experiences.

When the captain sailed he had on board a package of postcards, addressed to his friends, to be mailed at various stopping places, telling of some of his experiences.

Gus Edwards at B. F. Keith's.

Gus Edwards, the celebrated song writer and composer, author of "Sunbonnet Sue," "Goodbye, Little Girl, Goodbye," "Tammany," "Louisiana Lou," and over a hundred other popular hits, will be the principal attraction at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. Last season Mr. Edwards invaded vaudeville with his big Song Revue, carrying a company of thirty-three singers, dancers and comedians, and eight elaborate scenes. It met with tremendous success in every city on the B. F. Keith circuit, and proved such a drawing card that Mr. Edwards was persuaded to make another tour this season with a new and even more pretentious production. The 1911-1912 edition of The Song Revue, as it is called, surpasses in spectacular beauty and originality even his great act of last year. For this offering Mr. Edwards has written a number of new songs that are declared by those who have heard them to be the catchiest he has ever turned out. One of them is "My Italian Romeo," sung by Mr. Edwards and thirty Italian boys and girls in a stage setting representing a village in Southern Italy.

A Distinctive Number

Always of unvarying interest, the Saturday, Oct. 7, edition of the Boston Evening Transcript will be read by thousands of persons with gratification and benefit because of the many specially written articles on a variety of interesting subjects which will be printed.

Anyone who has city, suburban, country or seashore real estate, houses or farms anywhere in New England to dispose of will find it advantageous to advertise in this issue of the Boston Transcript, as it will have an exceedingly wide distribution.

Many people who are not regular readers always look in the Transcript when they need a house, apartment, board or room, for they know that the largest lists of the better offerings are printed there as well as "want" advertisements of specially capable business assistants and good servants.

Beverly Farms people this week have been attracted to the Brockton fair. Among those who attended on Wednesday were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Standley, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Wood and Mr. and Mrs. H. Irving Dyer.

The Girls' Orchestra will give a public social and dance next Monday evening, October 2d, in Neighbor's hall. Long's orchestra will furnish the music.

Alexander Sutherland has returned from a two weeks' visit at his former home, Toronto, Canada.

The concert given by the USS Mayflower Band in Central square last Friday evening, was thoroughly enjoyed by an audience that completely filled the sidewalks and available standing space, while carriages and autos were lined along the street sides. A popular program was presented, ending with the Star Spangled Banner, each piece receiving a hearty encore.

This week the old tip cart at the West street fire station, which has heretofore been used for exercising purposes, was discarded for an exercising wagon which although is a second-handed one, is very much of an improvement.

Last Sunday afternoon many Farms people took advantage of the privilege granted to visit the USS Mayflower and were much pleased with the ship and the courtesy shown them.

M. J. Harvey of Toronto, Canada, a contractor of large government contracts, and his nephew, Chester Hoyt of Watertown, N. Y., have been at the Farms this week enjoying a yachting trip. Mr. Harvey has recently become the owner of the handsome yacht "Papoose."

Miss Janey Williams has accepted a position at Onset, Mass., and has commenced her duties there.

O. W. Holmes Council K of C, have voted to parade in Boston on Columbus Day, October 12th. They have for sale medals which are to be worn on that occasion.

Neal Murray of Pride's Crossing is to take up dentistry for a profession and is attending the Tufts Dental college.

Work is in full operation on the Preston homestead on Hart street, now owned by Andrew W. Preston. The house has practically been torn out, leaving only the outside. A large addition is also to be built on.

Work has been started by Messrs. D. Linehan & Son upon the drainage, filling and improvements of the new Beverly Farms play-grounds. The work will be pushed with all possible vigor so that the play-ground will be ready for the early winter's skating and winter sports.

John F. Mackey, driver of the Farms Hose wagon, this week moved his family here, occupying the Marshall house on Hart street.

BEVERLY FARMS

The USS Mayflower band will give a second concert in Central square tonight commencing about 7.30 o'clock. The concert of last week was so much enjoyed that since there has been a popular desire to again hear this band, F. P. Gaudreau, the Central Square barber, Alderman Loring and other Farms young men took an active part in bringing the affair about. There is no doubt that the audience to hear this concert will be as large, if not more so, than on the first occasion.

Brewer's market will keep open this winter. Heretofore it has closed for the winter months. Among the clerks will be Alfred Grant, the popular meat cutter, whose custom has been each fall to move to Boston.

Mrs. Abbie Poole and children moved to Centerville, yesterday, where they have leased the Ralph W. Osborne cottage, 458 Essex street. Later on, they will be joined by Mrs. John T. Elliott and Miss Edith Elliott. Their cottage on Haskell street will be rented.

The Beverly Farms people are exceedingly pleased over the success of Representative Herman A. MacDonald in his candidacy to secure the republican nomination for the 2d year in the legislature. During this year he has given good service and well merits the confidence put in him by his party and friends.

John J. Morris has returned from Mt. Vernon, N. H., where he has been employed in a hotel. Mr. Morris has accepted a similar position at Forrest City, Iowa, and will leave probably within a few days for that place.

Representatives John L. Saltonstall and Herman A. MacDonald won the nomination for representatives in the 20th Essex district. The vote was as follows. Dougherty, 321; Staples, 907; MacDonald, 1083; Saltonstall, 1334. In Ward 6 (Beverly Farms) MacDonald's home ward, he lead by a vote of 84 to 77 for Saltonstall.

New $18,000 Addition to Beverly Hospital

Work is to be commenced at once on a new $18,000 nurses home at the Beverly Hospital, for the accommodation of the nurses. The building will be finished for occupancy on May 15 of next year and will give the Beverly hospital a plant the equal of any city in the state.

The building will face southwest and, to insure quiet, will be somewhat isolated from the present group which it will overlook, the site selected being on the high ground across the ravine to the north. This location also commands an excellent view of the surrounding country.

The exterior of the building will be consistent in that it is to be constructed of Eastern water struck red brick and the roof is to be covered with slate.

The partition floor and roof construction will be of wood and the ceilings will be plastered on wire lathes. The interior finish throughout and the floor will be of natural wood.

On the ground floor there is to be a large recreation room and a lecture room; also the matrons' suite and a small diet kitchen. The remainder of this story and the second story are to be divided into sleeping rooms for nurses, there being twenty-three in all and each provided with a spacious clothes closet. In addition there are two large screened sleeping balconies that will liberally accommodate ten cots.

Two staircases insure adequate means of egress in case of fire.

Modern plumbing is contemplated and ample toilet and bath facilities are arranged on each floor. The building is to be heated by direct steam from the present plant. There is to be a laundry for the nurses as well as a large room for storage of trunks in the basement. Otherwise the basement is unexcavated except sufficiently to allow for the passage of pipes incident to the various installations. The building throughout will be wired for electric lights.

Actual building operations will commence at once and the building will be finished for occupancy by the 15th of May, 1912. The architects for the building are Messrs. Wheelwright, Haven & Hoyt of Boston and contract was awarded by the trustees to Messrs. Cann & Hurlburt of Beverly. The total cost of the building when completed will be about $18,000.

The old house of Mrs. John Pierce on Hart street, which was planned to be remodeled has been torn down and a fine large new residence is to be built on the lot.

Last Monday evening the employees of the H. M. Burr's gave a dancing party and social to a number of friends—the garage and stable on the estate being used. A pleasing feature was the serving of refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCoy on Wednesday moved to Melrose, where they are to make their future permanent home. They have been Beverly Farms residents for a long time and their departure causes much regret from their many friends here. The estate which they occupied on High street has been sold to Elmer Standley.

The USS Mayflower ball team tomorrow are expected to play the third game with the Crickets of Manchester. Many Farms people plan to attend the game.

The funeral services of Mary L., aged 77, wife of Capt. Thomas W. Hannable, took place at her late residence in Salem, last Friday, and interment made in the family lot at the Beverly Farms cemetery. Mrs. Hannable until of recent years, had practically been a life-time resident of Beverly Farms or this vicinity. She was married to Mr. Hannable, who is now 79 years old, 61 years ago, from which marriage has sprung nearly 100 descendants—down to a great great grand child of the above, living at the Farms at present is a son and a daughter, Harry C. Hannable and Mrs. Jason Tuttle.

Mr. and Mrs. Harmon R. Mitchell, of St. Louis, Mo., on a vacation trip east, have spent the greater portion of the week at the Farms, visiting friends.

A few voters could not distinguish the difference between the Primaries and a regular election and were somewhat phazed when asked by the ballot clerk what kind of a ballot they desired to vote.

A baseball game has been arranged between the USS Mayflower team and a picked nine from the Farms to be played probably on Saturday, October 7th, in one of the fields off Hart street. The affair has been arranged not so much for a real "classy" game of ball as to have a sort of afternoon outing.

Miss Mary J. Dwyer of the Farms, is at Atlantic City, N. J., attending the convention of the National Horse-shoers' association, as a representative of the local association. She and her brother have conducted the business formerly carried on by their father, for several years and have made a success of it. Miss Dwyer is also the chief operator at the Beverly Farms exchange and during her absence Miss Barbara Daniels has been added to the working force of the office.

Officer Hussey concluding his duty at West Beach last Saturday evening, has brought about some changes there. Caretaker George Medcalf is now in charge of the pavilion which closes at 6.00 o'clock, last argument of kings? Force, cannon, war. But what is the last argument of the King of kings? It is love. Love is the only irresistible force in the world. This will bring peace. And instead of the words of the anthem 'The army and the navy forever,' with a higher patriotism born of our divine citizenship in heaven, let us go forth with the song 'Jesus shall reign where'er the sun shall his successive journeys run, His Kingdom stretch from shore to shore, till moons shall wax and wane no more.'

'And let us pray that come it may
And come it will for a' that
That man to man shall brothers be O'er all the world for a' that.'

"I shall mention only four signs of progress:

"First, the unique celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Bull Run, which was made the occasion, by addresses, of glorifying not war but peace, and when hundreds of old soldiers who had taken part in that first bloody battle of the war met in friendliness and, forming in double lines, facing each other, the Blue looking south and the Gray looking north, with outstretched hands advanced to meet each other and stood with clasped hands for five minutes pledging eternal friendship. If America, why may not Germany and France clasp at Sedan and Russia and Japan on the plains of the Yalu.

"The next sign of progress is the near celebration of the Hundred Years Peace between England and the United States. At the close of the war of 1812 we had forty-six forts on the United States side of the Canadian boundary, matched by about the same number on the Canadian side, besides fleets of war vessels. By mutual agreement these forts were disarmed and all but one vessel removed, which was kept to do police duty. And in 1914 we are to celebrate a hundred years peace on the longest boundary in the world between two nations—from ocean to ocean, maintained without a fort, a soldier or a gun. If we can do this with our nearest neighbor, why can we not do it with nations 3,000 miles away? And if we can do it a hundred years, why can we not do it perpetually?

"The third sign of progress is the assurance from Washington of the probable organization in the near future of an International Court of Arbitral Justice. When that comes,

'The war drums will cease to throb
And the battle flags be furled
In the Parliament of man
In the Federation of the world.'

"And the crowning hope of all is in the new peace pact proposed by President Taft to Earl Grey, binding England and America in perpetual peace. The President of the United States has the highest national honor that can be conferred, but he has risen to international honor by proposing an unlimited treaty of arbitration forever binding these two great nations to submit all controversies between them to judicial settlement. To my own vision there occurs something fairer than the Stars and Stripes, and that is the Stars and Stripes on a white background—the emblem of peace. If this treaty is ratified, as seems likely, France and the Netherlands have already signified their desire to make similar treaties, and Germany and other nations may be expected to follow. That will be the knell of war and the dawn of the new day

'When all men's good shall
Be each man's rule, and a universal peace
Lie like a shaft of light across the land
And like a lane of beams across the sea
Through all the circle of the golden years.'

"Blessed are the peacemakers."

But in the mud and scum of things
There always, always, something sings.
—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Automobile registrations in Massachusetts continue at a record-breaking rate. From January 1 to September 1 the Massachusetts highway commission issued 35,968 ordinary automobile registrations, as compared with 29,945 during the corresponding period of 1910, an increase of 7023. The fact that 821 dealers' certificates were issued during the same period must be taken into consideration.

Receipts by the automobile department of the highway commission during the past eight months totaled $447,667, an increase of $19,315 over 1910.

The Evolution of the Divine Institution

BY REV. LOUIS H. RUGE

Text: "Christ loved the church, and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify it and cleanse it * * * that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; that it should be holy and without blemish."—Ephesians V: 25, 26, 27.

[The treatment of the above subject, by the pastor of the Orthodox Congregational church, Manchester, Sunday, September 24th, made a profound impression upon all that heard it. We print the sermon in substance.—Editor.]

In the treatment of this subject I have in mind only the religious intuition of man and the expression and unfolding of it aside from all the errors and deformities that may have attended it at any time.

I want to simplify the thought here. Evolution has given us forms of expression that lend themselves to this process in the nature of man that lead us back to the inception and unfolding of the church and religion.

It is a fascinating and profitable thing to study the evolution of species. It is a sublime and marvelous thing, this study of the evolution of worlds, to steer a scientific course through the "milky way" and behold the worlds of eternal ages in the making. But for mortal men and women with immortal souls the most profound and important study and science is to fathom the "Mystery of Godliness."

It is not my purpose to attempt to wade back through the labyrinths of animism, fetishism and nature worship to get a start in this subject. We might attempt some sort of scientific and systematic construction in the evolution of religion and its practices as found in historic records and data but it is all very conflicting as is the origin of all things, and where Hagel failed in his science of history it would be folly to even attempt it.

Whatever was the original divine conception of this germ of the religious nature it exists now as the most vital and persistent part of the soul and dates back to the earliest days of mankind. As was the case in the conception of the mental faculties so is the case of the moral, religious intuitions and faculties. This religious nature has taken form and developed into the institution of the church. Here the way is more clear and even well defined. There are stages of growth through which the institution has passed as clearly defined as the processes at work in nature and there is nothing any more haphazard and accidental in the evolution of the divine institution than in any other part of creation. This then is the paramount and important thing rather than the peculiar process of its origin. It is no more an accident of race and history than any other thing in nature, but an integral part and growth of man. It came in the birth of man, it grows with him, it will be perfected with him in the process of his evolution.

Indeed there is no hope of racial perfection without religion. It is the very principle and bud and flower and fruit of man's nature. A man who violates his religious nature does violence to the higher purpose of his being, as if a rose-bush should rob itself of its bloom or a fruit tree frustrate its possibility of fruit. A man without a religious development is like a dwarf or hunchback, he is deformed in his moral nature. If you can conceive of a man wilfully deforming his body you can understand what multitudes are doing with their souls,—deforming them.

The unfolding of the religious nature was very simple, but true. The newborn intuition awoke in the great cathedral aisles of nature where the savage stood in awed and silent reverence. How clearly Dr. Eastman the Indian lecturer shows us this. It was the first intelligent submission of infancy when the opened eyes gaze long and steadfastly into the mother's face, a simple waiting for revelation.

Soon, as with the Semitic tribes, he made a tent that became sacred to the idea, a place for the dwelling of God nearer than the clouds or the storm or the sun.

After this came the more elaborate tabernacle of the Hebrews which reached a climax in the temple at Jerusalem. Similar processes worked out in practice in other peoples of the earth; but it is a question if any other religious temple anywhere before or since ever equalled Solomon's temple. Others may have been more perfectly artistic and exquisite, but none so profoundly great and glorious. It was the climax as God's house.

Now unfolds a new idea in the synagogue as to the origin of which we are ignorant and in doubt. It may have had its birth in the Babylonian captivity for the exiles had no temple, no place to sacrifice, no "Holy of Holies"; so let us presume that under such circumstances they gathered together as people of the same religious intuitions and ideas and the common meeting place of the people became the place of communion with God. Hitherto it was simply a house of God now it becomes a center of communion with God.

After the final destruction of the temple the development of the synagogue-temple is an interesting study as marking an epoch of the divine institution as a place of fellowship with God. The congregation of Christians is the fuller, clearer development of this idea. God is vitally and personally present in the Church in the Holy Spirit to instruct, to help, to perfect. This modern house of worship, that reaches a climax in Cathedrals that are perhaps the most wonderful art creations of human genius, is all the result of the slow process of the divine institution among men,—the church of God, born and developed of man's religious nature.

This institution, I care not in what form you find it, antedates all other institutions. Why presume, with a daring that is a blasphemy in philosophy, to put the little institutions of a day above this or even on a level with this? This divine institution is in danger in our modern mental superciliousness, to be considered as one institution among many.

How happens it that "G. A. R." members and lodge men in every community consider their post and lodge as equal to the church, some superior to it? How is it that certain reforms and philanthropies and cults presume to supercede this? I have even heard men say that such and such a political party platform contained all the morals and religion they needed.

Does a man who plucks a handful of cherries presume his plucking to be equal or superior to the tree? Do these lesser institutions that pluck a few principles and precepts from religion presume to be equal to this divine institution? Every benefit to man has been plucked from this tree.

The decline and dry rot of the church and Christianity always begins when they are classed as mere human institutions among many. There is no substitute for religion and the church. No use trying to lay other foundation for other foundation there are none.

It is more important to sustain and advance the interests of this divine institution in this world than any other thing in it. It is more important than your business, your houses and lands, your banks, your stocks, your investments, your politics, your reforms, or even your schools; for these all pertain to your temporal life, this institution pertains to your eternal life.

And there is need of another epoch-making advance. The wheels of this evolution halt. In antiquity the prophets caught the vision of a better temple than Solomon's. Jesus elevated the thought and conception of this larger unfolding of this institution of the Kingdom of God, until God's temple has its central throne in the very nature of the worshipper, in which the heart of the humblest may be the most sacred altar. The dim visions of the prophets and the teachings of Jesus are our glorious present that we fail to fulfill.

Every new growth and order had to throw off the shell of the old. The Gentile Christian Church threw off the shell of the Jewish ritualism. The Reformation threw off the shell of Roman ecclesiasticism. The Free Church threw off the shell of the established state church. So must the church throw off the shell of its formal professionalism for the greater, positive, practical righteousness of the daily life. All things, from the humblest manual task to the execution of the highest genius, must be not doctrinally and professionally but practically righteous and religious,—to the glory of God. Every foot of earth, every task, every act, every man is ordained to the glory of God.

The divine purpose of evolution is perfection. Every atom revolving round creation's throne to the mightiest planet is singing evolution's song of perfection. The birth and life and teachings of Jesus hold the central thought of this divine institution,—perfection,—the "new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness." The work and wonders of the church in the past are the prophecies for the future,—the divine institution ever unfolding in wisdom and power unto final perfection.

Will you have your part in this fuller unfolding of this divine process or will you be discarded as unfit? There is no teaching so stern and immutable as the teachings of evolution, for in the perfecting processes of creation it is the "survival of the fittest" only. Your hope of eternal salvation, life and glory lies in being in harmony with God in his processes in the religious unfolding of man.

Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter, who has spent the summer at her Beverly Farms estate, "Edgewater," has it seems, been spending much of her time in a labor of love and memory, the completion of her late husband's collection of Southern books and manuscripts of the Civil War, after many years of wearisome labor. The collection is said to be the largest in existence of letters, papers, books, records, etc., of the war between the North and South. There has been an enormous work in indexing and cross indexing the contents. An expert from the Congressional Library did this work. It is a matter of speculation whether the valuable collection will remain at the Beverly Farms mansion or will be sent to Mrs. Leiter's Washington residence.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

Its History and Methods of Work Explained by Miss Boardman at Meeting in Manchester

Miss Mabel T. Boardman, national chairman, gave a very interesting address at Manchester last week, on the history of the Red Cross movement and its method of work. The address was made in connection with the annual meeting of the Essex County chapter, in the Town hall, Thursday afternoon, September 28th. Miss Boardman said in part:

"The International Treaty of Geneva provides for the protection of hospital formations and their personnel in time of war and it also provides protection for the Red Cross societies which are officially recognized by their respective governments for the work of organizing volunteer aid in time of war. President Taft issued last August, a proclamation to the effect that the American Red Cross was the official organ of volunteer aid in this country and through it must pass all volunteer aid in time of war. This is to place the use of the Red Cross emblem in responsible hands and prevents its abuse which would tend to nullify the Treaty. The Red Cross has broadened its scope of work so as to include relief after serious national and international disasters. The President of the United States is the President of the American branch and he appoints representatives on the Central Committee of the State, Treasury, War, Navy, and Justice Department. All its accounts are audited by the War Department. The Governors of the various states are Presidents of the State Red Cross Boards and in many cities and towns Red Cross Chapters for the collecting of funds and supplies exist.

"The work under the Central Committee is segregated into three boards. The War Board studies war relief measures. Its Nurses Committee has already enrolled two thousand of the best trained nurses for active service in time of need and these nurses give their services to the Red Cross at such times at half their usual salaries. The First Aid Committee is organizing instructions in First Aid especially in the industrial employees throughout the country. It has Red Cross First Aid books in English, Italian, Lithuanian, Slovak and Polak. First Aid outfits for mines, factories, railroad stations, etc., have been prepared. It owns two cars which are used as traveling schools for First Aid instructions among the railroad men and miners. Each is in charge of a physician and the railroads transport these cars free of all expense. Competitions are held, prizes and medals awarded. President Taft will be present at a great demonstration of the government rescue work and the Red Cross First Aid among miners on October 31st at Pittsburg.

"The National Relief Board has charge of relief after national disasters. It obtains from the best charity organizations trained workers to act under the directions of Mr. Ernest P. Bicknell, the Red Cross National Director. It rehabilitates a community stricken by fire as were the villages of Beaudette and Spooner in Minnesota by providing shelters. It pensions the widows, children, and other dependents, as at the Cherry mine disaster or the shirt-waist factory fire in New York. Its aim is to put again upon their feet those suddenly made helpless by some great calamity. Since 1905 it has aided in relief after a score of disasters in our own country. It has provided the little Red Cross Christmas seals which in three years has raised some $600,000 to aid in the Anti-Tuberculosis fight.

"The International Relief Board renders assistance after international disasters and has aided in many foreign fields where earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, famines, floods, plagues and massacres have wrought a great amount of human misery and suffering. It sent Dr. Richard D. Strong and Dr. Oscar Teague to Mukden to study the pneumonic plague and act on the International Plague Commission for its prevention, as the American representatives, and Dr. Strong proved to be the leading member of this commission. It is now aiding the Chinese government to study flood conditions and river conservency for the prevention of famines by providing the services of Mr. C. P. Jameson, an expert engineer who is now in China. For one of the duties of the Red Cross is not only to give relief after disaster but to devise and carry on measures for preventing same.

"In May, 1912, the IX International Red Cross Conference, the first to be held outside of Europe, will take place in Washington. The meetings will be held in the Pan American Union building and a special building will be erected for the Red Cross exhibition. At this exhibition there will be a competition for humane inventions for mitigating the suffering on the field of battle, such as litters, ambulances, etc. $9000 in prizes will be awarded from the income of a fund given by the Dowager Empress of Russia.

"All the large foreign societies have great permanent funds amounting to millions of dollars. The Japanese Red Cross has an endowment of $7,500,000. The American Red Cross is trying to raise an endowment of $2,000,000, its income to maintain the organization, carry on its First Aid work, provide funds for the first immediate relief after great disasters, and for the necessary assistance in small disasters without too frequent public appeals. Eight hundred twenty-five thousand dollars ($825,000) have so far been raised, and one million, one hundred seventy-five thousand dollars ($1,175,000) are still required. The plan is for each city and town to raise a quota equal to ten cents per capita of its people. New York City, San Francisco, Washington, Scranton, Manchester, Magnolia and the Canal Zone have completed their shares and in each case save one have exceeded the amount; and other cities have raised a considerable portion of their quotas.

"President Taft, Secretary Knox, Secretary McVeagh, and Senator Root all urge the American people to endow the Red Cross. The President speaks of 'the standing of this remarkable organization throughout the world and its importance to our own country.' Secretary Knox says: 'When one considers the enormous endowments the Red Cross societies have in other countries much less rich than our own, it seems a shocking thing that the American Red Cross should not long ago have had an adequate endowment.' Secretary McVeagh makes a plea that at the time the International Red Cross conference next 'our American Red Cross should be on as firm a financial basis as are the societies of Europe and Japan.' Senator Root says: 'I wish that the people of the United States could be brought to understand the great services that the Red Cross is rendering. I am sure that if they do understand it they will support the organization cheerfully and generously.'

"The American people give most generously for local purposes but this is an opportunity to act as Americans and to show the same generous spirit in the national work that other countries have shown towards their national members of this greatest of all humanitarian organizations."

SOCIETY NOTES

As the North Shore is the center of the foreign diplomatic vacationists so is Europe becoming the diplomatic home of many Bostonians of the North Shore families, who are presiding over the American embassies as superior or subordinate officers. 'Tis interesting to recount their locations. In Vienna Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark Grew, both Boston born and bred, have become prime favorites in the diplomatic set. They are delightfully established, and Mr. Grew has entered upon his new duties as first secretary of the legation with much enthusiasm. In London Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips, the former a Bostonian, are making things pleasant for their tourist intimates. Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson will entertain brilliantly at the embassy in Brussels, while in Athens is Robert Mason Winthrop of Walnut street, Boston, who is attached to the United States embassy. In Paris Ambassador and Mrs. Robert Bacon dispense many hospitalities to the Bostonians tarrying in the French capital, and at St. Petersburg a royal welcome awaits tourists from genial Ambassador Curtis and his charming wife, who are much enjoying their life abroad. At last accounts Mrs. Guild was at Geneva, en route for Paris, where General Guild was obliged to leave her and return to St. Petersburg, on account of the death of M. Stolypin, whom Ambassador Guild met once, and in a prolonged interview formed a high opinion of the late gentleman's statesmanlike qualities.

Mrs. William Caleb Loring, who went abroad the latter part of June, is booked to sail for New York tomorrow on the Lusitania. Mrs. Loring will go directly to Pride's Crossing, where she will join Judge Loring at "Burn-Side," the home of his sisters, the Misses Loring, for the fall season. They will return to their town house on Gloucester street for the winter the middle of November. Judge Loring, who accompanied Mrs. Loring abroad, returned home early in September.

Among the returning Bostonians this week from Manchester were Richard M. Bradley and family of Longwood and Richard H. Dana and family of Cambridge.

Massachusetts Corn Show.

Massachusetts farmers are supporting the managers of the Corn Show to be held in Springfield November 7th, 8th and 9th, in a way and with an enthusiasm which argues well for the success of this effort to show what the old Bay State can do in the production of the king of grains. There is every indication that every inch of available space in the big State Armory at Springfield, the use of which has been secured for the show, will be taken.

The cash prizes offered amount to more than $3,000, so divided that every part of the state will be represented on the list of winners. Special attention has been given the boys and girls in the prize list, and there is promise of a heavy junior entry list.

Premium lists and detailed information may be obtained of the Secretary, Prof. W. D. Hurd, Amherst, Mass.

A Prayer.

Not more of light, I ask, O God,
But eyes to see what is;
Not sweeter songs, but power to hear
The present melodies.

Not greater strength, but how to use
The power that I possess;
Not more of love, but skill to turn
A frown to a caress.

Not more of joy, but power to feel
Its kindling presence near;
To give to others all I have
Of courage and of cheer.

If That Were Enough.

To thrill with the joy of girded men,
To go on forever and fail and go on again,

To be mauled to the earth and arise,
And contend for the shade of a word and a thing not seen with the eyes:

With the half of a broken hope for a pillow at night,

That somehow the right is the right
And the smooth shall bloom from the rough:

Lord, if that were enough!

MARBLEHEAD NECK

The Oceanside and cottages, Marblehead Neck, closed for the season Saturday, September 30th, after a most successful season under the management of Messers A. H. and E. Lane. Messers Lane, after a month's sojourn in the White Mountains, will open their two modern tourist hotels, The Bennett and The Oaks at Daytona, Florida, December first for the fourth winter season. With the closing of the Oceanside Hotel, the Rev. and Mrs. Pitt Dillingham and their daughter, Miss Pauline Dillingham, and their son, Wm. Pitt Dillingham, Harvard 1911, have returned to their Boston home, 178 Commonwealth avenue, after a most pleasant sojourn during September at the hotel. William Pitt Dillingham entered the Harvard Law School this fall.

Papers have passed in the sale of the historic Lee mansion in Washington street, Marblehead, opposite Abbott hall, in Revolutionary days the home of Col. William R. Lee, to Waldo Ballard, an artist and painter, who will make his home there. The structure was erected in 1743, and is a fine example of colonial architecture.

SOCIETY NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mason, who have spent the past season at Manchester, are to be in Dedham for the autumn and winter and have located there.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Frederick L. Dabney on Monday of last week at Emmanuel church, Boston, was largely attended by many of the North Shore contingent, who were greatly shocked by her sudden death. The deceased prior to her marriage was Miss Elizabeth E. Fay of Boston. Three seasons ago the Dabney family had the small Lawrence cottage at Hospital Point, Beverly, occupied this season by the Misses Eustis of Brookline.

Mrs. Gordon Prince is finding the bright October days on the North Shore much to her taste. She is noted on the drives early in the morning in her smart little runabout, holding the ribbons over one of her fine road horses. Mrs. Prince will not give up the charms of West Manchester and the North Shore until October 15th or thereabouts.

Baron de Rosen, the retiring Russian ambassador, left Washington Monday night for New York enroute for St. Petersburg. He is to assume the important portfolio of minister of Foreign Affairs. The entire staff of the embassy, members of which spent the summer at Manchester, accompanied Baron de Rosen to New York to see him off. M. Bakhmetieff, Baron de Rosen's successor, is expected in Washington within a fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Reynolds Hitt and Mrs. Hitt, Sr., will bring their season's stay at the Hooper estate, West Manchester, to a close tomorrow. This is the first season for a number of years that the Hitt family have summered in America always going abroad. Their choice of Manchester and the North Shore as a temporary summer home was a great compliment from this distinguished family of national prominence.

Practically all of October will be spent by the Abbott family at West Manchester to which portion of the North Shore they are greatly attached. The Abbott children have begun their private school work in Boston.

The North Shore hunting season is on in earnest and the Myopia Hunt club is following the hounds daily and enjoying many interesting meets. Last Saturday 50 riders, 12 of whom were women, started from Indian Hill farm and followed the hounds across the country to the West Newbury church, where the first check was made. The finish was at the Titeomb farm. The riders were followed by more than 100 friends in automobiles. After

MANCHESTER WOMAN'S CLUB

Miss Mabel T. Boardman Tells of Trip to Philippines at Opening Meeting of the Club, Tuesday

The Manchester Woman's club inaugurated its official club year Tuesday afternoon at the Chapel. Mrs. Otis M. Stanley, the new president, presided very ably.

The club had a most auspicious opening, being honored by the presence of Miss Mabel T. Boardman, national chairman of the Red Cross society, as speaker. Miss Boardman gave a delightful talk on her experiences as a guest of the famous party that went to the Philippines when Pres. Taft was Secretary of War and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth was Miss Alice Roosevelt. Although many of Miss Boardman's anecdotes were familiar history, however, coming from a personal member of that distinguished party, they took on new life and were deeply interesting and entertaining.

In part Miss Boardman spoke of the party's entrance into Manila harbor and seeing wrecks of the war vessels of the siege of seven years past recalling forcibly Dewey's conflict with the Spaniards.

In describing the Filipino people, she stated that they were small like the Japanese, and characteristically childish in many respects. The women are very dressy and the Americanized Filipino cultivates the American dress.

Miss Boardman described the delightful round of receptions and festivities arranged in their honor. Visits to the government buildings, the churches, etc., were made. Manila was en fete for them. The procession of Filipino children caused intense American pride in the educational up-building of these people. There are 500,000 Filipino children being trained by 9,000 teachers.

The industrial work on the island was also exhibited in the procession as were their bands of music and their primitive fire company. American fire engines were shown in contrast, but the American hurry and bustle as depicted by this apparatus seemed not to effect the natives who are in many respects rather stolid.

The home life and customs of the people were seen at close range in the round of luncheons and teas at which many of the native fruits were served. Bananas grow wild on the island.

America is teaching her foreign subjects on the island the dignity of labor through the medium of normal and manual training schools. Even the woman's club flourishes on the island and this organization also entertained the Americans. The farewell ball at the governor's palace was a notable function also, when the Filipino dances were greatly enjoyed.

Other portions of the island visited were Luzon, the sugar country, the Morro's territory, the hemp and lake regions, Samar, etc. In the round of these visits, the program included visits to the great cathedrals, banquets, the Morro's exchange, the witnessing of naval battles and native sports with shields and spears, the review of troops, musicales and balls, out door theatricals and visits to the volcanic territory of the island.

Miss Boardman interspersed her talk with intimate stories of the camaraderie that existed between the former Secretary of War, now Pres. Taft, and Mrs. Longworth, then Miss Roosevelt, the latter being quite the life of the party with her keen sense of humor and fun-loving disposition.

Miss Boardman paid a high tribute to the U. S. government in its efforts to elevate her subjects in the Philippines. From her personal observation, she told of the great work that was and is being done along the lines of sanitation, education, improvements and justice. The natives of the island are learning what it is to be governed. They are precocious and are benefiting from their great advantages; still they are so peculiarly constituted, a people speaking sixteen different dialects, that they must still be governed. The Filipinos should be kept out of politics following strongly Kipling's verses about "trying to hustle the East."

An informal reception for Miss Boardman followed her address. The large number of both permanent and summer residents present

Lessons from the Market Slump

The recent slump in the stock market, particularly in the securities of the United States Steel Corporation contributes valuable but expensive lessons to the investing public. First, the stock market is no place for the uninformed amateur, secondly, the superior value of confidence as a contributing element in stock values and thirdly, the most potent testimony, that the public recognizes the power of the law and that even a wealthy corporation must fear public sentiment. The beginner in investments cannot trust his own judgment nor carefully invest his funds without expert advice and there are exigencies which even the expert cannot foresee. The position of an investment advisor is nerve racking and disturbing because there are so many elements to be considered. Every investment has at least three considerations, first the safety of the principal, second the rate and regularity of its dividends and finally its negotiability. No better example of the treacherousness of stock investment can be found than in the record of the manipulations of Steel Common which has had a rocky career between 8 and 92 in the short life of the giant corporation. The amateur is helpless. The values of investments in Steel Common have suffered a shrinkage recently of thirty percent.

The savings banks are the best repositories for the earnings of industrious men and women. Secondly, the sharp decline in stock values is a notable illustration of the value of confidence in business and the tragedy of a lack of confidence. A "joke" on the part of a railroad president put the stock of his company on the downward move which was stopped only by the statement of the corporation president that he was not going to resign. In the steel common bear movement the lack of confidence inspired by the report of an investigation by the government put the stock in the toboggan for its slide. The downward movement and the frenzy that followed was not stopped until confidence was restored. Confidence in business is a subtle and invisible influence but let it go from men and the whole substructure of business will go even as the waters in the Austin Dam noiselessly undermined that great dam and let its death dealing waters rage into the unprotected valley below, so the lack of business confidence undermines the work of years and ruins the fortunes and investments of competent and careless investors.

Confidence is the life of trade. Even a gigantic institution like the Steel Corporation feels the results of a lack of confidence. The third lesson was the recognized power of the government of the United States over the business corporations within its dominions. There is a power in the hands of the people and it is becoming more and more evident that the forecasts of the muckrakers were untrue. They saw a day when men would see the government bound hand and foot by the immense corporate interests. The Standard Oil and the Tobacco Cases showed unmistakably the governmental power of the United States Government. The question of the legitimacy of the United Steel Corporation's interest is not here discussed. That is a question for the future; but one thing was undeniably evident that if the transactions of U. S. Steel Company did not stand the test the owners who liquidated knew and feared the powers of the Government. After all this was the good in the evil of that downward movement that resulted in losses to so many. It revealed a confidence, in a negative way, of the power of the arm of justice in our national government.

Modern Chivalry

The honor of woman in the medieval days was upheld in tournaments and by a display of arms. Then knighthood was in flower and chivalry was supposedly at its best. The spirit of chivalry is an honor to mankind in all ages and modern life demands such reverence and courtesy, call it all you may, chivalry, if that be the word, improbable if not impossible in other days. On every hand may be seen evidences of the lack of this superior virtue in our modern frenzied living. The signs of the Boston Elevated Railroad: "Ladies First Please" are public accusations heralding in the open places the thoughtlessness, if not the heedlessness, of the sterner sex of the comfort and consideration of woman-kind. Boston, however, is only part way down the ladder of degeneration for New York has been compelled to try out the experiment of a car "for ladies only." Does the modern man and boy lack chivalry? And now the public is being disturbed by rumors of the hard work which women are being forced to do to win a living, a loaf, a roof and suitable clothing. One of the department stores in Boston not far from City Hall or the State House will serve you with a "bargain" ham or a leg of spring lamb over its counters at the hands of a young woman in a butcher's frock. But this is not in a foreign clime where a woman and a cow are yoked to draw the plow that tills the soil.

A pulpit orator in Boston openly accuses the Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, or at least the Sturtevant Blower Works of employing women in labor too arduous for the hands and backs of women. "If ever a dollar came from the mint with the mark of hell upon it, it is the dollar that pays the wages of the women who have been found working in that foundry owned by one of the leading men in Massachusetts."

It is now a question as to the fact. Has the orator received correct information? Can such conditions exist in Massachusetts? It is significant that the very same afternoon the Germantown Improvement association met at Sanders Hall, West Roxbury, and passed resolutions denouncing the employment of women in foundries in Greater Boston and urging the legislators "to prohibit the degradation of women." Chivalry is not dead and if the facts concerning the matter can be found to agree with the rumors it will not take the Old Bay State long to correct the abuses. Chivalry is not dead. It finds better ways for its prowess than the tournament. Some of its later terms are scientific and seemingly cold blooded, such as economic wrongs, maternal injustice, social maladjustment; but back of it all there is and there ever will be found in the hearts of men reverence for that sex to which their mothers, sisters and wives belong. The recognized wrongs against the better sex which are now openly condemned are evidences of a modern chivalry which is certain to prevail. There are matters of courtesies in life which can never be reached by law but which can be depended upon to the end of days. If there be no law which touches the causes for the complaint of the preacher and the Germantown Improvement association the spirit of chivalry and sense of the fitness of things should stir the board of directors of the corporation to correct the wrong at once.

Contentment

Contentment is a quality of the real life of a man excelling happiness in its life value and approximating peace in its worth. The three great words in the language of true life are contentment, happiness and peace. These words are not synonymous although in the careless use of language they are often used interchangeably. While an accurate distinction is difficult the difference is clearly shown when we say that one's life while not happy may nevertheless be peaceful and content. We may and must be content with our walk in life, redeeming the hours of trial with peace. One cannot be happy without being contented but this does not make happiness the more comprehensive virtue. For it is not certain that all are destined to be happy, in truth, many lives are destined to be unhappy even when doing their best work. In this sense it would be a calamity if we were always happy. Happiness, while a most desirable virtue will bring its own misfortune if it be attained at the expense of other virtues. Peace, on the other hand, may come to one in the hour of deepest distress and complete unhappiness. This very peace may be lacking in a life that is content with its limitations. Life may thus be one of contentment without either peace or happiness.

Contentment is the mind of man adapting itself to its lot and destiny with determination and power even in the face of distress and unhappiness. Will a mother be happy in the presence of her suffering child? Would she be content elsewhere than there bearing her own sorrow with loving patience? There are hours in the experiences of men when it is criminal to have peace and happiness when for truth's sake he ought to suffer: and suffer, contented with his lot and opportunity. In the presence of such experience contentment with the absence of peace and happiness teaches men poise, hope, courage and endurance. Contentment is the increasing capacity to apply ourselves to our tasks in life maintaining our dignity and character despite opposition, inertia, physical incapacity or fatigue. In a perfect life happiness and contentment would be one but in our incomplete and fragmentary lives they are often inseparable but more often they are far removed the one from the other. Contentment is a great power and it is this power that is accomplishing the most in the lives of the members of the human family.

Shore Rights

In the determination of shore rights and the jurisdiction of shore property, an old colonial law dating back to the early days of the Massachusetts colony will have an important bearing. On this law the report of the Mollusks Fisheries of Massachusetts 1909, page 9, reads:—

1. Communal Fishery Rights of the Public.—The fundamental principle upon which the shellfish laws of the State are founded is the so-called beach or free fishing right of the public. While in other States shore property extends only to mean high water, in Massachusetts, Maine and Virginia, the earliest States to enact colonial laws, the riparian property holders own to mean low-water mark. But by specific exception and according to further provisions of this same ancient law the right of fishing (which includes the shellfisheries) below high-water mark is free to any inhabitant of the Commonwealth. The act reads as follows:—

Section 2. Every inhabitant who is an householder shall have free fishing and fowling in any great ponds, bays, coves and rivers, so far as the sea ebbs and flows within the precincts of the town where they dwell, unless the freemen of the same town or the General Court have otherwise appropriated them.

Church and State

To change the hearts of men—
This is the Church's task,
Not to engage to lift the wage.
To lift the soul to higher stage
Is all we ought to ask.

The world needs Good Samaritans—
Church and Society grieve.
Better reform both Church and State
And abolish thieves!
Removing greed there were less need
Of Good Samaritans.

B. F. Keith's Theatre

A genuine novelty is promised for next week at B. F. Keith's Theatre in Charles Kellog, "the man who sings like a bird." Mr. Kellog unquestionably knows more about wild animal life than other living person. He is considered by many to be even greater than John Burroughs in his own particular field. Mr. Kellog is the only human being in the world who can sing like a bird. He is also the inventor of "The Dancing Flame," a tiny blade of light that responds to a tuning fork or bird notes given by the inventor in any part of the auditorium, but is indifferent to the ordinary singing or speaking voice. Kellog will also show how the American Indians of primitive times lighted fires by means of friction between two sticks of wood. Gus Edwards' big Song Revue, which has proved one of the most popular attractions ever presented at B. F. Keith's, will be held over for a second and positively last week, and all those who have not heard "My Italian Romeo," with the big Italian village scene; "Look Out for Jimmy Valentine," with the unique burglar dance; and the great finale, "I want to spoon to the tune of the silvery moon," will not want to miss these splendid features.

The foolish trust to the safety-pin, but the wise see to it that the buttons are well sewed on.

Wed 50 Years

The informal celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan P. Meldrum at their home on School street, September 22, was the occasion of a very pleasant family reunion. Mr. and Mrs. Meldrum were married on September 22, 1861, by Rev. George E. Freeman then pastor of the Congregational church. Aside from Mrs. Meldrum's mother, there are only two living who attended the wedding, and one of these, Mrs. George W. Dew of Melrose, attended the anniversary last week. The other is Mr. Meldrum's sister of Medford who was unable to attend. Among those who were present to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Meldrum were the Mears family of Essex, Mr. and Mrs. John Knight, their daughter Mrs. Putnam of Danvers and the members of her family, and the other married daughter, Mrs. Frederick T. Henry of Denver, Colo., and members of her family, also a few friends from Manchester. Twenty-two sat down to the dinner table. Mr. and Mrs. Meldrum are among the best known people in Manchester. Both are enjoying excellent health and have every indication, at the present, of being able to celebrate many more anniversaries of their marriage.

Alterations Postponed.

Some day, when there is a sufficiently long interval between the end of the short session and the beginning of the long session of Congress, the interior of the chamber of the House of Representatives is to be rebuilt and the entire plan modified. Even with the increased membership due to reapportionment the substitution of benches, such as are used in the English House of Commons, for the individual desks now in use, will take up less room and the size of the chamber can be reduced. This will be a great advantage in permitting speakers to be heard more clearly. Speaker Clark, to be sure, with his resonant voice and his gavel, pounding on the board provided for that treatment, has been able to make his voice heard; but the average member has had a hard time and the cry of "louder, louder," has worried many a timid Congressman who was trying to achieve undying fame by explaining the intricacies of the effects of the tariff on wool, cotton, sugar, or some other article.

The Speaker, it may be remarked, has succeeded remarkably well in preserving order in the House. He should have an easier time when the size of the chamber is reduced. But that can hardly be this summer.

My Philosophy.

I allus argy that a man
Who does about the best he can,
Is plenty good enough to suit
This lower mundane institute—
No matter ef his daily walk
Is subject fer his neighbor's talk,
And critic-minds of ev'ry whim
Jest all git up and go for him!

Its natchural enough, I guess,
When some gits more and some gits less,
For them-uns on the slimmest side
To claim it ain't a fair divide;
And I've knowed some to lay and wait,
And git up soon, and set up late,
To ketch some feller they could hate
Fer goin' at a faster gait.

The signs is bad when folks commence
A findin' fault with Providence,
And balkin' cause the earth don't shake
At every prancin' step they take.
No man is great till he can see How less than little he would be Ef stripped to self, and stark and bare
He hung his sign out anywhere.

My doctern is to lay aside
Contentions, and be satisfied:
Jest do your best, and praise er blame
That follers that, counts jest the same.
I've allus noticed grate success
Is mixed with troubles, more er less,
And it's the man who does the best
That gits more kicks than all the rest.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

Let us learn to anoint our friends while they are yet among the living.
Post-mortem kindness does not cheer the burdened heart; flowers on the coffin cast no fragrance backward over the weary way.
—George W. Childs.

We are none of us any better than we ought to be and many of us are a great deal worse.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARYFormer Manchester Residents Celebrate 50th Anniversary of Marriage at Newburyport

The Boston Globe gave the following interesting account pertaining to the celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Bohaker of Newburyport, former Manchester residents, Mr. Bohaker having been superintendent of the Hemenway estate on Smith's Point for eleven years:

"Mr. and Mrs. John Bohaker celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage Saturday, September 30th, by entertaining relatives and friends in their pleasant home, rear of 18 Oakland street, Newburyport.

"They have been residents of the city about nine years and have gained the respect and esteem of the community.

"Mr. Bohaker and his wife were married at Granville, N. S. Mrs. Bohaker was Atalanta Jane Croseup. Mr. Bohaker is a carpenter and shipbuilder by trade and at one time was large owner in schooners that plied between the provinces and New York. He had a store at Granville for about 20 years and his trade was extensive. Then misfortune came and his vessels, on which there was no insurance, were wrecked and his store was burned, materially reducing his fortune.

"While at Granville Mr. Bohaker was justice of the peace for the county of Annapolis and coroner for the township of Granville. He was a member of Annapolis Royal lodge 33, A F and A M.

"For six years after leaving the provinces, Mr. Bohaker was assistant superintendent of the home of the Boston children's aid society at

Manchester Baseball

The Crickets won the baseball game last Saturday on the Brook street playgrounds, with the Mayflowers as their opponents. The score was 5 to 4 and was plainly the locals from the 1st inning. Rust, the first man up lead off with a two-bagger, Gray, next man up put it over the road for a home run. Then Dunbar, third man up got another great ovation, as he jogged around the bases, having put the ball away over Norwood avenue into the brook beyond. This gave the Crickets a lead of three runs. Dunbar's and Gray's batting were clearly the features of the game. Crocker pitched an excellent game and finished up a season of good work for the Crickets. Dunbar was in excellent form as usual. Both men played exceptionally good ball. The games have been a source of great pleasure all summer for the residents who have showed their appreciation by their regular attendance. The Crickets are planning on giving a dance in honor of the Mayflower baseball team next week.

A Dome of Marble.

Some day, too, there will be a marble dome placed on the Capitol instead of the iron dome which now covers the rotunda. The architects are practically a unit in saying that marble is the only proper material of which to construct the dome. Iron shrinks and expands in a manner which is distressing. Leaks result, and these are patched by strips of canvas painted over. Undoubtedly the dome will be replaced some day, and it was intended to bring this matter before Congress at this session, but the pressure of debate on the tariff caused it to be postponed. Possibly it may come up at the next session, and during the long recess two years from now, if everything goes well, work may actually be commenced on the gigantic task of putting a new roof over the great rotunda where tourists now stand and gaze in wrapt awe at the paintings on the concave surface so far above their heads.

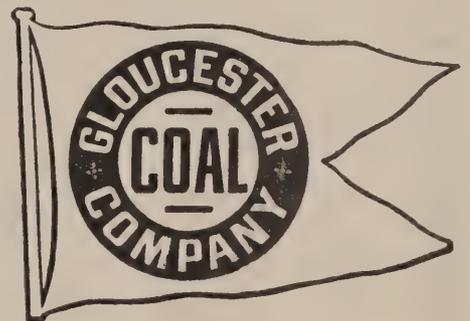

I heard a raven croak, but I persuaded myself it was the song of the nightingale. I smelled the smell of the mould, but thought of the violets it nourished.

If I have faltered more or less
In my great task of happiness;
If I have moved among my race
And shown no glorious morning face;
If beams from happy human eyes
Have moved me not; if morning skies,
Books, and my food, and summer rain
Knocked on my sullen heart in vain:—
Lord, Thy most pointed pleasure take
And stab my spirit broad awake;
Or, Lord, if too obdurate I,
Choose Thou, before that spirit die,
A piercing pain, a killing sin,
And to my dead heart run them in!

Rev. Mr. Goddard preached at the Congregational church Sunday. His subject was "The Forward Movement Among the Men of the Continent," or "Three Million Men and Boys for the Church." Miss Helen Mears was soloist. At the Y P S C E Mrs. Charles Harding led. The subject was Peter. For a stormy evening there were quite a number out. Among the thoughts divulged were that Peter was always active and wide awake, that although he fell, he repented quickly and when he repented he repented in earnest. He did not put his thumb in his mouth and go to sleep in Zion, but had the same energy and faithfulness, only more consecrated and more sanctified. Miss Evelyn Procter sang a solo very sweetly. The evening service in the church was to be a lecture with stereopticon views on the missions in India. The cars were an hour late and so instead of the lecture the pastor delivered a sermon in the vestry.

Several people of this town were indignant Sunday morning, when they saw a laundry cart around town gathering up boxes of clothes to be washed. It is understood that the same was attempted in Hamilton and the Selectmen of that town stopped it. We hope our authorities will do likewise.

The day was made pleasant for him by his many friends who called to extend to him their greetings. Many gifts were brought, among which, was a beautiful birthday cake, the gift of a very dear friend. National Theatre

Another big all star bill will be seen at the new National Theatre next week. It will surpass any previous bill at Boston's new playhouse. The big attraction will be the first American appearance of Frigoli, the sensational Italian character actor, who is conceded to be the world's best impersonator. Frigoli has just completed a wonderful record in the music halls of Europe, and his American debut will be made at the new National Theatre. When playing in Italy, King Victor Emmanuel occupied the royal box. Frigoli impersonated the King and occupied the opposite box. It was impossible for the spectators to tell who was who. Frigoli's impersonations are marvellous. He was the great novelty act in Europe.

on the contractors, who not infrequently have millions of dollars tied up in a single job. Through the efforts of Senator Perkins, of California, Congress at the special session passed a bill authorizing payments to be made on contracts as the work progresses. This will lead to more open competition and will be a just concession to the firms which do business with the Navy Department.

Cold Storage.

Congress has been studying the cold storage question for some time but it appears that they have troubles in this line abroad also. Our consul at Birmingham, England, reports that the Federation of Grocers' Associations of the United Kingdom has brought to the attention of the Government alleged abuses of the cold storage system and that steps will be taken to include all the egg-producing countries of Europe in the campaign.

Wood-Using Industry in New Hampshire.

The State of New Hampshire has entered into a co-operative agreement with the U. S. Department of Agriculture under which an exhaustive study of the wood-using industries of the State will be made. The work will be in charge of agents of the Forest Service, and more than 700 New Hampshire manufacturers who use wood have been asked to furnish information.

A major part of the timber cut in New Hampshire is used for general construction and for laths, railroad ties, poles, mine props, bridge timbers, and fence posts, but in addition a large quantity goes to meet the demands of the wood-using factories which convert material into commodities of many uses and many kinds. It is these factories which are to be studied in the New Hampshire investigation. Similar studies have been completed for other States—Massachusetts, Kentucky, Illinois, Maryland, and others.

One point which will be brought out by this study is the extent to which the forests of New Hampshire produce the woods used by the manufacturers, and the extent that their requirements have to be met from timber regions outside the State. In 1909 New Hampshire stood twenty-fourth among the lumber-producing States, but among the New England States it stood next to Maine. It is probable that New Hampshire holds a more important rank as a user of wood than it does in production.

Game Birds and Animals.

One of the features of the exposition which Director-General Collier has been working on will be a collection of game birds and animals. The plans for this feature are not yet sufficiently developed, although the feature is decided on, to permit of going into details regarding it, but the mere suggestion is sufficient to awaken keen expectations among those who love to thread the wilderness with rod or gun, gaining health while seeking the quarry. The whole continent, from the regions around Hudson's Bay and above the Arctic Circle of Alaska, to the sandy shores of Terra del Fuego, will be levied on for this unique and interesting collection.

The Reputation We Have of Having Things Nice

'Tis a thing very strange, yet 'tis true that when a store gains a reputation like this, that there is a certain element in the community that believes that THAT store is a little too good for them.

Now this works to the disadvantage of both, because they draw a conclusion based not on facts, and in spending their most treasured earnings, do not get the full value that they could.

We address such of these as are not in the habit of coming into this store at all, and ask that they give us the consideration of just looking. You'll find us very cordial, painstaking and agreeable. We'll get trade that rightly belongs to us, for none other can serve you so well. We've everything with which to keep house, you'll find with us an economical place to trade. Those that buy the pretty things that you always see in our windows do—so, why shou'dn't you?

SOCIETY NOTES

Alfred Tennyson Dickens' presence in Boston has caused much social and literary interest in the event, as he is the son of the great novelist, Charles Dickens. At the dinner at the Boston City club last Friday evening in his honor a reception followed attended by 200. Speaking at the close of evening Mr. Dickens expressed his appreciation of the honor done to him, and still more, through him to the illustrious dead, by the kindness and attention of which he had been the recipient during his stay in Boston. He recalled the fact that it was in Boston that his father gave 20 out of 75 lectures, and that it was here also that he made the greater part of that large circle of intimate friends in America with whom he corresponded until his death and which included two women still living, Mrs. James T. Fields of Boston and Manchester, wife of the publisher, and Miss Longfellow of Cambridge and Manchester, for whose father's poetry the great novelist had an especial admiration. He spoke of the great ovation given his father at his last American lecture in Boston and of the emotion with which, as though a premonition of his approaching end was before him, he bade good-bye through the people of Boston to the American public. Mr. Dickens spoke at Lowell Monday, and then left upon an extended tour of the United States, returning to Europe about June.

Historical Significance of North Shore Hunting Grounds

BY MARY TAYLOR FALT

IN THE autumn season, in the inlands of the North Shore, there is no more fascinating sight upon which to gaze than the Myopia Hunt Club members enjoying their meets in the environs of Hamilton, Ipswich, Newburyport, Rowley, Byfield and neighboring localities. Their pink hunting coats make a vivid dash of color 'gainst the beautiful landscapes of these picturesque places as they ride to hounds.

There is hardly another hunting territory more replete with historical, educational and religious tradition than this one selected by this-exclusive North Shore club. Almost every highway or byway is historically significant of some famous epoch of our nation's progress historically, educationally and religiously.

Foremost in interest is Newburyport and her environs. At the foot of the city lies the Merrimac River, full of traditions of Whittier, one-time resident of Newburyport. His birthplace, Haverhill, lies across the river bank. Here in these localities the "Poet of Freedom" advocated the abolition of slavery, wrote his poems of freedom, working in unison with the great advocate of Emancipation, Wm. Lloyd Garrison, who was born in Newburyport. The editor of the "Genius of Universal Emancipation" and of "The Liberator," imprisoned for his views, had an important place in the notable traditions of Newburyport.

In November (1789), Washington made a two days' visit in Newburyport on his Northern tour. He was received with great eclat. He was met in Ipswich by two companies of cavalry and was escorted into the town. There was a procession of all classes of people and school children. The drums beat. The cannon roared. An ode was sung. John Quincy Adams, then a law student, delivered the address of welcome. Washington responded. In the evening there were fireworks and a grand demonstration. Washington was delighted with his reception. He crossed the Merrimac on his departure at Amesbury ferry and was escorted to the New Hampshire line.

After a great many years history has repeated herself. President W. H. Taft takes great pleasure in touring all these localities in his auto. There is no greater enthusiast or honorary member of the Myopia Hunt Club, who appreciates more the traditional charms of this territory than does the Chief Executive, who by his always welcome presence there, is making new and important history for the North Shore.

In 1817, President Munroe visited Newburyport on his Northern tour. He was received with civic and military honor. It was during the dinner served there in his honor, that his best portrait ever taken, was sketched by Moses Cole.

Lafayette was given a public reception in Newburyport in 1824. He occupied the same room provided for Washington seven years previous.

George Whitefield, the eloquent English preacher and founder of the Calvinistic Methodists, intimate friend of John and Charles Wesley, the great Evangelists, died in Newburyport in September 1770 at the School street parsonage of Rev. Johnathan Parsons. The house and church are today famous points of interest much visited by tourists. Whitefield was buried in a crypt of the School street church in a brick tomb under the pulpit. History tells us that a large bone from his arm disappeared from his tomb, was carried to England, but was returned in September 1849. So stated the Newburyport Herald of Oct. 2, 1849.

Newburyport is today a beautiful city. Probably no city can boast of such an imposing street as its aristocratic High street with its rows of magnificent colonial mansions. Many of them are full of fascinating memories and relics of colonial splendors.

Byfield, a former parish of Newburyport, is noted for its educational traditions. Here was founded by Gov. Dummer of Massachusetts, the descendant of Richard Dummer, an early settler of Newburyport, Dummer Academy. The date of the foundation was 1763. Its incorporation was in 1782. In the past as a classical school, it took rank second to none in New England. Today it does not claim the prosperity or large attendance as does Phillips Academy of Andover or Exeter of New Hampshire. It does pride itself on its traditional prestige and on the famous men who claim it as their Alma Mater. Samuel Phillips, who founded both Phillips and Exeter Academies, was graduated from Dummer. Moses Parsons of Gloucester, Mass., law professor at Harvard, father of Chief Justice Theophilus Parsons, father of jurisprudence, greatly influenced Gov. Dummer in establishing the academy.

Other famous men who were graduated from Dummer, were Rufus King, statesman and diplomat; President Webber of Harvard; Professors Smith, Otis, Pearson and Jackson of Harvard; Chief Justice Sewall, Cem. Preble, U. S. N.; Maj. Gen. Ochterlong, distinguished in India; Prof. Cleveland of Bowdoin; President Benjamin Hale of Geneva College; Chief Justice Tenny, Maine Supreme Court and numerous others noted in the professions, arts and sciences. Henry Durant, who opened the school in Oakland, Cal., which grew into the University of California, of which he was president, was one of Dummer Academy's presidents.

For fifty years the academy had universal acknowledgment as the first academy of the country in rank and the first in fact of time. These valuable assets have given it lasting prestige. Samuel Moody was the academy's first president.

The first female seminary in Massachusetts was likewise established in Byfield in 1806 by Deacon Benjamin Coleman in an unfinished church built by seceders from a Dr. Parish's society at Byfield. It was purchased and fitted up as a school. Miss Mary Lyon, who has a tablet in the New York "Hall of Fame, consequently is an Immortal," was graduated from Byfield Seminary. She founded the Ipswich Female Seminary and the now famous Mt. Holyoke college.

Miss Julia A. Eastman, the noted educator, who died in Wellesley, Mass., January 1, 1911, was an alumnus of the Ipswich Female Seminary. She founded the Dana Hall School for Girls, one of the most fashionable preparatory schools in Massachusetts, which prepares principally for Wellesley college. She was credited with having educated more students directly

The first rehearsal of the Symphony orchestra at Boston last Friday afternoon served to bring out society in force notably the North Shore contingent in winter homes, or late sojourners on the Shore who went in town for this society event. In the Huntington avenue lobby of Symphony Hall, the patrons were greeted by a notable decoration in a bust by Bela Pratt of Henry L. Higginson of Boston and West Manchester, which has been set in a rich placement of Siena marble. The bust and placement is a gift of a number of friends of Mr. Higginson, who formed a committee, of which Holker Abbott was chairman and J. T. Coolidge, Jr., treasurer. The placement was designed by A. W. Longfellow. The bust is of bronze and stands on a pedestal of richly tinted Siena marble, on which are inscribed the words: "Henry Lee Higginson, Founder and Sustainer of the Boston Symphony Orchestra." The bust stands against a background of Alps green marble.

Ambassador James Bryce was in Hingham Monday to present to the town an old stepping stone, which stood for 700 years in the public square at Hingham, England. The descendants of the English Pilgrims from Hingham, England, are to erect a memorial tower at Hingham, Mass., in commemoration of the town's 275th anniversary. Former Governor John L. Bates of the Wheeler's Point, Gloucester, colony was among the descendants of old Hingham families seated upon the platform at the presentation exercises.

The Misses Amy and Clara Curtis have brought their season's stay at "Crow Island" Kettle Cove, Manchester, to a close and will winter abroad as is their annual custom.

R. T. Paine, 2d, and family have removed from Coolidge Point, Manchester, to their new Boston home.

Alexander S. Porter, Jr., and family have vacated their charming summer home on Cobb avenue, Manchester, and opened their winter residence on 189 Marlboro street, Boston.

Hon. and Mrs. Wm. J. Boardman and Miss Mabel T. Boardman left Manchester, Monday, for their winter home at Washington, D. C. Miss Boardman spent a few days in Dalton with her sister, Mrs. Wm. Crane.

Postmaster General Enjoys Ride In Aeroplane That Carries Mail

Photos by American Press Association.

CARRYING the mail in an aeroplane is not only practicable, but it is enjoyable, according to Postmaster General Hitchcock. He ought to know, because he has tried it. In the recent aviation meet at Hempstead, about twenty miles east of New York city, out on Long Island, mail was carried at regular and frequent intervals from the aviation field to Mineola to be placed on the train. All letters and postcards mailed—and nearly every visitor mailed from one to a dozen—bore a special postmark showing that it had made a flight through the air. In the lower picture Mr. Hitchcock is shown handing the first mail pouch ever carried through the air in the United States to Earle L. Ovington. In the upper picture Mr. Hitchcock is shown seated in a biplane beside Captain Paul W. Beck of the United States army. In this machine Mr. Hitchcock flew over to Mineola, several miles away, dropped the mail bag and then returned to the aviation field. He had previously made a flight in a monoplane, but said he much preferred the biplane, as it gave him a better view of the country over which he was flying. He said he enjoyed every one of the twenty minutes he was in the air.

Visit to Mt. Tom and State College at Amherst

Massachusetts Press Association Go On Pilgrimage to Central Part of State

A visit to the beautiful Connecticut Valley at this time of year is always filled with charm and the constant changing scene as one motors or rides through the country bordering this famous New England river, especially in its course across Massachusetts, presents a panorama difficult to duplicate.

The pleasure, incident to such a visit, was presented to the members of the Massachusetts Press Association, over the last week-end, and a number of the editors and their wives took advantage of the opportunity. Through the courtesy of E. A. Ryder of President Mellen's office a special car was attached to the regular afternoon train, Saturday, at 1.40, for a ride over the Central Mass. line of the B. & M. to Northampton, which point was reached about 5 o'clock. The Draper, one of the finest hotels in that part of the state, was the headquarters of the association during their stay. C. H. Bowker, manager, did everything possible for the convenience and comfort of the editors and their wives and everybody was pleased with this feature of the trip.

W. A. Loomis, an old newspaper man, now president and general superintendent of the Holyoke Street Railway Company, called at the hotel Saturday evening and with Mrs. Loomis, dined with the association. He extended an invitation to the company to accept his hospitality on Sunday morning for a trip to the famous Mt. Tom. So, on Sunday morning after breakfast, one of the splendid easy-riding cars of the company was sent to the hotel and a delightful ride was then started for Mt. Tom, ten or twelve miles off. The day was fine. After a short stop at the company's park halfway up the mountain, the trip was continued. The cable railway up the mountain side proved a novelty for many in the party. To attempt to describe the wonderful view from the top of Mt. Tom on such a clear day as the association was privileged to enjoy Sunday, would lessen rather than increase the pleasant recollections visitors to that spot may now possess. For miles and miles around, on all sides, the beautiful country lay, with here and there a village or a town, or a city adding a touch of real life to the sublime handiwork of nature. Beneath the mountain on the west lay the fields and farms, spread out like a mammoth mosaic. To the east the Connecticut twined in a silvery stream in and out among the hills as far as the eye could reach. On the north was Northampton with the beautiful Smith College buildings; in another direction the buildings of the Massachusetts Agricultural College and of Amherst College, and across the river in another direction the buildings of Mt. Holyoke College. It was, withal, a sight long to be remembered.

Sunday afternoon some of the party went on an automobile ride and others attended the vesper services at Smith, where there are 1700 students.

Monday after an early breakfast the company again were guests of Mr. Loomis on another electric car ride through much of the territory admired from the mountain the previous day. This included the trip down the river to Holyoke and then up the valley through South Hadley to Amherst. At Amherst President Kenyon L. Butterfield of the State College met the association and a delightful two hours were spent in looking over the college buildings and seeing the kind of work the state is doing in offering an education to the young men (and women).

At the conclusion of the inspection of the college the visitors were taken on an auto trip through a number of the towns not already visited, by the Hampshire County Automobile association, and arrived back at Northampton in time for lunch, and to catch the 3.15 train for Boston.

The Massachusetts Agricultural College is frequently mentioned as one of the most progressive educational institutions in New England; it is progressive because of the field of activity which it represents and because of the efficient leadership which it is assuming in that field. Thinking people are as never before, realizing that in a nation like ours, agriculture is really the fundamental industry; the agricultural colleges accepted this belief somewhat earlier than did the majority of the people, and have been largely responsible in producing the wholesome attitude toward agriculture and rural life, now entertained by the general public. For many years our agricultural college has been explaining to its students and to everyone else who could be reached, that the conservation and intelligent use of the soil represents one of the most serious problems which face not only the farmer, but every other class of people. As people came to more thoroughly believe in the possibilities and significance of the agricultural industry, the college was willing, and in a measure prepared, to give them the information and aid for which they sought.

And so the agricultural college may today be regarded as a public service institution, which is supported partially by the Federal Government, but chiefly by the Commonwealth.

The faculty now numbers sixty men, some of whom are recognized throughout the country as leading authorities in matters pertaining to their special department of teaching. While the state institution at Amherst is primarily an agricultural college and recognizes that training in strictly agricultural lines is its chief function, its curriculum insures a general cultural education to those completing the course; the college also trains men for vocations closely allied to that of practical agriculture and horticulture; thus its graduates are found engaged as expert entomologists, botanists, agricultural chemists, landscape gardeners, experiment station workers, school and college teachers, and a few as professional men.

The state legislature, recognizing the efficient work of the college, and the need of better equipment for further carrying out its mission, has made liberal appropriations for its support.

But generous as the State has been in the past, there are pressing needs still apparent at the agricultural college. The class room facilities are wholly inadequate for the proper accommodation of the freshmen and sophomore classes; larger and better equipment laboratories are also needed by some departments for the more efficient training of those men specializing in the sciences closely related to agriculture; the library and assembly hall are much overcrowded; there is a most urgent demand for additional dormitories; since the time when there were but 81 men at the institution, no increase has been made in the dormitory facilities; at present about 75 of the 478 students are housed on the college grounds, and the rest are obliged to seek rooms in the private houses of the village.

SOCIETY NOTES

Of the Cobb avenue contingent at Manchester the Edward L. Woods of Brookline are the last to remain. Mrs. Sylvester Tower departed this week from the avenue. Extensive improvements are underway at the Wood estate which will greatly enlarge and improve it. The addition to the rear of the house is to provide a dining-room and other apartments for the servants. The hedge, which divided the Warren and Wood properties, is being moved over to meet the hedge border of the Warren estate. This will afford the Wood family room for more gardens and a spacious driveway which is being constructed. The Warrens also contemplate making an addition to their cottage to provide for servants' apartments. On the completion of these improvements both estates will present a uniform and most attractive appearance.

Chestnut Bark Disease

State Forester Rane, thoroughly alive to the importance of safeguarding, as far as possible, the chestnut growth of Massachusetts, regarded as one of our most valuable trees for commercial purposes, has recently caused thorough examination of chestnut trees to be made throughout the State in order to determine to what extent the chestnut bark disease exists in Massachusetts. This dangerous disease has already caused irreparable damage to the chestnut growth in several States, notably New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Connecticut, and threatens destruction to the growth in our own State, unless prompt and effective measures are taken to check it.

The chestnut bark blight has been found in seventy Massachusetts towns. The disease appears to be more general in the south-central and southwestern parts of the State. This perhaps, due to the fact, that these portions are nearer to the badly infested regions in New York and Connecticut, and possibly also because on the whole more chestnut occurs here than in other parts of the State. In the southern part of Berkshire County the disease has already done a great deal of damage. There is every reason to believe that if the disease continues to spread as it has within the last half dozen years, it will ultimately cause tremendous havoc in Massachusetts.

A bulletin recently issued by State Forester Rane treating of the disease and its remedy with illustrations will be mailed upon request to citizens of Massachusetts. Another bulletin discussing the entire situation, giving the method of control in detail, and the status of the disease in United States as a whole may be obtained by applying to the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Happiness is the only good. The place to be happy is here. The time to be happy is now. The way to be happy is to help make others so.

Charles E. Burns Believed Drowned

William H. Burns of Beverly, was in Manchester yesterday seeking information of his son, Charles E. Burns, aged 28, a machinist, who is believed to have been drowned somewhere between Manchester and Beverly, Sept. 25th. Burns was enroute from Ipswich River, where he camps in the summer, having gone there for a week-end visit and to bring home his canoe. He reached Singing Beach, Manchester, Sunday, Sept. 24, and camped out there over that day in consequence of the rough sea. Monday the 25th, he boarded his canoe to start for Beverly. The sea was still quite rough. Caretaker McCormick tried to dissuade the young man from making the trip in his frail craft, but being a very daring personality decided to undertake the trip. When quite a little way off from the beach, Mr. McCormack noticed Burns bailing water out of the boat. He was then getting away from the beach view point and was supposed to be on his way all right. Mr. Burns, the father, has heard nothing of his son for two weeks. He believes he went down in the heavy seas in his canoe. He asks that close watch be kept on the beaches and islands between Manchester and Beverly for the body. He states that his son

Announcement made of free trip to the
Panama-Pacific International Exposition

WORD has been received from SUNSET, the Magazine of the Pacific and the Far West, of the organization of the Sunset Panama-Pacific Club. The Club offers a four weeks' trip to the Exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915, including railway fare, Pullman, diner, hotel accommodations, admissions to the fair, side trips to points of interest, all in return for a little time each week to be devoted to the work of the Magazine.

The exposition is to be held to commemorate the completion of the Panama Canal, connecting the Pacific and Atlantic. From all indications it will be by far the greatest World's Fair ever held.

The Magazine has issued a very attractive booklet descriptive of the trip, and giving further particulars, which will be sent on application.

The membership is very limited and it is not likely that more than one or two applications will be accepted from this vicinity. Request for particulars should be sent to

Our Good Friends

What good friends we have about us! By night the light of stars, by day the glory of the sun. On every hand the work of nature opens the mysteries of the world to our wonders and awe. These all give us pleasure and stimulate healthful curiosity. But human hearts long for human hearts and the human mind loves the communion and meditation made possible by the stimulus given by other minds. Life is long and the path is circuitous and the new day finds tasks for the hand and mind of men and in the work of the world the joy of fellowship and intellectual exhilaration is set aside for the while until night cometh and the reading light and books afford what the day's labor has denied. Our friends in the flesh cheer and comfort us and next to them the delightful companionship of books. They open the pages to the mysteries of nature, the glories of the heaven, the pleasures of travel, the encouragement of biography, the consolations of religion, the beauties of poetry, the mysticism of philosophy, the intricacies of science, the shadows of the past and the prophecy of the future. Man may hold communion with the whole world through the printed page.

Now our good friends are to be cared for in new homes. Manchester has a beautiful library and Beverly Farms has none. But out of the debris of a city lot Beverly will soon raise a beautiful building, the ladies of the Lothrop Club (Beverly) say, let it be of marble, and so say we all of us, but most are so pleased at what may be after so long waiting that the structure type of the new building has provoked little attention. Now that the plans are in hand care should be given them and careful consideration to the structural material. Beverly will have its library, of marble so let it be, but what a joy a pretty home for books of just plain brick or even wood or its structural substitute, concrete, would look in Beverly Farms.

But a library is neither wood nor stone; but books our good, good friends, and friends need care. The Beverly committee have had some difficulty in keeping up the appearances of the friendly volumes and warn all against the diseases common among them. Most of them are dirt diseases and develop rapidly because of carelessness and ignorance. No antidote has been found except care and education. The "hospital" is always full and the "nurses" overworked. Broken and strained backs are frequently reported as accidents, the result of improvised book marks, such as handkerchiefs, lead pencils or matches. Some are "overcome with the heat" of radiators whereon they have been carelessly laid and some are just ruthlessly maimed, torn and crippled. But worst of all the injured friends are returned "splinted and plastered" by amateur doctors and "recovery" is often hopeless. The committee is really right; our friends the books need good homes and equally good care. Let reverence be done these honored tomes.

The Deadly Mushrooms

Rarely has there been a more productive yield of wholesome and poisonous mushrooms than has been evident during the last month. The mushroom has reached the best stage of its development and is rapidly deteriorating. The fall usually brings a crop of mushrooms and with it a long list of fatalities from eating poisonous growths, mistaking them for the edible type. Year after year the toll of death is paid for ignorance. The best policy for the amateur is total abstinence and there will be no risk. Sometimes an expert will make an explainable error, but pays the penalty either with his life or with a painful and weakening sickness.

Among the most treacherous vegetables are the destroying angel and the fly mushrooms. The deadly amanita will take a life in twelve hours and as the effects of the poison is not evident for some hours no antidote can be administered in time to save life. The editor came across a collection of mushrooms which had been gathered by someone probably for eating and among them were a number of deceptive poisonous growths mistaken for "hygrophorous fuliginous." They had been thrown aside and the wise decision had doubtless saved a life.

A popular error is the false notion which has gone abroad that any orange colored mushroom growing upon a stump of a tree is edible. The Chanterelle, a bright orange growth it is claimed is edible, but there are other growths which easily deceive the inexperienced. It is an unwise policy to trust the judgment of second class restaurateurs as they frequently purchase them from well intentioned persons who may have been as ignorantly deceived as any other amateur. The mushrooms served at first class hostelrys are culture grown by expert gardeners and the risk is reduced to a minimum.

The mushroom growth develops tremendous power. Frequently one may see on the hillside or near a swamp a tree wherein the mushroom spores have settled and the favorable weather has developed them and there the growth has actually thrown the binding tree bark back as they have struggled out into the light. A small idea of the strength of the frail little plant may be determined by laying the hands to the bark and feeling the tension and testing the strength required to disturb the tree bark.

Mushrooms are an interesting study for the eye but dangerous experiments for the stomach.

The State as a Good Samaritan

On the old road to Damascus by chance the Good Samaritan came upon a fallen brother and had compassion upon him and knelt by him and ministered to him. This scene has always been the exemplification of the yearning human heart going out to others in distress. But helpfulness requires something besides good will and determination. In no other work of men for men is intelligence, discrimination and tact needed than in the honorable assistance of the unfortunate. In intelligent supervision of the relief of sufferers from the white plague the legislature of 1911 made marked progress. It is unfortunately true that there exists in our modern days a desperate and contemptible brigandage which will profit at the expense of an already unfortunate victim of misfortune. There exist today institutions conducted by unscrupulous men ostensibly to afford a retreat for sufferers from tuberculosis, but primarily to fatten the purses of the "doctors" who are a dishonor to the profession. Many of the towns and municipalities are unable to build and maintain local refuges for tuberculosis patients and where they do exist many prefer not to avail themselves of the care and skilled instruction given.

In order to stimulate local interest in the care of these citizens the State has increased the State Tax $375,000 in order to assist the local cities or town. By the new arrangement each city or town which establishes and maintains a hospital for the care of sufferers from tuberculosis will be able to obtain in repayment from the commonwealth a subsidy of five dollars a week. A careful check is provided that the patient really suffers from tuberculosis.

This is a civic movement in the direction of true socialism for the care and interests of all are one. No one can honorably subscribe to the rabid socialistic programs which are now put before the public, but everyone rejoices in the social movements to alleviate the ills and hardships of any class in its citizenship.

The New Germanic Museum

Every Harvard graduate and every resident of Greater Boston has been interested in the Germanic Museum at Harvard University. Originally made possible by the gift of a quarter of a million dollars by Adolphus Busch of St. Louis, the construction of a new building is now to become a possibility. The Museum has since its establishment been one of the interesting and instructive visiting places for the visitor and a place of study of German art for students and professional enquirers. The new building will displace the old forbidding structure, opposite a beautiful Memorial Hall on the triangle of land bounded by Kirkland street, Divinity avenue and Frisbie place. The building itself will be the work of Professor Francke Bestlemeyer of Dresden. Already an architect's model has been forwarded to America and is in the possession of Professor Kuno Francke at Harvard. Every such enterprise enriches the educational equipment of the great university and Harvard's gain is New England's. Some delay is being caused because of the unavailability of the site. It is hoped that the technical matters involved may be speedily settled and the work begun on the Germanic Museum.

Rev. Albert Gardner Warner

The Manchester Baptist Church has called to the pastorate Rev. Albert Gardner Warner, who will begin his ministry in our town on November 1st. It is of importance to the whole town who mans the pulpits of its churches. The coming of Mr. Warner will be a distinct gain and a valuable accession to our community. With the talented preacher Rev. Mr. Ruge manning the Congregational pulpit and the earnest Mr. Warner in the Baptist pulpit the religious work here will be under the direction of two careful, conservative, yet progressive, conscientious men. Mr. Warner comes in the prime of life from his successful labors in other places. He is a graduate of Worcester Academy and of Colby College. After four years of faithful and rewarded study he was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Arts with highest honors. His Divinity Course was taken at the Newton Theological Institution in Newton Centre. The Breeze congratulates the local Church for its good fortune and extends a cordial welcome to Rev. Mr. Warner.

At the end of the primary elections Governor Foss is reported as saying: "I went to bed when I heard Frothingham had won his nomination. I am not interested to make any comments." If the remark were made it is unworthy of the Governor of Massachusetts. Even prize fighters shake hands on entering the ring.

The United States Navy for 1912 is to cost in round numbers $129,000,000. The cost of our school system compares very unfavorably. Is our motto a dollar for defense and a penny for education?

The Turk has no great standing among the nations but Italy may well look to her laurels if she ruthlessly makes war. The days of peace are at hand.

The Baptists are going to build a memorial temple to the Pilgrims at Plymouth. The United States Government laid envying eyes on their property for a new postoffice and have paid them twenty-two thousand dollars. This is to be invested and the income used to care for the new memorial. The new fund is still to be raised.

The $100 deposited by Dr. Fisher to the city of Beverly for the relief of the poor of Beverly after 100 years had elapsed, amounting now to $16,347.33, indicates the stability of the saving institutions of Beverly and vicinity and the remarkable increases resulting from constantly increasing interest.

It takes only 16 minutes by an official test by a New York newspaper to send a message around the world. It is a rare man and a rare day for him in which 16 minutes are not wasted. Never before has the value of time been more clearly shown.

The new administration at the new hospital in Beverly has begun a new building for the nurses. This is a valuable and humane effort. The tragic service of nursing demands rest when the day's work or night is done.

A mushroom college offered the editor a degree of Doctor of Philosophy for the sum of forty-five dollars. Such institutions ought to be suppressed by law.

The test of the Primaries cannot be made in any one year. It is interesting, however, to notice which party wishes the party designation requirement removed.

Robert Stuart MacArthur after a public life of forty-one years is entitled to the degree of Master of Assemblies.

Printers Will Hold Convention and Cost Congress

The printers and allied trades of New England will hold a convention and cost congress at the American House, Boston, Tuesday, October 24th, to consider the various phases of cost and methods connected with the many branches of the printing industry. A large representation is assured of the printers, electrotypers, photo engravers and paper jobbers of this section of the country, and the interest already shown promises as great enthusiasm and results as came from the conventions held in Chicago, St. Louis and Denver. The program now being prepared assures a series of meetings which will be of immeasurable value to all who attend, as some of the best known men in the country have already been secured.

James Nazzaro will close his barber shop, under the postoffice, Mondays at one o'clock, from November 1st to April 1st.

A very entertaining program has been arranged for the camp fire of Allen Post 67, G A R, tonight in G A R hall. Francis M. Stanwood, who always takes such an interest in the post, has arranged the program, which will consist of instrumental and vocal selections, readings, a talk by Gen. Charles H. Taylor of the Boston Globe, and two numbers by Mr. Stanwood. The post and auxiliary societies are invited. Refreshments will be served.

On Monday evening the Pilgrim Fathers had the annual installation of officers at their meeting, the work being done by Mrs. Estella McLaughlin of Lynn, and suite, of Salem. Their work was beautifully executed. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served, and dancing was also enjoyed after the evening's business.

The final baseball game of the season was played on Columbus Day, the Rivals of Gloucester being the visiting team. The attendance at this game was not as large as usual, but the interest was plainly manifest. The Crickets during the first half played good ball and held their opponents by a score of 6-3. The Rivals finally gained on them and succeeded in winning the game by a score of 8-6. Crocker pitched a good game, and Dunbar, who is always on the job, did well. John Walsh and Linholdn were loudly cheered from time to time for exceptionally good catches.

Musical at Baptist Church

Last Friday evening G. Allyn Brown, organist of the Manchester Baptist church, arranged a very fine concert at the church. The talent came from out of town and included students from the New England Conservatory of Music. Miss Rebecca Andrews of Gloucester, was the soprano soloist, Miss Mildred Ridley, of Boston, cellist; Benjamin Posner, of Boston, violinist, and Mr. Brown, accompanist. Mrs. Charlotte E. Brown of Manchester, was the reader.

The program opened with Mendelssohn's trio for stringed instruments and introduced the violinist, cellist and Mr. Brown, pianist, in a fine reading of the scores of the Andante and Scherzo from the composer's D minor trio. An organ number, Lemare's Andantino, followed. It was a request number executed most pleasingly by Mr. Brown. Miss Andrews, who is not a stranger in Manchester, displayed her vocal gifts in the Aria from "Samson and Delila" by St. Saens. Mr. Posner, who has appeared to great advantage on other occasions in Manchester, repeated his success in a selected violin solo which next followed. Mrs. Brown's monologue depicting a mother at the beach with her children furnished the humorous note of the evening and was cordially received.

Part two of the program presented Miss Ridley as a cello soloist. Her number was Popper's Andante. The other numbers were: Prelude, Romance and Finale, violin, 'cello and piano, by Parker; Processional March for organ from "The Queen of Sheba," by Gounod, Mr. Brown; Songs, (a) "A Little Winding Road," by Ronald, (b) "Ah, Love for a Day," by Mrs. Beach, (c) "The Danza," by Chadwick, Miss Andrews; Scherzo from D minor trio, violin, 'cello and piano by Schumann. The concert was distinctly a high class one and an able and artistic exposition of the great composers.

On Sunday evening Prof. George Ellis Cooke spoke upon the subject of Socialism at the Congregational church, to a large audience. Mr. Cooke said in part: Paul was always ready to give a reason for the faith that was within him. Socialists were always ready to give a reason why they were socialists. President Taft said that socialism was the next great question to be settled. Socialism is but half a century old. But socialists can be found in every industrial community in the world. In Germany it is the most powerful political party. In France, Australia, Italy and United States there are many. Socialism was not an ethical movement. Under existing customs it is impossible to live an ethical life or practice the Golden Rule. Business is carried on today on principals directly antagonistic to the church. Both old and new testaments favor socialism. The Golden Rule can be practiced under socialism. All commodities upon which the people depend for existence should be controlled by state. All railroads, mines and land should be controlled by the government. All railroads in Europe, except in Great Britain, are controlled by state. Socialism does not favor dividing up of property but is opposed to it. Socialism is a working man's movement. Workingmen are not now getting an equitable share of the profits. The wealth of the country is produced in the most part by labor. Before the war, slavery was believed to be a necessity. While the wage system prevails workmen will be slaves. Lincoln said no man is good enough to control other men. This sentiment led to the emancipation of the slaves. The workmen must be emancipated. There should be no dominating classes. The change must be brought about by the ballot. Socialism favors church and marriage, and allows freedom of choice—is opposed to monopoly. We have never had democracy. Our representatives do not represent the people. All public officers should be elected with condition that if derelict in duty should be recalled. Socialism is in favor of equal rights and equal suffrage for women. Kings and princes must be done away with. When you bring all classes and society to the workingman's level then it will be possible to live according to the Golden Rule.

Everett Burnham of Essex Falls is building a large addition to his barn.

Mr. Holmes, state forester, was in town recently to see Town Forester O. O. Story. His business was mainly in regard to making an investigation into the forest fires in and around Essex and takes steps if possible to prevent their reoccurrence.

Quite a stir was made in town Friday among the small boys by the offer of a reward of $5.00 for the finding of a dog lost by a Mr. White, Esq., of Manchester. It seems that when Mr. White left his automobile for a few moments, the dog jumped out. He was not missed until quite a distance had been traveled. The dog could not be found, hence the reward. Mr. White thought to telephone home and it was found that master doggie was there safe and sound. Hence "gloom" with the small boy!

Miss Helen Grinnell Mears was the soloist at a party at Mrs. Chas. H. Price's of Salem recently and filled the position in a very acceptable manner.

Mears upon the outline for practical work for the coming year. It was a very interesting and profitable occasion.

for that college than any other woman in the country. More than 2500 students have prepared under her leadership in the past eighteen years. She was seventy-four years of age. She retired in 1899. She was also a well known writer of juvenile stories and books.

Among the sons of famous men, who in recent years were pupils at Dummer, was the son of Booker T. Washington. Washington certainly placed his son in a delightful New England atmosphere full of impressive, traditional and uplifting influences especially to his race. One phrase of Wm. Lloyd Garrison of Newburyport, Byfield's neighboring city, where the students of Dummer enjoy the pleasures incident to academic life, would influence—"My countrymen are all mankind, my country is the world." Sufficient reason alone to locate his son near the birthplace and home of the anti-slavery advocate.

Such sentiments as above quoted founded the modern freedom of action, the freedom of pleasure, the freedom of speech. The hunting enthusiasts of the Myopia Club fully realize the significance of the fundamental principles of our great nation as embodied by the landmarks and points of interest of their hunting grounds. They gallop enthusiastically over the highways of their fascinating meet territory. Its traditional charms give greater zest to their chosen sport. With Whittier they cry in their hearts, lines from his "My Psalm," in reverent appreciation:—

"No longer forward nor behind

I look in hope or fear

But grateful take the good I find

The best of now and here."

Beverly Farms people on Wednesday evening, were again treated to a fine band concert by the USS Mayflower band, in Neighbor's hall. The hall was filled to its capacity and from the beginning to the last piece each selection received hearty encore. Three selections on the program were composed by the band's director, G. DeGiorgio.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grove (nee Ella Low) are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a boy which was born early yesterday morning.

Cleaning up Capital.

When Congress folds its tent and steals away from its legislative haunts, the cleaners and renovators get busy in Washington. The big buildings where the Senators and Representatives have their offices are scrubbed, mopped, painted and cleaned from top to bottom. The Capitol itself is put through similar treatment and the outside is subjected to treatment with lines of hose through which fire engines force water to the very top of the dome. It's always an interesting operation to see the Capitol getting its annual bath. Then the streets are repaired and the trees trimmed and everything around Washington is got into the best possible shape for the reconvening of Congress in December. Owing to the extra session there was little time to do all this during the present summer, so there is unusual hurry and bustle now.

Not only is the college reaching a larger number of people than ever before through its resident students who do work of college grade, but, through the work carried on by the extension department, several thousand persons annually are reached and definitely assisted. Short winter and summer courses are conducted; a farmers' week and various short term conferences are held at the college. For those who are unable to come to the college even for a short time, lectures, correspondence courses, field demonstrations, educational exhibits at fairs, and personal expert advice are offered. In 1910 two "Better Farming Trains" were operated in Massachusetts; these were equipped largely by the agricultural college and reached directly about 9,000 people in the restricted territory covered. Extensive plans for further work of these types are already made and wait only for the necessary funds to be put in operation.

The agricultural experiment station of Massachusetts is located on the college grounds and is a part of the institution. Here are constantly carried on experiments of a practical nature, results of which are printed and freely distributed to those applying for them. The experiment station also is engaged in research for the purpose of discovering new truths in the realm of agricultural science. The inspection and analysis of fertilizers and feed stuffs for the State is directed by the experiment station. By this department as well as by the extension department, there are answered yearly several thousand letters of inquiry concerning the practical problems confronting the farmer.

The Massachusetts Agricultural College is located in one of the most beautiful spots in New England; the necessary expenses for those attending the institution are moderate; and the vocations for which its students are trained are far from overcrowded.

Japanese Prima Donna at B. F. Keith's

Madam Sumiko, a dainty little Japanese woman who is known in her own country as "The Mary Garden of Japan," will be feature attraction at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. Mme. Sumiko is the prima donna soprano of the Imperial Opera House in Tokio, and was brought to this country by one of Mr. Keith's agents in the Orient.

She sings in both Japanese and English, one of her numbers, "Steamboat Bill," being sung in both languages. During her recent engagement in New York Mme. Sumiko had the honor of singing before Admiral Togo at the banquet given the famous sea fighter by the Nippon Club. The famous admiral complimented his little country woman most highly after her performance, and expressed himself as greatly interested in her.

SOCIETY NOTES

Mrs. Taft has decided to remain in Beverly until October 28th, although the social season in that city is practically over. She and her daughter, Helen Taft, have been at Paramatta since the middle of June. The president's wife and her daughter will proceed directly to Hot Springs, Ark., not in search of health, but recreation. After a brief stay at the Arkansas resort, she will return to Washington to inaugurate the social season at the nation's capital. Mrs. Taft the past few weeks has withdrawn to herself a few of her most intimate friends. She is seen driving most frequently with members of the family of John Hays Hammond and George von L. Meyer. Since the last of August, Mrs. Taft's social life has been quiet and uneventful. A more active social season at Beverly than the record breaking one of 1911 is predicted for the summer of 1912. With an early adjournment of Congress likely, owing to the approach of the presidential campaign, the Tafts are expected to return to Beverly, June 1, 1912.

At last week's board meeting of the Boston & Maine railroad company, ex-President Lucius Tuttle of Boston and Magnolia was elected chairman of the board. Other North Shore members of the directorate are Philip Dexter of the Manchester colony, Alexander Cochrane of Pride's, and Amory A. Lawrence of the Beverly contingent. J. Pierpont Morgan is also a member of the board.

SOCIETY NOTES

Plans for a Harvard library building to cost $2,000,000 and to provide room for 2,400,000 books have just been drawn up and recommended by a committee of the board of overseers of Harvard College. The building will stand where the present Gore Hall stands, but it will cover several times the area occupied by that structure and extend almost to the Massachusetts avenue fence. When completed it will be not only the most considerable Harvard building, but it will be the largest and most costly university building in the United States. Harvard's collection of books is really one of the most valuable in this country. The committee to visit the present Harvard library consists of several North Shore summer residents. Among them are F. R. Appleton, Gardiner M. Lane and Alexander Cochrane. They will be active in planning for the new library.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Miss Clara Winthrop of Boston and West Manchester entertained the members of her boys' class at the St. Paul's church Sunday School, at West Manchester last Saturday. The boys indulged in tennis, football and the usual other delightful pastimes which are features of their autumn field day as Miss Winthrop's guests.

The Samuel Carrs of Boston and West Manchester left the North Shore Monday for a three weeks' sojourn at the Hot Springs, Va., before settling at their winter residence. Other Manchester colonists who removed to Boston homes on Monday were the George E. Cabots.

Mrs. Stanwood G. Wellington of Chestnut Hill, Boston, daughter-in-law of William H. Wellington of Boston and Manchester, is receiving the sympathy of her many friends in the recent death of her mother, Mrs. Elbert L. Baker, of Santa Barbara, Cal. Stanwood G. Wellington and family spent August with the former's father at Manchester.

Letters from Mrs. Curtis Guild give very interesting accounts of her life abroad, at the Russian capital.

SOCIETY NOTES

Scott Clifton Carbee of Boston, a leading member of East Gloucester's artistic colony, has received a commission to paint the family portrait of Mrs. Wm. K. Ryan, daughter-in-law of Thomas Fortune Ryan, the New York magnate. Mrs. Ryan summered the past season with her three boys at the Harbor View Hotel, where Mr. Carbee was also a guest. The painting, which is to be five feet wide and seven feet long, will depict Mrs. Ryan and her children in the garden of their seaside cottage they occupied this past summer at East Gloucester. Mrs. Ryan is a beautiful blonde and her children are very beautiful also, and heir to many millions through the death of their father four years ago. The ages of the little boys are ten, seven and five years. The picture is to be presented to their grandfather, Thomas Fortune Ryan, for his great art gallery in New York.

The Eastern Point section of East Gloucester is steadily booming as a summer resort. George O. Stacy of the Hawthorne Inn has sold the northeasterly part of the Colonial Arms hotel lot comprising an acre to Mrs. F. T. Hall of Boston, daughter of Mrs. Oakes Ames of the Boston and North Easton Ames family. Mr. and Mrs. Hall, the former an artist, occupied one of the Little cottages the past season at the Point. Mrs. Hall is to erect on her newly acquired lot a fine cement and brick cottage for next summer. The location is a grand one and is in a fine neighborhood. The Sleeper, Snikler and Andrew summer homes are in this vicinity, also that of Miss Cecilia Beaux, the famous portrait painter.

Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart Spaulding and John T. Spaulding of the Pride's colony, who are on a world-trip tarried in London on reaching England, taking a suite at the Berkeley Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Amory A. Lawrence of Boston and Beverly, who are abroad, have been in Paris and more recently at Cadenabbia, where they were registered at the Bellevue.

SOCIETY NOTES

The most notable golden-wedding celebration held in Western Massachusetts for many years and which elicited much North Shore interest was that of former Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph H. Choate which was held Monday afternoon at Naumkeag, their beautiful villa on Prospect Hill, Stockbridge. Among the messages of good will were those of President W. H. Taft and King George. Five hundred people were present. Sherry catered and also brought his orchestra from New York. The presents in gold were magnificent. British Ambassador and Mrs. James Bryce were among the guests present. Hon. Mr. Choate distributed $500 among the employees of his 70-acre estate. Mr. Choate's toast at the wedding dinner was to Salem, his birthplace, where he was born January 24, 1832. As one of America's famous lawyers and diplomats, he has brought the North Shore fame as one of her native-born sons.

An autumn social event at Swampscott on last Friday was the dinner Mr. and Mrs. William Morton Bunting Jr., gave at their Phillips Beach cottage in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Martha Hope Fuller of Brookline and Oscar Lawrence Halsey of St. Louis, which was solemnized at the Beaconsfield, Brookline, on the 17th.

On Wednesday afternoon at Brookline, Harold Sprague Hichborn of Augusta, Maine, and Miss Bertha Margare' Batchelder of Brookline, were wedded at All Saints' church. Among the distinguished guests present were Ex-Gov. and Mrs. John Hill of Augusta, whose son, Percy V. Hill, married Mrs. J. Warren Merrill's sister. Mr. and Mrs. Merrill, it will be recalled, were entertained in Augusta early in August, and visited the very beautiful estate of Hon. and Mr. Hill, also fished at their private trout preserves, one of the largest in the country.

SOCIETY NOTES

"Questenmere," the beautiful Marblehead Neck estate of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McQuesten, was closed for the season and the McQuesten household removed to 1560 Beacon street, Brookline.

The late Owen Wister, the well known novelist and author of "The Virginian," who died last Friday on his Wyoming ranch, used to visit Philadelphia friends at The Ocean-side hotel, Marblehead Neck. He is also remembered by the North Shore Harvard men of the class of 1882 and the Harvard Law School of 1888, from which he was graduated. He was the great grandson of Fanny Kemble. He wrote many well-known stories and verse.

Charles G. Gates and His Bride On Wedding Tour In Private Car

WHEN Charles G. Gates arranged to be married to Miss Florence Hopwood of Minneapolis at the home of his bride's uncle, Robert F. Hopwood, at Uniontown, Pa., he engaged the Rev. Dr. J. W. Legrone of Port Arthur, Tex., to perform the ceremony. There were nearly a hundred guests at the wedding, many of them having made long journeys to attend. Immediately after the wedding dinner Mr. and Mrs. Gates left on their wedding journey in Mr. Gates' private car. They went first to Port Arthur, Tex., and will make a long tour of the United States before returning to New York. The above picture was made as the newly wedded couple stood behind the car only a few minutes before their wedding journey began. This was Mr. Gates' second marriage, his first wife having divorced him fifty-three days before his second marriage. His father, John W. Gates, died recently, leaving a fortune of perhaps $30,000,000, most of which will ultimately go to his son. The young millionaire's wedding gifts to his bride included two diamond rings, a rope of pearls, a pair of diamond earrings and a dia-

CHOATE ISLAND

Probably few Americans, outside of one little corner of New England, would be able to locate offhand Choate Island, or "Hog Island," as it was formerly called. And yet this little plot of ground—this sunny, wave washed isle of three hundred acres at the mouth of the Essex River—has probably given more men to the profession of the law and to the state and national Legislature than any other tract of land of the same size in our country. Three prominent men of today—Ex-Mayor Seth Low of New York city, Hon. Joseph H. Choate, former ambassador to Great Britain, and United States Senator Henry F. Burnham, are members of the Choate family whose ancestral homestead still stands on the island.

It was in 1690 that Thomas Choate, the first white settler to found a home there, moved over from the mainland with his young bride. Ever since then, with the exception of a few years in the nineteenth century, some of his descendants have lived in the old home, and those who went forth into the great world and won name and fame have gone back from time to time to look upon the tide and the river and the salt marshes that are the same today as when the first sturdy colonist felled the trees and cleared the ground for planting.

The scene is one of great natural beauty. The blue of the ocean, the glimmer of the marshes, the river that flows gently to meet the sea, the mainland with its sunny farms and villages, its distant hills, all form the setting for the picture. In the foreground is Choate Island, rising to a gentle prominence in the centre, its eastern and southern sides, green with verdure, sloping gently to the water's edge, its northern side, bold and rocky. At high tide the island is entirely cut off from the mainland, but at low tide it is possible to cross on a causeway. There is some question as to whether the name "Hog Island" was first given by the early settlers because of an apparent resemblance in outline as viewed from the neighboring hills to a hog lying on its side in the calm water, or because the land was used as a common pasture for swine. The prosaic name clung for two centuries, until finally replaced by the more euphonious name of Choate Island.

Originally, of course, the island was owned by the Indians, and was sold by them to the town of Ipswich.

Tradition says that the red men were loath to part with this beautiful spot all the more abundant because it held the burying-place of many of their ancestors.

For a time the town held the land as common property, but in 1665, it was divided into lots of three and a half acres each and the lots portioned out to the citizens. One of the "solid men of Ipswich Town" was John Choate, the first of his name to come to America. He had migrated from England, as a young man of nineteen in 1643. From his farm in Ipswich he could look across to the little isle, and it seemed to him very desirable land. He purchased lots from his fellow townsmen, and year by year added to his acres, until finally he owned the greater part of the island. It was not for many years, however, that any of the family made a home there. In 1690 his son Thomas, built the first house on the site and moved into it with his beautiful bride and their simple household furnishings. A few months later the father made over to the son all right and title to the island property. Perhaps it was because Thomas Choate seemed practically ruler of an independent territory "monarch of all he surveyed" that he came to be popularly called "The Governor."

There was stern work for the colonists in wresting a home from the wilderness. The men built their homes from timber felled in the neighboring forest; they cleared the land and did the rough work of pioneer farming, ever on guard against Indian surprises. The women worked also spinning and weaving, and caring for the household, and rearing the many children that came. Households were large in those days, and families of twelve and fourteen children were not at all uncommon.

In October, 1727, an earthquake disturbed the peace of the little community, and caused much consternation among the people. As an old record kept on the island has it: "On the Sabbath Day at night, about ten of ye clock there was a great earthquake throughout the Province which shook the houses and threw down the tops of chimneys in many places."

Almost from the first the Choates were noted for their interest in public affairs, and they were ever ready to serve their country in council or on the field of battle. Thomas Choate "The Governor," was a man distinguished by qualities of leadership and command. He served for four years as representative to the General Court. That he was a man of fearless and independent spirit is shown by his being one of the thirty-one signers to Rev. Mr. Wise's letter on behalf of John Proctor, who had been condemned for witchcraft. The appeal was in vain, and the unfortunate man was executed. Proctor's will, written in Salem jail three days before his death is still preserved, and shows the signature of Thomas Choate as one of the witnesses. "Governor" Choate was a sound thinker, and his views on the "currency question" and the "business depression" that then, as now, occupied public attention, would do credit to a statesman of today. He is quoted as saying in 1728, "The increase of currency in bills of credit as a remedy for depression in trade and depreciated bills already in circulation, is like seeking to restore a corrupt state of the blood of high living."

One of Thomas Choate's sons, Col. John Choate, became even more prominent in public life than his father. He was elected many times to the General Court, and served fifteen years in the House of Representatives. He was for five years a member of the Council. He was a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas and also for many years of the Probate Court. It was at his suggestion that the stone arched bridge at Ipswich was built. This was the first bridge with stone arches ever constructed in this country, and the townspeople were at first utterly incredulous that such a method of bridge-building could be practiced. They looked upon the proposal as utter folly, and it was only after considerable opposition that the project was carried. On the day the bridge was finished and the supporting frame work of wood knocked away, large numbers of people came to see the sight, and many of them, still unconvinced of the stability of the bridge, hung around until night-fall watching for the stone arch to fall. The bridge is still standing.

Francis, a brother of Colonel Choate remained on the farm, but engaged more or less in maritime affairs, becoming owner or part owner of many fishing-schooners or vessels engaged in the coasting trade. In his youth he had learned the blacksmith's trade and at one time he and a brother, with the help of a negro slave, built three schooners, sawing the planks by hand from the trees, and also making all the ironwork used in the construction of the vessels. It was he who, in 1725 built the house now standing, the same within whose walls in 1799 the great Rufus Choate was born. Francis Choate, like all his family, took a keen interest in public matters, and his anxiety at the time of the Revolution for the future of the young republic was exceedingly great. At the time of Burgoyne's surrender, the old man was lying at the point of death. When the minister, a friend of Choate heard the tidings of the surrender, he exclaimed, "I can't let Squire Francis go to Heaven without hearing the good news." Jumping on his horse, the minister road post-haste to the home of the squire, burst into the room, and in a voice of great excitement gave the thrilling news. The dying man was past speech, but a glad smile and a wave of the hand showed that he understood and rejoiced.

(This article, by Mary H. North-end in the Salem Dispatch, will be concluded next week.)

Nothing is so contagious as enthusiasm. It is the real allegory of the tale of Orpheus. It moves stones, it charms brutes. Enthusiasm is the genius of sincerity and truth accomplishes no victories without it. —Bulwer.

MANCHESTER WOMAN'S CLUB

Dr. Leon H. Vincent Lectures on "Nathaniel Hawthorne"

The semi-monthly meeting of the Manchester Woman's Club was held Tuesday afternoon at the chapel, President Mrs. Emma E. Stanley, presiding.

The announcements during the business meeting were as follows: Arts and Crafts class has changed its name to Home Economics; civics committee to be given annual fund of $25; convention at Mattapanock club, South Boston, October 28th at two o'clock, official delegate, Mrs. Grace Beaton, unofficial, Mrs. Carrie Knight. Tuesday afternoon, October 24th, at 3.30 o'clock, Mrs. Robert S. Bradley of Boston and Pride's, will speak at the chapel on "The Fly." Parents and the older children in the schools are urged to be present. Public evening stereopticon lecture Wednesday evening, November 1st, "With Longfellow in Evangeline Land," by Rev. Henry R. Rose, in the Town hall; current events class, October 31st, at 2.30 o'clock, with Mrs. Beaton, for organization.

At the close of the business session, the musical and literary program was inaugurated by very pleasing vocal solos by Mrs. Alice Lee, who rendered two songs by Longfellow, "Awake! It Is the Day" and "Star of the Summer Night," musical scores by Florence Newell Barbour. Mrs. Edith L. Williams served as accompanist. Dr. Leon H. Vincent was then introduced as lecturer of the afternoon.

Dr. Vincent came secure in his prestige and popularity as an entertainer. He had a very cordial reception. His subject was "Nathaniel Hawthorne."

The subject was treated from the analytical and critical standpoint. He prefaced his address with an exposition of genius. Hawthorne was an "American man of genius." Genius is a creative power, a gift of God. A genius is not in the least responsible for what he does. He never works for money. He is absorbed in himself.

In describing Hawthorne's personality he spoke of his childlike disposition, tendency to melancholy and visionary and transcendental moods. He carried his listeners through the various phases of his life, his bellicose youth when he liked baseball and a wide-awake life. At eleven years of age he had literary ambitions. He introduced him as the day laborer at the Salem Customs House.

CHRYSANTHEMUM EXHIBITION

North Shore Horticultural Society Will Hold Flower Show in Manchester Town Hall Next Wednesday and Thursday

The North Shore Horticultural Society will hold its only exhibition of the present year, in the Manchester Town hall, on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. The flower shows are usually very popular features of the year on the North Shore, but this year the June and the mid-summer exhibitions of the society had to be omitted because of the drought the first of the summer. And now comes the Chrysanthemum exhibition.

It is expected the exhibition will be a very interesting one and that there will be a goodly number of exhibits.

Besides chrysanthemums, there will be a display of other flowers, and carnations, fruits and vegetables.

It is earnestly hoped that the townspeople will patronize this exhibition. The admission will be 25 cents during the day—Wednesday and Thursday—and 10 cents during the evening. The show will open at 2 o'clock Wednesday.

Hawthorne was noted physically as a very handsome man. His eyes were particularly beautiful "eyes that flashed fire." He was brought up in the presence of an unconsolable grief. His mother became a confirmed recluse at the sudden death of her husband at sea on a Surinam voyage. She shut herself in her room and never left it. Since Hawthorne was deeply affected by personalities this episode in his family life left a deep impression on him. "My cursed habits of solitude." His authorship's desires and ambitions came early and were prophetic. He was a poet in prose.

His married life was romantic and beautiful, in which he showed the spiritual and practical side of his life in his marital relations with his devoted wife, who was Miss Sophia Peabody of Salem. It was an ideal union of absolute comradeship and co-operation.

"The Scarlet Letter," his great romance published in 1850 by the late James T. Fields, was particularly reviewed by Dr. Vincent and criticised as "Shakespearian in power." That story alone made Hawthorne one of the great masters of story writing. He was contemporary with Irving and Poe in that literary respect.

He spoke of Hawthorne's life at Concord and in Europe.

Hawthorne's best biographers were announced as Prof. George Edward Woodbury, Henry James and his son, Julian Hawthorne.

At the close of the lecture, a social period was enjoyed. There was an informal reception for the eleven new club members. In the tea room Mrs. Sarah Crowell presided as hostess. At the tea table Mrs. Alexander Robertson and Mrs. George Allen poured. At the next regular club meeting, November 7th, a very novel and interesting lecture has been provided, "Aerial Voyaging," by Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd. Mrs. Annie M. Sinnicks will be hostess of the day.

Thrift

Thrift is the conservation of energy, time and power. By common consent these are expressed in terms of money. Money is merely a medium of exchange. It has no power, and consequently, no value, until such worth has been given by common consent. To exchange the power and time and energy of men money is used. The energy, time and power of the farmer is in the products of his field, the wealth of the merchant is in the commissions of sale in hand. So in every avenue of wealth money is but a counter representing more or less accurately the accumulation of the products of the energy, the time and the resources of men. Thrift then while having to do with the guarding of wealth in money more accurately is the conservation and husbanding of the resources of nature and of the power of hand and brain of men. With such economy the wealth of nations is made and by neglect of thrift commonwealths are made bankrupt. While every effort is being made to develop well-directed energy by education, and to economize time by the application of trained minds to the problems of the world's work and consequently developing power in modern life equally intelligent provisions must be made for the care of the medium of exchange, namely, money. The modern school system is beginning to adapt itself to the situation and has introduced instruction in thrift, teaching the lessons of economy to the young.

The United States Government, through the new department of the Postal Savings System, "has pledged the faith of the United States to the payment of deposits made in postal savings depository offices." In this new department deposits may be made as low as ten cents by the purchase of a stamp which is placed upon a savings card. These are redeemed when numbering ten and a postal certificate for one dollar is issued. Other certificates are issued at two, five, ten, twenty, fifty and one hundred dollars, each bearing interest at the rate of two per centum per year which is added a year from the first of the month following the issue of the certificate. Deposit certificates redeemed before the expiration of a year sacrifice all claim to interest. Provision is also made to exchange the whole or any part of deposits in sums of $20, $40, $60, $80, $100 or multiples of $100 up to and including $500, into United States registered or coupon bonds bearing interest at the rate of two and one half per centum per annum, the interest and principal payable in United States gold coins twenty years from date. All such bonds are free of taxation in any form.

By these provisions the United States Government has made provision for the savings of the child and a safe repository for unlimited savings of others to the safe guarding of which the faith of the United States is "solemnly pledged." The movement in favor of the Postal Savings was a long while in developing and will be popular in many sections of the country where banks are not numerous. Thousands of aliens have been using the money order department of the postoffice for the safe keeping of their funds, orders being taken out in their own name. It was expected that the new system would relieve the money order department of this burden and the results have been satisfactory. Offices serving this territory have been opened in Beverly and in Manchester, but these are not likely to prosper as such an office would in the isolated places of the west which are inadequately provided with banking facilities. The Beverly National Bank makes provision for a two per cent interest for all accounts over five hundred dollars, the Beverly Co-operative Bank affords unusual opportunities for systematic savings, and the newly organized Manchester Trust Company with its interest and check accounts serves the interests of the community admirably. Consequently the new department cannot mean so much to this district as it must to more rural communities.

An Interesting Experiment

A little over two years ago the city of Beverly in conjunction with the United Shoe Machinery Company inaugurated a movement to provide ambitious boys of poor parents an opportunity to earn a little to pay the usual bills in life and at the same time have the advantages of school. As the result of careful study the Beverly Day Industrial School was organized with a Board of Directors independent of the school system of the City of Beverly and the United Shoe Machinery Company but with a unity of action and purpose. While this has been in form an independent school the pupils have been jointly under the charge of the United Shoe Machinery Company and of the Beverly public schools. A room was fitted out at the High school and a space in the factory was set aside and at considerable expense equipped by the United Shoe Machinery Company. The pupils have been taught in the school room the usual mysteries of mechanics, working drawing, the reading of drawings and the making of blue prints and the intricacies of mathematics. At the shop the pupils learn to apply their knowledge. The system provides for alternate weeks of service at the school and the shop. The results of the labor of the lads during the week are accepted according to the regular standards of the United Shoe Machinery Company and paid for at half rates. In this way the lads have been able to earn as well as learn.

Now, the first trial of "graduates" has been made. Two weeks ago the superintendent of the factory sent for four of the best boys, to be chosen by the teachers, according to the quality of work done and irrespective of name, race, creed, color or previous relations in life. These were put to work in the factory on trial according to the usual standards of the Machinery

Company and without favor. After the trial the boys were assigned to work rated according to the time standard at twenty-three cents an hour. They were, however, placed on piece work making it possible for the individual to develop and earn according to his ability. It does not mean that the boys will average twenty-three cents an hour for their first week or will earn that for some weeks to come. It does mean that at the very beginning of their career in the great institution they are beginning on work rated at that amount per hour. In other words the two years' training has made it profitable to them and to the United Shoe Machinery Company to put them at work upon such work as is worth twenty-three cents an hour. This is the beginning and with such a start the lads have the assurances of a bright future. Their time is in their own hands.

Credit is due in this innovation to the untiring efforts of the former Superintendent of Schools in Beverly, Mr. Safford and to Mr. Vose, Assistant Superintendent of the United Shoe Machinery Company. This experiment is now being tried in the new mechanical school of the Y M C A in Boston and seems to present a way out of the limitations of the modern school system and of the limited incomes of growing boys. Any effort which tends to increase the efficiency and skill of the citizens of a city or makes for the highest type of civic righteousness. The United Shoe Machinery Company should be commended for this public service.

The Sherman Anti-Trust Bill

The so-called Anti-Sherman Law, the result of a long debate in Congress, was actually drawn by the Judiciary Committee of the Senate to whom the original bill, splinted and plastered, had been referred. The Sherman Anti-Trust Bill reported provides that,

"Every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations, is hereby declared to be illegal. . . .

"Every person who shall monopolize, or attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize, any part of the trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. . . .

"The word 'person' or 'persons,' wherever used in this Act, shall be deemed to include corporations or associations existing under or authorized by the laws of either the United States, . . . any of the Territories, . . . any State, or . . . any foreign country."

Under this bill the Government has been doing effective work in purifying the complicated trust conditions in the United States. By it the Standard Oil Company and the American Tobacco Company have been brought to the bar of justice and a threatened attack sent steel tumbling. Now the General Electric Company has been arraigned and the Northern district of Ohio, Judge John M. Killits renders a decision in favor of the Government. Attorney General Wickersham claims that the new decision establishes precedents of genuine value to the Government. The new decision will prevent the alleged combination in restraint of trade in incandescent lamp fixtures and enable independent manufacturers "to secure the parts necessary for such manufacture without the unfair and unnatural restraint which has heretofore existed." These investigations are temporarily embarrassing to the industries involved but must in the end be productive good not alone to the consumer but to the producer as well. There is business enough and profit enough in wholesome enterprises without the unjust gains of illegal restraint.

The movement is on for "free" sugar. John Arbuckle has for years been in the harness. Every barrel of sugar last summer from his sugar refinery had on it a broad announcement that the removal of the duty on sugar would lessen the price to the consumer two cents per pound. It is his avowed purpose to make a determined fight for the introduction of such a bill this winter. Our government is committed to a protective tariff system which is also revenue producing. The removal of the tariff would end the protective element in the sugar tariff and remove the revenue also. If the revenue be taken from sugar where shall it be placed?

The decision of the Board of Trustees of Technology to take the shore land on the Charles River between the Harvard and Old Boston Bridge is admirable. Cambridge and Boston are one and the development of the shore line under the architectural supervision of the Technology Department, affords an opportunity unrivaled in its possibilities. The contingent clauses in the arrangement are certain to be fulfilled and the $100,000 grant by the legislature and the gift of Coleman du Pont will help solve the financial problem. This decision helps the solution of the Charles River Basin problem.

C. A. Vincent at New Bedford said, "The use of cigarettes injures physically the action of the heart, the power of the lungs and the reaction of the flesh. It so acts on the mental fibres that as time goes on the user deteriorates in mental power. It has such an effect on the users that prominent business houses will not employ boys who are addicted." The law prohibits the selling of cigarettes to minors, and all know that Vincent is right now if the boy will only believe and act by it.

W. Cameron Forbes, formerly of Boston, has "cornered" a Philippine "corner on rice" and won. An unscrupulous combine attempted to control illegally and inhumanely the rice product and acting upon the authority of our insular bureau, Forbes arranged for a supply of American corn to replace the rice. The result was magical. No words of contempt are strong enough to condemn "merchants" who will profit at the poverty of their consumers. Good for Forbes.

At last the conservative workers to alleviate the evils incident to the inter-state liquor traffic are at work. Much harm has been done by erratic cranks and the work of the National Conference called to "consider the growing evils of the Inter-State Liquor Traffic" will be sane and effective. The signers of the call assures sensible and careful constructive work.

Boston University is to have a Gala Week. There will be hours of festive greetings and feasts of reasons. The new President will be inaugurated with dignity and academic ceremony. The University has made wonderful progress in its short career and all congratulate them upon their coming prospects.

The Beverly Gas and Electric Company have voluntarily made a reduction in commercial gas and electric current. The promises look good—the new bills will look better. Will Manchester attain an equal advantage?

BOARD OF ASSESSORS.

Strangers who visit Manchester and find it necessary to use the telephone in the depot of the Boston & Maine there find that they have no simple task in getting connections with the operator. The booth is in a dark corner of the station and the telephone apparatus is of the old fashioned variety, one of those that necessitates turning a crank with the right hand while you press a button on the side of the box with the other hand. Persons unaccustomed to this kind of 'phone usually find the crank and give it a turn, but the button is overlooked until some kindly native comes to their aid.—Boston Post.

MANCHESTER

An informal meeting of the leading lights in the Democratic cause in town was held last evening at Carpenters' hall when George A. Schofield of Ipswich, candidate for Senator, and Charles D. Smith of Gloucester, candidate for representative, met about 25 of the voters to get in touch with the people. Mr. Schofield was formerly senator from this district. He has been on the board of selectmen in Ipswich for the last seventeen years. Mr. Smith run for the district attorney's berth last year.

Mud Flats Disappearing

Much has been said jokingly about the mud flats, but if Manchester could make the progress in the next five years that has been made in the last summer there would be no mud flats in Manchester. How many of our people know that about 60,000 cubic yards of mud has been dredged from the harbor the last summer? It is very evident at low tide, for there is considerable of a basin in the inner harbor and a splendid large anchorage basin in the harbor outside the railroad bridge. The main channel, too, has been widened and cut away and another large slice of mud has been removed from the vicinity of Masconomo park. The town paid from the selectmen's account $3000 for this work, the park commissioners paid from their account $500, but the main part of the work was done by the state, about $15,000 being spent in Manchester's behalf, $6,000 of which was given the state by the town.

This is a great thing for the town—this dredging. Manchester has been unduly endowed by nature in its wooded shore and natural beauty. The town ought to be willing to lay out a few thousand dollars every year to improve the water facilities. The big hole left this year after the 60,000 yards of mud was removed only emphasises what can be done if the thing is handled right. Nothing should be put in the way of this project; it should be carried through every year without a hitch. The selectmen are to petition the state for still more work along this line the coming year. They now propose to cut a channel through the Glass Head flats, thus doing away with the obstreperous bow-shaped channel at the harbor's entrance. This would be a wonderful improvement and would go a long way toward putting Manchester on the map as a safe harbor.

MANCHESTER

When one sees the boys and young men of the town loafing around the street corners and leaning against the shop windows in the center of the town, he is impressed by the fact that Manchester is very much in need of some public reading room, and place where young men and boys can go to spend an evening. Some talk has been made in recent years of starting a fund for a YMCA building in town. But that ended it, apparently. We have no YMCA; there is great need of some such place. Young men that congregate on the street corners are as a rule a very objectionable feature. They are doing nothing of good to themselves, and very often they pass objectional and sometimes insulting remarks, to passersby.

Emerson, Douglas and Nesmith oxfords at Bell's.

There has been a slight shake-up in the police department the present week. Officer Stoops has been taken from the Cove and is to cover the West Manchester beat, while Officer Sheehan has been taken off the West Manchester beat and will cover the center of the town with Sergeant Andrews. Officer Lee is taken from the center and will cover the Cove. Special Officer Morgan, who has been on duty during the summer season, is taken off detail duty for the winter.

New Street?

One of the most progressive moves undertaken in Manchester for some time, in the line of improvements, is that which looks toward the abolishing of Proctor street and the laying out of a new street to Smith's Point, which will skirt the harbor and run on a level way from Beach street, opposite Old Neck road to the present end of Proctor street, at the entrance to the Charles Read estate. This would do away with the steep and dangerous Masconomo Hill for those who now go to Smith's Point by way of Proctor street, and would cut five minutes off the time it takes to travel between the Point and the center of the town. The new way would be on a level with Beach street, all the way. It is understood that the right of way for this new road could be obtained with practically no cost. Much of the road would be over the edge of the harbor. The grocers and marketmen particularly would appreciate the advantage of this new road, as the present long pull over Masconomo hill is always hazardous and at times

State Supervision Means Much

Year by year the State of Massachusetts' supervision of Trust Companies is becoming more rigid and the qualifications of the bank examiners, who are obliged by law to make frequent examinations, is reaching higher efficiency.

The Massachusetts Banking laws make every stockholder of this bank liable to depositors for twice the amount of stock owned.

Add to these safeguards the management of affairs by our efficient officers and directors three of whom are Presidents of successful banks, and the semi-annual inspection by the stockholders examining committee, and you can feel absolutely secure in placing your account here.

Manchester is congratulating itself this year on the fact that although scores of thousands of automobiles passed through the town this summer, there was not even one arrest for overspeeding. The chief of the police department has counted as many as 475 automobiles pass before Manchester Town Hall on a midsummer day. The per hour average for passing autos on Sunday afternoons was well over 400. The High school orchestra have organized for the year with Ralph Hayward, cornetist; Miss Dora Marshall, pianist; Allen McKinnon, Joseph Carey and Miss Porter, violinists.

Surprised Mr. McGregor

About sixty friends of James McGregor, the well known caretaker of Miss Adele G. Thayer's estate at West Manchester, called at the place Wednesday evening and gave him a genuine surprise. Mr. McGregor has been in Manchester almost thirteen years, as caretaker of the Thayer estate. Miss Thayer has recently sold her place and has built a new summer home at Dublin, N. H. Mr. McGregor is to go to Dublin early next month to take charge of this new estate.

Thus it was that three score of his friends at Manchester and Beverly Farms, gave him a surprise Wednesday evening. By prearranged plan, some of the active ones in the party had cleared the carriages from the barn and substituted chairs and settees. About 8 o'clock Mr. McGregor was told that one of the horses in the barn needed attention so in haste he went to the place and turned on the lights. When he saw so many people seated and standing around he was almost stunned. He didn't know what to make of it; but soon awoke to the situation and proceeded to make the best of it.

There was plenty of refreshments and everybody joined in the spirit. During the evening Mr. McGregor of the occasion and had a good time. was presented with a handsome leather upholstered chair, the presentation being made by George S. Sinnicks.

Meanwhile a few ladies were with Mrs. McGregor at their cottage and a delegation of the men went to the house and presented Mrs. McGregor with some silver tea spoons. The affair was very successfully conducted, William Hawkesworth, a neighbor of Mr. McGregor, being the leading light in arranging the party.

Parent-Teacher Association

The opening session of the Manchester Parent-Teacher Association was held Wednesday evening at the Price school. The meeting principally was for the reception of the new teachers of the school corps, who were cordially welcomed to Manchester by the hospitality committee, Mrs. G. A. Knoerr, chairman; Supt. Mackin, Mrs. Beaton, president of the association; Miss Anne Clark, secretary, who in turn made the teachers and parents acquainted.

The new teachers are Miss Belle Porter of Stoughton, instructor of English at the High school; Miss Lilla Alger of Needham, commercial teacher at the High school; Miss Edith Folsom of Brockton, assistant principal at the Priest school; Miss Nolan of Portland, successor to Miss Jones at the Price school and Miss Fanny Knight of Manchester formerly located in Wakefield, assistant in first grade.

The musical and literary program comprised selections by the High school orchestra, composed of: Prof. Hayward, cornetist; Miss Dora Marshall, pianist; Miss Porter, Messrs. Carey and McKinnon, violinists.

Mrs. J. W. Lee favored the company with songs, Mrs. Edith Williams, accompanist; Mrs. W. C. Rust was to have played piano selections, but was obliged to be absent owing to indisposition. Postmaster Wheaton gave the practical talk of the evening bringing to the notice of the parents and teachers the benefits of the Postal Savings Bank now established in Manchester. Postmaster Wheaton urged such savings by the school child as a very safe investment.

Supt. Mackin made an announcement of the Gloucester Teachers' lecture course.

Grand Army Camp Fire—Francis M. Stanwood Arranged Interesting Program

Grand Army hall, Manchester, was filled to overflowing last Friday evening when a delightful program of addresses, readings and music was presented under the direction of Francis M. Stanwood of the summer colony, a member of the Post Associates. The camp fire was arranged in honor of the post, and the members of the W R C and S of V were invited to partake of the good things offered. General Chas. H. Taylor of the Boston Globe, was, as usual, overflowing with wit and humor, and was given a great ovation by the gathering.

After words of welcome by Commander Enoch Crombie, fourteen of the veterans marched into the room led by a drummer. They sang, "We are the Boys." Miss Brenda Cook sang and then Mr. Stanwood gave a talk on Patriotism. The keynote to his remarks was that "where the heart is, there is patriotism." He spoke of the placing of Lee's statue at the National capital, which he believed was the wrong kind of patriotism and was out of harmony with Northern patriotism.

Following Mr. Stanwood's address, which brought forth much applause, Miss Marcia Taylor, Mr. Stanwood's niece, sang very sweetly "The Star Spangled Banner." She was forced to respond to an encore.

"New England's Dead" was the subject of a reading by Mrs. Seddie Follett. Mrs. Eyberse sang a patriotic selection. Mr. Stanwood then read a poem "The Angels of Buena Vista."

General Chas. H. Taylor was then introduced, though he needed no introduction to a gathering of this kind in Manchester, as he is well known to every Grand Army man, and he has been here on several occasions to address the post. He was brimming over with good wit and humor, and story telling. He prefaced his story-telling by a brief talk on "Success in Life." "Whatever you do," he said, "do just a little more than is expected of you. The man who waits for luck to come to him, will wait a long while, for it will never come. We all need the microbe of industry and ambition. There is a great deal in knowing who

The war experiences of the soldiers and sailors of the Civil War were harrowing and the suffering and hardships were intense. At home the mothers and sisters and wives often suffered mental agony and suspense to which every battle added. The nurses of that war had an equally hard lot and many of them laid down their lives for the flag in the hospitals of the southland. Many have been called "to rest" and the ranks are thin. Mrs. John A. Fowle served as a nurse under exceedingly trying and dramatic conditions and although advanced in years has consented to address the Girls' Club of the Baptist church at Beverly Farms next Tuesday evening at 7.30. This is an unusual opportunity to hear of the heroic services of the Florence Nightingales of the Civil War by one of them. A large attendance is assured. The tickets are for sale at a nominal price by the members of the club. The Women's Relief Corps and the Grand Army Post are much interested in the lecture and the attendance will be enlarged by attendants from Manchester and Beverly.

The USS Mayflower, as per schedule, left her moorings off West beach last Sunday morning for New York. Many of the officers and crew before their departure were ashore bidding goodbye to their Farms friends and acquaintances. All expressed their pleasure for the hospitality shown them. On the other hand, the Farms people all have a good word to say for the gentlemanly conduct and good behavior of the crew, on every occasion when given shore liberty.

The finance committee at last Monday evening's meeting of the Board of Aldermen, reported in favor of spending $8450 for a new police signal system. Under the rules, this was laid over for action until the next meeting. At the Farms much is heard unfavorable to this new idea—many claiming that there is no need of the new system and that if the city has the above amount of money to spare, it could much better be utilized for improvements much more needed.

MASS MEETING AT BEVERLY FARMS

Will Ask City for Sidewalks and Other Improvements

Monday evening at Beverly Farms a mass meeting was held in Neighbors' hall under the auspices of the Beverly Farms branch of the Beverly Improvement society of which Mrs. Robert S. Bradley and Mrs. Washington B. Thomas of Boston and Pride's, are such leading lights.

Thomas D. Connolly presided but declined the chairmanship of the meeting, James B. Dow being unanimously elected in his place. Howard E. Morgan served as secretary.

Rev. Fr. Walsh had great praise for the ladies of the organization. He advocated better sidewalks and cleaner streets. He declared for gravel sidewalks with solid rock foundation, gravel covered with grass border and no curb to keep the looks of the country and would be the cheapest.

Mrs. Robert S. Bradley spoke on the necessity of cleanliness of streets as did Thomas D. Connolly, who also spoke on the guarding against the ravages of the leopard moth and how the pest must be fought.

Robert S. Bradley advocated the same kind of sidewalks as did Fr. Walsh. He cited the towns of Lenox, Stockbridge and Williamstown as examples of good sidewalks and the planting of trees.

Rev. Clarence Strong Pond stated that the subject was very near and dear to him and that he was greatly interested in it. "We have the spirit of unity here," he said. "All we need is to get together. There has been an isolation of interests. A living on parallel lines of the natives and the summer residents. We must find some point of common interest for both. We can find it in this question, and all can work together for the common good.

"We should start out from some center and work out from that. We could have two centers, have one at Pride's Crossing and one at the Farms, and beautify systematically from there."

Mrs. W. B. Thomas said that besides making good sidewalks the city should appropriate sufficient money to keep the streets clean.

H. E. Morgan stated that the question of sidewalks was not a new one with him and read some correspondence he had had with Alderman Loring on this very matter. He said that the aldermen were not forced to assess the abutters, but might do so, and on this ground the city could build and pay for the sidewalks without taxing the abutters a cent.

Fr. Walsh then moved that the meeting petition the city government to give Beverly Farms as soon as possible suitable gravel sidewalks with proper foundations of rock, and with grass plots instead of curb stones. This was seconded by Mrs. Bradley.

Mr. Morgan thought concrete sidewalks would be preferable and would not cost much more but Fr. Walsh said that the cost would be greater as they would have to have some foundations and that the city would not pay for concrete.

Mr. Chapman thought six inches would be sufficient for foundation but Mr. Connolly thought eight inches would be necessary.

Fr. Walsh's motion was passed unanimously.

W. B. Publicover thought that the streets should be drained and Mr. Pond made a motion that the city be requested to appropriate sufficient money not only to put the streets in good condition but also to keep them so from Chapman's corner down.

Wm. M. Moriarty expressed the opinion that Beverly Farms ought not to ask too much from the city at one time but to get the side-walks first and then go after the other things.

The motion was passed. Then a vote of thanks was given the Beverly Farms branch of the Improvement society for the good work done the past summer, after which the meeting adjourned.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Washington B. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Warren, Miss Thomas, Miss Bradley, Rev. N. R. Walsh, Rev. Clarence S. Pond, school committeeman James B. Dow, ex-Alderman R. E. Hodgkins, ex-councilman Thos. J. MacDonnell, John C. McCarthy, Charles H. Hull, H. E. Morgan, F. Leslie Woodbury, Eben Day, Gregory P. Connolly, W. B. Publicover, B. F. Hawkins, E. F. Campbell, Geo. Wiseman, J. Collins, T. W. Varney and many others.

BEVERLY FARMS

The farewell dance given to the young people of Beverly Farms by the crew of the USS Mayflower took place in Neighbors' hall last Friday evening. The hall was taxed to its capacity and the decorations were even more elaborate than at previous parties given by the sailors. At one side was a booth from which refreshments were served. The Mayflower orchestra of fourteen pieces furnished the music. At intermission they rendered a special selection from "Madam Butterfly." During the grand march the procession made the figures "GBBF," signifying "Good bye Beverly Farms." The affair was greatly enjoyed by all, as were the former occasions.

Tonight John West colony, Pilgrim Fathers, will hold its installation of officers in Neighbors' hall. The work is to be performed by Dept. Supreme Gov. Mrs. Estella McLaughlin of Lynn assisted by a degree staff from Francis Higginson colony of Salem. There will be present out of town guests including Supreme Trustee Wm. H. Carberry of Jamaica Plain and members of Wm. Jeffrey colony of Manchester. An interesting program has been arranged.

Mrs. Frank Mears and daughter Olivia, of Portsmouth, Va., wife and daughter of the officer in charge of the druggist department on the Mayflower, leave the Farms tomorrow for a two weeks' visit at Hingham before returning to Washington for the winter. While here they made many friends and their departure is of mutual regret.

At the Farms school assembly hall Wednesday afternoon, before the scholars and a goodly attendance of citizens, Mrs. Robert S. Bradley gave a talk upon the "Extermination of the Fly" which was illustrated by lantern slides by Miss Norton of Boston. Besides the above subject, the talk also included

The new uniforms for the Beverly Farms Brass Band have been ordered and will be delivered in about two weeks' time. They are black in color, braided, etc., and are very natty and serviceable.

Messrs. Arthur Standley, Frank L. Woodberry, eGorge S. Williams and Fred E. Pierce, who were members of Co. E in the Spanish War, on Wednesday evening attended the banquet at the Essex House in Salem, which affair was for the purpose of having the company members meet their former Captain, Fred W. Stopford, who is at present in Beverly on a furlough. Capt. Stopford is now stationed on the Pacific coast.

Of course the Proper Corset must have the Proper Fitting

There is as much, if not more, in the proper fitting of the corset as in the buying of it. This season of long and slender figure lines both should come under the supervision of an experienced corsetiere.

In this season's fashions each figure must be treated as individual to get the best results. You will find in connection with our corset shop a staff of experienced corsetieres well up in the fine points of their art and capable of choosing not only the right corset, but to give it the right fitting—giving to each customer individual attention.

Blanche Bates at the Hollis

Whenever the name of David Belasco precedes an attraction it is a beacon of assurance that the presentation is as perfect as brains, energy and capital can consummate, and whatever he does, he does thoroughly and accurately. This has been evidenced with lifelike fidelity upon every occasion a Belasco star comes to Boston, and another exposition of his wonderful technique is assured Monday night at the Hollis street theatre when this popular and brilliant star, Blanche Bates, will inaugurate a brief two weeks engagement in her immensely successful comedy "Nobody's Widow," a deliciously clever composition that ran for eight months in New York last season.

The central figure of this farcical romance, as it is designated in the advertising, is a keenly sensitive and dangerously attractive American woman, "Roxana Clayton" by name, who goes to Europe, falls in love for the first time in her life and precipitately marries this man of her choice. Before the honeymoon has risen above the wedding hour horizon, the newly made benedict is discovered by his bride fondly embracing and kissing a young woman, who is afterwards recognized as a former sweetheart.

Piqued at what she thinks an unpardonable indiscretion, Roxana leaves him, returns to America and arrayed in the most stunning of widow's weeds, announces the untimely death of her newly wedded husband. At a house party in Palm Beach the husband confronts the unsuspecting Roxana and the fun begins. Then for the three acts the complications come fast and furious, with the line of demarkation between farce and comedy so cleverly drawn that the master hand of David Belasco is readily recognized.

The engagement at the Hollis street theatre is limited to two weeks commencing Monday night.

SOCIETY NOTES

The return of Mrs. Warren Fairbanks to her western home after a season at Beverly Farms had a most unfortunate ending through the loss of one of her traveling bags containing $10,000 worth of jewelry, which was taken enroute from Beverly Farms to Chicago. She did not learn of her loss until last Saturday. The jewels as described to the police in Chicago were: One diamond necklace, set in platinum, valued at $5000; one diamond dinner ring set in platinum, valued at $1000; three solitaires, valued at $2000; one emerald solitaire and several small pieces of jewelry valued at $2000. Mrs. Fairbanks previous to her marriage was Miss Ethel Cassidy of Pittsburg.

Larz Anderson, minister from the United States to Belgium, is a cousin of Miss Ethel Anderson, daughter of Joseph Longworth Anderson of Sawyers Hill, Relay, Md., whose marriage to Dr. Henry Clark Thacher of New York was solemnized in St. John's Episcopal Church in Washington last Saturday by Rev. Roland Cotton Smith of Washington and Ipswich, the rector. The bride is also a cousin of Representative Nicholas Longworth, who married Miss Alice Roosevelt; of the Countess de Chambrun, wife of the military attache of the French Embassy, and also of Misses Harriet and Catherine Anderson of Cincinnati, nieces of Mrs. Taft. Dr. Thacher is now attached to the staff of the Bellevue and St. Luke's Hospitals in New York.

A very important social function of the October season on the North Shore was last Saturday evening's dinner party at "Eagle Rock," Pride's Crossing, which Henry Clay Frick gave in honor of Sec. of State Philander S. Knox. Entertainers were brought over from New York to provide after dinner amusement. Hon. Mr. Knox did not tarry long at Pride's leaving the North Shore on Monday. He found time, however, for a golf contest with Mr. Frick on the Myopia Hunt club's links.

The Ipswich Hospital Workers, who number many summer residents of Ipswich, held their weekly meeting with Miss Bertha Dobson of Windmill Farm. Among those enjoying the business and social session were Mrs. Fuller Appleton, Mrs. C. S. Tuckerman, Mrs. C. P. Searle and others.

WHAT a torrent of water will do when released from a reservoir is shown in the above pictures made immediately after the disaster that wiped out the little town of Austin, Pa. When the dam broke above the town and released the water that was held to furnish power for the Bayless paper mills the stream rushed down the valley with a force well nigh irresistible. The water took many tons of paper pulp with it and used it as a battering ram to demolish houses. Some large buildings were turned into splinters, others were swept away, but without being demolished, while a few that did not receive the full force of the flood were only slightly damaged. One of the pictures above shows a scene in the main street of Austin, where frame buildings were thrown pellmell against a brick block housing the local bank. The other picture shows debris piled many feet high at the railroad station. The bodies of the victims were in many instances buried under these tons of debris, and recovering them was thereby made slow and difficult.

William Choate, another of the early inhabitants of Hog Island, took up a seafaring life, and became a captain at twenty-five, making long voyages to the tropical South, bringing back marvellous curios, and probably, also, still more marvellous "yarns." He was a man of considerable education for those times having originally studied for the ministry. About the time of the Revolution he gave up his sea life, and in later years turned his early education to good account by becoming instructor for the boys on the island. He did such good work with them that they were soon much farther advanced in their studies than the boys on the mainland.

It was while this William Choate, the old sea-captain, was "in command at the island that one morning a strange fleet was sighted, standing a few miles out at sea, and flying the British ensign. As the British ships were more or less harassing the towns on the seacoast at this time, there was much excitement among the islanders, and a lively apprehension as to their fate should the British choose to attack them. Many of the women and children were hurried away to the mainland for greater safety, but Mrs. William Choate bravely refused to desert her colors, and remained at home with the Captain. Happily the alarm proved groundless. A few British officers landed, but offered no discourtesy, and the fleet soon sailed away.

An old, worn Bible of the sturdy old sea-captain is still in existence and is among the treasured possession of Hon. Joseph H. Choate, a direct descendant of the captain.

So life went on within the borders of the little isle, as in the greater world, with mingled joy and sorrow. There were courtships and marriages, births and deaths. The men tilled the soil, and bought and sold; they engaged in maritime enterprises some of them making long voyages to other countries in command of their own vessels. They served with honor in the Revolution, and later in the War of 1812. The women of their households were worthy helpmates, the younger daughters married into other families on the mainland or on the two or three other island farms and their descendants proved worthy of the race from which they came.

The original estate had been divided into smaller farms, each the home of a Choate family. The children of the different households were cousins or second cousins. There were, in the three Choate households on the island, as many as sixteen daughters of a marriageable age. Many a young man from Ipswich came across to the little isle to go "a-wooing." Tradition tells that one of the first who came bewildered by the sight of so many pretty maids, sought counsel from one of the matrons, asking her how he should choose. "I guess you'd better take Mary, she's the oldest," remarked the good dame, cheerfully. As "Mary" was as pretty and winsome as heart could desire, the young man accepted the advice, devoted himself to winning her affections, and in due time they were happily married. One by one the sixteen maidens found a lover to their liking and moved away to new homes on the mainland. One worthy squire, the father of seven, as he saw the last of his blooming damsels carried away, turned to his wife with a rueful smile and whimsically said, "Well, I don't know as I can even keep you much longer. I suppose it will be your turn next!"

One of the island's most illustrious sons was Rufus Choate, the great advocate, orator, statesman. He was born on Tuesday, October 1, 1799, at three o'clock in the afternoon, according to the careful record set down by his father in the family bible. His long life of usefulness and honor is well known. He was one of the most gifted lawyers, one of the most brilliant convincing orators, the world has ever known, and he served his country in private life as in House and Senate. When Rufus was about six months old his father purchased a house in the village of Chebacco, and moved there with his family, but doubtless many of the boy's summers were spent on the island. Rufus was peculiarly susceptible to the beauties of nature and he always loved the sea, in sight of which he was born, and in sight of which he died. He retained his fondness for the scenes of his childhood, and on one of his last visits to the island, in 1854, took a melancholy pleasure in seeking out each familiar landmark, peering into the depths of the old well, pointing out to his friends the place where, as a boy, he had raked and carried hay. The water, the marshes, the rising and falling tides, the passing ships, never lost their hold on his imagination. The night before he died, in Halifax, he had been watching the beautiful harbor and the ships. "If a schooner goes by," he said, "do not disturb me; but if a square-rigged ship goes by then wake me."

Today the summer visitor to Choate Island finds the scene as beautiful as in the early days when the subjects of King George found it "very fair to look upon." The woods that once covered the land have long since disappeared; the house built by the first settler on the island, Thomas Choate has been gone for a hundred years but its foundation stones are still pointed out. The house built in 1725 is the oldest now standing, and is unchanged in appearance, except for the piazza added about forty years ago. It is a type of the comfortable, old-fashioned farmhouse, with low-studded rooms and huge old fireplaces. In one of the rooms is shown the cradle in which Rufus Choate was rocked and a desk in later years was used by him. Near the house, on the crest of the ridge, visible for miles around is a large barn which bears the date 1775. Farther down the slope of the hill is another old barn through which a cannon-ball was thrown in the War of 1812 by a British Man-of-War, the seventy-four gun ship La Hague. The hole made by the cannon-ball was boarded up years ago and the place shingled over, so that no trace of it can now be seen.

On a beautiful knoll at the northern end of the island, on the Burnham estate, is the old Indian burying-ground. It is somewhat singular that during the long history of over two hundred years that the Choates have been born and have lived and died on their favorite island home, not one of them has ever chosen it for his last resting-place. The graves of the Choates have always been on the mainland.

There are now a dozen cottages on the island, owned by summer residents, Mr. Rufus Choate, nephew and namesake of the famous advocate, owns part of the original farm, and spends his summers in the old farmhouse.

There is a charm about the place; it seems a quiet refuge, a little haven of peace from the turmoil of the busy world of strife. Hon. Joseph H. Choate, who visited the homestead recently with his family and a small party of friends, seemed impressed by the peaceful aspect of the scene. While the rest of the party wandered about, visiting the historic spots, the ex-ambassador to England stood quietly looking at the view of river, sea, and shore.

With the memory of the early settler, "Governor Choate," in mind, he exclaimed, "I would rather be Governor of Hog Island,"—using the name familiar to his boyhood—"than to be Governor of Massachusetts."

It is no unimportant part in the history of the nation that has been played by this small island in the Essex River, since from its humble home have gone forth a race of mighty sons. It is good in these bustling modern days to look back at times to the simple life of our sturdy ancestors, to seek out the places where they moved and lived and toiled and suffered and died. It is good to visit the scenes they saw with the pure eyes of childhood, where they thought "the long long thoughts of youth." Looking out upon the blue sea from the shores of Choate Island, we may catch faint glimpses of "the trailing clouds of glory," may thrill with the same inspiration to a noble life which the island gave her choicest heritage to her choicest heritage to her well-loved sons.—By Mary H. Northend in Salem Dispatch.

The Russell Codmans of Boston, have concluded their season at the Clark cottage, Blossom lane, Manchester. They were privileged, however, to see the preliminary operations started for their new summer home on Proctor street, Manchester, before their departure. Both the building and mason work contracts are held in Manchester. Morley, Flatley & Co. are already at work on the foundation and the building contract has been secured by Roberts & Hoare. The house will be constructed of stone and wood and promises to be both commodious and attractive.

A bronze statue of William Cullen Bryant, the gift of the Century association to New York, was unveiled in Bryant Park and accepted by Mayor Gaynor Tuesday. The erection and unveiling of the statue is the culmination of a movement launched 28 years ago to honor the memory of the poet and journalist. Bryant brought the North Shore fame during his visits to Pigeon Cove, Rockport, with Richard H. Dana, Sr., and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

The W. A. Burdens, who have occupied the Stevens estate at Manchester this summer, have returned to New York City. They are to occupy the Coolidge homestead next summer, it is said.

$54,500 SPENT IN PRESERVATION OF NORTH SHORE WOODSMore Than 3200 Acres Cared for the Past Year—Work Carried on Largely by Summer Residents

The annual report of the summer residents committees in charge of the gypsy moth and road work on the North Shore has just been issued by William D. Sohier of the Beverly Cove colony, representing the committees. The gentlemen composing these committees are: Oliver Ames, Charles H. Tyler and William D. Sohier, Beverly; Major Henry L. Higginson, Gardiner M. Lane and George Wigglesworth, Manchester.

The report states the general purposes of the work as being "to preserve the forests on the North Shore, especially those directly back of the valuable shore property and also a strip from 100 to 200 feet wide on the sides of all our beautiful wooded drives."

As to the present conditions the report says: "Conditions throughout the territory, as a whole, are better than they have ever been. The warm, dry season, however, made the caterpillars on some places pupate earlier than usual, and the result was that a few of the colonies have more nests now than they had last year because it was impossible to spray them early enough in the season to kill all the caterpillars before they pupated. Over 3,300 acres were sprayed during the season. At one time there were over twelve spraying machines actively at work. We found that our new spraying machines were doing much more efficient and economical work than the older ones. They actually threw over the tops of the trees and made a finer spray, and were more economical because, with their additional power, nearly double the territory could be covered in one day with the same labor cost."

The work done the last year was in charge of the state forester's department. The money secured to carry on the work was obtained from the following sources: Beverly, $5000; Manchester, $5000; Gloucester, Beverly, $2500; state, $12,500; subscriptions summer residents, $12,500—making a total of $37,500. A grand total of $54,500 was spent in going over 3200 acres, the balance of the money necessary, over the $37,500 raised, being provided one half by the state and one half by the summer residents.

In regard to the wood roads the report says: "To all riders, drivers, pedestrians, and bicyclists the beautiful wooded roads are one of the chief attractions of the North Shore. There are over thirty miles of these roads which we have built and are maintaining wholly by subscription, at a cost of from $50 to $75 a mile annually. This money is obtained from a few of the subscribers to the moth fund, who allow their subscriptions to be used either for moth work or road work. It did not seem advisable to try to collect two separate subscriptions for work in the woods, as the repair of these roads is, relatively, a very small item."

"Our hopes for the future" is the heading of the last paragraph in the report. "Our forests can be preserved if the necessary money is provided and the work continued on the lines on which it has been begun. Your committee hopes that the subscribers, the commonwealth and the cities and towns will cooperate in the future as they have in the past. They hope that every resident and summer resident on the North Shore, who has enjoyed our woods, our trees and our dustless roads, and who has not yet subscribed or who has not yet given his fair share toward this work, will cooperate by sending a check to Wm. D. Sohier, agent, 15 Ashburton Place, Boston."

The list of subscribers shows that $14,675 has been subscribed by Beverly, $9,170 by Manchester and $2625 by Magnolia summer residents.

"Everybody" at B. F. Keith's

The genuine novelty of the theatrical season is promised for next week at B. F. Keith's Theatre, when Boston will get its first glimpse of Max Hart's new production, "Everybody." Like "Everywoman," its predecessor on the legitimate stage, "Everybody" is a modern morality play, all the characters in the story being symbolical, and while the locale is laid in New York City, it is applicable to a peculiar phase of American life found in every city, and is of intense human interest. In short, "Everybody" is nothing less than a complete dramatic production cut down and condensed into a twenty-minute playlet, the cast being one of the strongest and best balanced ever seen in vaudeville, and the production being unusually magnificent. Aside from "Everybody" the bill will have a wealth of novelties.

Tells Story of Great Fertilizer Corporation

Purposes, Organization and Properties of International Concern Set forth for Information of Public

Purposes, Organization and Properties of International Concern Set Forth for Information of Public

Unusual, almost unique, in the current history of corporations is a pamphlet just issued by the International Agricultural Corporation, setting forth the purposes and organization of the company and describing its plants and properties. The aim of the publication is not to exploit the Corporation's products, but to tell what it is, why and how it was organized, and what it is doing. Following are some quotations from the booklet:

Profit—money making—is the obvious reason for the organization of every commercial undertaking. But this belief in, and desire to develop the opportunity for profit in a given business must—if the belief is sound and the desire is honest—be founded on the service it is proposed to render in exchange for the expected gains of the enterprise.

Any new development in an old industry must, in order to be successful, do something different, do something better, supply some actual need.

The International Agricultural Corporation, organized in July, 1909, was founded on the belief—

That the chemical fertilizer industry in the United States, upon somewhat revised lines, afforded the greatest of commercial opportunities.

That the fertilizer business to be continuously successful must be based upon ownership of the sources of the crude materials required.

That the present was the time to undertake such a work, because the vast increase in the consumption of commercial fertilizers, year by year, clearly demonstrated that the farming community was awakening to the necessity of its increased use, renewing the fertility of depleted soils and doubling the yields of lands yet fertile.

That the company which gave the customer better condition of the goods furnished, better shipment of goods, better freight rates on goods shipped, would not be long in securing recognition.

With these definite purposes in mind, the International Agricultural Corporation has invested $18,000,000 of its authorized capital of $36,000,000, and for every dollar of stock issued (both common and preferred) has obtained tangible assets in the form of plants and properties, necessary in carrying out its plan to realize for its stockholders and the consuming public the benefits of an organization equipped with ample resources of raw materials and adequate manufacturing facilities so placed over the country as to secure the most economical distribution of its products.

No bonus of either common or preferred stocks was issued for brands, trade-marks, patents or good-will. There is, therefore, no "water" in the Corporation's capital.

Gathering the Raw Materials

The organizers of the International Agricultural Corporation fully realized that they must secure adequate sources of crude material supply, namely—Phosphate Rock, Sulphuric Acid, Potash, and Ammoniates—in order to produce at lowest cost complete fertilizer, containing in well balanced proportions the nitrogen (ammonia), phosphoric acid and potash necessary to plant life.

Carrying out its plan of operation, the International Agricultural Corporation purchased 42,000 acres of phosphate lands in Florida, and also secured the largest portion of the brown rock deposits of Tennessee.

The present yearly output of the mines owned by the Corporation is fully one-half of the total of land pebble product from all the mines in the state of Florida. Electrical energy for pumps, washers and transportation, oil burning dryers, concrete construction for dry bins, thirty-six miles of railway, conservation of water supply and "scientific management" in every detail of its operations are among the factors that enable the International Agricultural Corporation's properties to produce land pebble phosphate of all grades economically.

All known phosphate deposits of importance have passed from private owners into the hands of mining companies and their present valuation is far below their ultimate value.

Sulphuric Acid Supply

Instead of manufacturing its sulphuric acid from pyrites, as is customary, the International secured a ten-year contract with the Tennessee Copper Co., of Copperhill, Tennessee, and with the Ducktown Sulphur, Copper & Iron Co., Ltd., of Ducktown, Tennessee, for their total output of sulphuric acid, which it has been stated by the producers will exceed 260,000 tons of 60 degrees acid annually.

By means of tank cars (190 are in service at the present time) this acid is transported to the various works of the Corporation, and employed in manufacture.

Could Supply America's Potash for 350 Years.

At the time of the organization of the International Agricultural Corporation an opportunity was presented to buy on favorable terms one of the most valuable of the German Potash Mines—the Kaliwerke Sollstedt Gewerkschaft. This purchase was affected by the outlay of $4,000,000, for which the Corporation obtained a property estimated by experts to contain about 140,000,000 tons of potash salts, of which (making allowance for waste, etc.) about 70,000,000 tons—equal to 11,000,000 tons of pure potash, K₂O—should be available for mining. On the basis of last year's consumption of 200,000 tons (K₂O) the entire United States market could be supplied from the Sollstedt mine for a period of 350 years. The mine has a strictly modern plant, which alone cost more than $2,500,000. It has a present capacity of about one-third the annual consumption of the United States, and is being enlarged.

The only advantage of one potash producer over another is to be gained through favorable location of the property, quality of the deposits, and equipment for economical production on a large scale.

The Sollstedt mine has all these advantages, and a larger allotment than most of the mines. Sollstedt, in fact, is noted for having the lowest cost of production on record, which makes the plant exceptional in that it can operate profitably under heavy taxation and unfavorable restrictions as to output.

The benefits anticipated from the International's purchase of Sollstedt were to some extent minimized by the action of the German government, aimed to deprive Sollstedt's American customers of the benefits of increased production and much lower prices than the Potash Syndicate maintained. But under all circumstances the possession of the Sollstedt mine has proved to be a most profitable investment. The direct and indirect advantages of this independent investment in the potash industry have been maintained throughout the shifting phases of the "potash controversy," in which the International has sought to protect the interests of the American market as a whole, as well as to conserve its own interests.

By the term ammoniates is meant all those materials from which nitrogen is derived in the form most available for plant food. Many of these materials, such as nitrate of soda and sulphate of ammonia, are produced abroad and imported to the United States. Other forms are produced in this country—cotton-seed meal, dried fish scrap, and the by-products of slaughter houses—dried blood, animal tannage, etc., etc. The Corporation either owns outright or has close working arrangements with companies producing these materials, so as to be positively assured of its supply for future years, and by reason of the size of its purchases of other ingredients not produced by its interests is thus placed in the most advantageous position.

Position as a Manufacturer

In this regard the position of the International Agricultural Corporation is unique. Instead of purchasing the plants of competitors, as has been the custom of other large corporations in this industry, the International has caused to be built at the most advantageous points throughout the South, moderate sized factories, with sufficient capacity to serve the trade located in that particular territory on a minimum freight rate for the manufactured product. Securing its sulphuric acid from a central producing point, it is able to transport to any other given point only such amount of sulphuric acid as may be required for manufacturing at that point, while competitors owning expensive sulphuric acid works must run to capacity, frequently much in excess of actual need for the sulphuric acid so produced.

Broadly speaking, the most important product of the International Agricultural Corporation is what is known as acid phosphate. This material is produced by grinding phosphate rock to a powder and adding approximately an equal amount of 50 degrees sulphuric acid. The resultant material, a dry friable slate-colored product (acid phosphate), is used by all fertilizer manufacturers, and aside from the larger manufacturers, the southern states contain hundreds of smaller producers—the "dry mixers." That the plan of the International Agricultural Corporation is sound is proven by the fact that not only are the small manufacturers ready customers, but every large producer (those owning and running their own sulphuric acid works) have, during the last year, bought very heavily of the International Agricultural Corporation's production of acid phosphate.

Facilities for Distribution

The period of construction for the International Agricultural Corporation has not, as yet, been passed. One factory is still in process of building and one more just starting, but all will be in operation by November 1st, 1911. The position of the International Agricultural Corporation is such that by means of factories it owns outright, or through factories where its raw material is used and its manufactured product is controlled for sale, the Corporation can offer its products at eight points in Georgia, four in South Carolina, at three Alabama centers, and in Tennessee, Mississippi, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio.

Twenty acidulating works give to the International Agricultural Corporation the broadest possible base of operations and a capacity for manufacture fully sufficient to care for the supply of sulphuric acid which it is under contract to receive. Its production of acid phosphate will exceed 600,000 tons per annum.

To enlarge the market for its products the International Agricultural Corporation has made contracts with a limited number of independent plants in whose profits it participates. These arrangements, while preserving the independence of successful industries and retaining the benefits of local contact with the consumer, are mutually advantageous to the supply corporation, the local manufacturer, and to his customers.

Manufacturing Standards

In all the plants it owns or in which it is interested, the Corporation maintains the highest standard of manufacturing efficiency. Such standards are absolutely necessary in an industry where scientifically-exact compounding is essential to the value of the product. With advancing knowledge of the science of fertilization, its adaptation to different soils and crops, and the close supervision of the industry by governmental agencies, this care and expertness in manufacture, combined with the use of the best materials, becomes increasingly important.

To assure a uniformly high-grade quality of its products, the Corporation maintains testing departments, suitably equipped and employing experts whose duty it is to examine, analyze and report upon phosphate rock, manufactured goods and all other products bought and sold. The work of these laboratories is an insurance to the consumer that an International product is exactly what it purports to be, down to the smallest percentage of chemical content.

Educational Effort

It is intended to extend the laboratory, scientific and educational work of the Corporation so as to include soil and crop investigation. This is with a view to improving methods of fertilization and spreading the knowledge of its possibilities. By experiment, demonstration on a large scale of the use of fertilizers, and by the dissemination of sound information, the Corporation aims to be an educational force, co-operating with other agencies in the development of the science of fertilization; to keep up with the progress of the science, and to spread its teachings. Although great advances have been made in fertilization, much more remains to be done in the line of educational work throughout the American agricultural world. This line of endeavor cannot fail to benefit, not only the farmer but the whole nation, by making possible a larger food supply at a lower cost of production.

The annual consumption of commercial fertilizers is increasing at the rate of 500,000 tons annually, reaching a reported total of 5,765,341 tons in 1910-1911, valued roughly at $125,000,000.

Growth of the Industry

The past rate of increase is, however, no measure of future increase, for the reason that education in the proper utilization and value of fertilizers is proceeding more rapidly than ever before, and for the further reason that artificial fertilization, originally regarded as a necessity only on worn-out soils, is now known to be a profitable investment under nearly all circumstances. Whatever the crop may be, if a dollar invested in fertilizer will produce five dollars in the form of enhanced production, that form of investment becomes increasingly popular. The working out of this theory is already seen in the extension of the fertilizer market, once confined to the South, to include western and southwestern states.

And when it appears that the average American wheat production, for example, is but 15.8 bushels per acre, as compared to 30 bushels or more per acre in Germany, where fertilization has been reduced to a universally applied science, it is evident that the United States, with its millions of farm acres, affords a fertilizer market with boundless opportunities for expansion.

The problem of the fertilizer manufacturer is not—How should I increase my business by securing from my competitor that which he now enjoys? but—How can I increase my facilities for manufacture so as properly to care for the twelve and one-half percent natural increase that comes year by year, through a better appreciation by the farmers of the benefits derived from increased use of commercial fertilizer?

This is the story of the International Agricultural Corporation, with ample but not excessive capitalization, an economically sound organization, large resources of natural products, and adequate manufacturing capacity, to accomplish a useful service in the supply, manufacture and distribution of the materials necessary for the fertilization of American farm soils.

Extermination of the Fly

Discussed by Mrs. R. S. Bradley at a Meeting of the Manchester Woman's Club

The Manchester Woman's club arranged for a special meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the chapel to permit Mrs. Robert S. Bradley of Boston and Pride's, as a member of the sanitation committee of the Municipal League of Boston, to continue her extensive campaign for the extermination of the fly in behalf of sanitation.

In part, Mrs. Bradley stated that this was an age of progress and improvement and conditions should be cleaner and healthier. Backyards, markets and food stuffs should be kept under cleaner conditions.

The fly breeds in filth. He is a deadly pest. He is fond of the rubbish heap, the garbage barrel and all undesirable places.

From the health standpoint he is a menace. He is known as a transmitter of disease particularly infantile diseases. There are millions of bacteria on his peculiarly formed feet and claws. He has a strong sense of smell. That is why he is found where the odors are the strongest.

The fly multiplies by the millions—another reason why there should be a constant crusade against him. Keep the rubbish heaps from the yards; keep garbage receptacles covered; clean your stables once a week and more oftener if possible. The manure heap is a great breeder of flies. The fly is now a serious factor in good sanitation. School boys and girls should be impressed into the crusade as well as their parents to stop the transfer of disease germs by flies, especially typhoid.

Mrs. Bradley spoke of the fly traps, which could be baited with milk, a little vinegar or catsup. When the trap is filled, kill the flies with hot soap suds water. A good disinfectant to keep the flies away, or if eaten will kill them, is made of bichromate of potash, sugar and water.

In relation to markets and stores, Mrs. Bradley states that a great crusade is on by the league for covered food stuffs in markets and all protection possible is to be given articles of food from contamination, unnecessary handling, etc.

Several bulletins and circulars were distributed. "Don'ts for Automobiles," a circular of the Beverly Improvement Society; the bulletin of the "Fly-Fighting Committee of the American Civic Association"; "Please Kill That Fly" published by the Women's Municipal League of Boston, and others.

Mrs. Bradley did not forget the humorous note during her lecture and read several humorous anecdotes and items regarding the fly. She left a most favorable impression as an earnest speaker and worker for this branch of sanitation.

schools of Northbridge, Mendon and Hopedale, having been graduated from the Hopedale High school with the class of 1891.

After leaving school he served three years' apprenticeship at the machinist trade in the Draper company shops in Hopedale. During this time he was converted and united with the Baptist church of North Uxbridge. He became prominent in Sunday school work and work for young people, and soon came to definitely believe he was called to the work of the Christian ministry.

He spent three years in preparatory work at Worcester Academy and later entered Colby college, Waterville, Me., completing the A B course with the class of 1900. He preached occasionally during his college course. After leaving Colby he entered the Newton Theological seminary and was graduated with the class of 1903.

He supplied the Baptist church of Bethel, Me., the summer of 1902. In June 1903, he was ordained in the North Uxbridge (Mass.) Baptist church. In November 1903, he was called to the pastorate of the Baptist church at Mexico, Me.

During a successful pastorate of three years at Mexico, he was closely identified with the civic interests of the town and occupied a prominent place on the School board during these years. He accepted the call of the Islesboro Baptist church in March 1907. He was closely identified with young people's work as president for two years of Waldo County convention of Young People's societies.

In 1909, he was chosen pastor of the Free Baptist church of Islesboro. He has served as trustee of the public library while there. The work of the Islesboro pastorate has been marked by wise, progression in all departments of church work and a sane interest in the civic affairs of the town.

Mr. Warner was married in December 1907 to Miss Grace Mae Payson of Warren, Me. Mrs. Warner was graduated from the Castine Normal school and was a very successful teacher in prominent schools in Maine.

Gregor. Mr. McGregor is leaving Manchester soon for Dublin, N. H. to take charge of Miss A. G. Thayer's new estate. Mr. McGregor has always been a faithful worker in the interests of the N. S. Horticultural society. He was one of its founders and for many years has been its treasurer. He was its president at one time also. He was one of those instrumental in having the society incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts two years ago.

The presentation of the watch last Friday night came at the conclusion of the regular business and discussion session. The meeting was very largely attended. President A. E. Parsons in behalf of the members presented Mr. McGregor with the watch as a token of the esteem in which he was held by the society. The watch was suitably inscribed. Mr. McGregor thanked the members for the expression of friendship.

On the Welfare of the Young

At the Civic Forum in New York former President Theodore Roosevelt delivered an address on "The Conservation of Womanhood and Childhood" before the Civic Forum. The address turned upon two problems in democracy which are engrossing the attention of every thinking man and which directly or indirectly affect all, namely to provide for the maintenance of the authority of the constitution and the authority of the judges duly appointed and to provide for an assured opportunity for public opinion to become law. Mr. Roosevelt is a careful thinker and while open to the criticism of bluntness, it is a bluntness the American people like.

The demands which he makes appear simple but the political obstacles in the way seem insurmountable. To guard womanhood and childhood and correct the moral and industrial wrongs being done he suggests a bureau to be created by an act of Congress to collect and distribute accurate information on all matters relating to child welfare. He also makes a strong appeal for some method of government whereby the will of the people especially in progressive social laws shall not be nullified by the judiciary. It appears that in many social laws the determined will of the people has not become operative because of the judicial decisions which have nullified the demand of public sentiment.

The two demands are characteristic of Mr. Roosevelt and his voice crying in the wilderness will be heard. The possibility of a bureau created by Congress is both desirable and possible by congressional enactment and in line with the progressive traditions of both houses of Congress. The question of judiciary control by the people opens a great question in government. It is one that cannot easily be solved. While in many cases the will of the people has been subverted by adverse decisions it must be unanimously affirmed nevertheless that the great check and helpfulness of the judiciary system of the United States has been due in no large measure to their independence of any and all influence, political or otherwise. Any control of the judiciary must necessarily open the way for a misuse of that control.

President Taft made a courageous stand in his vetoes of the Statehood bills on a similar ground. He desired to place the judiciary of the State above any control. The method of control that Mr. Roosevelt suggests is not parallel with the Statehood bills, that is, by election or recall, but is nevertheless a comment in act on the principle. It is of importance that the will of the people be executed but it is an open question whether it can be gained by a control of the judiciary. Mr. Roosevelt is no dreamer and his pointed arguments are thought provoking and every careful student of governmental affairs will watch with interest the current of affairs to note whether the idea will take root. The argument is interesting and is sane. He says:

"I, for one, hold that if a majority of the people after due deliberation come to champion such social and economic reforms as these, they have the right to see them enacted into law and become a part of our settled governmental policy, and I shall never abandon the effort to see this view triumph.

"It is, I believe, an advantage to have fixed in the court the power to state that a legislative act is unconstitutional, but only provided that the power is exercised with the greatest wisdom and self-restraint. If the courts continue to use it with the recklessness that has too often been shown in the past it is almost inevitable that efforts will be made to amend it. It is a rank absurdity to hold that the violation of the constitution is 'evident' in a case where the present chief justice of the United States and enough of his colleagues to come within one of a majority held strongly the opposite view.

"Moral — Be a Hog"

The honorable Eugene H. Porter, health commissioner of the State of New York and the rightful possessor of accredited university degrees, one in arts and the other in medicine, made a striking appeal for better government provisions for tuberculosis sufferers in two simple stories, the one of a sick little mother and the other of the sick hog. The little mother fell sick and she applied to the government for information as to how she could get well and the government replied "it was not the business of the government to care for little mothers" and the little mother died and they buried her. A sick hog was discovered by a farmer and he wrote the government and the government did not wait for a letter, but sent a government man with government medicines and government instruments to see the hog and the hog lived. Moral: be a hog. The telling stories carried their point and the visiting delegates, from one hundred higher institutions of learning present at the reception of delegates in the event of the inauguration of Lemuel Herbert Murlin as President of Boston University, applauded approvingly, both the skill of the writer and the protest so artfully made. It often appears that the government is more engrossed with economic schemes than interested in helpful benefiting legislation. Fortunately Massachusetts is not so great a sinner as some of her sister states.

The High Cost of Living

The high cost of living is not a state affair, as some candidates would prove, nor yet a national matter, as some parties affirm, but seems to be an international problem. All continental Europe is protesting against the high price of living. The protests sound strangely familiar and advices from Berlin place the blame upon retailers and political parties. The protests are exactly such as can be read in American papers or heard in conversation in America. There is

"food" for thought in the Chancellor's statement, "that the Germans must be prepared to pay for a great economic development and the better standard of living with a higher cost." No one wishes a lowering of prices at the expense of lowering standards of existence. It looks as though many selfish interests would favor an increase in its revenue and rebel at increased charges, the revenue of other interests. Is it not true that even today a man "might live" more cheaply if he would, but it is a sign of civilization that a man is not content to exist. The "high cost" has come to stay because of the advanced ideals of the people as well as for other economic reasons.

"Dairy Sanitation"

The statement issued by the State Board of Health concerning the outbreak of typhoid fever in Attleboro in August attributes the cause to a defective drainage system in a Rehoboth dairy. Every milk consumer, and this must mean every one, applauds the courageous stand made by the board.

"The practical conclusion concerning this outbreak is that a more careful supervision of the farms supplying milk for public sale is imperative. With suitable State supervision of milk production, such outbreaks as this one might be prevented."

Such regulation will prove advantageous to every milk producer and be of vital importance to every consumer. The State has only begun the great work and the day must come when the producer can afford to assume the expense involved in sanitary cleanliness and scrupulous cleanliness.

The Old North Church

Bishop Lawrence's announcement at the Episcopalian club that the historical North Church will be renovated is received with joy by every loyal American. Every Bostonian and in truth every inheritor of the labors of the early colonists is interested in the preservation of these old historical landmarks. The proprietors and descendants of proprietors have steadily maintained a close corporation and only after a long wait Bishop Lawrence has succeeded to a pew right. Bishop Lawrence's interest in this old church has resulted in an increase of the number of proprietors. This movement is a source of satisfaction to every one and will assure the preservation of the ancient edifice.

Y M C A ?

An excellent opportunity presented in Manchester for public service is the often discussed Y M C A. Here is the opening for an interested person to perpetuate his name and do the community a great good. Magnolia has its Men's clubhouse and Beverly its Y M C A. There is every reason why Manchester can and should have a public social institution of this nature.

The young Seattle suicide left the note, in verse:

"The needless throbbings and yearnings

That hope unsatisfied brings
The weary longings and burnings
For never to be better things."

On its very face despair is written and the wrong attitude toward life revealed. Life is not a longing and a wishing but a struggling and a working to make "the better" things.

The admirable policy, followed in Manchester for years relative to sidewalks, has been the envy of many other municipalities. The paper comments upon Manchester's well-kept streets and systematic sidewalk program are satisfying. The systematic laying of sidewalks here has proven itself beyond the dreams of the advocates.

The sane, careful and persistent campaign of Lieutenant Governor Frothingham has been productive of great good. He won last year with an encouraging vote. Every day the Governor is losing and the republican party is gaining. The next Governor of Massachusetts will be Louis A. Frothingham.

There will be no recall of Mayor "Fitz." His party do not wish it and his opponents fear it. The recall if it failed, would mean four more years of Mr. Fitzgerald. It looks as though no recall will be a real recall—two years hence instead of four years.

Every one will acknowledge the superiority and intelligence of women, but nevertheless, the rampant, itinerant suffragette is doing more to delay the true cause for woman's rights than any organized attack in opposition.

The Unitarians have taken Washington. With a Unitarian President and a Washington convention of the Liberal Faith, there is a striking contrast to the early tumult of the transcendental days in New England in the fifties.

There ought to be legal means of restricting newspapers from exploiting amateur detective work by unscrupulous reporters. It is equally desirable that a more careful record of the sales of poisons should be made.

With a war imminent in Tripoli and an insurrection rampant and successful in China, it is evident that the days of millenium peace have not yet arrived.

A good lieutenant governor will make a good Governor.

A bank is not liable to the holder of a check until it accepts or certifies the check, and a bank is not bound to make partial payment on a check if the drawer has not sufficient funds to his credit to make full payment.

If a depositor draws several checks aggregating more than he has standing to his credit, the bank pays them in the order of presentation, without regard to dates or numbers, until the depositor's credit is exhausted. The bank may refuse to honor checks subsequently presented.

Every check must be endorsed by the person presenting the check at the window for payment. The endorsement should be on the back of the check and as near the left end as possible in order to make room for subsequent endorsements

These are a few facts about checks not as generally known as they ought to be. The convenience and safety of having a checking account at the Manchester Trust Company should be known and appreciated by every person in Manchester.

48-Hour Schedule

Beginning with the coming week the Breeze printing establishment enters upon a 48-hour per week working schedule. In making this step the office takes the initiative among printing and newspaper publishing establishments on the North Shore. It is the only office on Cape Ann working on a 48-hour schedule. There is one small office in Salem and several in Lynn working on this schedule, but all the offices in Gloucester, Rockport, Essex, Ipswich and Beverly work on the 9-hour a day plan.

This step is taken by the management of the Breeze as another mark of the splendid progress made by the paper since its birth 7½ years ago, and with the belief that an efficiency of equal merit can be obtained from capable workmen in 8 hours as in 9. The office will close Saturdays at noon as usual.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW

Splendid Exhibition of Flowers and Fruit by N. S. Horticultural Society

The fall exhibition of the North Shore Horticultural society—in fact the only exhibition of the year, because of the dry weather the first of the summer—was held in the Manchester Town hall Wednesday and Thursday of this week and was a splendid success as far as the quantity and quality of exhibits was concerned. From a financial standpoint the exhibition was far from being a success, as it was poorly attended. Most of the summer residents have gone and could not add their patronage to the affair, and the townspeople did not attend very liberally.

Mrs. Lester Leland was awarded the society silver medal for six vases of American chrysanthemums, also first prize for group of chrysanthemums and foliage plants arranged for effect.

Several fine exhibits were made in table decorations for six covers, for which first prize went to Mrs. James McMillan, and second to Axel Magnuson. Mrs. H. S. Grew also had an exhibit.

Mrs. Lathrop Brown made a large exhibit of rare orchids, taking four of the five prizes awarded. Mrs. Lester Leland took a first for three ocidiums. For foliage plants Mrs. Lester Leland won a first for a fine specimen of Phoenix palm, Mrs. R. D. Evans first for best pair. Mrs. F. M. Whitehouse was given a certificate of merit for six baskets of apples and Mrs. Philip Dexter honorable mention for apples.

A cup offered for best collection of vegetables was won by Mrs. Lester Leland. T. Jefferson Coolidge was given five firsts and a second in this class. George R. White, Mrs. George Wigglesworth, Mrs. Boylston A. Beal and Mrs. W. B. Walker were also among the successful exhibitors.

Mrs. Lathrop Brown was among those receiving the largest number of prizes, having exhibits in many classes and taking 10 first and half a dozen second prizes. Among the new exhibitors was Mrs. R. D. Evans of Beverly Cove, who showed a splendid group of foliage plants and had other exhibits. Another newcomer was Mrs. George von L. Meyer of Hamilton, who took second prize for the best collection of fruit, the first prize, the society silver medal, being awarded Mrs. R. D. Wigglesworth. She also took a first prize in the vegetable display.

ESSEX

Miss Ruth Low, assistant teacher in the Reading High school, spent Saturday and Sunday in Essex.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Perkins and child of Melrose, were guests of Mrs. Perkins' sister, Mrs. Frank A. Goodhue of Main street, during the past week.

One of the most interesting entertainments it has been our privilege to attend was given by the children of the public schools in the High school room Friday afternoon and evening, October 20th. It seems that early in the school year a new study was introduced into the schools,—industrial work of different kinds—mechanical, brass work, leather work, clay work, fancy work, sewing, cooking, manufacture of confectionery, and agriculture. Seeds supplied by the state had been given to the pupils in the spring and the results were brought to this exhibition, as was that of the different classes of work. The results were surprisingly successful. The exhibit was in charge of the parent-teachers association. The desks were used for tables. Herbert P. Andrews appointed three judges to award prizes—Mrs. Noah Burnham, Mrs. E. Frank Stanwood and Albert L. Butler. They awarded prizes as follows: Vegetables—1st, potatoes, Edith Riggs; 2d, squash, Foster Andrews; 3d, corn, Ruth Buckley. Raffia—1st, Thomas Boutchia, basket; 2d, Marjorie Elwel; third, Louise Boutchia. Mechanical—1st, Raymond Muleahy; 2d, Thorndike Cheney; 3d, John Hardy. Clay Work—1st, Elmer Andrews. Doilies

—1st, Ella Norton; 2d, Katherine Goodhue; 3d, Mary P. Burnham. Cooking—1st, Margaret D'Entremont; 2d, Gladys Lufkin; 3d, Alice P. Burnham. Brasswork—1st, Samuel Andrews; 2d, Raymond Butman; 3d, Grace M. Hart. Confectionery—1st, Jesse Lee; 2d, Evelyn Cogswell; 3d, Ruth Haskell. “The Three Romeos” at the Colonial Theatre

“The Three Romeos” a new American musical comedy will begin a limited engagement of two weeks at the Colonial next Monday.

It is a relief to have the authors come boldly forth and place a native label on their workmanship. Possibly it means that the Viennese operetta has passed its cycle on the American stage. Since the vogue inaugurated by “The Merry Widow” there has been a rush of foreign musical play productions in this country. It has been so overpowering as to turn most of the American authors and composers into mere adapters.

The situation has not been very encouraging for them. It deadened originality. It is therefore, good to learn that the book and lyrics of the new comedy are by R. H. Burnside. He has resigned as the director of the New York Hippodrome and this is the first complete book from his pen to be offered since his retirement.

Raymond Hubbell composed the music for “The Three Romeos.” He has originated a score that is rich in melody and orchestration and free from the common-place. To have brought such able men as Burnside and Hubbell together is an accomplishment from which Messrs. Fellner and Dreyfus must reap a worthy harvest.

Mr. and Mrs. John Story of Melrose, were guests of their daughter, Mrs. Frank H. Goodhue of Main street, during the past week.

Miss Mardie Story of Wellesley college, and Miss Lelia Raymond of Simmons college, were home over Sunday.

Miss Mary Burnham, assistant superintendent of the Norwood public schools, was home over Sunday.

What bid fair to be a close and exciting football game between the South Essex Wasps and the Essex Giants on Saturday was prevented by the stormy weather. The game was to have been played on the green near Mount Wisdom.

Geo. B. Brown of Ipswich was in town on Monday.

There was quite a bit of excitement at South Essex one evening last week. Stones were thrown, a pistol was discharged, and a store window broken. No one was seriously injured. It is said arrests may follow.

The subject of the sermon at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon was "Elements of Power in the Christian Church," based on the following passages of scripture: John 10:10; 14:2; Acts 2:4, 41. The three elements of power considered as essential are: activity to the extent of self sacrifice, faith in a living personal saviour, inspiration of the Holy Spirit.

The Epworth League will hold a business meeting at 7.30 Saturday evening in the church. After the business is completed a social will be enjoyed by the young people and refreshments will be served.

The Essex part of the whirlwind tour of the Republican candidates Tuesday was a great success. Some 300 people gathered at the bridge and gave the speakers as they rode up in their automobiles a very cordial greeting. A few moments were given to meeting the people and giving them a hearty handshake and then W. W. Lufkin stepped forward and introduced our next Governor, Mr. Frothingham. Besides Mr. Frothingham, the speakers were Speaker Walker, Senator Tolman of Gloucester, and Rept. Norwood of Hamilton. The suffragettes, who had quietly ridden up as the speechmaking was in progress, next opened fire. It was very evident by the royal welcome accorded the Republican candidates that Essex holds to its old tradition of being an almost "solid" republican town.

Ben-Hur to be Staged at the Boston Theatre Next Month

With all of the opulent splendor of the Orient, the magnificence of Rome in her most glorious days, and the beauty of tropical settings, "Ben-Hur" will return to the Boston Theatre, Boston, on Thursday evening, November 2d, for a limited engagement.

Klaw & Erlanger, the owners of this most wonderful piece of theatrical property, have this season given it a production which in magnitude and spectacular grandeur will outdistance any production ever before seen on the American stage or perhaps in the theatres of any country. It had been the intention of Klaw & Erlanger to make this beautiful revival of General Lew Wallace's classic at their home playhouse, the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, but the great success of the musical comedy, "The Pink Lady" at that house where it is now in its ninth month, makes it inadvisable to transfer that attraction, and Boston will thus have the first opportunity to look upon the exquisite settings and the gorgeous pageantry of the new production. The magnitude of the scenic settings is of such a nature there are only

A movement to have the school year changed, so that the public schools of Maine will be opened for the fall term two weeks later than at present, has been started by some of the citizens of the town of York, who recently organized under the name of "The New England Uniform School Law Association."

The idea of the organizers is that ultimately the movement will spread beyond the confines of that state so that the time of beginning the school year will be uniform through all New England at least. The object of the organizers is to keep the summer visitors at the beaches and other resorts for a longer period than is now the case.

The degree team of the Salem colony assisted. The marching and evolutions were splendidly done and evoked hearty applause. The officers installed were: Howard E. Morgan, governor; Mrs. Wm. H. Among the speech makers were Deputy Mrs. McLaughlin, Mr. McAnarney of Lawrence and the Governor of Wm. Jeffrey colony of Manchester. Supper was served in G A R hall, followed by an entertainment in Neighbor's hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin M. Rogers of Waterbury, Conn., have spent the past week visiting Beverly Farms friends.

Some meetings have been held lately among the young men who attend the Farms Baptist church, for the purpose of forming a young men's Bible class similar to the Foss Bible class of Beverly. Progress has been made to the extent that such an organization is likely to be formed very soon.

The "Coot stew" supper which was planned to take place at the Farms engine house the latter part of last week, took place Tuesday evening and was enjoyed by a large party. Engineer Walter Wright was the chef and right well did he perform his duties. After the repast a social hour was spent, a part of which included a musical program.

George W. O'Dea, who conducted a painting business here with a shop at Pride's, has just entered into another industry, the grocery business, at his old home, Bucksport, Me. Mr. O'Dea is the owner of the Bucksport ferry.

Tuesday W. E. Macdonald the new station agent at the Farms, was given a surprise at the Beverly freight office, where the employees gathered around him and presented him with a handsome leather traveling bag as a token of their appreciation and esteem.

The Girls' orchestra met last evening for the first time after the summer vacation and for the coming winter months have decided to make their gatherings of a social nature.

Last Tuesday was closing day at West beach. The shutters were put on the bathhouse and the doors locked. Supt. George Metcalf also concluded his season's duties there.

A number of Farms residents might have gotten the impression that the Farms fire department had a new piece of fire apparatus, Tuesday evening, as an auto combination truck was resting in front of the West street station for a short while. It belonged to Gloucester and was on its way to that city from the repair shop.

Russell Cadigan of the Farms, a graduate of the Beverly High school last June, has secured a position as clerk in the City National bank, Boston.

A large audience greeted Mrs. John A. Fowler at the Farms Baptist chapel Tuesday evening to hear the famous Civil war nurse lecture. She was interesting and entertaining and her subject covered many reminiscences of those trying times from '61 to '65 on the battlefield and in the hospitals where she nursed the wounded soldiers. She also sang some songs that she used to sing in those days and also exhibited many interesting souvenirs and mementos of the battles, including a Confederate flag. The affair was conducted by the Girls' club.

Last Tuesday evening some Beverly Farms people missed the last train home from Beverly and either had to stay in Beverly all night or come by motor or carriage. They were in the station waiting room and a freight came in on the inward track, blocking the way across, with the result that when the Gloucester branch theatre train came into the station, they could not get across to their train,—another reason why there should be another waiting room on the other side of the tracks at the Beverly station.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hawkins of Boston have moved to the Farms and are occupying apartments in the Geo. S. Hadley house, Hart street and Greenwood avenue. Mr. Hawkins has charge of the Bartlett estate, Grove street.

Wilbur E. McDonald is the new station agent at Beverly Farms, the transfer taking place Wednesday. The new agent has been for a number of years the cashier at the Beverly freight house.

For Better Sidewalks at Beverly Farms

The petition of the Beverly Farms residents for better sidewalks at Beverly Farms, came before the board of aldermen at their meeting last Monday night. The petition as printed in last week's Breeze was read and evoked considerable discussion. Alderman Loring said that we needed better sidewalks not only at Beverly Farms but throughout the entire city. He was in favor of building sidewalks and the city pay for them. Of course that might call forth some criticism from people who had paid half for their present sidewalks, but because we had done this in the past, it was no criterion that we should do this in the future. He believed in granolithic sidewalks for the center of the city and for brick or concrete in the outlying districts. Alderman Torrey said that the street committee had submitted their estimates for the ensuing year and he thought that instead of referring this matter to the street committee, it would be well to refer it to the finance committee and then if they thought favorably they could provide for sidewalks at the Farms in the Budget. Alderman Ropes said that he was a believer in sidewalks, but he did not think the city should pay for them at the Farms and make the abutters in the center of the city pay one-half. Alderman Loring said that he did not mean that, he meant that the city pay for all sidewalks. We should have a comprehensive plan and build good sidewalks throughout the city, even if we had to bond the appropriation. There are more people walk than ride, and sidewalks were just as important as good streets. Alderman Woodberry moved that the matter be referred to the finance committee and it was so referred.

Commenting on Alderman Loring's remarks at the meeting, the Salem Evening News says: "The remarks of Alderman Loring at the meeting of the aldermen Monday evening upon the question of sidewalks, in speaking of the petition from the Farms, are receiving commendation all over the city. His position is generally approved by the tax payers. There is nothing that will give more satisfaction than decent sidewalks."

L. Three large boxes have been made for transportation and they will be sent out so arranged that the city home will receive its supply regularly each week. The agitation for better sidewalks and cleaner streets started at the Farms is pretty sure to bear fruit. It is expected that in making up the annual budget for the new year the matter of appropriation for sidewalks will receive especial attention and it is possible that Ward 6 may receive a special sidewalk appropriation.

SOCIETY NOTES

Miss Mabel T. Boardman of Washington and Manchester has been in Pittsburg this week to attend the Steamboat Centennial and National Mine Safety Meet, which started Monday and continued through yesterday. President Taft was in Pittsburg Tuesday. Monday afternoon Miss Boardman was the guest of honor at a reception Mrs. Henry Kirke Porter gave at Hotel Schenley. Twenty-five of Pittsburg's leading society matrons assisted Mrs. Porter at the reception. Other distinguished North Shore summer residents in Pittsburg for this great event were Congressman and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and John Hays Hammond. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Longworth christened the "New Orleans," a replica of the boat launched there in 1811. Pres. Taft gave an address in the bow of the boat. Tuesday morning the "first aid," in which Miss Boardman is so much interested from the Red Cross standpoint, was held in Forbe's field in the presence of many distinguished visitors and thousands of miners and engineer experts, from all over the world. Tuesday night there was a big banquet and reception in honor of President Taft given by the chamber of commerce. Monday night Congressman Longworth was among the speakers at Carnegie Music hall. Monday evening there was a reception for the women guests at Hotel Schenley given by the historical and patriotic societies.

Miss Lois McGinley of Pittsburg and Manchester, gave a theatre party in Pittsburg Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Betty Woods and Miss Mary B. Snyder. Supper was served afterward at the Pittsburg club.

Mr. and Mrs. Frazier Curtis of La Jolla, Cal., were passengers on the incoming Cymric to Boston. Mr. Curtis is a son of Mrs. Greely S. Curtis of Boston and Manchester and a Harvard '98 man.

The James L. Paines of Cambridge, have closed their cottage on Hale street, Beverly, for the season.

SOCIETY NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner Martin Lane of Marlboro street, Boston, and Manchester, have been spending some days in Baltimore visiting the latter's father, Dr. Basil L. Gildersleeve, and taking an active part in the celebration of Dr. Gildersleeve's 80th birthday, Monday of last week. During the afternoon a tea was given at the family residence, which was attended by some 200 guests, including the faculty of Johns Hopkins University, with which Dr. Gildersleeve has been long and prominently identified, while formal congratulations were received from Yale, Princeton, Harvard, Columbia and other colleges. The drawing rooms were elaborately decorated with white chrysanthemums and American beauty roses, and in addition there were scores of floral tributes received. In the evening there was a family dinner, and the day ended happily for all concerned. Dr. Gildersleeve is almost as well known in Boston and on the North Shore as in his native city, and has spent his summers either with the Lane's at Manchester or in East Gloucester, at Hawthorne Inn, for many years. Notwithstanding his advanced age, Dr. Gildersleeve's physical and mental condition leave nothing to be desired, and his literary work is being carried on with much vigor and enthusiasm. The Lane estate at Manchester is now closed for the season.

Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, daughter of Hon. A. Shuman, who annually summers with her father at "Hemere," Beverly, recently opened her Boston residence on Commonwealth avenue in behalf of Lady Gregory of the Irish players, who gave a talk on "The Making of a Theatre."

The Albert J. LeBretons of San Francisco, brought their North Shore season to a close on Tuesday. They have been tenants of the Roberts cottage at West Manchester.

Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw will close "The Commons," her Pride's Crossing cottage, tomorrow and will remove to her Jamaica Plain residence for the winter.

SOCIETY NOTES

Allen B. Farmer of Boston, for many years a prominent summer resident of Bass Rocks, son of Hon. and Mrs. Lewis G. Farmer, was united in marriage Thursday of last week to Miss Natalie M. Morrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Morrison of 20 East 49th street, New York city. The wedding took place at the Church of the Messiah in New York. The bride was given away by her father. She wore a gown of white satin with court train embroidered in pearls and rhinestones and a veil of old point lace fastened with a spray of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and gardenias. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom. She was attended by her sister, Miss Abby P. Morrison, and the Misses Hopeton Atterbury, Martha Orr, Dorothy Smith and Susanne Merrill. Mr. Farmer has many friends on the North Shore. For years he was one of the leading spirits in summer baseball circles, and in the sports at Bass Rocks and did much to encourage sport among the summer colonies. At Yale he made his mark on the varsity football eleven, playing full back, and making a big record in the important games of a few years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Farmer will reside at 479 Beacon street, Boston.

The boats of the so-called "One Design" type, that have been in such favor with the younger element on the North Shore the past two seasons, are to play a prominent part in yacht racing next season. A contract for building nearly twenty for members of the Eastern Yacht club has been awarded Lawley of Neponset. The boats are similar in model to the Manchester one design class, and to the Cohasset class, being seventeen feet waterline. Edwin A. Boardman is designer. Fully twenty-five members of the Eastern Yacht club are expected to subscribe to the class.

The Paul Moores have concluded their extended autumn visit with Judge and Mrs. W. H. Moore of New York at Pride's. Their winter residence is at Morristown, N. J.

HELP TO PRESERVE OUR ROADS

"Help to preserve our roads" is the title of a very important section of the report of the committee of summer residents who work so energetically every year in behalf of better roads, the opening of wooded roads and the preservation and care of our forests. The part of the report to which we refer is as follows:

travel, being around a corner, has to a large extent been spread over the entire road. The consequence is that the whole road surface is in good condition.

"The other shows a piece of the same road, beyond the corner, which has the same travel. On this section, deep ruts have been formed beunevenly, and it forms in bunches. These are very hard to repair.

"If all drivers and operators would cooperate with the road builders to the extent of always keeping out of the rut or wheel track our roads would be in much better condition, and in many instances the automobile travel would not injure the roads at all, except at extremely fast rates of speed or when there were tremendous numbers of them.

"This is true, not only of the roads in Beverly, but elsewhere throughout the State.

"Keep out of the rut!

"Make your chauffeur keep out of the rut, and so help to preserve our good roads."

SOCIETY NOTES

A brilliant event of the new year will be the wedding of Miss Beatrice F. Atterbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Turner Atterbury, and Oliver Iselin which will be celebrated in New York. There is much Boston and North Shore interest in the event as the bride elect is a sister of Mrs. John Appleton Tuckerman (Katherine S. Atterbury) of Boston and Ipswich. Mr. Iselin graduated from Harvard in June. He was a Beck Hall host during the commencement festivities.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Mrs. George von L. Meyer and daughters have been in New York this week to witness the great naval pageant of 102 U. S. Warships in Hudson River. Yesterday President Taft reviewed the fleet with Sec. Meyer. The event has been considered the most notable assemblage of war craft in the history of the modern American navy. Much North Shore interest was attached to the event since the U. S. S. Mayflower, which has been in Beverly Farms harbor all the season, served as Sec. Meyer's flagship. The warships, which have visited Rockport, Gloucester, Beverly and Salem harbors the past season were also there.

Among the young Boston and North Shore girls in Paris is Miss Lucy Aspinwall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Aspinwall of Chestnut Hill and Coolidge's Point, Manchester. The Aspinwalls, while in Paris, make their home at the Hotel Brighton.

Miss Primrose Colt and her fiance, Andrew Weeks Anthony of Boston and Beverly Farms, have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Beeckman at Newport.

Oiled Road Not Rutted Because Travel Spread Around The Corner

Same Road Where Ruts Were Made By Automobiles Following One Track

"All users of the highways must have noticed how rapidly they are being destroyed, and the ruts which are so quickly developed by fast automobile travel.

"We present herewith two photographs of oiled roads. On one the cause automobiles and other vehicles have all traveled in one track.

"Traveling in one track not only develops ruts, but on oiled roads it develops ridges and mounds on the sides because it pushes out the material underneath the wheel track

SOCIETY NOTES

Mrs. Taft and Miss Helen Taft are settled very happily at Hot Springs, Va. They are occupying Fern Villa, the Seth Barton French estate. The villa is elevated on Sunset Hill, southeast of Homestead Hotel. The Presidential family will spend November there and later will be joined by the President. It is like midsummer at the Hot Springs. The thinnest of white clothing is the order with the fair sex, who are out in large numbers on golf links and tennis courts. Those who drive need no wraps. Mrs. Taft is seen walking daily with her sister, Mrs. Laughlin, or her daughter. Mrs. T. DeWitt Talmadge and Miss Rebecca Collier of Washington and Magnolia, are at Homestead Hotel, Hot Springs. They are doing much entertaining. Among their recent hospitalities was a chrysanthemum dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Barr who have been visiting Mrs. Barr's estate in Virginia, have returned to their home on Beacon street in Boston. They spent the week-end at their cottage at Beverly Farms. Mr. and Mrs. Barr will entertain a house party at Beverly Farms during the holidays.

Judge W. C. Loring is still confined to his Pride's cottage by indisposition.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Bemis are prolonging their stay at Beverly Farms until November 20th.

Larz Anderson, the newly appointed minister to Belgium, began his duties at Brussels Wednesday. The Andersons have had taken across the Atlantic their superb stable of horses, a half dozen automobiles and the majority of their household servants. Their beautiful estate, Weld Garden, in Brookline, will remain closed during their stay in Europe. Mrs. Anderson is a lavish entertainer, and she and her husband will be popular in the diplomatic social set at Brussels. Mrs. Anderson is one of the best known society women at Washington, where she spent much of the winter seasons.

The Robert S. Bradleys will not close the beautiful Bradley estate at Pride's until November 14th.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Abbott of Boston and West Manchester, have been spending a portion of the week in New York city.

Team Could Be Driven Through Hole Knocked In Liner Olympic

SEAMEN have been speculating as to whether or not a smaller vessel would have remained afloat if rammed as the British cruiser Hawke rammed the Olympic, the biggest ship ever built, near Southampton a few weeks ago. Some experts have expressed the opinion that a smaller vessel would have been sunk. The Olympic, protected by water tight bulkheads, carried her 1,700 passengers safely to Southampton. The hole smashed in her side was large enough for a team and wagon to have been driven through it. The photograph was made after the Olympic returned to Southampton. It shows the tremendous hole made by the Hawke's ram. Divers are also shown inspecting the Olympic below the water line to learn the full extent of the damage. Passengers on the Olympic who witnessed the accident blame the officers of the cruiser. The warship was steaming alongside the huge liner when she suddenly turned as if to pass in the rear of the Olympic, but made a miscalculation and crashed into her. The Hawke nearly capsized, and her prow was smashed by the impact.

SOCIETY NOTES

Mrs. George Lee will give a large tea at her residence, Boylston street, Brookline, Monday afternoon, November 20th, from 4 until 7 o'clock, to introduce her third daughter, Miss Florence Lee. The Lees are among the late sojourners at Beverly Farms.

Mrs. Clarence Moore of Washington and Pride's, who has been absent from the North Shore this season is in Paris and was a conspicuous figure at the recent French races at Tremblay, where also was Mrs. Wm. K. Vanderbilt.

The Friday evening informal skating parties given by the naval officers at the Charlestown Navy Yard, are proving delightful in the extreme, and are an innovation of the autumn. The affairs are held in the sail loft, and the Marine Band furnished music. Those who are disinclined for skating play bridge, and it is all very merry and enjoyable. Lieut. D. McD. LeBreton of the Charlestown Navy Yard and his sister, Miss Marguerite LeBreton, of San Francisco and West Manchester, are active in the social life at the Navy Yard.

SOCIETY NOTES

Miss Edith Gracie, daughter of Colonel Archibald Gracie of the United States Army who spent the greater portion of the season in Manchester with her parents, will make her debut in Washington society Thanksgiving night. Miss Gracie was educated in New York and Paris.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Lord and Lady Decies have planned to arrive shortly in New York to be with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, until after Christmas. Lord Decies is to be a judge at the horse show at Madison Square Garden, opening on November 18th.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Ambassador and Mrs. Curtis Guild have concluded their stay in Paris, where they were made much of by the Anglo-American colony, and have returned to their fine residence in St. Petersburg, where they are expecting to entertain a succession of visitors from America. The former residence of the Guilds on Marlboro street, Boston, will be occupied by Attorney-General and Mrs. Dana Malone and their young daughter, who are expected from their country home in Greenfield this month.

HAND LOOM LINENS

The words "Hand Loom" carry with them all that is best in Irish Linens. The British Parliament by an act of law has made it a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment to weave the words "Irish Hand Woven Linen" on any fabric except the genuine. It is this Linen that we wish to bring to your attention. The Irish peasants take golden flax, spin it into yarn of hair-like fineness and weave from 10,000 to 14,000 of these threads into every yard of these goods in hand looms in exquisite periodic designs. They are also shrunken and bleached by nature's method, by dew and sunshine on the grass along the brooks, thus insuring a durability which with the exercise of ordinary care will last for generations.

Let us Show you these "Irish Hand Woven Linens"

Robert A. Taft, son of the President, and Charles E. Hughes, son of the ex-Governor and present justice of the Supreme Court, both of Washington, were two of the four recipients of the Sears prizes of $375 each that were announced Wednesday by the faculty of Harvard University for students of distinction in the law school. J. G. Buchanan of Pittsburgh and F. S. Wyner of Dorchester were the other two men to receive the awards for particular brilliancy in law study. The Sears prizes are from a fund founded in 1909 by Mrs. S. C. Sears, in memory of her son, J. M. Sears, Jr., '00, a graduate of the law school. They are to be awarded according to the deed of gift to "the students of the law school who shall have done the most brilliant work in classes."

Importance of Proper Description of Merchandise Offered for Exportation

Exporters, manufacturers preparing material for exportation, and transportation companies carrying merchandise of this character will be interested in a circular just issued by the Bureau of Statistics, Department of Commerce and Labor. It calls the attention of persons forwarding merchandise from the interior for exportation at the seaboard or border ports to the importance of accompanying the same with a proper and detailed description. The official "Export manifest" supplied to the collector of customs by the export agent or other person at the port at which the merchandise leaves the country is necessarily the sole reliance of the collector of customs for the description which he forwards to the Bureau of Statistics, and upon which that Bureau must base the information which it gives to the public regarding the character of merchandise exported. Thousands of copies of this circular are being distributed to exporters, a large proportion of them being forwarded by the transportation companies and export agents. It is the desire of the Bureau of Statistics that all persons engaged in or contemplating entering the export trade should carefully study and comply with the law and regulations governing the description of exports. The importance of a thorough understanding of this subject is illustrated by the following extracts from the laws and regulations quoted by the circular letter in question:

"Before a clearance shall be granted for any vessel bound to a foreign place (or noncontiguous territory of the United States) the collector of customs shall require the owners, shippers, or consignors of the cargo to deliver to him manifests of the cargo or the parts thereof shipped by them, respectively, which manifests shall specify the kinds and quantities of articles shipped by them, respectively, the value of the total quantity of each kind . . . and the foreign country in which such cargo is truly intended to be landed. The manifests shall be verified by the oath of the person by whom they are respectively made and subscribed." (Revised Statutes; 337, and Act of April 29, 1902; Customs Regulations 1908, Art. 1606).

"The merchandise must be described in specific and not in general terms. Such designations as 'fruit,' 'provisions,' 'groceries,' 'meats,' 'canned goods,' 'hardware,' 'machinery,' etc., or any other general term must not be used. . . . The quantities in all cases where practicable . . . must be specified." (Customs Regulations 1908, Art. 1606).

"Agents of steamships, transportation companies, and others at points of shipment on the seaboard to whom is consigned merchandise on through bills of lading, or otherwise from interior ports for export, should require the owner or shipper at the interior or initial point of shipment to accompany the merchandise with a list thereof or transmit by mail such list to the consignee or agent who is to clear the merchandise at the seaboard port for his information in preparing a proper manifest for the clearance of the goods. This list will show the kinds, quantities, values, and country of ultimate destination of the articles." (Customs Regulations 1908, Art. 1607).

Quantities of apples have been raised in the orchards, sufficient to generously divide among the immediate family and to be sent, as is the annual custom, to various charitable institutions throughout Boston. This is one of very many philanthropies unostentatiously carried on by this esteemed North Shore family.

The autumn season at Marblehead is being made very interesting for late sojourners by the flights of the W. Starling Burgess Company's hydro-aeroplane. During the several flights and trips on water the machine has covered practically all of the harbor. When running slowly, the machine threw up quite a spray. It lifts easily and in this respect is said to be in great advance over any of the few previously tried in America. Atwood, the famous aviator, has been in Marblehead trying the machine also.

There is both general and North Shore interest in the elevation of Archbishop O'Connell to a Cardinal in the Roman Catholic church. The Archbishop is a North Shore summer resident through his purchase of the Jonas French estate at Bay View, Gloucester, adjoining the famous Gen. Benj. Butler estate. The newly appointed Cardinal will depart for Rome on the 10th.

Open air shows have been so successful during the summer and autumn, a winter show is to be tried as an experiment. For the exhibition fifty-five classes have been arranged—eleven for each of the five sessions. Both Boston and New York stables will be represented. On the directorate of the show are Rodolphe L. Agassiz, Bryce J. Allan and Frederick H. Prince of the North Shore contingent.

Miss Southerland, one of the favorite belles and beauties of Washington, is a daughter of Captain and Mrs. William H. H. Southerland (Mary Rodman) and an extremely brilliant and attractive girl. Miss Southerland first visited Mrs. Francis Bowdoin Crowninshield at Peach's Point, Marblehead Neck, going thence to stay with Mrs. Geo. von L. Meyer and the Misses Meyer at Hamilton, over the week-end, and arrived at Beverly for a few days with Miss Helen Taft before she left the North Shore.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Gibson have leased the Ward Thoron residence in Washington for the coming months and are preparing to take a prominent part in the gayeties of the winter. Since their arrival from Europe they have been occupying an apartment at the Plaza, in New York.

Real Estate and Improvements

There is great activity this fall in summer real estate circles at East Gloucester. Hon. Isaac Patch and others have sold to the proprietors of Hotel Fair View land on East Main street and a private way comprising 18,582 square feet. Mrs. Sarah M. Garland, widow of Dr. J. E. Garland of Gloucester, has sold her property at Eastern Point, a cottage and land on Fort Hill avenue comprising 46,851 square feet. This cottage is famous as the summer home of the late Jean Clemens, daughter of the late Mark Twain, a few seasons ago and is near "The Ramparts" the Rouse mansion. The purchasers are Mrs. Elsie D. Little and her husband, W. Jay Little, who are so active in summer real estate movements at East Gloucester, where they have many summer cottages. The Garland cottage will be extensively remodeled. Mr. and Mrs. Little will also erect another house near the Elliott cottage and the Taft estate in the elevation above the golf clubhouse. It will be ready for next season. Charles F. Wonson, who has successfully remodeled small buildings near his Rocky Neck property into bungalows, is branching out extensively in summer real estate in that section. An eleven-room cottage is being built on a very picturesque point of his property. One of his tenants the past season has been the family of the famous explorer, Walter Wellman. Mrs. Lathrop, who acquired the Bates property on Wonson street, Rocky Neck, is to raise the house and remodel it. Cambridge parties have already secured it for next season.

A fine stone building is being erected on Woodbury hill at Folly Cove, Lanesville, Gloucester, for Miss Hale of Baltimore, for a summer residence. It is on land, which was purchased from Edwin Canney, and the site commands a fine view of the ocean and Ipswich Bay, as well as the land on the opposite shore including Mt. Agamenticus in York, Me. The work is being done under the superintendence of Alexander Jungvist, and when finished, it will be a two-story building, with a ground floor measurement of 35 by 40 feet.

Mrs. Frank Brumback of Kansas City, who occupied the East Gloucester cottage of Ralph H. Barbour, the author, of Cambridge and Manchester, promises to boom East Gloucester in her proposed development of a very beautiful stretch of hill country in the rear of East Main street, starting from the Haskell street end to the rear of Chapel street. She has purchased five acres of this beautiful hill country near Bass Rocks and plans to erect bungalows. The elevations of this hill commands a grand view of the inner and outer Gloucester harbors and hitherto has been ignored by the summer visitor. Mrs. Brumback is artistic and in her rambles for subjects for paintings found these hills and was deeply impressed with their possibilities. The opening up of this section of East Gloucester is to have a great bearing on the future of that whole section as a summer locality.

John Clay and Arthur Leonard, prominent summer residents from Chicago at Eastern Point, Gloucester, are said to be the prime movers in the erection of a garage to hold twenty automobiles on the Wheeler property on Point Hill, East Gloucester, near the foot of Haskell street. Buildings are now being torn down to prepare for its erection. The location is just half way between Eastern Point and Gloucester proper. The object of the garage is a matter of much interesting conjecture.

SOCIETY NOTES

President Taft will be the guest of honor at a dinner to be given by John Hays Hammond to the executive committee of the National Republican League in Washington the night of December 11th. The league will meet there December 12th at the time of the session of the National Republican Committee.

The news reaches us from Paris of the arrival there of Miss Helen Lancashire, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Lancashire, so prominently identified with the summer life at Manchester, and Miss Lancashire's aunt, Miss Jane E. Lancashire. They have settled for the winter. Miss Helen Lancashire is continuing her music studies. The Lancashires left Manchester several weeks ago and are now settled in their winter home in Michigan. Their son Ammi is making quite an extended trip with his roommate Mr. Burrows, of Chicago, and they were joined in Paris recently by another Yale classmate, Ben Thaw of New York, who is making the balance of the trip with them. Mr. Lancashire expects to return about the first of the year, when he will join his parents in Detroit, where they are to spend the winter months.

Running a Newspaper—People Who Could Not Do Anything Else Think They Could Do That.

George Ade says about every other fellow you meet thinks he could run a good hotel, and we have come to the conclusion that about every one you meet could run a fine newspaper, remarks Eugene L'Hote, the genial editor and publisher of the Milford (Ill.) Herald, editorially in a recent issue of that paper.

Men will take the liberty to tell you how to run a paper, asserts L'Hote, when they wouldn't think of hinting to the merchant how to conduct his store or tell the preacher what to preach. They pay good money for schools and don't know whether John is learning the rule of three or how to hold a cigarette gracefully, but when it comes to the newspaper, sizzling cats! there's where they all get off.

During the past week a friend wanted to know why we didn't try and run a paper a little more along the lines of how Christ would run a paper. We don't know just how that would be. In the first place if Christ was back on earth we don't believe he would go into the newspaper business at all, and if he did we are sure he wouldn't come to Milford to do it. If our friend had wanted it more on a religious plane we could tell him frankly that it wouldn't pay.

There is not an editor or a preacher that could tell the truth for thirty days and stay in the community in which they live. If our friends doubt this, let him try telling the absolute truth for just one week and see where he lights. We never were much to "soft soap" or "blarney" anyone; in fact our bluntness and honesty of speech has cost us many friends. Tell the truth! We are not going to do it.

A Kansas editor announced he would try for one week, and he is still in the hospital. He didn't get past the first day. The following item appeared in Monday's issue and now the boys are getting out the paper. This is what it said: "Married, Miss Sylvia Rhode to James Cannaham, last Sunday evening at the Baptist church. The bride was an ordinary town girl who don't know any more than a rabbit about cooking and never helped her mother three days in her life. She is not a beauty by any means and has a gait like a duck. The groom is an up-to-date loafer, has been living off the old folks all his life, and don't amount to shucks nohow. They will have a hard life while they live together."

OUR CHAMBER OF HORRORS

There is usually a chamber of horrors connected with the various collections of the effigies of people more or less distinguished and interesting to the public; but the visitor is not compelled to see it. He may, if he chooses, look at the hideous group of criminals and degenerates who have achieved originality in crime and are invested with morbid interest; but he may also pass the door and go his way and keep his memory clean.

During the past summer, however, a great number of daily newspapers have fairly driven their readers into the chamber of horrors by their ingenuity in the phrasing of headlines and the prominence and space they have given to the reporting of bloody details of murders and lynchings, shocking incidents, and hideous violations of the habits of civilized society. Foreigners may be pardoned for thinking the whole country a chamber of horrors and Americans a race of moral degenerates who have yet to learn the rudiments of civilization. It is idle to protest against the injustice of some foreign opinion while the sensational newspapers and many respectable journals as well devote more space to crime than to virtue and courage and honor, report at length the views of criminals and harlots, and invest law-breakers with the interest and importance of great public figures.

During the early part of the season several of the leading New York dailies spread before their readers day after day column reports of the doings and talk of a man and two women complicated with a bundle of letters. Neither the persons in the cheap drama nor the letters were of the slightest public interest, but if any one will take the trouble to measure the space given to these people and their silly letters, he will find that it was greater than the space devoted to the portrayal of the powerful and significant figure of Stolypin.

In the early summer there was a hideous murder of a young wife and mother on a road in Virginia. Her husband, who was driving with her in the motor, was arrested, tried with a promptness and dignity that invested the old-fashioned Virginia court-house with all the majesty of law when law and justice are one and the same, and condemned to die on a certain day the next month. In the bloody details of the crime there was a feast of horrors, but to its brutality was added a cheap intrigue with a young girl. The story was so offensive that it ought to have been reported in bare outline; it was treated as an event of international importance, on a level with Reciprocity and Arbitration. The girl was not only exploited by many newspapers, but it was seriously proposed to put her and her paramour, in case of his acquittal, on the vaudeville stage, and to present her to the public in a series of films in the picture shows. These proposals, however, shocked even the patrons of the chamber of horrors.

Newport, one of the most beautiful places in the country, and since the beginning of its history the home of many people of the highest dignity of life and breeding, has come in for the usual advertising of those lawless members of the community who have made its name a popular synonym for vulgarity and contributed generously to the fund for the campaign to overthrow the existing social order. The elopement of a young woman of wealth with a chauffeur was a matter of no consequence to the public, but the space given to the movements of the eloping pair was ridiculous; and the reporting of the opinions of the young woman was journalism of an infantile quality.

But there is no class of journalistic heroes and heroines to whom the center of the stage is surrendered with such enthusiasm as the "affinities." One can imagine the disgust with which Goethe would regard the deluded mortals who have fallen into this ancient trap of the devil. From time to time these unhappy "affinities," the ending of whose brief drama is monotonously miserable, take the center of the journalistic stage and present their views of the marriage relation to the public as seriously as if they were leaders in the war for the emancipation of humanity, and not blind guides who had fallen into a pit. Readers of many newspapers during the past summer have had occasion to ask more than once the question, "Does the breaking of the seventh commandment qualify a woman to become a teacher of manners and morals?"

Colonel Astor's marriage to a very young woman has been so widely reported that it would be an affectation to suppress his name in referring to it. He is a man of middle age, great wealth, and a member of a well-known New York family. When a man in his position marries a very young woman, there is always more or less comment. These facts would not justify publicity, but the fact that, after a divorce granted to his wife, and forbidding his remarriage, Colonel Astor has made a second marriage, is a matter of public concern. The integrity of the family, as a foundation of society, depends upon the moral sense of the community; and those who endanger the integrity of the family should be made to feel that their defiance of the moral sense of the community is costly. Society is ready enough to make those who have defied its conventions feel its displeasure. Society also should be equally ready to penalize those who disregard its moral sense. The young woman who, following her own inclination, marries one who is considered beneath her in station is made to suffer; for society is sensitive with regard to what it considers as appropriate. If society were equally sensitive as to what is right and decent, it would repudiate the young woman who allows herself to be captured by a man whom the court has divorced from his wife and declared to be unfit to marry again. And if the young woman deserves blame, still more do those who are responsible for her, and still more does the man, who through her doubles his own offense, deserve to bear the stigma of society. It is a consolation to know that in this case a clergyman was secured to perform the ceremony only after a humiliating search; and that clergyman of many churches have publicly recorded their protest against the marriage, and have condemned the minister who at the end consented to perform a ceremony which, while not itself illegal, involved a defiance of the traditions of the sanctity of the family and the purity of marriage which have been the foundation of society among modern peoples. Such remarriages are far more anarchistic than meetings to protest against all forms of government and bombs thrown by half-crazy fanatics.

—The Outlook.

To the Voters of Manchester

H. Bert Knowles, regular Republican Candidate for Representative from the 21st Essex District deserves the support of every Republican voter for a second term. During his first year we find that his record of attendance at the sessions of the House has been nearly perfect and that he has been recorded as voting on every important measure. He has given his best efforts to further the interests of the District and has been alert and ever ready to appraise his constituents when any proposed legislation affected their welfare. On the broad, State-wide questions he has voted only according to his best judgment without being influenced by any of the special interests which try so persistently to shape legislation to their own advantage. Mr. Knowles believes that the basic principle of successful public service is a square deal to all and he strives to have his every act governed by this principle. The experience of the first year of a competent public official gives added value to his continued service and the Republicans of this District have recognized this fact in the past. The coming session of the House of Representatives is bound to be an important one and we urge every Republican of Manchester to stand up and be counted for H. Bert Knowles, Republican Candidate for Representative.

Hallowe'en in Manchester

Hallowe'en was celebrated in its own characteristic way at Manchester. The usual amount of fun, entirely harmless in most cases, prevailed. There seemed to be a larger amount of celebrating than in former years. A number of parties and dances were held commemorative of the season.

Tuesday afternoon the little tots at the Primary school enjoyed a pleasant afternoon gazing with spell-bound eyes at the jack o'lanterns of various sizes and colors at their school.

Monday evening Irving Baker entertained a number of his school friends at "Fairview" his home. The general number of Hallowe'en stunts were tried and games were enjoyed generally. A most pleasing feature was the typical Hallowe'en or harvest dinner Mrs. Baker had prepared for the guests. The dinner was most original and distinctly aside from the usual order of things. The guests departed with many pleasant memories of Hallowe'en and hospitality of "Fairview."

Another most enjoyable function took place Tuesday evening when about twenty young friends of Miss Abbie P. Floyd were her guests. The company presented a most ghostly aspect as they entered in two's or three's, clad in long trailing sheets and the groans and sighs were most terrible to hear. The parlor had been turned into a genuine Hallowe'en bower. The walls were a mass of corn stalks and rough wooden boxes served as seats for the company. An illuminated skeleton and skull and cross-bones stood at the head of the stairs to welcome all. A number of new and entertaining games were played. Refreshments were served consisting of ice cream, cake, nuts and fruit, while most noticeable was the prize cake with its traditional ring, button, thimble and dime. Shortly before midnight the future of each one present was revealed, and the fortunes, tied diploma style with black and orange ribbons, were fitting souvenirs of the event.

Tuesday evening the Ever Ready circle of King's Daughters met in the vestry of the Baptist church. Only the members of the society and their friends were present. A delightful social time was enjoyed—the Hallowe'en supper prepared by the ladies being the feature of the occasion.

The Coming Election

On Tuesday the opportunity will be given each citizen to avail himself of his rights of franchise on State affairs. In democracy the will of the people is law and law is the accumulation of the experiences of the people codified and established as statutes. In the end the failures and benefits of government are and must be attributed to the activity or inactivity of the people in expressing and codifying public opinion. Public opinion without the rights of franchise accompanying the expression of that opinion is valueless. Many Americans had an opinion on the reciprocity question rejected by Canada but they had no opportunity to express that opinion by ballot. Tuesday is the freeman's day and every citizen should be loyal to the traditions of the land by using his high privilege to express his opinion by ballot.

Ordinarily this would be an "off year" politically speaking, but this year there are interests at stake that must be carefully guarded. No State election should be fought out on National lines and as far as our National policy is concerned, directly, the ballot of Tuesday will be negligible. Certain interests have endeavored to unite two very important issues, the high cost of living and the tariff problem as defenses in a State campaign. However, that error has been corrected by the public and but little confusion now exists.

There is nevertheless a sense in which the republican voter can pledge his allegiance to the party for the election in Massachusetts is being watched by careful students of political affairs all over the land. If Massachusetts should go democratic, it would be another indication of the sentiment of the public toward the republican management of affairs. A republican victory will mean more than a local state victory—it will mean the beginning of the turn in the tide forecasting a republican President in 1912. Consequently thousands of loyal republican votes cast against Draper last year will be found recorded for Mr. Frothingham and Mr. Luce. The new primary law gave the republican party an opportunity to select their leader and no other Governor has ever received the nomination more as the people's man, by a direct vote, than Mr. Frothingham. It cannot be gainsaid that previous to the primary Mr. Frothingham was the choice of the leaders of the party and that their choice was so substantially endorsed at the primary only confirms the wisdom of their judgment. This year the republican voters can record a vote of confidence in President Taft's administration and vote on the man of their own selection for Governor—Louis A. Frothingham.

Each year the ballot appears longer as the referendum articles increase; there are three referendum clauses. The proposed amendment to the constitution permitting the use of voting machines will receive a light vote and it is doubtful whether it will prevail. There are many favorable things to be said, but as far as the principles of democracy and secrecy are concerned nothing is gained over the ballot and there is a large expense involved. It is known of course, that the machine companies are interested. Another amendment increases the power of the legislature to authorize the taking of land and property for highways or streets. The amendment is of particular interest to the city of Boston but in the event of extensive public highway or street improvements the amendment may prove of value to any community. There is no opportunity for abuses to develop under the amendment and it is not unlikely that the amendment will prevail. The third amendment relates to a special class and provides for the extension of the civil service act to the Chiefs of Police of certain cities and towns.

Thanksgiving Proclamation

The Thanksgiving proclamation is at hand and it has the impress of the character of William Howard Taft. It will repay a careful reading. It is a creditable production from any point of view but its kindly spirit is prominent and gratifying.

"Our country has been signally favored in many ways. The sound of the seasons has brought rich harvests. Our industries have thrived far beyond our domestic needs, the production of our labor are daily finding enlarged markets abroad. We have been free from the curses of pestilence, of famine and of war. Our national councils have furthered the cause of peace in other lands and the spirit of benevolence has brought us into closer touch with other peoples, to the strengthening of the bonds of fellowship and good will that link us to our comrades in the universal brotherhood of nations. Strong in the sense of our own right and inspired by as strong a sense of the rights of others, we live in peace and harmony with the world. Rich in the priceless possessions and abundant resources, where with the unstinted bounty of God has endowed us we are unselfishly glad when other peoples pass onward to prosperity and peace. That the great privileges we enjoy may continue, and that each coming year may see our country more firmly established in the regard and esteem of our fellow nations, is the prayer that should arise in every thankful heart."

It is a strong plea for the better things of life as well as thanksgiving for the more material blessings. There is in it all an ethical note often conspicuous by its absence in thanksgiving proclamations.

The Honest Physician and the Quack

For some undefined reason, many people, often intelligent in many other respects, are deceived, mulcted and physically weakened by the use of widely advertised and falsely recommended drugs for ordinary and more often for the more serious maladies to which the human constitution is susceptible. Frequently an unscrupulous fortune hunter will stumble upon a receipt of doubtful value and exploit it to the limit of advertising decency and frequently beyond. Under the guise of bitters, catarrh cures, cancer remedies and correctors of local disorders many of these "privateers" have amassed fortunes. It is possible to introduce an eruptive element which deceives "the lamb" into believing that impurities lodged in the blood are being driven out. The only tonic value is found in the alcohol and not infrequently an equally harmful drug, the iodide of potash is found. Seldom are any of the well known mineral salts which are helpful, found. It may well be written, "it may be seriously questioned whether the blood of persons who take iodide of potassium continuously is not decidedly impoverished instead of being purified as it is claimed." So the charlatany continues.

To minimize this evil the Massachusetts Legislature gave instructions to the Massachusetts Board of Health and an exhaustive study was made of the proprietary medicine industry and careful analyses made of the "tonics and bitters." In the twenty-eighth Annual Report published in 1897 the analyses may be found. But the business still continues.

The education of the public is the only solution of the problem but unfortunately the most informed members of the community are at a disadvantage in their protests. Ignorance, again, reasoning that it is to the interest of the Doctor "to run down" these so-called competitors. Economy, falsely so-called, will send the sufferer to the drug instead of to a physician but it is poor economy. Some medical journals in the past have "fallen" to spurious advertising but not so often as the so-called religious press. With all the counter movements at work it is a strong man who will face the issue and fight.

The City Physician of Beverly has been true to his calling in his vigorous condemnation of this type of drug taking. Dr. MacLeod without fear or favor declared them to be the great American fraud. His note of warning has the true ring. He states that alcohol makes up the body of many medicines,—Bitters, 44 percent; Paine's Celery Compound, 21 percent; Kilmer's Root, 25 percent; Lydia Pinkham's Compound, 20 percent, and Hood's Sarsaparilla, 18 percent. More dangerous even than alcohol are compounds, often in headache powders, Cocaine, Morphine and Acetanlid, with all their deleterious effects. Dr. MacLeod deserves the thanks of every thoughtful citizen. The true call of the physician is to conserve the health of the community. Dr. MacLeod has been faithful to his task. Our own physicians have been preaching the gospel of community health for years and this corroborating testimony of the Beverly City Physician ought to add accumulative weight to their efforts.

Professor Wm. Bennett Munro of Harvard, supports the new constitutional amendment. "The amendment aims to give to Massachusetts cities powers which are exercised by cities in other states and countries, and which have stimulated municipal enterprise in these. If any of the projects outlined in the report of the metropolitan improvements commission a couple of years ago are ever to be successfully undertaken, the cities of the metropolitan district must have greater powers of land-taking than they now possess. The proposed amendment deserves the support of the voters on November 7th."

Judson Jones, aged eighty, after twenty years of labor in writing and fifteen years of correcting mistakes, has finished a phonetic spelling edition of the Bible. Yet there are those who have never read the book in plain English and are not much more informed than the lad who said Hosea was an ancient Greek God and had a picture in the Boston Public Library. Judson Jones doubtless has found his literary task less difficult than the literal obedience of his study.

It now transpires that the work on the Austin Dam did not tally with the drawings—the latter calling for a thirty foot base—it measured twenty feet. The contractors took the chance at the expense of safety. More sacrifices on the altar of greed.

The City of Beverly has received from the Mayor the budget for the coming year and true to the spirit and wishes of the people a liberal appropriation is provided for the School Department. The returns of a dollar invested in the education of the young are greater than any financial transaction. No community can make a mistake in providing liberally for the education of the young.

For the first time California has empaneled a jury of women. Their first case will be the consideration of charges against an editor for indecent language. It is a poor woman who is not better than the average man and the unfortunate editor will fare hard and he deserves it.

For the third time a cardinal from the United States has been created, now O'Connell and formerly McCloskey and Gibbons. It will be of advantage to the American Catholics to have strong American influences in the Vatican council.

Despite the criticisms of the Pulitzer policy of the New York World, it must be said to its credit that the international peace program was always maintained even to the extent of opposing the fortification of Panama Canal.

Dr. Wiley's strange position opposing the study of physics and chemistry as impracticable is unexplainable. It would appear that of all curriculum studies these appear intensely practicable.

The value of the new Hamilton-Manchester road is beginning to be evident. When the road is completed and the highway is open, a distinct gain will have been made.

Vote early.

"Madam, are you a woman suffragist?" No sir, I haven't time to be." "Haven't time! Well, if you had the privilege of voting, whom would you support?" "The same man I've supported for ten years." "And who is that?" "My husband."

Much interest is being manifested in the proposition to abandon Proctor street on Smith's Point, and the construction of a new street to the point along the water front. The proposition on the face of it seems good. The new road would leave Beach street almost opposite Old Neck Road (the new street to Old Neck) and would skirt the harbor, coming out at the entrance to the Charles Read estate. This would give a road over a level way, and would obviate the necessity of the long pull over Masconomo hill. It would considerably shorten the distance to Smith's Point and would be another step in beautifying our water front, as this section of the harbor will eventually be a beauty spot; especially if the plans to improve our marine park are carried out. The water in Day's Creek will some day be locked in. It is hoped the citizens will attend the hearings next Thursday afternoon in the selectmen's room and express themselves freely on the matter. Plans have been prepared and may be seen at any time. It is understood the road can be built with practically no land damage, as the abutters would gladly give land for the new road in exchange for what they would gain by the abandonment of Proctor street.

Despite the inclement weather, the Town hall was well filled Wednesday evening to hear Rev. Henry R. Rose in his stereopticon lecture "With Longfellow in Evangeline Land." Dr. Rose started from Portland and by his very beautiful pictures and descriptive talk carried his hearers to the Cape Breton coast and "Evangeline Land." Events and incidents of the trip were very interestingly introduced during the lecture and made it varied and entertaining. The lecture was given under the auspices of the Woman's club.

Byron Dukeshire, driver for Semons & Littlefield, met with a painful accident while at his work Monday on the P. Dexter estate. The heavy wagon was backed up to the bank, from which large rocks were being taken. One of the rocks fell, striking Mr. Dukeshire's ankle and leg. He was taken to one of the doctors where it was found that though no bones were broken the limb was badly bruised.

A bad break in the water main on Union street, at the head of Beach street, sent a stream of water into the air yesterday afternoon, and flooded the street before it was turned off. The break was caused, it is thought, by the blasting recently done in connection with widening the street at this point. The break was not repaired until well along into the night. Supt. George Evans was quick to put a force of men to work in getting after the trouble and carried along the work with despatch. The break was one of the worst for years.

MANCHESTER

The class of 1912, Story High school, have given a number of delightful dancing parties. The party of last Friday evening was, if anything, ahead of any given as yet. The decorations were unique and most appropriate as pertaining to Hallowe'en. The windows of the hall have never received any decorating. On this occasion there were white curtains hanging, and these were literally covered with black cats, witches and pumpkins. The stage also had a screen similarly decorated, while a typical ghost standing in one corner of the stage completed the effect. The walls were a mass of corn stalks, and the chandeliers were strung with brilliantly colored electric lights, from which were suspended jack o'lanterns, and black cats. The grand march was very prettily executed, being lead by the class president and vice president, Miss Helen Wing and Rufus Long. The class treasurer and secretary, Miss Hazel Semons and Allen McKinnon were second. The matrons were Mrs. Oscar Wing, Mrs. A. L. Sabin, Mrs. F. M. An-

Snow!

The North Shore had its first snow of the season yesterday afternoon. It was merely a flurry, but sufficient to remind us that the summer is over and also that winter is coming.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Valentine celebrated the sixth anniversary of their marriage at their home on Central street Wednesday evening. A large number of friends gathered during the evening to offer their congratulations.

The drawbridge at Manchester has caused much trouble the past week and trains over it, to and from Boston have been held up. The bridge was opened late Tuesday afternoon and it took an hour to close it. Meanwhile the trains in either direction were held up more than half an hour. Some of the late afternoon trains Monday were delayed for the same reason.

The Punch and Judy Show given under the auspices of Prof. A. W. Ellis in the Town hall Wednesday afternoon for the school children was well attended and the children seemed to greatly enjoy the entertainment. The doll was given to little Mary Knight and a game to Nelson Butler.

The Missionary circles of the local Baptist and Congregational churches met yesterday at the Baptist church, when a most profitable time was spent. In the afternoon Mrs. Geo. Washburn gave a very interesting talk on Turkey, dwelling at some length on the people, their habits and the necessity of mission work in that country. Mrs. George H. Brock told of the work in India and in a very winning way impressed the people with her earnestness. A splendid supper consisting of salads and cold meats was served to the company assembled. The evening's program was also greatly enjoyed, there being more addresses, an interesting letter from Rev. F. C. Briggs, a former pastor of Japan, and several musical selections were rendered.

Lamson & Hubbard Fall Hats at Bell's.

A very successful private dance was held in the Town Hall Monday evening. The hall was prettily decorated for Hallowe'en. Refreshments were served in the hall, and the entire company voted to hold a similar party each month to promote sociability and general good times during the winter month.

It is remarkable how much more religious a person can be in a well-fitting dress and a love of a bonnet than in a lot of dowdy old duds.

One would suppose that the wearing of an immense broad-brimmed hat would obviate the necessity of carrying a sunshade. But it doesn't—if the shade is an elegant and costly one.

Electricity!

The electric light company notified the Breeze among its other patrons yesterday afternoon at 1.30, that the power would be off Friday from 7 in the morning to 3 p.m., the reason being that somebody in Beverly was to move a building and consequently the wires would have to be cut, etc., etc., and would not be connected again until toward night. We begged the Beverly company to keep their power on Friday so that we could get our paper out, but they said they were at the mercy of the Beverly city government who granted privileges to move buildings. At 7.30 last evening notice came that the power would be on Friday, but would be off Saturday. Meanwhile we had arranged to have our force work all night Thursday, or as long as necessary, so as to get the paper in the mails Friday as usual.

We recognize the fact that the Breeze is a pretty small toad compared to the rest of the North Shore, but there are hundreds of other people between Beverly and Manchester that are inconvenienced by this shutting off of the power at will. Here is Manchester at the mercy of Beverly city officials; they grant a privilege to somebody to move a building and then Manchester sits in the dark until the building is moved.

Manchester ought to own her own electric light plant!

At the Congregational church last Sunday Rev. Mr. Goddard preached an interesting sermon from the text: "Thy Kingdom Come." He emphasized the fact that God's kingdom is a spiritual kingdom; that he is ever present with men, striving to lead them aright. A pleasing feature of this service was the solo of Helen Grinnel Mears. In the Junior Endeavor a special talk was given on the illustrated Bible scenes by Lydia Raymond. The Senior Y P S C E meeting was led by Miss M. P. Polleys; subject: Missions in Europe. In the evening stereoscopic pictures illustrating the lives and customs and scenes in India were shown in the church. These views were prepared by the American Board of Foreign Missions and gave the congregation an idea of the vast population of India, the beauty of its natural scenery, the degradation and ignorance of a vast majority of its inhabitants, the beginning and growth of missions in schools and colleges and churches, and the civilizing and uplifting effect of a change of the convert to Christianity. Rev. Mr. Goddard described each picture as it was thrown upon the screen.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Elwell of Malden made their usual fortnightly visit to Mrs. Henry W. Mears on Northern avenue over the week-end.

The Daughters of the Covenant will hold a Hallowe'en social in the vestry of the Congregational church tonight. It is a private party, each member of the society having the privilege of inviting three persons. A fine time is expected.

One fourth part of Issachar's Hill, so-called, has been purchased by Brainard B. Story. The whole hill comprises a tract of 18 acres. This is one of the most beautiful spots in Essex. No doubt the rest of the property will be sold some time for a good round sum.

Thomas H. Procter was a recent visitor to Lawrence. He went as a special guest of the Mayor of Lawrence to be present at the N. E. Firemen Association, and at the meeting of the association he was introduced as the oldest living fireman in New England. Mr. Procter stood at the side of the president of the association on the platform and when it was told that Mr. Procter was 91 years of age, the whole convention, 1,000 strong, stood up and gave three hearty cheers. Mr. Procter then was voted in as honorary member. A number of banquets were given in his honor, and at the banquet given by the firemen's wives, he was the guest of honor—in fact he was the only gentleman present. He was in Lawrence a week and had the time of his life. Besides being banqueted he was carried on auto rides and every attention that could be thought of was paid him. Mr. Procter says the trip added ten years to his life.

The Congregational Vestry was a place of joy and festivity Thursday evening. The Ladies' Home circle then held a supper and sale of home made preserves, fruits and vegetables. It is needless to say that the supper was O. K.

A Hallowe'en party was given by Miss Alberta Goodhue to eight of her school friends Monday evening. Dainty refreshments were served and games were played. All had a happy time. Not only were they happy, but ambitious, for as they went through the streets, they sang "vote for women," "vote for women," "vote for women" with such vigor that even Miss Foley herself would have been proud to have heard them.

W. E. P. Taylor and daughter are enjoying an outing at Spencer Lake Camp at Jackman, Me.

The Junior class of the Essex High school gave a party in honor of Miss Dailey, their teacher, on Friday evening last. The party was held at St. James hall. There was about thirty present. A pair of cuff links was presented to Miss Dailey, Brainard Burnham making the presentation speech. The boys served a regular Essex supper, which means that it was most bountiful and excellent. Games were played and a grand good time enjoyed.

Hallowe'en night passed off quietly in Essex. The boys and girls at sundown began to gather with their jack lanterns of every description. Some were made of paste board boxes, some from pumpkins, some from squashes and even cucumbers. In the early evening a company of girls with peaked witch hats paraded the street with a transparency marked: "Vote for Women." Bean blowers seemed to take the place of the historic "tickalick." But the rain came and by nine o'clock the streets were reduced to a Sabbath stillness.

People are beginning to say something must be done! It is shameful! Things are wide open here! It's a disgrace to the town! We creep up to hear what is said. A sudden stop in discussion, but not until we had heard the word "rum." Well! Well!! Well!!!

The Bay State Street Railway have placed in their waiting station a complete set of wrecking tools to be used in case of accident.

The subject of the sermon Sunday afternoon at the Methodist Episcopal church was: "Divine Providence." The text was Romans 8: 28. The speaker dwelt at length on the many experiences that Paul had — of the changes of life, especially those of the darker side — yet through it all, he believed in God. Opposition and adversity make the Christian stronger. We are rising higher and higher every time we meet with difficulties. What matter is it if we have Christ with us. It is only necessary for us to hold on to our faith in God, and all will be well in the end.

The young people of the M. E. Church, under the auspices of the Epworth League, had a pleasant social last Saturday evening.

Formal Opening at Almy's

Next Wednesday, November 8th, Almy, Bigelow & Washburn, Salem, celebrate their 53d birthday anniversary and formal opening of their "new" store, completely changed from the old establishment since the addition of the three story building adjoining, which has made possible a complete re-arrangement and re-locating of almost every one of the street floor departments.

A one price sale of 53c articles will be featured Wednesday, the opening of this great Jubilee. Instead of giving away souvenirs the management has selected a $1.00 to $2.00 article from every department to be sold at only 53c; while this arrangement naturally necessitates the taking of a loss of many dollars, it is felt it will be much more appreciated by the general public than the usual souvenir.

Many of the bargains will be placed in the A. B. & W. show windows Monday to give customers some idea of the wonderful values to be offered. Among the items noted are men's imported hats, watches, boys' winter suits, suit-cases, etc.

So enthusiastically has every employe of the A. B. & W. store cooperated with the management in preparation for this celebration that it cannot fail to go down into the store's history as the greatest sale ever held.

Everybody should hear the concert by the full Salem Cadet Band, Jean Missud, Conductor, 7.00-9.30 Wednesday evening.

long and successful schooling. For three seasons he has been playing the title role in James Forbes' comedy "The Traveling Salesman" having created the part of Bob Blake. Previously he was the comedian with Robert Edeson and contributed in no small degree to the success of that star in "Strongheart" and "Classmates."

In "Snobs" which is the story of a dream come true, he is first revealed as a milkman of low degree but with ambitions, and shortly after the curtain goes up he falls in love with an heiress so that for a time he is a very disconsolate milkman. But here is where the playwright steps in and sends an attorney to the milkman's hall bedroom with the astounding information that he need never more deposit milk bottles at the back door of Harlem flats for he is really the Duke of Walshire, possessor of the greatest title in England and many times a millionaire. This of course alters matters but the milkman has a vein of shrewd common sense and wants to win the girl he loves without the aid of position and wealth. The play is in three acts and is handsomely mounted. Henry B. Harris has surrounded his new star with a splendid cast which includes Myrtle Tannehill, Helen Bond, Katherine Stewart, Eva McDonald, Regan Hughston, Orlando Daly, John Cumberland, and a number of others.

Billie Reeves at B. F. Keith's

After an absence of several seasons, during which time he has been the bright particular star of F. Ziegfeld's "Follies," Billie Reeves has returned to vaudeville, and he will be seen at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week in the part that first made him famous in this country. England never sent a funnier knock-about comedian to these shores than Billie Reeves, and as the tipsy swell in "A Night in an English Music Hall," who breaks up the show with his antics, he keeps the audiences in a whirlwind of merriment. For this vaudeville tour Mr. Reeves has had an entirely new production built, and among the acts that appear in the burlesque vaudeville show are Professor Bunkem, the German magician; That Awful Quartette; the coy little soubrette; and the Terrible Turk, whose challenge is accepted by Reeves and with whom he indulges in an uproariously funny wrestling match. Charlotte Parry, the famous protean actress, will appear in her remarkable playlet for which she recently paid a prize of $1,000. This piece is called "Into the Light," and represents the various witnesses called to the stand in a murder trial. Miss Parry plays each character, making the changes with amazing rapidity, and the piece has a strong surprise finish.

Mrs. Arthur E. Burton of Beverly Farms, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Backer of New York, and has been enjoying the naval review there this week.

The many Farms friends and acquaintances of former Alderman John H. Hinckley of Beverly, were shocked to learn of his death yesterday at the Beverly Hospital. He had been at the hospital for treatment about a week. Mr. Hinckley was best known in this vicinity through his activity in city politics in former years. He served as secretary of the Republican city committee for a number of years.

The Beverly school committee has made a move to issue certificates to graduates of the Grammar school.

This ward should see to it at the election next Tuesday that Representative Herman A. Macdonald receives a generous vote in this, his home ward, and by so doing give expression to the appreciation which everybody feels for his splendid work in the legislature the past year.

The Elliott estate, at 91 Haskell street, will be sold at public auction Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Sullivan of Newark, N. J., have been visiting Beverly Farms friends the past week.

Mrs. Charles F. Preston and Mrs. Howard A. Doane have presented to the Girls' club a choice art vase, an article very much appreciated by the young women as it will add much toward the furnishings of the parlor in the church, a room especially set aside for their use.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Fearling of Dover, N. H., have spent the week at the Farms visiting friends.

The Sidney E. Hutchinsons closed their Farms house Wednesday and left on the private Pullman car, "Rover," with a special engine, enroute to their Philadelphia winter home.

SOCIETY NOTES

The Essex County club is proving an attractive spot for North Shore visitors to come for week-ends, now that most of the summer cottages are closed. Last Sunday there were a score of people there for the day and over the coming week-end there will be a number of others. The management plans to keep the club open all winter and to make things as attractive and comfortable as possible. A great many changes are to be made in the clubhouse and grounds before next season. Connolly Bros., the Beverly Farms contractors, are at the present time making changes on the grounds, adjoining the clubhouse, looking toward the parking of about 100 autos. The oval plot formed by the driveway to the clubhouse piazza, and formerly filled with shrubbery, is being cleared and room for about 40 cars will be provided. This parking space will be hidden from view, as the oval will be hedged with hardy shrubbery. Beyond this oval another space is being made with room for about 60 cars. This, too, will be within easy access to the clubhouse veranda, and as the north side of the oval will be skirted with low shrubbery, this additional parking space will be within easy calling distance from the veranda. The small space near the clubhouse formerly used for parking will be turned into a lawn. Plans have just been prepared by Roberts & Hoare and were to be gone over today for a caddy house to be erected near the clubhouse, to the north of the first tee.

SOCIETY NOTES

President Taft will be the guest of honor at a dinner to be given by John Hays Hammond to the executive committee of the National Republican League in Washington the night of December 11th. The league will meet there December 12th at the time of the session of the National Republican Committee. The Hammond family will not leave their Gloucester estate until after Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Taft and Miss Helen Taft accompanied President Taft to Cincinnati the first of the week. The President attended the early sessions of the third annual conference of the Society for the Judicial Settlement of International Disputes. The conference ended Wednesday with an elaborate banquet attended by Mrs. Taft and Miss Taft. John Hays Hammond and Sec. of State Philander C. Knox and other distinguished men have been speakers at the conference.

Much social attention was given Congressman and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth during their recent visit in Pittsburg. Among the functions in their honor was an elaborate costume party which Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Rea and their daughter, Miss Edith Ann Rea, gave at Home Farm, Sewickley Heights. Guests were present from all parts of Pittsburg, Allegheny and Sewickley, both married and debutante members of Pittsburg society. The decorations for the occasion were very handsome.

SOCIETY NOTES

A Dresden effect of chrysanthemums was used at the attractively arranged supper given Wednesday night of last week in the dining room of the Pittsburg club, in Penn avenue, Pittsburg, by Miss Lois McGinley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. McGinley, of Forbes street, Pittsburg, and Manchester, one of the "buds" of the season. The honor guests were Miss Bessie Woods and Miss Mary Black Snyder, also recruits in the social ranks. The supper was preceded by a box party at the Nixon theatre. The portrait of the British ambassador at Washington, James Bryce, painted by S. Seymour Thomas, was unveiled in the smoking room of the national liberal club at London Wednesday by Sir Edward Grey. The foreign secretary paid a tribute to Mr. Bryce and his distinguished work in various fields of usefulness. He said that he had crowned a brilliant career by his success as an ambassador. He had made the interests of Great Britain understood in America. He had been active in searching out and emphasizing points of agreement so that when differences arose they were easily reconciled. "He will," added the secretary, "return from Washington with enhanced credit and honor, leaving behind in the United States enduring memories." Hon. Mr. Bryce has many friends on the North Shore. He has been both a summer resident of and visitor to this section of Massachusetts. During the late autumn he and Mrs. Bryce were entertained by the Misses Loring at Pride's.

Important characters in Klaw & Erlanger's stupendous scenic production General Lew Wallace's awe-inspiring biblical narrative "Ben-Hur" now running at the Boston Theatre. The success of this offering is wonderful and at every performance so far, New England's historic play-house has been crowded to its utmost capacity.

SOCIETY NOTES

Announcement has been made in New York by General and Mrs. Anson G. McCook of 38 West Fifty-fourth street of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katharine McCook, to Hugh S. Knox, the second son of the Secretary of State, Philander C. and Mrs. Knox. No date has been set for the wedding. Miss McCook is the only daughter of General McCook, who is one of the family of "fighting McCooks" of the "tribe of John." General McCook, after his war days, ran for Congress, and served from 1877 to 1883. He was secretary of the United States Senate from 1888 to 1892, and was city chamberlain of New York in 1897. Miss McCook made her debut in 1908. Young Knox and his fiancée were members of a large house party at the Frick mansion at Pride's during the late season. The Secretary of State has recently concluded a short visit with the Frick family at Pride's.

Departures the past week from Pride's included Col. Charles Lawrence Peirson and the Barrett Wendell, Jr.s., both families returning to Boston homes for the winter.

SOCIETY NOTES

A November wedding of much North Shore society interest was that solemnized at St. Paul's church, Boston, Monday afternoon at four o'clock. The contracting parties being Miss Harriette Appleton Woods, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods of Boston and Ipswich, and Norman Romney Sturgis, a Harvard senior, son of Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Codman Sturgis of Las Pampas, Colorado Springs. Among Miss Wood's attendants was her cousin, Miss Mary Appleton Wood of New York and Ipswich. Bayard Tuckerman of New York and Ipswich, a cousin of the bride, served as an usher. A reception followed at the Wood residence after the ceremony at the church. Rev. Roland Cotton Smith of Washington and Ipswich was an assisting clergyman at the church. Mr. Sturgis and his bride will live at Cambridge until he completes his senior year at Harvard. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Julian Codman of the Hamilton colony; Mrs. Russell Sturgis, son and daughter of the Manchester contingent, and from Ipswich were the D. F. Appletons, the Bayard Tuckermans, C. S. Tuckermans, John A. Tuckermans, and the Chalmers Woods.

Miss Edythe Deacon, formerly of Boston, who has numerous friends on the North Shore, has arrived in New York from Europe, where she has been most of the time since the death in Baltimore, Md. last spring, of George Lee Peabody of Boston, to whom she was engaged to be married. She is to be for some time in New York with her grandmother, Mrs. Charles S. Baldwin, of New York and Newport, widow of Rear Admiral Baldwin.

"Eagle Rock," the Frick mansion at Pride's, will be kept open all winter, where the Frick family will spend the major portion of their time. During January the family plan to make a short European trip. Mr. Frick is especially devoted to the North Shore and would be quite willing to call it his permanent home. The ladies of the family have many Pittsburg and New York affiliations so they will make frequent visits to those cities. The Frick private car is a happy medium to gratify their pleasure in those respects.

The George Lees of Brookline, closed their attractive villa at Beverly Farms for the season Monday.

SOCIETY NOTES

He is now in his eighty-ninth year and is Boston's oldest living artist. He continues vigorous and active in his profession. The Loring families of the Pride's colony are relatives of the deceased.

Two distinguished members of the Lower House at Washington, with prominent North Shore affiliations, Augustus P. Gardner, who saw the light of day forty-six years ago, and Nicholas Longworth, who lagged behind in the race four years, celebrated the anniversary of their birth on Monday.

Armored Automobiles Will Play Big Part In Turko-Italian War

Photos by American Press Association.

ARMORED automobiles are expected to play important parts in the hostilities between Italy and Turkey. Every European nation has been experimenting with autos as a means of quickly moving small bodies of troops and also for the mounting of light artillery. Machine guns mounted on autos can be transported fifty miles as quickly as horses could drag them a third or a fourth that distance. The pictures above show armored automobiles belonging to the war departments of the two countries. In the lower photograph the Italian minister of war and his staff are shown, while the upper picture shows Chevket Pasha, the Turkish minister of war, seated in an armored auto. The portrait is that of Chevket Pasha.

Beverly has published her annual list of the heaviest tax payers. In ward four: Mrs. R. D. Evans swells the amount by a payment of $76,057.12; in ward six: Quincy A. Shaw, trustee, $28,824 and Frederick Ayer, $17,032.25. Of non-residents, Henry C. Frick contributes $8,685.

Miss Mildred Bond, one of the daughters of Mrs. Charles H. Bond of Commonwealth avenue, Boston and Swampscott, sailed from New York on Saturday for Europe. Mrs. Bond and Miss Edith L. Bond accompanied her to New York to see her started on her journey.

His 97th Birthday

Delucena L. Bingham, "Manchester's grand old man," celebrated his 97th birthday Tuesday. Mr. Bingham is Manchester's oldest citizen, an honor he bears with becoming dignity, as well as the distinction of being the oldest librarian in active service in this State if not in the United States.

Mr. Bingham spent the day quietly at home, receiving callers who have for several years made it a point to call and extend congratulations on his birthdays, an honor which he shares with his good wife, who is still quite vigorous at the age of 91.

Mr. Bingham has failed in health noticeably during the past year, although he is still able to visit the library almost every day, but most of the care of the office has devolved upon his assistant, Miss Jennie Sargent.

Mr. Bingham was born in Manchester November 7, 1814, and his career has been a most varied and interesting one. At the age of 23 he sought his fortune in the West, at a time when there was no communication by rail west of the Mississippi. He settled at Alton, Ill., engaging in the furniture business, which did not prove a financial success. He returned to Manchester. Later when Horace Greeley, the famous New York journalist, launched his project of establishing a colony in Colorado, Mr. Bingham became interested, again getting the western fever, and went to Colorado taking up one of the 10-acre farms at Greeley.

This enterprise also proved a losing venture for him, and after fighting against great odds for two years, he gave up and returned to Manchester.

Mr. Bingham was intensely active in the anti-slavery movement and was closely associated with Wm. Lloyd Garrison and Wendell Phillips in the work. His reminiscences of these men are very interesting. He was always a great reader and is blessed with a remarkable memory, so he stored away a fund of information that few men enjoy. He became interested in forming the old Manchester Lyceum, which he has seen develop into one of the finest town public libraries in the State.

World Brotherhood in Latin America

We are pleased to have permission from Miss Mary Brooks to print here the following extracts from paper on this subject read by Miss Brooks at the annual conference of Women's Auxiliaries of the YMCA's of Mass. and R. I., held at Attleboro last week. The paper illustrates well the need and results of the Association work in other lands.

A young Japanese came into the YMCA rooms at Rio de Janeiro one day and asked, "Is this one YMCA like him in Tokyo?"

This, then, is the ideal of World Brotherhood,—to have in every city "one YMCA" like that at home.

Latin America is a tremendous field,—larger than Protestant America. Mexico, Central America, the West Indies, Panama, these countries comprise but a fraction of it. There is a whole continent yet to be mentioned,—our twin continent, stretching away to the southeast.

Other nations are neighboring with all parts of this southern continent, but one feels the Brotherhood of the world most deeply in Argentina; at least, I did. Every flag but ours floats over the crowded docks of Buenos Aires. New Zealanders are as common as New Englanders. So cosmopolitan is the population of Argentina, that, although the Bible is a sealed book to the majority of the inhabitants yet in one year 38 different nationalities bought the Scriptures, each in a different tongue.

In the great city of Buenos Aires the YMCA has a well-established work, from which come most encouraging reports, but better than statistics are such unsolicited tributes as this:

To the office of "La Prensa," one of the most famous newspaper plants in the world there came a complete wreck of manhood, making his last despairing struggle to escape from the drink habit, and the poor wretch asked to be directed to refuge and a friend. "If there is any place in Buenos Aires that can help you, it is the Young Men's Christian Association," was the response. And at the Association he became a man again.

If a New England mother trembles for her son alone in Paris, much more should she fear his fate in Buenos Aires, unless he identifies himself with Christian work there, for Buenos Aires has been characterized as "Paris told to look alive!" The Argentine mother thinks it impossible for her son to live a pure life, and she does not expect him to do it!

Uruguay, too, appreciates the YMCA. At the opening of the Association in Montevideo, Señor Monteverde, the first native secretary in the continent, said:

"It requires no argument to show that there does not exist in this capital a single rallying place that serves as a moral compass for the young men. . . . Fathers of families, put to yourselves the question, Where do our young men go to learn to live the moral life? . . . Outside the theatre, the bull ring, the race course, the 'cafe' and the sports—places and diversions in many cases of pernicious influence and doubtful morality—a young man has nowhere to go where he may be sure to be in an elevating and wholesome atmosphere. . . . The Young Men's Christian Association is a real home for young men, satisfying completely their legitimate needs for diversion and that without violence to the convictions of anyone."

Native men are hard to reach in Latin America. They have little respect for religion and are becoming free-thinkers. What but the YMCA can touch these men? Surely, native conversions or even native recruits mean much.

Small wonder that government officials look with favor upon Association work in Latin America. Gov. Creel of Mexico, is an enthusiastic patron of the work in Chihuahua, and says the Association "fortifies the young men of Mexico against vice."

In Chihuahua, one of the best features of a ten-day fiesta was an athletic meet, managed, by request, by the YMCA. And these clean sports were held in the cruel bull-ring! What a triumph!

In Mexico City the corner stone of the new Association building was laid by the Vice President, and President Diaz himself opened the completed building, saying, "Long live the Christian young men! It is the one institution which has my fullest sympathy."

Great are the triumphs of the work in Latin lands, but there are still greater to be made. The west coast, with its many ports and strategic centres, is yet to be occupied. The beautiful inland city of Santiago, the crowded port of Valparaiso, the dreary railroad terminus of Antofagasta, all in Chile; La Paz, high in the mountains of Bolivia; and in Peru, conservative Arequipa, aristocratic Lima, and the famous port of Callao (I saw a liquor saloon there named "The Water Wagon") all these ought to have Association work, and that right soon.

In Iquitos, the eastern port of Peru, on the Amazon River, the gateway to the "Devil's Paradise," as an English paper calls it, what has been styled "Rubber and murder" is a common traffic. There all the laws of God and man seem forgotten. Men, women and children are sold for slaves, and the revolting practices of the slave-trading rubber-gatherers equal those of the terrible Congo.

Commerce reached Iquitos long, long ago, or these atrocities would have no reason for being. But the Christian worker has not yet been sent.

Praise God for every Association member in the great world fields! Praise Him for every building which offers its homelike shelter to struggling men! But oh, fellow Christians send more! send more!—From the Gloucester YMCA Bulletin.

The Ten Commandments of the Business World

First. Thou shalt not wait for something to turn up, but thou shalt pull off thy coat and go to work, that thou mayest prosper in thine affairs and make "failure" to spell "success."

Second. Thou shalt be on time, that is, just a little ahead of time, so that thine employers or superior officers may count upon thy presence and interest; for promptness and reliability will cover a multitude of shortcomings; but if thou shalt repeatedly fail this, sooner or later thy job will go to another.

Third. Thou shalt not be content to go about thy business looking like a bum, for thou shouldst know that thy personal appearance is better than a letter of recommendation.

Fourth. Thou shalt not try to make excuses, nor shall thou say to those that chide thee "I didn't think," for that is a fool's excuse.

Fifth. Thou shalt not wait to be told what thou shalt do, nor in what manner thou shalt do it, nor shalt thou employ thyself in "killing time";—thus may thy days be long in the job which fortune hath given thee.

Sixth. Thou shalt not fail to maintain thine own integrity, nor thy proper dignity, nor to control thy thoughts as well as thy outward acts, nor shall thou be guilty of anything that shall lessen thy good respect for thyself.

Seventh. Thou shalt not covet the other fellows job, nor his salary nor the position that he hath gained by his own hard labor.

Eighth. Thou shalt not fail to live within thine income, nor shalt thou contract any debts that thou canst not see thy way clear to pay, and that right early.

Ninth. Thou shalt not hesitate to say "no" when thou meanst "no," nor shalt thou fail to remember that it is unsafe to bind thyself by a hasty judgment.

Tenth. Thou shalt give unto every man a square deal. This is the last and great commandment and there is none other like unto it. Upon this commandment hang all the law and the abiding profits of the business world.

"I am strongly inclined to think that your husband has appendicitis," said the physician.

"That's just like him," answered Mrs. Cumrox. "He always waits till everything has pretty near gone out of style before he decides to get it."

Mrs. Todd Lectures on "Aerial Navigation"

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Manchester Woman's club was held at the Congregational chapel, Tuesday afternoon, the president, Mrs. Emma E. Stanley, presiding.

During the business session the proceeds from the lecture on Nov. 1st was announced as $22.20, which will add a goodly sum to the club treasury. The autumn federation meeting will be held with the Hannah Dustin club at Haverhill Nov. 16th. The Manchester club's delegates will be Mrs. Annie M. Sinnicks and Mrs. Mary L. Blaisdell.

At the close of the lecture, Miss Helen Benfield of Peabody favored the audience with a brilliant piano solo from Faust. She was heartily applauded. The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd, wife of the famous astronomer. Her subject was "Aerial Voyaging" and treated as it was from personal experiences, proved very entertaining. Mrs. Todd has a happy, easy delivery and her lecture was in narrative style touched with humor and impressive descriptions.

In part, Mrs. Todd considered balloons safe and aeroplanes unsafe. She believes that as the ocean has been conquered, so the air will be.

Historically, attempts at aerial navigation were tried in the early ages before Christ. In 1783, hot air was used by burning straw in the primitive airships. Other mediums in the early ages of such experiments were hydrogen, mountain air and the vacuum.

Benjamin Franklin was very much interested in aerial navigation—in its infantile stages—and anticipated speedy results toward its realization.

Prof. Langley had the right principle in his flying machine although it only made an altitude of 700 feet. People made as much fun of him as they did "Darius Green and his Flying Machine."

There are two kinds of balloons to be considered, the free balloon by wind, which is legitimated straight ballooning and the dirigible balloon.

Aeroplanes are of several classes. They are the "heavier than air machines," "flapping machines" and "maple seed aeroplanes." Mrs. Todd's aerial flights did not deal with aeroplanes, but with balloons.

Her first flight was a day flight from Fitchburg in the Glidden balloon, Massachusetts. Mrs. Todd described in detail the preparations for such a flight,—the inflation of the balloon, the ballasting of the balloon with sand baskets, the careful adjustment of balance, the equipment of the balloon with the stethoscope to determine air pressure and other necessary instruments. A great crowd of people witnessed the flight which also added to the excitement of the occasion.

A balloon invariably goes straight up into the air unless there is an extremely strong cross current wind blowing. There is no perceptible sensation of moving, but it is the strangest sensation, when one has summoned courage enough to look over the edge of the basket to see the world receding. The moment the stethoscope registers too high an air pressure for safety the appendix of the gas bag is opened to allow gas to escape. This brings the balloon down or if the balloon is getting too low for safety a scoop of sand thrown out will serve to send it up in the air 50 feet. These are the main requisites to be followed out by a careful pilot.

This day flight carried Mrs. Todd across the state over Worcester and the Connecticut valley's cities and towns with an eventual safe landing in a Manchester, Connecticut, field, where friends met them in an automobile and brought them refreshments and aided in the transportation of their aerial carriage, then an uninflated bag, and the basket to the nearest railroad station. During this flight an altitude of 5,000 feet was reached and Mrs. Todd was most generous in her praise of inland Massachusetts as viewed from such a height. The silence which reigns in the clouds is most wonderful and restful from the turmoil and noise of the world below. A sunset at such a height was spectacular and beautiful in the extreme.

The next flight Mrs. Todd made was from Pittsfield at midnight last year, to help view and secure photographs of Halley's comet. This was successfully accomplished in the big Glidden balloon, Boston, at an altitude of 7000 feet. Another wonderful sight was the viewing of a sunrise at such a height. This flight was terminated successfully also with only one terrifying experience, an attempt to shoot at the balloon by some one with a long distance rifle, the bullet nearly hitting Mrs. Todd, but fortunately just whizzing by her ear.

Mrs. Todd proved a strong advocate of the balloon. As to aeroplanes, their greatest future status will be founded on the ability of constructing them of steel with the maximum of weight and minimum of power definitely adjusted.

An informal reception followed the lecture, when Mrs. Todd received many personal congratulations.

During the social period, Mrs. Annie M. Sinnicks was the hostess of the afternoon. In the tea room, Mrs. F. M. Johnson of Swampscott, formerly of Manchester, and Mrs. Wm. Hoare, poured.

The next meeting of the club will be held Nov. 21st. It will be an open meeting and musicale on "English Melodies," Mrs. Maud Conway Blanchard, entertainer. Mrs. Philip Stockton will be the hostess at this meeting.

Advance in Prices in Foreign Countries

That prices have advanced in other parts of the world as well as in the United States is evidenced by a statement prepared by the Bureau of Statistics, Department of Commerce and Labor, comparing import prices at the present time with those of certain earlier years. The import figures of the United States government represent, under existing law and regulations, the prices of the articles in question in the wholesale markets of the country from which imported, and a comparison, therefore, of the average import prices of the principal articles imported at the present time compared with those of corresponding periods in earlier years indicates, in some degree at least, the fluctuation in prices in the countries from which these articles are imported.

This comparison of prices is rendered practicable by reason of the fact that the Bureau of Statistics publishes in its Summary of Commerce and Finance a table showing the monthly average import prices of the principal articles brought into the country, and states at the head of the table that "The value of the goods represents their value in the foreign markets." These statements of average import prices are obtained by comparing quantity with value for the period in question, or in other words, by dividing the stated quantity of the article under consideration into the stated value thereof and thus determining the import value per unit of quantity. This table shows, for example, the average price of coffee imported in August, 1911, as 11.8c per pound, against 6.4c per pound in August, 1901, a decade ago; India rubber, an average of 83.4c per pound in August, 1911, against 46.9c per pound in August, 1901; clothing wool, 22.9c per pound in August, 1911, against 12c per pound in August, 1901; combing wool, 33.9c per pound in August of the present year, against 19.8c in August a decade ago; flax, $438.65 per ton in August, 1911, against $216.82 in August, 1901; hemp, $210.10 per ton in August of the present year, against $165.61 in August, 1901; tin plates, 3.9c per pound in August of the current year, against 3c in the corresponding month a decade ago; tin in bars, blocks, etc., 41.2c per pound in August, 1911, against 26.5c a pound in August, 1901; and tea, 18.2c a pound in August of the current year, against 13.3c a pound in the corresponding month a decade ago.

Even in the single twelve month period from August, 1910, to August, 1911, a large number of articles show a marked advance in prices. Coffee, for example, which, as already indicated, showed an average of 11.8c per pound in August 1911, averaged 7.8c per pound in August, 1910; rice imports in August, 1911, averaged 3.1c per pound, against 2.4c per pound in August a year earlier; cement, in August, 1911, 38.8c per hundred pounds, against 28.4c per hundred pounds in August of last year; bananas, 29.8c per bunch in August of the present year, against 27.6c per bunch in August, 1910; currants, 4.8c per pound in August, 1911, against 3.7c per pound in August of last year; figs, 6.7c per pound in August, 1911, against 5.3c per pound in August a year ago; almonds, 14.5c per pound in August of the present year, against 10.3c per pound in the corresponding month of 1910; calf skins, 29.2c per pound in August, 1911, against 24.1c per pound in August, 1910; tin plates, 3.9c per pound in August of the current year, against 3c per pound in August, 1910; olive oil, edible, $1.44 per gallon in August, 1911, against $1.29 per gallon in August, 1910; black pepper, 8.2c per pound in August, 1911, against 7.3c per pound in August a year ago; champagne, $15.49 per dozen quarts in August, 1911, against $14.64 in August, 1910; tin in bars, blocks, etc., 41.2c per pound in August of the current year, against 32.1c in August of the previous year; leaf tobacco, suitable for wrappers, $1.17 per pound in August of this year, against 95.4c per pound in August of last year; clothing wool, 22.9c per pound in August, 1911, against 21.2c per pound in August 1910; combing wool, 33.9c per pound in August of the current year, against 30c per pound in August a year ago; and wool carpets and carpeting, $4.48 per square yard in August, 1911, against $3.47 in August, 1910.

This advance in prices, however, does not extend to all articles. Nitrate of soda is materially lower in price than a year ago—$26.55 per ton, in August, 1911, against $34.75 per ton in August, 1910; guano, $12.42 per ton in August, 1911, against $25.79 in August of last year. Cocoa is slightly less in average import price, 22.2c per pound in August, 1911, against 23.7c per pound in August, 1910; also copper, 11.4c per pound in August, 1911, against 12c in August, 1910; pig iron, $27.19 per ton in August, 1911, against $34.09 in August, 1910;

while copper, cotton cloths unbleached, manila, hemp, sisal grass, hides of cattle, raw silk, and lumber show a slight decline in August, 1911, compared with August, 1910.

Ruth St. Denis at Keith's Theatre

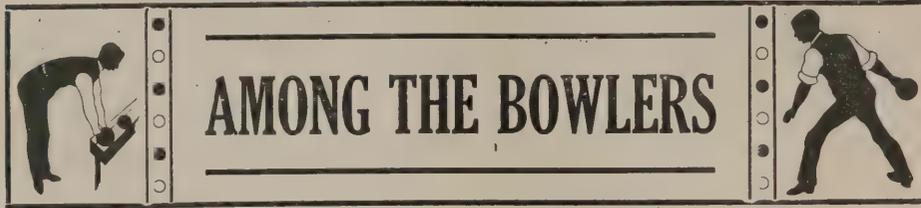

Ruth St. Denis, the world's greatest exponent of the terpsichorean art of the Hindus, comes to B. F. Keith's Theatre next week in a magnificent production of "The Mystic Dance of the Five Senses." This is the most popular of the cycle of East Indian dances created by Miss St. Denis, in which she became the rage of London, Paris, Berlin, and New York. India and the Hindus have always possessed a strange fascination for Occidentals, but it remained for Miss St. Denis to draw aside the veil of mystery that has hitherto shrouded the religion and customs of this strange country and bring the dreamy breezes and atmosphere of the Orient to the doors of everyday America. The East Indian dances as interpreted by Miss St. Denis do not represent the physical abandon so characteristic of the so-called "Oriental dances" common to the variety stage, but depend considerably upon pantomime. Miss St. Denis served a long apprenticeship as a dancing girl under the management of David Belasco, and during this period she gained an intimate knowledge of light effects and stage management that has made her East Indian dances a delight to the eye, while the music, arranged by Walter Merwrowitz, and the burning of incense in the temple scene, take still other senses into captivity. At B. F. Keith's Theatre Miss St. Denis will be supported by a company of twenty-five Cingalese, while the scenic equipment showing the innermost sanctuary of a Hindu temple, requires two big baggage cars for its transportation. The bill surrounding this splendid attraction is not yet complete, but Harry Jolson, the blackface comedian, and the Temple Four will be included in it.

Recital at Boston

Mrs. Florence Stevens Low, soprano, and Mr. Oscar Seagle, baritone, will give a recital at Steinart hall, Boston, on the afternoon of Thursday, November 16th, at three o'clock.

When Jean De Reszke gave up his public career and opened a studio in Paris to teach the method he had been years perfecting, Mrs. Low and Mr. Seagle were members of his first class. Two years later, they gave a most successful recital together in Paris, which was the first public appearance of any of his pupils.

Mrs. Low studied with Jean De Reszke for three years preparing herself for opera and made her debut in Nice as Elsa in Lohengrin in April 1906, before a most brilliant audience. The coming recital will be her first appearance since her return to America.

The Business Problem

Governor-elect Foss claims that Massachusetts has now spoken "unmistakably for an honest revision of the tariff and for a business administration of the commonwealth. The national significance of this election is inestimable; the rest of the country will follow the lead of Massachusetts." Hidden beneath these words there is a popular error which is working ruin to our business enterprises and destruction to legitimate sensible business administration of national affairs. The state has nothing to do with national affairs and all its elections should be fought out on local issues. Likewise in national affairs the industrial, tariff and corporation questions included in the Sherman Act are economic and not political questions. It is because of this confusion that the unthinking citizen is beguiled and hoodwinked by unscrupulous newspapers and magazines and selfish, unpatriotic office-seekers. Until the two problems are divorced there will be rancor, unrest and consequently hardships for all.

The people are facing a serious condition in the economic administration of the government and men of sand, salt and sense are needed as they never have been needed before. A practical sensible patriotism should inspire the citizens of America to be cautious and considerate. Henry L. Higginson has struck the right note in this issue, the appeal to the patriotic spirit of the people.

It is evident that when Congress convenes in December that there is certain to be contests, debates and movements inspired by many diverse national policies. The two great questions, tariff and the regulation of the Corporations will certainly be the two great questions of the session. Both of these questions are economic questions and the American people are committing the egregious blunder of making them a political question. In this, both parties have failed, but the democratic party appears to be the great sinner now. Mr. Taft is a larger man than either the republican or democratic party have been willing to concede, but every thoughtful student, agreeing or disagreeing with Mr. Taft's general policy must acknowledge his good sense and courage in vetoing the cotton and wool bills of the last session of the legislature. He has taken the position that he will sign no tariff bill that does not meet the approval of the tariff board. This is only another way of saying that he will not sign any bill which is the result of political chicanery and log-rolling. The tariff board was created for this specific purpose. Here the schedules can be considered economically and the interests of all America carefully guarded. Every encouragement should be given this awakening conviction for the tariff is an economic not a political question.

It is unfortunate that while the country is facing a serious tariff conflict that it should be embarrassed by another equally serious national economic issue, the regulation of corporations in order to prevent the restraint of trade. Here again the economic issue has been made a political issue and the accumulated power and wealth of corporations has become the target for muck-raking un-American newspapers and magazines. No care or thought has been given the problem and consequently the public has been "fed" half digested, untruthful (often maliciously so) reports, "stories" and articles by biased, unprincipled and reckless writers. The public has been beguiled and led blindly into calumny, vituperation, class hatred and bigotry. The emotions of the people based upon a mud alloy of their sense of justice (or injustice) selfishness, greed, envy, ambition and revenge. The "stirring" up of the emotions resulting in the widening of the breach between the corporations and the people does not accomplish good, cannot solve the problem, and is doing incalculable harm.

The corporations have come to stay. They are a part of the national industrial life of the people and it has been the co-operative spirit back of the American enterprises which has made our nation industrially supreme. Consequently the problem touches the purse of every individual from the Pacific to the Atlantic. The American people have been able in the past to solve all their problems and they can in the future. It will take time, patience and restraint. Again be it said this is an economic question and not a political question and it will require the best minds the American people have and these are not found on the editorial staffs of "penny yellows" and muckraking magazines.

Let business problems be solved in a business way. It is a question of national housekeeping to be settled according to the principles of equity and justice with prosperity for all.

Something must be settled speedily and a national policy concerning corporations fixed. The uncertainty and perplexing situation now existing tends to paralyze the industry and enterprise of the American people. America is the laughing stock of Europe, the anxiety of her best citizens and the hinderer of its own prosperity. Abuses have developed and the American workman has suffered because of inhumanity and greed incorporated in "bad trusts." This can not be doubted. No one doubts it. But what is needed is a fixed governmental policy which will regulate and control trusts, preventing restraint of trade, the muleting of the public, the maintenance of false and unreasonably high prices, improper wages for workmen, and provide the public with corporate business enterprises which will afford economy in production; and prices, the insurance of stability in production, reasonable, just and adequate wages and the proper guarding of the lives of the workers by healthful sanitation, reasonable hours of labor, protection from dangerous machinery and from the hazards of the health destroying industries. A properly regulated trust is not only a necessity but a possibility.

Meanwhile it is not only untrue, but wrong to call the promoters of the great trusts robbers, pirates and plunderers as far as the constructive work in corporation building is concerned. Care should be used in the use of words of strong meaning. As a matter of fact the corporations have been constructed upon a decision of the Supreme Court (Knight's Case) and now the decision is reversed. There have been many questionable "combines" which deserve the condemnation of the public, but care and judgment must be exercised in the use of such terms. Now the "good" and "bad" corporations are in a dilemma. Action either right or wrong cannot be taken. There is an unrest and an uncertainty which must be removed in order that legitimate capital in legitimate corporations may develop. Even the corporations directed by honorable men seeking to know the right and willing to do it are in doubt and wait in anxious uncertainty. The enterprises are conducting business on a "hand to mouth" policy and the public suffer. This whole matter is a great economic question to be settled on economic grounds and not by political propaganda, democratic or republican.

An Ounce of Prevention Worth a Pound of Cure

The district at Beverly Farms bounded by Webster avenue, Greenwood avenue, Haskell street and Hart street, continuing to the Wenham line, should be properly patrolled at night. This can only be accomplished by the enrollment of another officer to do night duty. During the last eighteen months three serious affairs have transpired on the road to Wenham. These could have been prevented if a patrolman had been on duty. The incident on last Friday evening is the last straw and the citizens of that district are justified in their appeal to the city for another policeman.

The matter has been presented to the City Government through Mr. Loring and the request should be granted. The city has sufficient funds to establish a modern signal system and ought not to be embarrassed by the addition of one new officer.

The road to Wenham is unsafe after dark and the passing and repassing of Italians and others has made the walk a terror to timid women. The city will surely correct the trouble. But the cause is more deeply seated and can only be removed by the will of some of the people in Ward Six. Certain types of construction work has resulted in the importation of labor of such a character as to demoralize in a mild degree at least the whole district. The man who has construction work to do and distinctly specifies that it is not to be done by the kind of labor that dwells in booths in the woods and camps in the field will rid the community of a menace.

No one is so heartless as to wish these creatures who come to our shore to be deprived of the labor that will win bread, but on the other side it is transparently unfair for a man of wealth to develop any estate at the expense of the community. It is a social problem which cannot be overlooked by the North Shore.

What a contrast! The mansion on the hill and the swarthy, lusty, good natured, booth dwelling laborer in camps and hovels. Is it a fair contrast? But there is a class of "non combatants" who suffer. The dwellers in the village, who must walk, because they cannot ride must pass and repass men of unknown character at all hours in light or dark; and the three nerve racking experiences on Hart street, one an assault upon a woman, the second an act of indecent conduct and the third a drunken brawl, has rightly enough stirred the residents to action. It is certain Beverly ought to do something, but is it not more imperative that Beverly Farms should do something for itself. Here is a serious, thought-provoking question and it must be solved. A man is promoting these conditions when he engages construction work without specifying the character of the laborers.

Let the Ward have the policeman but let every summer resident be loyal to the interests of the district and the cause can be removed.

COMMUNICATION

Editor North Shore Breeze,

Dear Sir:—What has become of the Manchester Historical Society? Frequently I hear this question, and frequently I hear of good old pieces of antiquity (furniture, pictures, etc.) that are being kept for the Society until such time as it can take care of these things. But also, with alarming frequency, I hear of choice pieces of local historical value, that have been given to other Societies and Museums, and have so gone out of Manchester forever, because the Manchester Historical Society could not take them, as it had no place to keep them. I have in mind a beautiful and valuable painting by a French artist of a brig which made several voyages under a Manchester sea captain, and this picture lately left Manchester to grace the walls of the Boston Marine Museum at the old State House in Boston. I have also in mind several things that have been given to the Peabody Institute in Salem, and also to the Essex Institute in that city, and gladly received by these Societies, but these things should never have left Manchester, and would not, had the local Society been in a position to take charge of them. I have also lately heard of several people interested in such things who have expressed a desire to join this Society, but who could not find any active Society to join. It would seem as though if only a single room, in some building or house, were engaged by this Society, such a place could be used, in which to form a nucleus of a collection of pieces of historical value, which, if not looked after in some such way, are very liable to be diverted to other ends and so lost forever to this town. Make the start and the growth will follow.

Trusting that this appeal may start the ball rolling in the right direction and that Manchester may have a Historical Society that is both visible and active, and hoping that it will, at least, call a meeting of its members to discuss these things, I remain, with the historical interests of the town at heart.

Famous Yacht Broken Up at Manchester

At the D. Fenton Co. boat yard at Manchester, is a famous racing yacht of former days—brought there last week to be broken up and to pass to the scrap heap and junk. This is the well-known English cutter Shona, called by those of the North Shore who knew the yacht in her best days "The Toothpick."

This yacht has been laid up at Frazier's yard, Marblehead, for so many years, that when she was examined lately it was decided that it was not advisable to transport the old cutter on her own bottom from Marblehead to Manchester. Thus last week the Shona was loaded aboard one of the Rockport granite sloops and carried to the David Fenton Company at Manchester, where she will be broken up. The lead has already been removed. It is proposed to cut off the stern and the bow, to keep as mementos of this old style of racing craft.

It is understood, that as the Shona was brought over on a steamer, duty was paid on the yacht when she passed through the customs at New York. Thus, she is not being broken up by her owner because of the duty imposed on foreign-built yachts, but rather because she has passed from usefulness. At Manchester her lead keel will be removed to be later melted down for use on a newly built yacht. The remainder of the yacht will be sawed up and sold for junk.

In 1886 the Shona was bought on the other side of the Atlantic by Charles H. Tweed of New York, who has continued to own the cutter down to the present day. She was built at Largs, Scot., by J. McQuistan, from designs of G. L. Watson, in 1884, and for the two years raced in English waters had a fine record.

Not only is the Shona well known for her own history, but she is also inter-woven in the earlier racing records of Capt. John Barr, and his still more famous younger brother, Capt. "Charlie" Barr, the two foremost imported skippers in American yachting.

Capt. John Barr came over to this country first with the English cutter Clara, following in 1887 with the American cup challenger Thistle, but of all the many racing yachts that Capt. John Barr skippered, the Shona was the longest under his command. From the late '80's up to within five years of his death, which occurred in 1909, Capt. John with one of his boys had the Shona in commission at Marblehead and the North Shore throughout each season.

In her earlier days "Charlie" Barr served aboard the Shona as part of her racing crew, and in many a race off Marblehead between the 40 to 46-foot sloops, part of the racing crews were recruited from the Shona in every contest.

Probably the best-known win of the Shona was that from the famous Shadow, off Marblehead, Sept. 4, 1886. In those days the cutters and sloops, or rather the centerboards and the keels, were raced in different classes. In this race of the Beverly Yacht Club the Shona and Shadow sailed in different classes, but the real race of the regatta was between these two yachts for the lead of the fleet. In the rattling good breeze the Shona beat the Shadow by three minutes.

The Shona, for her length, is probably one of the narrowest cutters ever built. With an overall length of 42 feet, a waterline length of 33 feet 9 inches, she has a beam of only 5 feet 11 inches, while the yacht's draft is 5 feet 10 inches, within one inch of her beam.

Opposed to Construction of New Street and Abandonment of Proctor Street

The hearings at the Selectmen's rooms, in the Manchester Town hall yesterday afternoon, on the question of widening and re-locating Proctor street, on the construction of a new way to Smith's Point, and on the proposed abandonment of Proctor street, were well attended, and though the sentiment was strongly in favor of the widening of Proctor street, there was much opposition against the construction of the proposed new street and the consequent abandonment of Proctor street.

The hearings were purely preliminary, and were simply for the purpose of obtaining an expression of the public sentiment, as the selectmen are endeavoring to make some plans for the improvement of the manner of reaching Smith's Point.

James Means was in favor of widening Proctor street, but he was decidedly opposed to the abandoning of this street and the construction, instead, of a new way.

Stoughton Bell, representing a number of the summer residents on Smith's Point, including W. L. Putnam, Richard Stone, B. A. Beal, S. P. Bremer and others, favored the improvement of Proctor street, but opposed its abandonment. He opposed the construction of a new street, as proposed, saying that such a street would hold out an invitation to motorists and others who came to the shore as sight-seers, to drive over to Smith's Point. As the road around the point was narrow and full of curves such additional travel would necessitate the widening of this private road. Smith's Point held out an attraction to the residents there for the reason that it is off the main line of travel and is exclusive. It would be a distinct disadvantage to open it up any more than it is now. Then again, if Proctor street were abandoned how would people on this part of the point get to the beach and the churches. A road such as is proposed would be more of an avenue, and not a rural road such as adds to the attractiveness of this locality. He favored the widening of Proctor street and a possible cutting down of the Masconomo hill.

J. Warren Merrill coincided with everything Mr. Bell had said.

Russell Codman, a new-comer to this town, wanted to remain neutral, as the widening of Proctor street would take some of his property.

A representative of the Smith estate was against the new road.

It was estimated that the new road would cost $40,000 beside land damage. The widening of Proctor street on its eastern end would cost between six and seven thousand dollars.

W. C. Rust didn't see the need of a new street, but favored widening Proctor street.

The hearing closed at 2.45, after 45 minutes' session. If anything further is done on the matter sufficient notice will be given for hearings, etc.

ESSEX

Election day contrary to all expectation was ideal. One of the largest votes ever cast in Essex was registered. The polls were opened at 6 a. m. Essex was the first town to get returns in to Boston. A total of 300 votes was recorded, Essex as usual giving liberal support to the Republican candidates.

The senior class of Essex High school are holding a fair at the Town hall. Wednesday night was their first night. Thursday night a supper and entertainment were enjoyed, tonight a dance will be held with Long's orchestra and tomorrow afternoon a Sunlight party is on the dock. Through it all, fancy and useful articles will be for sale. The supper was a great success being very generously patronized. The proceeds of the fair will go towards a fund to be used by the class after they graduate to pay the expenses of a trip to Washington.

THE BEST KIND OF FAMILY READING

For your home, where the right influence counts for so much, choose the reading that quickens the pulse, that tells of deeds of daring, that takes the reader into strange parts of the world, and yet, with all its power to entertain, depicts honor, true manliness, gentleness, loyalty to principle, as the things of chief importance in life. It benefits while it entertains.

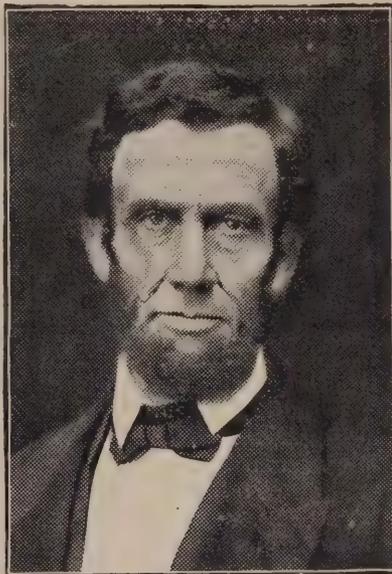

You will find such reading week after week in the pages of The Youth's Companion, contributed by the most popular story-writers, and by men and women whose names are famous in every field of enterprise and scholarship.

Send us your address on a postal card, and we will mail you the beautiful Prospectus of The Companion for 1912, together with sample copies of the paper.

We think you will agree, when you have read them, that there is no other paper that gives quite so much of such a high quality as The Companion, and it costs only $1.75 now for the 52 weekly issues. On January 1, 1912, the subscription price will be advanced to $2.00.

The new subscriber receives a gift of The Companion's Calendar for 1912, in ten colors and gold, and all the remaining issues of 1911 free from the time the subscription is received.

Chapin as Lincoln

The above is not a portrait of Abraham Lincoln. It is a photograph of Benjamin Chapin, widely known as the one man able to impersonate the famous President. But for the anachronism, Mr. Chapin would often be mistaken for Abraham Lincoln. Several months ago, we arranged for a special appearance of Mr. Chapin in Gloucester, Wednesday evening, November 29. He will then appear in an original monolog portrayal of his four act "Lincoln," a character drama of "Life in the White House." This is the first of the three high class entertainments arranged by the Gloucester Y M C A for this winter and it is so worthy of attention we feel we can not speak of it too highly.

Church Notes

The celebration of the Lord's supper, baptism and the reception of members last Sunday morning at the Congregational church were impressive services and a large congregation was in attendance. Mr. Henry C. Mitchell, Mrs. Wm. E. Hodgdon, John Irving Baker, Harry Damon Baker, George E. Diamond and Raymond Nelson Purdy were received into the membership of the church on confession of faith. The pastor, Rev. Louis H. Ruge, as he extended the hand of fellowship spoke words of welcome to each candidate, commending the purpose that prompted them to confess Christ and bidding them in the name of the church a hearty welcome. The greeting to the young men who are leaders in the "Boy Scouts," of which the pastor is Scout Master, was full of sympathetic comradeship and offerings of helpfulness. Many of the members in this new boys' movement occupied reserved seats in the front of the auditorium where they viewed their leaders' reception into the church with much interest and it is hoped that others may be led to take this manly course in coming out boldly on the side of righteous living and identifying themselves with the church. John Irving Baker, Harry Damon Baker and Raymond Nelson Purdy were baptized and the other candidates personally confirmed the rite of baptism administered in childhood. After the congregation sang "Blest be the tie that binds" the celebration of the "Lord's Supper" took place.

Everyone expressed themselves as impressed and inspired with the services and are looking forward to the special services that are arranged for, to take place in the near future to be in charge of Rev. Chas. M. Ellinwood of Boston, who is at present conducting a series of meetings in the south. Altogether the prospects for a successful season in the Congregational church are very encouraging, and with the inspiration of the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Warner, at the Baptist church, this winter should become known for a general awakening in the religious life of our community.

"Ben-Hur" at Boston Theatre

"Ben-Hur" is once again the topic of the hour in New England. The new and greater spectacular production of General Lew Wallace's awe-inspiring biblical narrative, staged at the historic Boston Theatre last week has received the highest praise from the entire Boston Press that has ever been extended to a theatrical attraction. The big play-house has been filled to overflowing at every performance so far and the people in attendance have unanimously set the seat of its approval on this gigantic and glittering spectacle—the Pinnacle of Twentieth century stage craft. For twelve years "Ben-Hur" has enjoyed the greatest success ever known in the dramatic world. Beautiful and splendid as have been former presentations of this great play, their beauty and splendor paled into insignificance when the new production which has just come from the hands of the painters, costumers, property makers was shown to the Boston public. All of the glory and beauty of the far East, the warmth of color, the richness of material and the exquisite harmony of landscape which make the tropical countries seem like everlasting gardens, have been transferred to the stage in this new setting of the great drama. The grandeur of the theme which has made "Ben-Hur" the most read book and the most seen play seem scarcely less sublime than the wonderful production which has been provided for the unfolding of the story in this newest edition of the play.

The cast assembled for this big revival of General Wallace's drama is a notable one. A hundred trained choristers sing Edward Stillman Kelley's music composed especially for "Ben-Hur"; a troupe of ballet nymphs present the dance in the Grove of Daphne, and a horde of practiced supernumeraries numbering 400 give effect to the scenes in which masses of people lend majesty and dignity to the theme. In the chariot race 20 thoroughbred racers battle for supremacy.

Elsie Janis in "The Slim Princess"

For a limited engagement beginning Monday, November 13th. Elsie Janis, Mr. Dillingham's youngest star will appear at the Colonial in "The Slim Princess." Miss Elsie Janis, who for three or four seasons was known as the wonder child of the American stage by reason of her marvellous, nimetic ability as demonstrated in her imitations and characterizations of famous actors and actresses of Europe and America, has now graduated to full stellar honors as a comedienne, and at the early age of twenty-one has also gained some slight fame as a dramatic author. This new musical comedy—for it is a musical comedy—in three acts, is entitled "The Slim Princess," and is taken from George Ade's ludicrously funny novelette. Taking Mr. Ade's whimsical idea from his novelette, Mr. Henry Blossom, author of "The Red Mill," and "Mlle. Modiste," wrote an exuberantly funny libretto, to which Mr. Leslie Stuart, the composer of "Floradora," furnished a bewitchingly illustrative musical score.

Announcement made of free trip to the
Panama-Pacific International Exposition

WORD has been received from SUNSET, the Magazine of the Pacific and the Far West, of the organization of the Sunset Panama-Pacific Club. The Club offers a four-weeks' trip to the Exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915, including railway fare, Pullman, diner, hotel accommodations, admissions to the fair, side trips to points of interest, all in return for a little time each week to be devoted to the work of the Magazine.

The exposition is to be held to commemorate the completion of the Panama Canal, connecting the Pacific and Atlantic. From all indications it will be by far the greatest World's Fair ever held.

The Magazine has issued a very attractive booklet descriptive of the trip, and giving further particulars, which will be sent on application.

The membership is very limited and it is not likely that more than one or two applications will be accepted from this vicinity. Request for particulars should be sent to

News of the death last Monday of Dr. David C. Coleman, aged 32, of Beverly, was received at the Farms with much sadness. He was well known and had many friends here. Besides his private practice in this section of the city he was well known because of his being city physician. Death was due to peritonitis following an operation for appendicitis.

At the polls on Tuesday, John L. Saltonstall and Herman A. Macdonald each received a big vote in their re-election for representatives. Macdonald, 1931; and Saltonstall, 1827, in the city as a whole. The Farms man also lead on the totals in the district. The vote given the above at Danvers was, Macdonald, 571, Saltonstall 641.

Considerable interest was shown in the election at the Farms Tuesday, there being 268 votes cast out of a registration of 334. Those who did not vote were either away from town or were situated so that they could not get to the polls. Ward 6, as usual, was the first in the city to report the returns.

Mr. O'Mally, one of the USS Mayflower crew has the past week been enjoying a furlough and came on to Beverly Farms from New York to spend it with friends.

Now that the state election is over work will probably begin for the city election. As there will be no mayor to elect this year it is doubtful if the candidates for the board of aldermen will stir up the usual interest.

That the 20th Essex District has a man in public life who can do things was made clear a few days ago. Since the beginning of the school year the students from Beverly Farms and Pride's Crossing attending the High school have had to stand up in the train both going to Beverly and returning. Many complaints had been made and finally the matter was called to the attention of Rep. MacDonald, who at once took the matter up with the Railroad Commission. Within three days the matter had been referred to President Mellen and by him to Vice Pres. Barr, who ordered an extra car put on the train leaving Beverly Farms at 7.34 in the morning and on the train leaving Beverly at 1.15 in the afternoon. Within three days Rep. MacDonald accomplished what had been asked for from other sources for a couple of months.

Two little boys were discussing the strength of a bee. "He can pull more'n a fly," said one of them.

SOCIETY NOTES

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Augustus P. Loring of Marlboro street, Boston, of the engagement of their only daughter, Miss May Loring, and Samuel Vaughan. The announcement was made at Pride's Crossing, where the Lorings are to remain until after Thanksgiving, and Miss Loring was most generously remembered with felicitations and flowers at the tea Wednesday afternoon at the Loring cottage. Miss Loring came out several years ago at a brilliant ball. Her debut was postponed a year in order that she might pass some months in Paris and study singing with Jean De Reszke. She is most talented, and has distinguished herself in many ways. She is heiress to a generous fortune, and has distinctly Bostonian affiliations, her mother having been Ellen Gardner prior to her marriage, so that the near relatives are George Augustus Gardner, Mrs. John L. Gardner, Mrs. George Howard Monks, George P. Gardner, Mrs. Francis B. Boyer, Mrs. Roger Wolcott and others equally as well known. Mr. Vaughan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Warren Vaughan (Ellen Parkman) of Beacon street, Boston, and is the brother of Miss Mary E. Vaughan, a former president of the Vincent Club. He graduated from Harvard two years ago and is a member of the Tennis and Racquet Club. No date has been decided upon for the wedding, but it is understood that the engagement will be of brief duration.

SOCIETY NOTES

Washington's winter colony is beginning to settle and already the social calendars of many prominent hostesses are being formulated. At the country club at Chevy Chase, the suburb of Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Roosevelt gave a dinner party Tuesday evening as a final festivity before the marriage Wednesday in Washington, of their daughter, Miss Olga Roosevelt, to Dr. J. Breckenridge Bayne of New York. Yellow and white chrysanthemums and autumn foliage were the dining-room decorations and an orchestra played throughout dinner. In addition to Miss Helen Taft, the guests included those forming the bridal attendants at the wedding. The bride is a cousin of Ex-President Roosevelt. The ceremony was performed at St. Thomas' church at 4 o'clock, followed by a reception at the Roosevelt home on Massachusetts avenue. Dr. Bayne and his bride left for a Northern trip after the reception. The bride has been one of the most popular girls in Washington since her debut two seasons ago. SOCIETY NOTES

Major Archibald W. Butt, President Taft's aide, was presented with a silver loving cup Wednesday evening of last week during Pres. Taft's southern trip. The Louisville, Kentucky, Press club was the donor. The gift came from several members with whom Major Butt "hunted the elusive item in the old days." Major Butt in the acceptance of the gift explained that, "An aide, you know, is merely a dot on the blotting paper, a high light in the picture, and his chief function is to efface himself." However, Major Butt acquitted himself well, and this was after President Taft, in his response, had asserted playfully that the major "is kissing kin to every girl south of the Mason and Dixon line."

Mrs. Charles R. Hayden and daughter, Mrs. Horace B. Stanton, well known Boston members of the Magnolia cottage colony, are receiving the sympathy of their many North Shore friends in their unfortunate auto accident near Hotel Buckminster, Boston, about 1.35 o'clock Monday morning. The accident happened as they were returning from a dinner party at the home of John Craig, the actor, at Brookline. The auto in which they were riding crashed into a twenty-four-inch water main at the bridge on Beacon street near the hotel. Mrs. Hayden is suffering from fractures, cuts and bruises and Mrs. Stanton was bruised and badly shaken up. Mr. Stanton was operating the car when the accident occurred. Torrents of water poured into the street from the broken water main, which added to the discomfort of the occupants of the machine, who were thrown into the street from the impact of the collision. Mrs. Hayden is a sister of Miss Fanny M. Faulkner of Boston and Magnolia.

Mrs. Richard J. Monks and Miss Grace Monks closed their cottage on Summer street, Manchester, Tuesday for the season. Their winter residence is at 344 Marlboro street, Boston. Mrs. Page, Mrs. Monk's mother, who has been her guest at Manchester, went to Flushing, N. Y., to visit her daughter, Mrs. W. Beverly Harrison.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Mrs. Bryce J. Allan of Boston and Beverly Cove, is believed to have been the victim of a woman "Raffles," who may have stolen Mrs. Allan's $15,000 diamond necklace at a recent Back Bay, Boston, wedding. The valuable necklace is reported missing. In removing her wrap and adding the last touch to her toilet, the necklace was removed a moment from her throat and laid on a dressing table. When Mrs. Allan turned to replace the necklace, it had disappeared. The necklace was a gift to Mrs. Allan from Mr. Allan.

A Chinese Cavalry Patrol. Will They Catch the Rebels?

AS in the case of many another revolution, it is apparently the army of China which has decided the fate of the Manchu dynasty and ruling class. Yet for ages the profession of arms has been scorned by the Chinese, the soldier having been esteemed the inferior of the merchant and the farmer. It is only a few years since shooting with the bow was one of the recognized and highly commended exercises of the regular army, if any military force within the empire could be called regular. Since 1905, however, China has been paying a good deal of attention to her army, having organized an active force and a first and second reserve. The plan contemplated thirty-seven divisions, including all arms, and its projectors hoped that in 1913 these divisions would number nearly 500,000 men, of whom 380,000 would be available for active service. Japanese officers before the Chinese acquired a distrust of their energetic neighbors were the principal instructors of these modern drilled and equipped troops. Military schools have also been maintained in the various provinces. The effective fighting strength of the army was last year estimated at 152,000 men, of whom only 8,000 were cavalry. If all the mounts are of the kind shown in the illustration it is not to be wondered at that the regulars so seldom overtook the rebels.

The engagement is announced of Miss Lilla Ormond of Boston, the well known singer, to Henry Ray Dennis of New York, Yale, '99, and a member of the Metropolitan, Fencers and other clubs of that city. Miss Ormond is at present the guest of Miss Cecelia Beaux, the famous portrait painter, at her summer home at East Gloucester. The marriage will take place in April. Miss Ormond has a large and prominent social following among the members of North Shore society. She had a most successful debut in London.

Though land and sea divide the Hon. Curtis Guild, Jr., American ambassador to Russia, from his Boston home, he intends having things as homelike as possible in the embassy. To that end, every week he mails a grocery order to one of the big Boston houses, and each week the groceries are forwarded from Boston. The orders display the usual variety observable in the selection of groceries in an American city, but there is one unfailing item, "one half-dozen yeast cakes," which appears every week. "Col. Guild prefers his bread made on the American plan to anything the Russians can provide him with, I guess," remarked the grocer the other day as he packed the ambassador's order for forwarding.

Far Enough

A young man had called upon his best girl the night before. As a result he had but poorly prepared his Virgil lesson. In spite of this fact he translated fairly well for a short time but after reading "and I put my arms around her" he suddenly stopped unable to translate farther and said: "That is as far as I got Professor." The instructor's reply was: "That is far enough young man."

The Story of a Police Horse

He was old, a trifle lame, and almost all of the spirit had gone out of him long ago. This was evident in the hang of his head and in the note of dead weariness that sounded through the dragging of his feet. In his dejected eyes was a look of mute wretchedness. Within his bony frame, hidden somewhere beneath a matted coat, just one spark of the old-time fire remained, and for one brief moment that flashed into life one day last week when chance brought him past the Liberty avenue police station.

It was one o'clock and the afternoon platoon was getting ready to report for duty. Back in the precinct stable the mounted squad had drawn up, their restive horses anxious to be off. Among the horses, a dozen blue uniforms hurried back and forth. Down Liberty avenue, bridleless, but with a frayed yellow blanket thrown across his back, came a forlorn-looking nag, his head sunk down almost between his knees. He came abreast of the station-house just as a body of policemen rounded the corner and mounted the steps. Something in the even tramp of feet went home and the old nag lifted his head. As he did so a mounted officer appeared at the stable door, holding his horse by the bridle.

With a glad neigh the nag of the yellow blanket pulled himself together and forgetting the lame foot, took the sidewalk at a half trot. Touching sides with the sleek police horse in the doorway, into the precinct stable ambled the nag of the yellow blanket. There, with a touching equine "bluff" at youth and spirit, he fell into step and lined up with the out-going squad.

Tim Kelley, who had charge of the precinct stable, could not understand it. He was still more surprised when the nag of the yellow blanket broke rank to rub noses with the two big roans that draw the patrol wagon, going from stall to stall and neighing with delight every time a blue uniform came near. Kelley and a dozen officers were gathered around the yellow blanket when Sergeant Atwater came into the stable to give orders to his men.

"Ready, men," was the command.

At the sound of Atwater's voice the nag of the yellow blanket pricked up his ears.

"Horses in line," commanded Atwater.

With a feeble plunge—enough to throw the yellow blanket from his back—the old nag leaped forward.

A joyous whinny of recognition and then a brown nose going up and down Atwater's sleeve. The startled sergeant took one look and with a glad cry threw an arm around the old fellow's neck.

"'Dunner-und-blitzen,' by all that's good!" shouted he.

And Dunner-und-blitzen it was. The joyous neighs and whinnies of the old nag told this. Crowding around the wondering officers wanted to know who was Dunner-und-blitzen. Atwater told them—told them, strong man though he is, with a choke in his voice and something suspicious trembling on his eyelids.

Dunner-und-blitzen was once the finest horse in the New York police department. He stood fifteen hands high and the gloss of his silken coat gave him a post in Prospect Park where the grand folks of Brooklyn disport themselves and where the aristocrats of the equine world take their morning canter. There was spirit in his step, fire in his eye and the way he held his head was the boast of all who knew him. He was celebrated, too, as a catcher of runaways. Once when his rider, dead and gone these many years, was busy with an offender in a side street, down the boulevard came a maddened truck horse, a little child in its path. Not waiting for his rider nor a sign from him, Dunner-und-blitzen dashed out into the roadway. Planting himself with four feet set firmly on the ground, he waited for the rush. When it came he fell back a second, then turned and catching the bridle of the runaway in his teeth, he raced a block beside the truck horse—tugging with all the strength of his stout heart until he had brought it back upon its haunches, several feet this side of the little child.

That act made Dunner-und-blitzen famous in the police department, and Atwater, his voice a-tremble, recalled it to the Liberty avenue force while poor old Dunner-und-blitzen stood by, toil-worn, half starved and marked with many blows—the forlorn object of a mighty come-down.

Where Dunner-und-blitzen came from, nobody knows. All that is known is that two years ago he became too old for further use in the police department, and with that kindly return which the big, rich city of New York makes to the horses that have served it long and faithfully in police or fire department, it put Dunner-und-blitzen upon the block for sale to the highest bidder.

Plainly, the highest bidder had not been kind to him. Maybe it was the daily grind of a junk wagon that transformed him from the pride of Prospect Park into the old nag of the Liberty avenue police station; or maybe it was just the starvings and the beatings that did it. If horses have hearts, that of Dunner-und-blitzen must have broken under the fate to which a thankless city turned him over. Who knows but what he may have, for days and weeks and months, planned to run away from it—planned to get away and return to old friends and scenes? Maybe it was some hope of finding his way back to these that spurred him on when he set out from the highest bidder, one day last week. Anyhow, something—kind chance, perhaps, brought him past the Liberty avenue police station and into the friendly care of the officers.

How they fed him, and rubbed him down, and gave him a stall, and made their own of him! There we prefer to leave him. It is too hard to think of him given back to the highest bidder, who has not been kind to him.—Katharine Dangerfield in "Our Dumb Animals."

William M. Jelly of Salem is having a summer cottage erected on Norwood Heights, Annisquam, having bought the land quite near his own summer cottage, some time ago. The contractor Charles A. Norwood, of Riverdale, has had his men rush the work right along before the snow comes and the house is now ready to have the clapboards put on. The house is a two-story structure, 38 by 60 feet, built from plans by Daniel Howard Woodbury, and the architect's estimate of cost is $6000.

Benjamin C. Clark, the Gloucester contractor, has secured the contract to erect the new summer bungalow for Lawyer and Mrs. Frank Brumbach of Kansas City on their newly acquired property, the hill country above East Main street, East Gloucester, and bordering on Haskell street, near Bass Rocks. This beautiful stretch of hill country which has lain idle the past twenty years, belonged to Arthur D. Story of Essex. Mr. and Mrs. Brumbach have purchased ten acres of it. The site of their bungalow will be the traditional "Lookout Rock," which commands an unsurpassed view of Gloucester and her environs so grandly is it elevated. Samuel Bloomfield of East Gloucester, closed the deal for Mr. Story. The terms were private.

Ex Rept. Edwin C. McIntire and other Gloucester business men are erecting a 20-roomed hotel at Briar Neck, East Gloucester, near Bass Rocks. It is planned to have it ready for business the coming season.

The new summer home at Bass Rocks of H. B. Warner, the New York actor of "Alias Jimmy Valentine" fame, will be completed next month. It occupies a lot on the new golf links extension.

Twenty-five acres of land on Labor-in-Vain road, Ipswich, have been bought by Mrs. Ellen Howard Welch of Philadelphia, to add to her realty holdings and for improvement purposes. Mrs. Welch has been a resident of Ipswich for many years and has one of the finest locations near the water. Many summer residents have appreciated the view from this part of the town and have built attractive houses there.

Traveling in the Air

Aviation and the building of aeroplanes is the next important industry to be developed and it bids fair to duplicate the immense business history of the automobile. A decade ago the automobile was about where the aeroplane is now. Today the automobile industry of the United States ranks among the sixth in importance among American manufacturers. Tomorrow the aeroplane output may be among the most important.

The aeroplane producing business is already said to be well organized. It is rather a complicated industry, all manufacturers, in addition to production, have to maintain schools of instruction for their customers and squads of exhibition and racers to enter the usual flying meets.

None of the established makers will sell a machine until the purchaser has been under instruction and observation and is competent to use the machine. In France two companies in 1910 had over 400 recent graduates in their school of instruction. The cost of tuition was 1000 francs, or about $200. None of the French companies are at present able to supply the demand for aeroplanes.

At the present writing 29 aeroplane motors have been designed and are being manufactured in the United States, which shows the importance already reached by the aviation industry. "The business is little understood by the public," says one of the leading aeroplane manufacturers in the west. "There isn't a maker of tried and true tested aeroplane in the country who can fill the orders he gets for machines for private use. There are a number of weekly aviation magazines, at least 20 monthlies and the daily press throughout the country give it constant attention in their columns. We cannot take on all of the men and boys applying for instruction because our classes are always full, even though we have placed the tuition rather high in order to keep out all but the most determined. But we can use all the experienced flyers we can get. Every aeroplane company is in the same boat. None of them have sufficient flyers to supply the demand for instruction and exhibition work. We start our students after they have become proficient at a salary of $100 a week. They can run that up to $400 or $500 or higher. That is up to them."

It is conservative to estimate the total amount of capital invested (capitalizing the aviator's earnings) is not far from $25,000,000. When a fad represents this amount of money it becomes a business. The sale price of a standard biplane is $5000, which is probably representative of all makes and the profit at this price should be quite remunerative.

The aerial race which started recently, in which six of the most daring of the air travelers entered into a race across the continent from Los Angeles to New York has given a tremendous impetus to the new way of travel. If these men succeed it will do much to advance the science of aviation and place it upon a firm basis for its becoming an established method of communication. It is evident that the promoters of this advanced idea of locomotion are thoroughly in earnest and will use every possible means towards bringing about a successful consummation of their most ardent hopes. The public are deeply interested in this subject and hail with delight the efforts being made to render it feasible.

With grave incredulity, he was saying: "A reyou sure you are only nine years old? I think there must be some mistake."

The boy was positive, but to make sure: "Ma," he called, "Ain't I just nine years old?"

"Yes, son."

After a time he ventured, "Say, mister, what made you think I was more than nine years old?"

"Why," said the stranger, "I couldn't understand how you could get so dirty in nine years."

Government and Business

By H. L. Higginson

[Reprinted from the Boston Herald]

It is time to stop and consider with care the present state of affairs throughout our land and the attitude of the administration at Washington towards the business men of the United States.

One is reminded of our condition during the Civil war, when we were guided by a patient, charitable, wise man, who set himself the task of preserving the Union, be it with or without slavery—and he succeeded. We need today the same altruistic qualities to save our industrial system—and we need judgment in the application of our laws.

A great industrial system is a delicate piece of machinery which needs careful study and treatment, for on it rests the fabric of society, and if the machinery is thrown out of gear, confusion and disaster fall on everyone in the land—farmers, laborers, manufacturers and men of the professions. From time to time the system calls for change and for adaptation to the new inventions and wants of the times; and this is an essential part of its nature. Our industrial system has been built up with great thought, industry and patience, and has given to our citizens homes, food and clothing, and, to many people, a fitting investment for their savings; in short, it has met all the material needs of mankind, and has added to these, means for education and for the refreshment of pleasure and of the arts. This great work has been accomplished chiefly by the sons of farmers and mechanics, and if sometimes they have overstepped the lines of fairness to others, they merely have proved themselves mortal. In this respect they have not differed from our representatives and servants of the national and state governments.

In 1890 the Sherman law, so-called, was drawn by two able lawyers and senators, and was passed by Congress. Since that date it always has been difficult to understand and construe this law and, such being the case, it was not prized or used.

Industries were fostered by larger and larger corporations as the needs and powers of the nation grew. They were unmolested, and drew to themselves workmen who depended on them, and also small investors who placed their savings in them. Later, when state officers criticised the conduct of the corporations, the directors tried to meet the requirements of the courts; they sought legal advice and guidance from the best lawyers; and it is unfair to say that these lawyers had the dishonesty and folly to counsel illegal conduct.

Presently our government, after quietly examining the records of certain corporations, brought them and their directors before the bar, accused them of dishonesty, and proposed to break up the corporations and punish the directors. The supreme court has decided that two corporations belonging to a few people shall dissolve and exist in some other form; and this mandate will be obeyed. It is a grave question if the government could not have accomplished the same result quietly, and thus not have disturbed the community, but the government preferred publicity.

But now the government has indicted another corporation, which within ten years was formed and framed according to the law, if the best legal knowledge and character have value. The government has seen the formation of this corporation, has allowed its existence and its progress, has permitted investors large and small to put their savings into its shares, has seen its bonds spread far and wide for education and charitable ends, has seen thousands of workmen enter its employ, and also invest in its shares, and never uttered a word of objection. One President has sanctioned an important move of this corporation, while understanding fully its object and meaning, in which action he was perfectly right, and showed judgment.

If the Steel Corporation has infringed on the law, it has stood ready to make the required changes; but its formation and its aim have been understood fully. It has not been greedy, and has tried to keep a volatile business steady in its course of prices and of work; it has sought the good of its workmen.

There is such a thing, even in the pursuit of the law, as judgment, and the use of it in this case would have saved the community a rude shock.

Notwithstanding the expressed opinion of the government to the contrary, the fact remains that men do not understand the Sherman law as applied to this or that case. Lawyers cannot advise their clients, who, failing proper guidance, simply decline to undertake anything new, and wonder about their course to be pursued in existing business. When they ask the national officers about the meaning of the law, they are told: "Do not act wrongfully, and then you will be all right"—that is, the business men can learn nothing from government officers.

Directors of corporations are accused of dishonesty and crimes, and are indicted. They have been known as honest, honorable men and bitterly resent the hard names and the cruel treatment which our government is throwing at them. They would quit their positions as directors if not under fire, but real men will not leave the firing line.

As for the workmen who see their corporations and employers attacked by the government, and who thus see their livelihood threatened, what do they think? And the small investor is worried by the actions and threats of the government, and wishes to sell his shares; but where shall he invest his money in his country?

How can men know the course to pursue which is honest and also legal, for today it is not the same thing? Does our government wish to cripple gravely our industrial system, while other nations without our natural advantages forge ahead? Does it choose to slander excellent, able men, and thus bring shame on our good name? In the end the truth will appear and prevail. It is high time that wise counsel should prevail and banish confusion.

Many of us have had the honor to serve our country in time of dire distress, and since those days have tried to do our part as honest, faithful citizens, holding that plain duty above personal good. We expect and require of our national officers and representatives fair and wise treatment of all men of whatever occupation as their equals in all respects—no abuse of character, no insinuations of evil conduct—but on the contrary, full recognition of good purposes. And for the benefit of our nation we require a law carefully studied and clearly framed, which will tell men what they may and may not do.

Again we point to the patience, charity and wisdom of President Lincoln in times of great trouble—and at this critical juncture we ask the same of our present administration.

B. F. Keith's Theatre

One of the strongest vaudeville bills of the year is announced for next week at B. F. Keith's Theatre, headed by Harry von Tilzer and Taylor Granville's "The Hold Up." Mr. von Tilzer is one of the cleverest and best known composers of popular songs in the world. He comes to Boston with a repertoire of brand new selections that have never before been sung in this city. The spectacular feature of the week will be supplied by Taylor Granville's great drama of railroad life in the Southwest, entitled "The Hold Up." This production is one of the big things of the year in vaudeville. The action takes place in a lonely telegraph station on the Denver and Rio Grande R. R. located in the heart of the Arizona Desert, and sixty miles from the nearest human habitation. The scenic effects are simply immense. A huge cyclorama representing the alkali desert by moonlight is introduced, and the train effects showing a 150-ton freight mogul crawling across the desert with a long string of freight cars and the mile a minute rush of the roaring, dust-enveloping limited express past the station where two men are engaged in a desperate hand to hand struggle for life, surpass anything of the kind ever seen on the stage. Only three players appear in the piece, but no less than thirty stage hands are required to manipulate the great effects. Other big features will be Edmund Hayes & Co., in "The Piano mover"; Howard's Ponies; Those French Girls; Kaufmann Brothers; Grace Freeman and others.

"Ben-Hur" at the Boston Theatre

With the use of every device known to modern stagecraft to produce a pageant the like of which has never before been seen in this country "Ben-Hur" is on its way to scoring the greatest success at the Boston Theatre that has yet been known in that historic playhouse. Painters, stage artisans and costumers have accomplished wonders in this line before, but it has been the unanimous verdict of the thousands who have seen Klaw & Erlanger's new and greater production during the past two weeks that the high water mark has been reached and that it will be many years before a spectacle even approaching it in grandeur will ever be seen again. In fact it may be truly said that the real atmosphere of the Holy land in the time of the Messiah has been faithfully reproduced and that every detail of the book, with the exception of the Crucifixion chapter, has been followed out exactly as laid down in Gen. Lew Wallace's wonderful tale. The chariot race has been so improved that it is wonderfully realistic and it is hard to imagine that the 20 horses in 5 quadruple spans rushing madly on the stage are not in truth engaged in a neck to neck race in the Antioch arena, and that the shouts from the multitudes are not in reality those of the mingled Romans, Jews and Egyptians cheering their respective champions on to victory. In fact it is difficult for those in the audience when the race is over and Ben-Hur is proclaimed the winner that they have not been in truth present at one of the soul-stirring exhibitions in the time of the Caesars.

The production bids fair to be at the Boston Theatre for some time to come.

People who do not like the country because there is so little going on, are those in whose heads there is less going on than even in the country.

Don't stand too much on your dignity—you might slip and fall.

Boy Scouts

The Order of Boy Scouts was originally inaugurated in Africa, about the time of the Boer War. Next it was established in England, meeting the same success as in Africa. Since then it has become international, and the Boy Scouts of America represent a strongly organized body. For a number of years there has been the YMCA and other organizations for young men. The Boy Scouts organization is more especial, however, for the small boy. This term means a great deal in the life of a boy, and to those who are not familiar with this work a little explanation will be welcome.

In the first place the very name suggests bravery and although a peace movement, it will help the boys to realize what former heroes have gone through in order to save the honor of their country, the America of today. And there is a constant training for efficiency in small things that would make big things possible if it were necessary. Then again, the boys are always learning of the men who are working with them,—some practically giving their whole time to the boys now.

All the boys know Col. Wm. F.

Cody, the "Buffalo Bill," and Capt. Chas. L. von Berg, a scout and Indian fighter now 75 years old. He hunted in the Rockies, and was engaged in active fights with the Sioux in the West. Theodore W. Goldin of the Oklahoma City Boy Scouts, and Judge Ben. B. Lindsey, of Denver, are greatly interested in the Scout movement. Judge Lindsey has always been the boys' friend, devoting both his time and means to their welfare. Admiral Dewey of Manila Bay fame also is an inspiring help to Boy Scouts. Ernest Thompson Seton, the Chief Scout, and Daniel Carter Beard, National Scout Commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America, are in every way fitted to be leaders of this great movement, and are dearly loved by their Boy Scouts in all States. Their stories are read by the boys everywhere. Then this order should bring the boys together, make them polite to each other and teach them to show respect to old age.

Last week the Rev. L. H. Ruge, who is the founder of the "Boy Scouts" in Manchester, received his commission or certificate for Scout Master of the Manchester boys. Mr. Ruge has been interested in this work for sometime, and it was under

The Red Men held a largely attended meeting Wednesday evening, when the first of the special entertainment committees provided a program of merit, with the object of renewing interest for the winter meetings and to get out a good attendance. After the business session, a feast of corn and venison was served in the forest and then followed a general good time. A violin and piano added to the musical feature of the entertainment and a young man sang several selections. One of the members operated a phonograph. Card playing was also indulged in. The next meeting will be held Wednesday evening, December 6th, when another good time will be provided. The tribe will adopt several palefaces in the near future.

The other officers are as follows: Irving Baker, patrol leader no. 1; Ralph McNeal, patrol leader no. 2; Raymond Purdy patrol leader no. 3; Frank Knight, Jr., patrol leader no. 4. The boys meet in the Congregational Chapel, and last Friday evening they took written examinations for first degree. The results will be made known tonight. Then the next step will be the uniforms, which will soon arrive and great interest prevails among the boys, waiting for those uniforms. It is also Mr. Ruge's intention to start a fife and drum corps if possible. When the uniforms come there will be a service in the church, when the boys will march, and the general public will have a chance to see something of their present work and future aims.

The Spirit of Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving comes but once a year, and there is the error, for thanksgiving should be an attitude of mind, a constant grace of character and a permanent not a transitory quality of life. Thanksgiving Day comes but once a year and it is well to idealize the spirit and designate a day of the year to its honor. The Glorious Fourth of July comes only once in the cycle of a year but the blessings of liberty and the spirit of patriotism which it symbolizes is a year round beneficence. Thanksgiving likewise is but a symbol of a blessing which may be ours through the year not for the day alone. Our Thanksgiving season has, of course, its historical significance inasmuch as it perpetuates a custom inaugurated by the Plymouth colony in the days of Governor Bradford. What the Paschal lamb and all it symbolizes was to the Jew so is Thanksgiving to New England and to every citizen of our broad land who has benefited by our domestic opportunities and our free institutions.

Thanksgiving is borne of the gratitude which man has for the things which keep the animal in him alive and the rejoicing of a human spirit (even in a wilderness) in the benefits of freedom and the blessings resulting from the freedom of conscience in matters of religion. The spirit of Thanksgiving touches both sides of the life in man and it will be well if the feast of the day does not destroy the better things of the heart and mind and spirit. The day should recall the blessings of our life in its better vision as well as on the lower bestial side for man has been given dominion over all beneath, "created a little lower than angels." It will be for us to listen and to hear the call of the soul on this great day.

The spirit of Thanksgiving is older than the custom which has been handed down to us from our ancestors. They ordained the festivities which we follow, willingly and gladly, to perpetuate their memory, to rejoice over the fruits of the field and of labor and the blessings of home and the immeasurable benefits of our civilization which are ours to enjoy. The inauguration of that first Thanksgiving was inspired by the innate Spirit in man that bows in wonder and pauses in awe before the mysterious providences of Nature which so abundantly supply all his needs and which instinctively causes him to seek the Super-Nature in the hour of success or to seek thereby an escape from a dire or an impending calamity. This spirit sent the Pilgrims to their rough building they called the church. It was the same impulse that sent the ancient Jew into his temple with the first fruits of the increase of the flocks and of the field: that inspired the City of Leyden to open its churches and give thanks on the anniversary, October 3, 1575, of the city's deliverance from the siege. In the terrible days of the Revolution congress was driven of the same spirit out of the wilderness of doubts and the call went out for days of Thanksgiving. During the nearer days of the war of 1861-1865, many such days were set apart by that majestic, sorrowful, beloved man of the people (and of God), Abraham Lincoln. And it was well that in 1864 the first national Thanksgiving Day as we now know it was made a national "Holy Day" by presidential proclamation.

"Let us give thanks," the majestic rythm of the Hebrew ritual reads, "For His mercy endureth forever." And how man can give thanks! The Old Colonists found the spirit in the face of a dreary past, in a dark and almost hopeless outlook, on a stubborn, rigid land yet unsubdued, with infantile methods to struggle with nature, with few comforts, and with creeds that were as harsh as the barren slopes and rough hills they subdued for a living. How much more can the inheritor of the blessings they provided for give thanks.

We give thanks for a vital creed that found a God of love to be beloved and a human nature inspired from above. We can give thanks for the great institutions of the land, the home, the school, the church and the state. We can give thanks for the beneficence of man in their love one for another as seen in hospitals, charitable societies, orphan homes, settlement houses, infirmaries, associates of charity, societies for the aid of children (even dumb animals as well) and for the innumerable associations for friendly aid. We can give thanks for the mind of man that has solved in part the problems of nature and afford humanity the blessings and comforts that have come from the studies of sanitation, water purity, health conservation and preservation, fuel, clothing, good food and good housing. We can give thanks for the progress of science, for the good of men in the knowledge of medicine and surgery. We may give thanks for the developing social spirit among men, the evidence of brotherliness, kinship and friendly concern. We may give thanks for the blessings of liberty vouchsafe to us all by the nation, the best of all nations, which was made possible by our Pilgrim and Puritan forbears, instituted after the Revolution by our forefathers and preserved by the loyal men of 1861-65. Is there not much for Thanksgivings as families gather from the ends of the earth to meet about the festive and thankful board. The spirit is with us and fortunate the state whose citizens enshrine the true spirit of thanksgiving in their hearts.

Ward Six and Beverly

It has been difficult in the days which have gone by to maintain a vital and considerate interest in the civic welfare of Beverly Farms at Beverly City Hall. Situated on the outskirts of the city, it has suffered neglect because of its geographical situation. When its interests have been presented to the city fathers while intensely real to the representatives of Ward Six and to the citizens thereof it has been hard to present the needs successfully to the City government because of the voting minority.

It would appear that there has been a turn in the tide and the Mayor and Board of Aldermen are not only awake to the interests of the Ward, but are willing to make that interest appear in tangible form. It is a growing conviction there that every reasonable request should be granted to the district. This is not only a sensible policy, but altogether just and fair.

The budget for the year is unusually favorable to the interests of the Ward and it has given satisfaction to every citizen. It must be borne in mind also that the Board of Aldermen and Mayor have provided for the construction of a new fire engine which will soon be in service. The highway department has in it two articles which tells its own story, $1000 for gravel sidewalks and $2000 for artificial sidewalks. This gives the Ward $3000 for new work on the sidewalks of the district. If this be laid according to a definite plan and not wasted by distribution over the territory, and if the plan can be repeated each year it will not be many years before the entire village is properly provided with sidewalks. Credit is due Mr. Loring for his work, which is appreciated.

The fountain for horses to be erected in Post Office square, Boston, as a memorial to Mr. Angell is altogether fitting and appropriate. The funds were raised by school children and an additional appropriation was made by the City of Boston. Such a memorial will add to the comfort of our dumb friends, to the beauty of the Square and to the credit of the municipality. In honoring her worthy citizen they but honor themselves.

The election of Mr. Luce, last week, was a triumph for righteousness. Working for years in the interests of reform in enemy-making legislation he aroused interests which would gladly have defeated him. Mr. Luce's success is not a mere walk over. It was the triumph of an honest man against his enemies. His enemies are an honor to the Lieutenant Governor elect.

Is there any reason why Beverly Farms cannot have a member on the Beverly Board of Health the coming year? How many years has it been since the Ward has been represented? Dr. Dougherty was defeated by a narrow margin last year. Ought he not to win this year?

Dr. Hartwell delivered recently a sharp talk on construction building conditions at Beverly. His sane words have fallen into good soil. It is prophesied that Beverly will soon attend to the "shamble construction work" going on. Manchester is fortunately spared this evil.

Historical Not Dead; Just Sleeping

Communication from its First President

Editor North Shore Breeze,

Dear Sir:—I was pleased to read in your last issue the appeal made to revive the Manchester Historical Society. The Society was organized and originated by Rev. E. P. Tenney. He called on several of the native citizens to meet at his home to organize the society. They met as he requested. He set before them his plans, which were agreed upon and they proceeded to organize. Rev. D. F. Lamson was elected president, but declined to accept and nominated Geo. F. Allen, who was elected. A. S. Jewett was elected secretary. A committee was chosen to prepare rules and necessary regulations.

The first persons, who met to form the Manchester Historical Society, were Rev. E. P. Tenney, Rev. D. F. Lamson, Hon. W. E. Tappan, W. E. Wheaton, Alfred S. Jewett, Geo. F. Allen, D. L. Bingham, Dea. Daniel Leach, Henry T. Bingham, Hon. Henry C. Leach, Oliver T. Roberts, and Julius F. Rabardy. Others joined later.

A rapid increase followed and much interest was felt and realized. For two or three winters we arranged for a course of lectures in the Town hall, which were free to all the townspeople. The regular meetings were cheerfully held and experiences of the members read and put on file. Many members also had something to say touching on part of their own lives and that of their associates.

Several ladies also became members. Among them Mrs. Charlotte Brown, Mrs. Emma G. Tenney, Miss Martha C. Knight and many others. There were also a yearly social gathering, sometimes at the seaside and other times in the evening.

Now, why is it dead, or is it nearly so? Well, the older members began to leave this world and some of the older leaders fell back for the younger ones to come forward, but they lost interest and the younger members ceased to act.

Not long ago our Vice President said to me, "I have been talking to our young men, trying to have them interest themselves in reviving the Historical Society."

Now the society is not dead. It has a fund of about $2000 and waiting for a home to put in what we have. It is a good time now to wake up and for the young natives to find a leader and start up.

I commend Mr. Needham for what he has put in print in regard to our society and its long and sleepy condition. I trust he and others to whom he refers will assist each other in the revival of the society and enter upon the work needful in saving ancient relics and historical items of interest.

Rev. Albert Gardner Warner Begins Pastorate at Manchester

At the First Baptist church, Manchester, last Sunday, Rev. Albert Gardner Warner, who began his pastorate last Sunday, was greeted by a large and attentive audience, which gave a most hearty welcome to Pastor and Mrs. Warner at the close of the service.

The pastor chose for his subject: "The Highest Rule of Life," based upon the words found in Hebrews 10:7:—"Lo I come to do Thy will O God." The sermon was in part as follows:

The highest rule of the life of Jesus was to do His Father's will. No higher rule can confront the individual as he considers the expression of his life in truest service. Doing the will of God brings truest freedom to the whole life of a man, for then he abides in Jesus Christ, Christ's words abide in him, he becomes Christ's disciple and his life is made free by the truth of Jesus.

It is a man's chief business to do the will of God. The Bible suggests the three great outlines of God's will for every man and woman:

First: That they should believe on him whom God hath sent. The first will of God for every man and woman is that the child of God should enter into Christ's life and believe on Him.

Second: This is the will of God even your sanctification, that we should go on in Christ's fellowship, enriched with all that Christ came to a life of Christ's fulness, to a life to bring, to a life in which Christ, himself is all that He can be to the souls of men.

Third: It is not God's will that any man should perish. He would save every man if He could. His love is so large that every soul in this world is embraced in it and only those fall out of it who antagonize His will.

To do the will of God is strengthening to one's life. Nothing can resist the man who is summoned to do the will of God and who believes he can discover what the will of God is and let his life fall into line with that will.

Nothing is sweeter or more enduring than doing the will of God. "The world passeth away and the lusts thereof, but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." God cares for the man who does His will and a man need not fear as he follows God.

The noblest view of life is to consider it a fellowship with the most high God in the doing of His friendly will, a partnership with the Father as close as the partnership between Him and His Son in which He ushers us with all the privileges of His family life into the warmth and tenderness of His close fellowship and speaks to us moment by moment in the doing of His will.

The selections chosen by the choir were most appropriate and inspiringly rendered. All the attendant circumstances served to make most auspicious the opening of the pastorate.

Magnolia lodge, 149, IOOF of Manchester, has been invited to join with Agawam lodge of Ipswich in a visitation to Atlantic Lodge of Marblehead, December 6th.

Town Treasurer Stanley of Manchester, was in receipt of a substantial payment this week from the commonwealth in the shape of $59,757.85, which is the aggregate of the corporation and bank taxes paid to the town by the state. The corporation tax this year amounted to $52,886.69, and the national bank tax $6871.16. The tax which the town was called upon to pay the state this year amounted to $21,615, and this was paid a few days ago, too. The matter of handling amounts with four and five figures is quite common in the town treasurer's office.

Frank A. Rowe, head clerk at Bullock's grocery, is having a two week's vacation.

Comrade Dennis O'Sullivan of Allen Post 67, G A R, gave a very interesting informal talk Tuesday evening before the members of the Sof V on his experiences as a marine aboard the Frigate Colorado during the Civil war. He described a raid made on September 16, '61 up the Pensacola river to the navy yard to destroy the Privateer Judith. Before the boats reached the navy yard, they were fired upon by the Confederates and several were killed, but they succeeded in setting the ship afire and she afterwards drifted out and burned to the water's edge.

E. P. Stanley's license as auctioneer was renewed at last night's meeting of the selectmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Danforth, life-long residents of Manchester, are to leave town in the near future, and will join their married daughter and family in Minneapolis.

At their weekly session last night the selectmen placed their signature on a check for $40,000, in payment of a note for that amount given the Old Colony Trust Co., last spring in anticipation of taxes.

The weekly meeting of Magnolia lodge of Odd Fellows last evening proved a very pleasant occasion, as there was a gathering of nearly fifty members out. Deputy Stone of Marblehead and Grand Marshall Sargent made an informal visit to the lodge and extended a cordial invitation for the lodge to visit the Marblehead lodge on Wednesday evening, December 6th, when the First Degree will be worked on

There appears to be hen thieves in Manchester. Last Sunday morning when John G. Haskell of Bridge street, went to his hen coop, he found half a dozen hen's heads around the place and upon further investigation he found that more than a dozen of his birds had been stolen. Here's some work for the police.

Saturday morning a number of small boys were playing in the sand hill on Lincoln street, digging caves in the side, when the banking caved in on Gordon Baker, burying him to his waist. Fortunately there were men near who witnessed this, and rushed to the assistance of the boys and soon cleared the sand away.

The Pilgrims held a poverty party Monday evening as an entertainment feature of their meeting. The refreshments were in keeping with the occasion, consisting of gingerbread, corn cake, cheese and apples.

Miss Carrie Preston had occasion to call at the home of her friend, Miss May Rogers on North street, last Friday evening. She was invited into the parlor, and as she stepped in, the light was flashed on, and she was greeted by the chorus of voices. It was Miss Preston's 19th birthday, and some fourteen of her young friends had gathered to help her celebrate the occasion. The evening was most pleasantly spent in playing games and singing. A "Hunting Game" had as the first participant Miss Preston, whose quest finally resulted in her finding a beautiful topaz ring, the gift of the party. At ten o'clock the hostess escorted her guests to the enclosed piazza, where a collation was served, the most pleasing feature being a large birthday cake. The piazza was very prettily decorated with evergreen and yellow crepe paper.

The many friends of Mrs. W. C. Rust will be pleased to hear of her continued improvement.

A "Summit Herald," of November 11th, received in town this week, has almost an entire page devoted to High school notes. A story entitled "An Adventure with a Poacher" occupies much of this space and is an exceptionally good article being an original story by Fred Jackson, formerly of this town.

Mrs. Charles Latons of Worcester, was the guest of her father, J. P. Latons, during the week.

A number of Pilgrim Wanderers visited the Wanderers at their gathering in Lynn on Thursday of this week.

Gray squirrels in many of the North Shore woods have increased in such numbers that some of the owners have hired men to trap and shoot them. One such man killed fifteen of the squirrels one day recently and buried them, not knowing they were good to eat. C. T. Beginning Sunday and continuing to May 1st, only one mail collector will call at the mail boxes Sundays. The boxes in the outlying districts will be omitted in this particular collection. The boxes omitted will include those at Proctor street, Brownland, the Cove, Essex County club and Pine street.

George Rust, one of the popular clerks at Allen's drug store, is starting Sunday on a fortnight's vacation.

Willmorton's insurance agency is passing out the first 1912 calendars of the season. "A Hold Up" is the name of one of the best we have seen this year.

Eighty-seven pupils are enrolled at the Story High school this year—about the same number as last year, which is a good number for the four classes.

Reception to New Pastor

A large number including both members from his own church and many from the sister-church, the Congregational, gathered in the vestry of the Manchester Baptist church Wednesday evening, to extend a most hearty welcome to the Rev. and Mrs. Albert G. Warner. The reception was given under the auspices of the BYPU and the committee in charge worked most faithfully to make it the success it was. The whole appearance of the vestry had been changed. Carpets and rugs were on the floor, the pillars and walls were trimmed with evergreen, beautiful chrysanthemums were plentiful, and the word "Welcome," in effective scroll work over the door was most noticeable.

Mr. and Mrs. Warner, assisted by the church deacons and their wives, received under a beautiful arch. Miss Annie P. Younger, Miss Carrie Preston, Robert M. Baker and Clarence Preston acted as ushers. Refreshments were served during the evening from daintily arranged little tables around the room. The tables were presided over by Mrs. Levi B. Harvie, Mrs. Arthur Walker, Mrs. Herman Swett, the Misses Bessie A. Lethbridge, Effie Stidstone, Alice Mason, Althea Morse, Olive Cook, May Rogers and Edith Menkin. A number of musical selections were rendered during the evening with Allyn Brown as pianist. The solos by Miss Andrews of Gloucester, were well received, while Mr. Posner, the talented violinist, always pleases where he appears. A social evening was spent by all in this attempt to make Mr. and Mrs. Warner feel at home both in Manchester and in church life.

W R C Hold Entertainment and Sale

Last evening the Manchester Town hall was gayly decorated with red, white and blue in honor of the W R C sale. Around the hall were most attractively made booths, which were presided over by various members of the Corps, dressed in white. Home-made candy, cakes and fancy articles were for sale, while the old-time fishing pond or grab-bag came in for its usual share of patronage. The entertainment consisted of a one-act farce "No Cure, No Pay," in which Mrs. Cook imagines herself to be the victim of many diseases, and advertised to pay $500 for a complete cure. Her daughter and friends did not want to see the money go out of the family, so devised a scheme to cure her. After each in turn had dressed as a female doctor and offered assistance, Mabel Whalen finally brought about an effective cure. Mrs. Nellie Smith was, as usual, good. The following are the parts so well taken:

- Mrs. Cook Mrs. Languish
- Mrs. J. W. Lee Susan Dean
- Mrs. Nellie Smith Aunt Midget
- Mrs. Chester Dennis Jennie Carter
- Mabel Whalen Lucy Akin
- Mrs. Hannah Tappan Bridget
- Mrs. Edw. Preston Alice Languish

Following a brief intermission the remainder of the program was carried out as follows: Solo, "I Love You," Brenda Cook; "reading, "Joining the Lodge," Mrs. Nellie Smith; "Blackface" sketch by Pauline Semons and Emily Ferrari, which was well worth seeing. These children are always good entertainers and last night's number was no exception to the rule,

Elsie Janis at the Colonial Theatre

The Boston Herald said editorially the other day: "Now that Miss Elsie Janis has arrived in town the local football season may be said to be officially open."

It is perhaps because Miss Janis is so fascinatingly young that she has such a tremendous following among the college boys and girls of her own age, but her following doesn't end there, as was demonstrated by the circumstance that the audience at the Colonial Theatre last Monday night when she opened her annual engagement presenting for the first time in Boston, the new musical comedy, "The Slim Princess," looked like a first night at the Boston Opera House in the distinction of the audience which filled every seat of the beautiful theatre on Boylston street. The list of names of "those present" in Tuesday's papers read like the section of the Boston Blue Book and the applause which greeted the dainty young star was of a sincerity and frequency which prolonged the action of the piece to such an extent that a good many commuters missed their cars. The measure of Miss Janis's success in "The Slim Princess" was promptly attested in the extension of her engagement to December 16th

WEST GLOUCESTER

Seventy-five percent of the voters of West Gloucester have signed a petition favorable to Ralph W. Dennen for the office of collector of port.

Rev. Warren Low of Essex, will preach at the Congregational church Sunday.

Miss Mabel V. Pierce of Boston, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Pierce of Essex avenue over the week-end.

Alex. W. Andrews is a candidate for alderman.

A. H. Bray and Frank Lane have gone on a two weeks' trip to North Adams. During their stay they will hunt deer in the Berkshires.

The Appalachian club of Boston, visited Essex last Saturday and made a tour of Essex hills. They came and returned in a special trolley.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Elwell spent Sunday with Mrs. Henry W. Mears.

Mrs. D. O. Mears will address the Women's Board of Foreign Missions at Norwich, Conn., at their meeting to be held November 16th.

Electric lights have recently been installed at the houses of A. D. Story and Samuel L. Story of Winthrop street.

Mrs. Rachel C. Burnham has taken up her winter quarters at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Gardner Burnham, Western avenue.

William Shepard lost quite a quantity of vegetables by someone breaking into his barn recently.

At the Universalist church, Prof. Harmon of Tufts college, gave a scholarly and interesting sermon last Sunday.

Miss McKinney is visiting Mrs. Charles R. Harding on Northern avenue.

The Senior class of the Essex high school wish to extend their thanks to those who so kindly assisted them at their fair.

Mrs. Frank E. Burnham, who has been very ill, we are pleased to learn is very much improved.

Mrs. Louise Blanchard of Beverly and John Prest of this town, were married at the home of the groom Tuesday evening. The wedding gifts were many and beautiful. Among them was a rocking chair and cut glassware sent by the auxiliary of the Sons of Veterans of Beverly, of which order the bride is a member. About twenty members of this society were present at the wedding.

Mrs. Charles Bailey, past president of the auxiliary society of the Sons of Veterans of Beverly was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Butler Tuesday.

Sunday afternoon the subject of the sermon at the Methodist church was "The Historic and Literary Prophets of the Old Bible." Elijah and Elisha were the historic; Amos and Hosea, the literary prophets. The prophecies, gifts and work of these great characters and the conditions of their times, was reviewed during the discourse.

Guy Sargent and Miss Mary Fry both of Essex, were married by Rev. H. M. Goddard at the parsonage on Monday night. They are now keeping house at the Jonathan Low place on Northern avenue.

Frank Boyd has recently repaired his house on Northern avenue. Levi Malonson will move from the Caleb Low house and occupy it. Mr. Malonson has been hired by the Electric Railway Co. to take charge of the track force.

The Congregationalist choir will give an entertainment in their vestry tonight. The entertainment will be called the rival choirs and a rich treat is expected. If it is one-half as original, unique and comical as the notices of Miss Agnes Choate advertising it, it will certainly be a luxury. Not the least attraction will be the singing of Helen Grinnell Mears.

Mrs. Charles L. Proctor of Dorchester was the guest of Mrs. A. H. Bray of Sumner street, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Miss Martha Brooks, secretary of the Essex County Christian Endeavor Union, gave an excellent address Sunday evening before the YPSCE of the Congregational church. Miss Brooks attended the International Christian Endeavor convention held at Atlantic City last July, as a delegate from the Cape Ann Union, and her address was in the form of a report of the convention. She spoke with deep feeling of the great meetings and the enthusiasm which pervaded them. Her impressions of the convention were so clear and were presented with such a charm of manner that her attentive audience seemed to feel at times as if they were present at the meeting held upon the "Million Dollar Pier."

ESSEX

The supper in connection with the fair of the Senior Class of the High school last week, was a grand success. There was plenty to eat and plenty of variety and the cooking did great credit to the many who volunteered their services and furnished the food. After the supper an entertainment in the hall added to the attractiveness of the occasion. Mr. Kadesh rendered two choice vocal selections and Miss Alice Riggs executed several selections upon the piano in a highly creditable manner. Then the whole school sang with Miss Estelle Story as pianist. The booths were upon the left side of the hall and were all neatly arranged and decorated. The booths of the four classes of the High school proper were trimmed with the colors of the graduating class, red and white, each class having their class banner on the front of their booth. The ninth grade booth was trimmed with black and orange, their class colors and their banner on the front. Friday night

The Box Office sale of single seats for the performances at the Boston Opera House will open Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

The greatest interest is, of course, centered in the opening performance which is the first presentation of Saint-Saens "Samson et Delila" in Boston. This performance will take place on Monday evening, November 27th, and will inaugurate the third season at the Boston Opera House. The wonderful scenery painted by the eminent Italian artist, Pietro Stroppa, under the personal supervision of Director Russell, will surpass anything that has ever been seen on the stage.

The cast selected for the opening performance will include Giovanni Zenatello, Maria Gay, Dingham Gilly, Jose Mardones, Edward Lankow. The orchestra will be conducted by Mr. Andre-Caplet.

Announcement made of free trip to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition

WORD has been received from SUNSET, the Magazine of the Pacific and the Far West, of the organization of the Sunset Panama-Pacific Club. The Club offers a four weeks' trip to the Exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915, including railway fare, Pullman, diner, hotel accommodations, admissions to the fair, side trips to points of interest, all in return for a little time each week to be devoted to the work of the Magazine.

The exposition is to be held to commemorate the completion of the Panama Canal, connecting the Pacific and Atlantic. From all indications it will be by far the greatest World's Fair ever held.

The Magazine has issued a very attractive booklet descriptive of the trip, and giving further particulars, which will be sent on application.

The membership is very limited and it is not likely that more than one or two applications will be accepted from this vicinity. Request for particulars should be sent to

John H. Dennis, auctioneer of Rockport, has sold the house and land on Broadway avenue, Rockport, belonging to the estate of Mrs. Levi Tarr, to Eli R. Hodgkins of Beverly Farms for $1500. The property consists of about 8000 feet of land and a one and a half story cottage of seven rooms. There was a good attendance, and the bidding started at $500 by Albert W. Tarr and sailed right along lively, in $100 bids till the figure reached $1200 and then in bids of $25, till it reached $1500 and was knocked down to Mr. Hodgkins. The property is in a good location, with good neighborhood, handy to schools, stores, churches and down "to the Cove," and being the kind of a house desired for a small family, there were plenty of bidders. The sum realized is a fair one for the property.

Football Season to Date

Most of the minor colleges have finished their schedule, and now the attention of the football world is focused upon the big game of Harvard and Yale. If interest in football has been dormant up to the present time it will be awakened during the next few weeks. Everything will be football, especially in the vicinity of Harvard and Yale. Who will win is the popular question now? Tradition says Yale will not be beaten—but greater surprises have happened. Harvard has a great football team even if she has been defeated twice. Princeton was outplayed the entire game and it was only luck that gave her victory over Harvard. The Indians were not against the real strength of Harvard. The game with Dartmouth Saturday ought to indicate the true strength of Harvard. It will be a great battle and one that means much to both colleges. If Harvard defeats Dartmouth Saturday the chances of defeating Yale will be greatly increased.—R. J. D.

A little boy had prayed continually for several weeks for the Lord to give him a little brother. Finally he said, "It's no use, the Lord don't hear me." Within a week or so he was called into his mother's room where he was shown, not one little brother but two. He said: "I'm

A Land Without Paupers

The Belgium government fosters thrift and prosperity in that little country, which though densely populated, has practically no paupers nor do the people emigrate. Here it is that thrift may be found on every hand, thrift, of the individual, thrift of the family, co-operative thrift, national thrift and prosperity in the face of the keenest competition of its powerful neighbors, England, France and Germany.

The government, instead of paying old age pensions and dispensing charity, has machinery for the encouragement of thrift and thereby for the prevention of dependence. It pays the individual interest on his savings, it insures him and it will give him an annuity if he saves to pay for it.

In the government savings bank deposits may be made in every post-office of the Kingdom and in all its branches of the National Bank. The minimum deposit is one franc. There is no maximum. The government provides in a special way for those who cannot put aside so large a sum as a franc at a time. It authorizes smaller deposits by postage stamps in order to encourage school children, farm laborers and the like; and rural postmen carry with them the necessary forms for this purpose, and urge the public to make use of the savings bank in this way.

Life annuities may be contracted for at all branches of the savings bank, at all postoffices, and at the offices of all tax receivers. The minimum payment that may be made and the smallest annuity paid by the fund is one franc, while the largest is 1200 francs. The annuities become payable at the end of each completed year from the age of 50 to 65.

In addition to the annuity fund there is a government insurance fund, the management of which is under government guarantee. Life or endowment policies may be contracted for, the latter payable at the end of 10, 15, 20 or 25 years, or for a period ending at the ages of 50, 60 or 65.

This policy has instituted ideas of thrift in the minds of the school children, it has driven thrift into the household where the income of the husband or the wife and husband combined is rarely spent, and in the most cases a liberal margin is left for the future. The people live within their incomes. "Our income," they say, "is so much a year; we must live within it and put away something for our old days."

The Belgium household enjoys contentment and awaits with patience a larger income before buying this and that and before going here and there; and they do not try to keep the pace set by those whose means are greater. The observer sees on every hand men and women, still with the freshness of youth, who have retired from active bread winning work and are enjoying life on the capital saved by reasonable economy. They have lived wisely, neither slaves nor prodigals and their declining years are provided for. Surely Belgium sets a good example which might well be followed by other nations as the cure of poverty is among the worst which the majority of nations have to deal with. The time to save is when you are earning.

If our mistakes teach us nothing it were hardly worth while to make them.

Though we may never have lost any, most of us are looking for money all the same.

The wise man does not let his wife hear him boast that he is a good manager; she knows better.

'Tis perhaps the best trade we've ever made, and it applies to a very high class of goods, and it comes at a time when it means so much to you—when you are preparing for the changes in the dining room.

Goods that as a rule never enter the sacrifice market, because they generally are away oversold. They are

Both Mahogany and Oak

Made especially for a very discriminating trade, made to accompany fine pieces that come from Grand Rapids, that represent the very height of the cabinet maker's art.

Many are true copies of Chippendale tables; the famous John Hancock table is here; the Sudbury table, with the handsome scroll base, is another that's worthy of note. Then claw-foot bases, most beautifully executed, are conspicuous in this beautiful collection. They are made, each one with a solid plank top, with square edges that look so well; the bases are finished as well as the tops, and all are in the practical dull finish. They start with a solid oak one, made with claw feet, with a top 48 inches in diameter, the base is 12 inches, the extension 6 feet

SOCIETY NOTES

Miss Florence Lee of Brookline and Beverly Farms, was formally presented to society Monday afternoon at a tea given by her mother, Mrs. George Lee, at the Lee residence on Boylston street, Brookline. Several hundred guests were present to greet the debutante, who is the third daughter to be introduced by Mrs. Lee. The reception room, where Mrs. Lee and Miss Lee welcomed their guests, was decorated with palms, white and yellow chrysanthemums and pink roses, and the tea-room was banked with these blossoms. Among the guests were several of this season's debutantes and many representatives of this year's Sewing Circle, of which Miss Lee is a member. Miss Lee was dressed in a gown of blue satin and Mrs. Lee was in dark blue satin with overdress of black chiffon. The pourers were all from this year's group of debutantes. Among them were Miss Nancy Barton of Worcester; Miss Elizabeth Almy of Cambridge; Miss Caroline Fessenden of Chestnut Hill; Miss Elsie Williams of Boston; the Misses Ellen and Ida Eldridge of Lincoln; Miss Elizabeth Bigelow, Miss Caroline Cabot, Miss Katharine Walker and Miss Suzette Long, all of Boston; Miss Esther Slater and others. An orchestra played and the younger set enjoyed dancing, quite informally. Miss Lee is a cousin of Mrs. Alice Roosevelt-Longworth. Several entertainments including a number of small dances, have been arranged in Miss Lee's honor by her mother and will be given later in the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell are again at "Glendyne," Manchester, after two weeks' absence. They spent a week in Washington and a week in New York. About January 15th, they will leave Manchester for a trip to the Bermudas.

Tomorrow in Philadelphia will be held the annual army and navy football game, which proves to be each year such a great society event. Sec. Meyer is expected in the Quaker City, also President Taft, if his recent bad cold has passed away sufficiently to permit him to do so.

SOCIETY NOTES

Two bench shows of much future interest to society are those of the Toy Spaniel club of America and the French Bulldog club of New England. The former will be held in New York, December 1st and 2d, and the latter in Boston, December 12th and 13th. At the latter show, Robert Macdonald of Hamilton will be a judge.

Mrs. Charles Stedman Hanks and her family of the West Manchester contingent, have taken an apartment at 373 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, for the winter. Last year when Miss Clarina Hanks was presented, the family occupied the George von L. Meyer house on Beacon street, Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Oakes Ames of North Easton went to New York, Wednesday, and sailed Thursday on the Almirante for a month's cruise in the tropics, visiting Jamaica, Colon and Santa Maria. Mrs. Ames' daughter, Mrs. Frederick G. Hall, joined the North Shore colony last season, taking a cottage at East Gloucester. Mr. and Mrs. Hall purchased a fine building site there this fall. They plan to have their new summer home ready by next season.

The marriage of Miss Bertha Sias and Henry Morton Priest is to take place early in the new year—Jan. 10th—at the residence of Miss Sias' uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. D. Sias, at 115 Bay State road, Boston. The Sias summer home is at Wenham.

The National Horse show in Madison Square Garden, New York, this week has had a generous North Shore representation. Miss Eleanor Sears, whose hostesses for the week have been Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt and Mrs. H. B. Hollins, came in for much social attention. Mrs. Payne Whitney has also been identified with this coterie. E. T. Stotesbury, father of Mrs. Sidney E. Hutchinson, of the Beverly Farms colony, has won many blue ribbons during the show, also Judge W. H. Moore, of the Pride's contingent, in the various classes.

SOCIETY NOTES

The Essex County club, Manchester, is proving a very popular spot for week-end parties for those who cling so devotedly to country life on the North Shore. Last Friday evening Thomas B. Gannett, Jr., who wedded Miss Dorothy Draper of Hopedale Tuesday, gave his bachelor dinner at the club. It took the form of a stag party to the best man and ushers at the wedding, and other gentlemen friends, 27 guests in all. On Saturday evening, December ninth, Miss Katherine Tweed of New York and Beverly Farms, will give a dinner-dance at the club. These are a few of several functions which will be on the social calendar of the club during the winter season.

At a recent large and handsomely appointed reception given by Mrs. Wm. P. Snyder of Willpen Hall, Sewickley Heights, Pittsburg, to introduce her daughter, Miss Mary Black Snyder, among the hostess' assistants was Mrs. John R. McGinley of Pittsburg and Manchester. Miss Lois McGinley, one of the debutantes of the Pittsburg season, was also identified with the function.

President Taft sent congratulations to Beverly at the dedication of her new YMCA building last Sunday.

Mrs. Randolph M. Appleton and daughters, the Misses Julia and Sybil Appleton, of New York and Ipswich, were passengers on the Nieuw Amsterdam, which arrived in Rotterdam the middle of last week, sailing the day after the wedding of Miss Woods and Mr. Sturgis at St. Paul's church, Boston. They came over from Europe in June on the Romanic. Most of the winter will be spent in Venice.

The drag hounds of the Myopia Hunt club met Tuesday afternoon at The Kennels and yesterday afternoon at Topsfield Common. Tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock the meeting place will be Underhill's Corner. The fox hounds have met Monday and Friday mornings of this week.

SOCIETY NOTES

North Shore society was largely represented at the notable function of the week, the Gannett-Draper wedding at Hopedale, Tuesday noon at 12.30. The contracting parties were of great social prominence, the bride, the daughter of former Governor and Mrs. Eben S. Draper, the groom, Thomas Brattle Gannett, Jr., a young Boston banker, a member of an old Cambridge family and an annual summer resident of Manchester, where his family register at The Brownlands. The ceremony was performed at the Hopedale Unitarian church by Rev. Fred R. Lewis. To the family of the bride, the wedding day had special significance. It was the anniversary of the wedding days of the bride's mother and grandmother. The church was elaborately adorned with pink chrysanthemums, American beauty roses and palms. The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Her bridal robe was of white satin with Brussels lace garnitures. Her veil was of fine Carrick Macross lace. She wore diamond ornaments, the gift of the groom and relatives, and carried a shower bouquet of valley lilies. The bridal party included Miss Mildred Dennis of Newark, N. J., as maid of honor. Her gown was of embroidered pink chiffon over white silk. A large black hat trimmed with black and white tulle completed a charming costume. She carried pink chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids were Misses Amy Peabody, Margaret Richardson, Mary Parkman and Katherine Putnam. Their gowns were similar to the maid of honor. The ushers were: Eben S. Draper, Jr., Henry S. Grew, Robert H. Stevenson, Jr., Eliot Wadsworth, Paul M. Hamlen, Norwood P. Hallowell, Roger L. Scaife, Edward Rantoul, Edward N. Fenno, Jr., Ralph Williams, Constantine Hutchins and Francis Sargent, Jr., whose sister is among the year's debutantes. Mr. Gannett's best man was his brother, Robert T. Gannett. Following the church ceremony there was a large reception at "The Ledges," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Draper, and a large company of guests went to Hopedale for this function, leaving Boston in a special train of five cars, which left the South Station at noon and Trinity Place four minutes later. Following the honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Gannett will make their winter home at 180 Beacon street, Boston, the former residence of William Endicott. Their social affiliations in that city will give them much social distinction. The bride is a vice president of the Vincent club, a member of the Chilton club and the 1910 Sewing Circle. She has traveled extensively, is domestic in her tastes and interested in athletics. Mr. Gannett is a graduate of Harvard, class of '97, a member of the Union, Tennis and Racquet, the Country, Myopia and Oakley clubs, the New York Harvard club and the University club of Chicago. For two years he was president of the Harvard Golf club and during his academic days was devoted to athletics. Among the many guests bidden to the wedding were: Mrs. R. F. Greeley, Miss Marion Greeley, Mrs. Charles D. Sias, Senator and Mrs. W. Murray Crane, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Higginson, T. Dennie Boardman, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Fessenden, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, Miss Rosamond Eliot, Miss Delia Torrey, aunt of Pres. Taft, Miss Juliette Higginson, and numerous others.

Arriving in New York from Liverpool on the last trip of the Caronia were Mr. and Mrs. William H. Aspinwall of Hammond street, Chestnut Hill, Boston, and Manchester, who went abroad late in August at the conclusion of their season on the North Shore. Mr. and Mrs. Aspinwall spent some time in France, where their daughter, Miss Lucy Aspinwall, an interesting debutante-elect, was completing her studies, and were in London for a bit of sight-seeing before sailing for home.

Prominent among the New York debutantes will be Miss Helen Fish, the youngest daughter of Hamilton Fish and a sister of Mrs. John W. Cutler of Beaver Pond, Beverly. Miss Fish has just returned from Europe, where she spent the last year studying.

SOCIETY NOTES

Boston is to have a theatre where select audiences can see original plays performed. Mrs. Lyman W. Gale is the originator of the "Toy Theatre" as it will be called. It will be located on Joy street, Back Bay. "In the Hungarian Ibsen," an original Spanish pantomime and dance, to be presented, Miss Dorothy Jordan will appear. Mrs. Thorn-dike Howe (nee Rotan) of the Bass Rocks colony, will also appear in one of the productions.

Mrs. Warren B. Potter Weeks of 467 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, and Neptune street, Beverly, gave a delightful affair in the way of a reception Monday afternoon in honor of Miss Lois Frost of West Newton, fiancee of Miles Washburn Weeks, the son of the hostess. Mrs. Weeks was elaborately gowned in violet and gray chiffon over silk and trimmed elaborately in silver lace on the bodice and skirt panels. Miss Frost looked extremely pretty in a soft creation of white satin with silver lace on the bodice and a dainty touch of pale pink silk. The house was charmingly decorated in yellow chrysanthemums in the drawing room, while in the dining room, where the table was exquisitely appointed in silver and yellow candleabrae, white roses were used. Miss Frost and Mrs. Weeks were assisted by a group of pretty girls, among them being Miss Eleanor Frost, sister of the younger hostess, Miss Ruth Anthony of the Beverly Farms colony, niece of Mrs. Weeks, Miss Margaret Withington, Miss Katherine Bolles, Miss Marjory Phelps and the Misses Beatrice and Primrose Colt of Providence, the latter the fiancee of Andrew Weeks Anthony. Mrs. Weeks invited all of the young women who assisted in the tea room to be her guests at a supper party, after the departure of the more general guests, and her invitations included also a number of young men, the friends of her son, to make up a merry company. Miss Frost has been frequently entertained on the North Shore the past season by her fiance's parents, who occupied the Clafin cottage on Neptune street, Beverly.

Only thoroughly trained competent servants (male or female) supplied. References personally and carefully investigated.

SOCIETY NOTES

Announcement has been made in Washington of the engagement of Miss Mary Southerland, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. William H. H. Southerland, to Louis Bacon, son of Mrs. Francis E. Bacon (Louisa Crowninshield) of Boston. Miss Southerland is a friend of Miss Helen Taft, and during the summer she was guest of Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield at "Seaside Farm," Marblehead, and frequently was with Miss Taft. Miss Southerland was one of the bridesmaids at the wedding of Countess Louise Alexandra von Bernstorff, the daughter of the German ambassador, and Count Pourtales, in Washington. Mr. Bacon is a member of the University, Country, Eastern Yacht and other clubs. He was graduated from Harvard in 1894. Miss Southerland has a large circle of friends on the North Shore, particularly at Magnolia, where she has spent several seasons at the Oceanside. On December 2d Mrs. Wm. F. Draper and Miss Margaret Preston Draper of Washington and Manchester will give a dinner at the capital in honor of Miss Southerland whose wedding will take place January 3d in the Church of the Covenant, Washington, followed by a breakfast and reception. Mr. Bacon passed the week-end in Washington with his fiancée.

A fine entry is being received for the horse show at the Park Riding School the first week in December. The final closing of entries will be on Saturday night. Sixty classes have been arranged for the five sessions of the show, three having been added last week at the request of exhibitors. There are a class for ponies under 12 hands, a saddle tandem class and a hunt club class. The last is for hunt club teams of three, riders to be in hunt uniform, the horses to be shown together over the regular jumps. This is always a picturesque and interesting event. The judges for the show will be: Roadsters, John Shepard of Boston; harness horses, C. A. Baudouine of New York, P. G. H. Bennet of Boston and Howard Brown of New York; saddle horses, Herbert L. Camp of Middletown, Conn., and Dr. S. A. Hopkins of Boston; hunters and jumpers, R. L. Agassiz and George S. Mandell, both of Boston and Hamilton.

Unveiling the Silver Service Given to the Battleship Utah

DISTINCTIONS are crowding upon the battleship Utah. Not only is she one of the two largest battleships in the navy, but she is the possessor of the finest silver service ever presented by an American state to its naval namesake. Moreover, it is safe to say that no mess-room has ever had a thirst quenching apparatus that has excited more comment than this same silver service, and all because its decorations include a picture of Brigham Young. In the height of the controversy which raged over the presentation of silver so decorated it was declared that the representation of the Mormon apostle's statue implied the recognition and approval of all his teachings, including that of polygamy. The explanation offered by the donors is that the Young statue appears in the scheme of decoration because the Pioneer monument which it surmounts is one of the sights of Utah. The navy department has also accepted the gift of another silver tray, not bearing the picture of Brigham Young, to take the place, if the Utah's officers wish, of the one so decorated, so that they now have two handsome trays instead of one. There are 129 pieces in the original set, the most important of which is the punch bowl. The punch cups represent each a county in the state, its identity being established by a characteristic scene engraved upon it. Thirty thousand school children joined with the citizens of Utah in the purchase of the gift for the battleship. The principal feature of the presentation ceremonies, which took place at the New York navy yard, was the unveiling of the service—that is, the drawing aside of the American flag which screened it—by Miss Hazel Tout, a Utah girl, who is known to the stage as Hazel Dawn.

Red Sox Quartette at B. F. Keith's

A real all-star vaudeville show is promised for next week at B. F. Keith's Theatre, practically every act on the list being of headline calibre. Sam Chip and Mary Marble will appear in their dainty Delft dialogue with droll ditties, entitled "In Old Edam." This is one of the prettiest and most delightful one-act musical comedies ever staged. The scenery and costumes are all done in a delicate shade of Delft blue, and as the little Dutch boy and girl who live in the little house in the midst of the tulip fields, Miss Marble and Mr. Chip keep the audience in good humor with their quaint sayings and doings. The music, written especially for the act, is of the most pleasing and catchy character. John C. Rice and Sally Cohen will return to Boston after a long absence in their amusing comedy, "A Bachelor's Wife." These two clever comedians have just completed a long western tour where they were the hit of every bill where they appeared. One of the novelties of the week will be the Red Sox Quartette, composed of four of Boston's most popular ball tossers.

MANCHESTER WOMAN'S CLUB

Mrs. Maud Conway Blanchard Presented "English Melodies"

The semi-monthly meeting of the Manchester Woman's club was held Tuesday afternoon at the chapel, President Mrs. Emma E. Stanley, presiding. As the meeting was an open one, there was a very large attendance.

The announcements during the business session included the Art conference at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, December 7th. Mrs. Emma G. Tenney, delegate. The December 5th meeting of the club was announced as Home Day. Home talent drawn from the ranks of the club members will provide a program on that afternoon. The hostess will be Mrs. Gertrude Prest.

The program on Tuesday afternoon of this week was provided by Mrs. Maud Conway Blanchard. It was a lecture recital on "English Melodies." Mrs. Blanchard has a fine presence. She possesses a very pleasing mezzo-soprano voice, which was heard to much advantage in her musical interpretations of the songs illustrating her subject.

In the exposition of the "English Melodies" Mrs. Blanchard referred to the old heroic ballads and songs which represented music in its crudest shape and the now definite shape of the development of music. Music in its early lyrical state was either sacred or secular. It was traditional—having usually as its source of origin the monasteries, then the seats of learning.

The first "Part Song" was written by a monk. To illustrate an early type of "Part Song" Mrs. Blanchard rendered "Summer is a Comin' In" singing the air, the piano supplying the other parts.

England has furnished no great composers but was always first to accept advanced music. She has been primarily a country made up of men of letters. The world has drawn largely on her literary values to enhance musical compositions.

England has many folk songs. To illustrate an old English hunting song Mrs. Blanchard rendered "A Hunting We Will Go." The old English love song, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," "The Three Ravens" and "Sally in Our Alley" were other old songs executed.

A song commemorating the old country dances of England, particularly the Maypole Dance was also rendered. It was entitled "Come Lassies and Lads."

The drinking song is of old English origin. It was not unusual in by-gone days to listen to a song of over fifty verses describing the great qualifications of "The Leather Bottle" or "Bottel," as it was called, over bottles made of other materials. Mrs. Blanchard sang a few verses of "The Leather Bottel" to show the characteristics of such an old song. To her audience it furnished the humorous note in the afternoon's entertainment. It was greatly enjoyed.

"The Token" representing the early type of "Songs of the Sea," and "Barbara Allen," which song had a great popularity in England and in America during the Revolutionary days, were also presented. For variety and national characteristics, Irish and Scotch songs were introduced. Where the English were always dignified and refined in their songs, the Scotch were pathetic and the Irish rollicking. To show a type of song of the early Irish school, Mrs. Blanchard gave a very piquant and charming rendition of Samuel Lover's "Young Rory O'Moore." "Annie Laurie" beautifully rendered, supplied the Scotch number and "Rule Britannia," England's great political poem and song, depicted the dignity of English music by contrast.

An informal reception followed Mrs. Blanchard receiving with the hostess of the day, Mrs. Philip Stockton. Many availed themselves of this opportunity to thank Mrs. Blanchard personally for the pleasure and instruction they had derived from her program.

In the tea-room where the social cup of tea was dispensed to round out the afternoon in a sociable fashion, Mrs. Wm. A. Russell of Beverly Farms, sister of Mrs. Stockton, and Mrs. Edith R. Morgan, poured.

The late Commander Edward Linzee Amory, U. S. N., retired, who died last Sunday at the St. Regis Hotel, New York, was a native of Boston. He was a brother of Mrs. F. Gordon Dexter of Boston, and an uncle of Gordon Dexter of Boston and Beverly Farms. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the residence of Mrs. F. Gordon Dexter, 171 Commonwealth avenue, Boston. When residing in Boston the deceased had apartments at the Touraine.

In the absence of James W. Appleton, M. F. H. of the Myopia Hunt club, in Virginia, Thomas Pierce of Topsfield acted as master of hunt last week.

SOCIETY NOTES

George Bakhmetieff, newly appointed by Emperor Nicholas as his ambassador to the United States, reached New York, last Sunday and left immediately to take charge of the Russian embassy at Washington as successor to Baron Rosen. M. Bakhmetieff is a man of not more than 50 years—younger than either of his two predecessors, Baron Rosen and Count Cassini. He is a thorough master of English and is a man of some reserve, but yet genial. He is reputed to be one of Russia's ablest diplomats and has faced difficult situations. He was ambassador to Japan shortly after the orientals emerged victorious from the struggle with Russia, and while at Tokio he accomplished a new treaty of friendliness with Russia's late foe. With the ambassador was his American wife, the daughter of the late Gen. E. F. Beal, whom he married while he was secretary to the Russian legation at Washington some years ago. Prince Koudacheff, who summered in Manchester, and the other members of the embassy staff met the new ambassador at the pier.

Plans are under way at Washington to give Miss Margaret Preston Draper, daughter of the late Gen. and of Mrs. W. F. Draper of Hopedale and Manchester, one of the most elaborate dancing parties ever seen in that city. The occasion will be the debut of Miss Draper, who is a niece of former Governor Draper of Massachusetts. Live humming birds brought from Florida and butterflies carried across the continent from California will flit around the miniature garden of daisies and rare exotics that is to grace the $25,000 party. Miss Draper, one of Washington's wealthiest debutantes, will wear her priceless string of pearls. This string has been added to year after year by her parents and the first pearl on it was the gift of Queen Margherita of Italy, her godmother and in honor of whom she was named.

December 9th is the date for the wedding of Arthur Hunnewell Shaw, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, and The Brownlands, Manchester, and Miss Acrata McCreery von Schrader of St. Louis. The ceremony will take place in the Church of the Messiah, St. Louis, and because of the wide acquaintance of the bridegroom's family there will be many guests present from the East.

Mrs. John Caswell and family of the Beverly Farms colony have taken apartments at the Puritan, Commonwealth avenue, Boston, for the winter.

SOCIETY NOTES

Invitations went out the middle of the week from Mr. and Mrs. Sewell H. Fessenden of Essex road, Chestnut Hill, Boston, and Manchester, for a ball on the evening of Friday, December 8th, in the Somerset ball room, on which occasion they are to present their eldest daughter, Miss Caroline Fessenden, who is one of the most popular debutantes of the winter, a rarely pretty girl, for whom there will be an incessant round of entertaining. Miss Fessenden is a granddaughter of Mrs. Geo. C. Lee of Chestnut Hill, and has a large and important affiliation to make her coming out season successful, including her cousin, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, whom she is reasonably sure to visit in Washington later in the season.

There was much Boston and North Shore interest in the wedding on Monday at Burlington, Iowa, where Miss Mary Russell Perkins of Burlington and Boston was married at noon at the family residence, the Apple Trees, to John Ghieves McIlvain of the O-4 Bar Ranch of Ranchester, Wyoming. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Naboth Osborne of the First Congregational church of that city and was beautiful in its simplicity. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Perkins (Edith Forbes) and the late C. E. Perkins, president of the Burlington road. She is a member of the Vincent Club of Boston and a charter member of the Chilton Club. Mrs. William Hooper (Alice Forbes Perkins) of Boston and West Manchester, is her sister, and another sister is Mrs. George T. Rice (Margaret A. Perkins) of Westwood. The bride's brothers are Robert Forbes Perkins, who was married in Kentucky, the middle of last summer, to Miss Evelyn M. Gray of that state and Charles E. Perkins of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, who married Miss Leila M. Amory. Like her mother, the bride is very much interested in philanthropy, and is one of the most active workers of the Red Cross in the state of Iowa, being chairman of the Burlington division of the organization. Mr. and Mrs. McIlvain left shortly after the breakfast on a wedding trip. Among her bridesmaids were the Misses Dorothy Jordan and Margaret Codman of Boston. William Hooper of West Manchester, uncle of the bride, was in Burlington to attend the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. McIlvain will live at Mr. McIlvain's ranch in Wyoming.

SOCIETY NOTES

Announcement of the official receptions and dinners to be given at the White House this season was made Monday night. The social season will open with a dinner to the Cabinet December 14th. The New Year's reception comes next, and that in turn will be followed by the diplomatic reception, January 9th; the diplomatic dinner, January 16th; the judicial reception, January 23d; the Supreme Court dinner, January 30th; the Congressional reception, February 6th; and the Speaker's dinner February 13th. The official season will close with the reception to the Army and Navy February 20th. Mrs. Taft is also planning for a big dance for Christmas week, especially for young people. It will be given in the East room of the White House and those who are in a position to know say that it would not be surprising, if an interesting announcement were made of peculiar interest to Miss Helen, daughter of President and Mrs. Taft.

Lord and Lady Decies, the latter formerly Vivian Gould, arrived in New York from Europe last Friday, to visit the Goulds and to attend the wedding of Lord Camoys and Miss Mildred Sherman. Lord Camoys was best man at the Gould-Decies wedding, but at the Sherman-Camoys ceremony Lord and Lady Decies will be merely guests and onlookers.

Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador to Washington, and the Countess von Bernstorff arrived in Washington on Thursday of last week and re-opened the embassy. The countess and her son went across last April to spend the summer in Bavaria, and the ambassador joined them later. The summer headquarters of the embassy were at Manchester with Baron Haimhausen in charge.

An Appeal for Thanksgiving Church Service

BY CLARENCE STRONG POND

Minister of the Church at Beverly Farms

Thanksgiving is a national holiday and the President of the Nation and the Governor of the Commonwealth have issued their proclamations calling upon the people: "Upon Thanksgiving Day let us all go to our several places of worship, reverently acknowledging our gratitude to God and reaffirming our religious faith." The Thanksgiving day is a national day and was established primarily to present an opportunity for the people to gather together and publicly praise God. In later days we have been so abundantly blessed and have prospered so richly that we have not been willing to take the time to grant an hour to a public service of praise in the churches.

Thanksgiving is essentially a "New England" day and the real import of the day should be maintained for sentimental reasons as well as religious reasons. I make my appeal to the descendants of the old New England families—of such an inheritance I am proud; all New Englanders are proud of their ancestry—to maintain this old New England custom. Let it not become a service of yesterday among us.

Of course, the times have changed and some of the household must remain in the home this day of home days, but some of the families can represent the home. To really observe Thanksgiving there ought to be services of praise in the churches, but ought they to be left to the ministers? The Scripture reads: "Let all the people praise Him."

There will be a service in the church at Beverly Farms Thanksgiving morning at 10 o'clock for one hour in the auditorium. The organist will present a full service assisted by an orchestra of eight pieces from the local band. The choir will sing a Thanksgiving Anthem. The minister will preach "The old New England and the New New England Thanksgiving."

Can you not spare an hour on Thanksgiving Day? Services will be held somewhere and there will be an empty pew where your home ought to be represented. I appeal again in the strongest way I know to the old New England families to perpetuate the day our ancestors inaugurated. I appeal to the members of all patriotic societies for this day because a national holiday after the war of 1861-65 and was a day of Thanksgiving for the United Nation. Let this day be maintained as fervently, as reverently, and as honorably as our other patriotic days.

This is written "lest we forget." Let us be loyal to the faith of the pilgrims and puritans, to the memory of the patriots of 1861-65, to the Great Founder of our religion, Jesus Christ, and to the church of God, on this day of Thanksgiving.

The Henry W. Stephens family of Detroit, closed "Pinethwaite," the Paine cottage at Pride's Crossing of which they have been the summer tenants, today. They will remain in Boston tomorrow for the Harvard-Yale football game. They will also spend some days in New York before going to Detroit.

"Indian Ridge," the Pride's Crossing summer home of Mrs. Jas. F. Curtis, was closed for the season late Saturday. Mrs. Curtis has enlarged the North Shore contingent opening homes on Marlboro street, Boston, for the winter.

An addition of several rooms is being made to the Amory Eliot cottage, "Wildwood," on Sea street, Manchester. Roberts & Hoare of Manchester, have the contract. A new heating apparatus is being installed to permit the giving of week-end parties there during the winter.

Gardiner's reception and tea Wednesday afternoon at her residence at 178 Marlboro street, Boston, was in honor of her debutante granddaughter, Miss Caroline Elizabeth Perkins Cabot, daughter of Mrs. William R. Cabot, of Boston and Beverly Farms, who before her marriage was Miss Mary C. Gardiner. Another daughter of Mrs. Cabot, Miss Mary Gerald Cabot, came out last season. A group of this year's debutantes assisted at the reception by having charge over the tea-room, were the Misses Elizabeth Bigelow, Margaret Foster, Esther Slater, Florence Lee, Gertrude Townsend, Mary Coolidge, Alice Bryant, Anne Stedman, Sarah Evarts, Katharine Key and Elizabeth Almy. Pink roses adorned the tea table, as its chief decoration. Miss Cabot wore a gown of pale blue chiffon, and her grandmother, Mrs. Gardiner, wore black silk combined with lace.

Miss Gertrude Amory, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harcourt Amory of Beacon street, Boston, and Pride's Crossing, made her bow to society Wednesday at a large reception when she was the guest of honor at one of the prettiest affairs of the week. The young debutante has assisted previously at all the large debutante receptions and her formal debut called out the smart set en masse. Among the invited guests were Miss Florence Lee, Mr. and Mrs. George Lee, Miss Frances Saltonstall, Miss Elizabeth Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Bigelow, Miss Phyllis Sears, Miss M. WORK ENOUGH FOR ALL

Two Irishmen died. Pat went to Heaven while Mike went to the lower regions. After a day or two spent in their respective abodes Mike called Pat up over the 'phone and the following conversation took place:

Mike: "Hello! Pat, how are you getting along up there and what are you doing?"

Pat: "I'm shining stars. What are you doing?"

Mike: "I'm shoveling coal. How many hours a day do you work?"

Pat: "I work ten hours a day. How long do you work?"

Mike: "I only work eight hours a day but I have lots of help."

Two Years Later

Oh! for a safety pin that's safe!
It would make my life all joy.
Oh for a food that will not give
The cramps to my little boy!
Oh for the boon once more of a night
Of solid square repose!
'Tis this only that I want
Oh! give me an old-time doze.

"Charity," said Uncle Eben, "will kiver a multitude of sins and yit most of us doan seem ter hab much mo' dan'll go roun' foh our own pus'nal uses."

"Mandy, why on earth are you washin' that dish in that fashion."

"I dunno, mam, less'n hit's cause cullud people is jest nachelly smahteh then white folks."

He Didn't Pull the Peach

A lady has a fine young peach tree which bore fruit last year for the first time—one solitary peach. She was very anxious to see just what the fruit looks like when it is ripe and since she feared that her little son would discover it before it should be ready to pull she took him into the garden, showed it to him and said, "Willie, do not pick that peach because I am very anxious to have it ripen on the tree." No doubt he would not have known about the fruit if his mother had not called his attention to it. He said "all right," fully intending to leave it alone, but his curiosity had been aroused. One day he went into the garden to look at the peach. It was so tempting that he could not refrain from eating it. He had promised his mother not to pull it but since the tree was very small he was able to reach it with his mouth while standing on tip toes. He ate the fruit from the stone leaving the latter clinging to the tree. In a few days his mother saw what had been done and of course reproved him. She said, "Why son, didn't I tell you not to pull the peach." Looking innocently into her face he replied: "But mamma I didn't pull it."

The Call to the Ministry

An elderly woman now living in the west, formerly a resident of Princeton, New Jersey, not long ago visited her relatives in that town. She was especially interested in the progress of a nephew who had entered the ministry. She had not seen him since his boyhood, and was, therefore anxious to attend service at his church.

At dinner, subsequent to the Sunday sermons she heard delivered by her nephew, it was observed that the old woman was singularly reticent.

Suddenly she broke her long silence by asking her nephew, "William, why did you enter the ministry?"

"Why, aunt!" exclaimed the young divine. "What a question!" I entered the ministry because I was called."

Just a suspicion of a smile came to the old woman's face, as she responded, "Are you sure, William, that it wasn't some other noise you heard?"

Question: What is worse than biting into an apple and finding a worm?

Answer: Biting into an apple and finding half a worm.

"Aunty, did you marry an Indian?" said Freddy.

"Why do you ask such silly questions, Freddy."

"Well, I saw some scalps on your dressing table."

A Shrewd Economist

Patrick O'Hoolihan was the oracle of the little Irish village. He was the wisest of the wise and was looked up to by the other members of the community as a veritable encyclopedia. But especially did he pride himself upon his Scriptural learning.

It was the custom in the village church Sunday mornings for all the inhabitants to attend, and Patrick, who never missed a Sunday, always occupied the front pew.

One Sabbath, when the minister was reading the Bible, several dignitaries were present from another town, and in an endeavor to wax particularly eloquent the pastor became slightly confused and said, "And there were five thousand loaves and three fishes to feed a multitude of seven." And then to point his moral and adorn his tale he looked straight at the infallible Pat and said, "And sure, Pat, you couldn't do that, now could you?"

"Indade, I could," said Pat, and the sermon continued.

That night, however, when the preacher reached his home and thought over his morning sermon, it dawned on him that he had made a serious error concerning the loaves and the fishes. Accordingly the next Sunday he rose in the pulpit and said in explanation, "Brethren, last Sabbath I made a mistake and said that there were five thousand loaves and three fishes to feed the multitude of seven, but what I should have said was that there were seven loaves and three fishes to feed the multitude of five thousand." And then he looked at Pat again and said, "And now Pat., sure you could not do that, could you?"

"Ah, yis, Oi could," replied Pat.

"And how would you do it, Pat?" asked the minister.

"Why," said Pat, "Oi would give thim what was left over from last Sunday."

An alumnus of a certain university was telling about the number of great men which his alma mater had turned out, when he was interrupted by a prominent man who had been somewhat wild in his younger days, "it turned me out in my Sophomore year."

"Dear teacher," wrote a parent who evidently disapproved of corporal punishment, "don't hit our Sammy. We never do it at home except in self-defense."

"What are you crying for, my poor little girl?" said a man to a crying child.

"Pa fell downstairs."

"Well, don't cry, my dear. He'll get better soon."

"That isn't it. Sister saw him fall—all the way. I never saw nuffin."

The Boston Social Register for 1912 Has Been Issued

The members of prominent Boston families, whether residing in the city, in the suburbs, in other cities or abroad, are grouped under the one address, with the maiden and Christian name of the married women, the names of daughters and sons in the order of their age, and the younger children from 12 to 20 years of age placed beneath their elders under the title of Juniors.

The utility of the Married Maidens' Column in the back of the book, whereby married women who may only be remembered by their maiden names may now be traced, is increased this year, to cover inter-city marriages; and the former maiden names appear opposite the present married names, with the city of the Social Register in which they may now be found.

During the past year 207 persons have married, as compared with 155 last year, an increase of 33 percent; and there are noted the deaths of 53 women and 59 men, as compared with 44 women and 71 men last year.

In connection with the Social Register, the Locator, which has become necessary owing to the many inter-city marriages and shifting residences from one city to another, catalogues in the one alphabetical order all the names in all the different Social Registers, covering New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston, Providence, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, St. Louis, Cleveland, St. Paul and Minneapolis, San Francisco, Baltimore, and Southern Cities from Richmond to Atlanta, indicating the head of the family under which they may be found and the city of their residence.

The Steady Growth of Massachusetts Savings Bank Life Insurance

Three years have elapsed since the Whitman Savings Bank of Whitman and the People's Savings Bank of Brockton opened insurance departments under the law enacted by the Commonwealth to provide wage earners with the opportunity of obtaining life insurance and old age annuities at the lowest possible cost. Other banks have been waiting to see how the new departure worked out in these two institutions. The results have been so encouraging that the trustees of the Berkshire County Savings Bank of Pittsfield opened an Insurance Department in that bank last June.

The third financial year of Savings Bank Life Insurance ended October 31st, 1911—and the record of the year is most satisfactory. The insurance departments of the banks show a premium income for the year of $75,827.16—an increase of about 33 1-3 percent over the previous year.

The number of policyholders has grown from 3,318 in 1910 to more than 5,300 in 1911. During the financial year just ended the amount of insurance in force has increased from $632,637 to nearly $2,000,000—a net gain of more than 45 percent.

A lady entered a railroad coach in which all the seats were filled with the exception of two of which one man had taken possession. The lady stopped near the man thinking that he would gallantly turn one of the seats for her and thus permit her to sit down. Perhaps there was a look of annoyance on her face since the man did not show a disposition to show her any courtesy for he said, "Why are you looking at me so angrily, do you wish to eat me up?" The lady answered: "No! I do not like pork."

What is the good of holding the key to the situation if you cannot find the key hole?

"Mr. C. will you take sugar and cream in your coffee?" asked an excellent housewife of a country cousin. "No, ma'am, I jest takes it barefooted and ball-headed."

John Hutchinson will spend the next two weeks in New York city. The class of 1911, Story High school, have sent out invitations this week for a dance and reunion to be held in the Town hall, December 1st.

Hunt's sausages and mince meat are getting to be popular products along the North Shore as well as elsewhere. Mr. Hunt, who lives in Magnolia, has a market in Cambridge also, and for the last two or three years he has been making pork sausages and mince meat for private use and for the trade. Last year he manufactured 4000 of these sausages. They are for sale in Manchester at Sheldon's market. His mince meat is for sale at Valentine's and at E. E. Allen's grocery.

The YMCA convention meets in West Newbury December 2d and 3d. An invitation has been extended to the Manchester YMCA orchestra to furnish music. There will doubtless be delegates from the local YMCA branch.

The weekly meeting of the selectmen next week will be held Wednesday instead of Thursday evening. At that time all bills and communications should be before the board.

Open for Engagements

The Medford Four, one of Boston's newest and most up-to-the-minute male quartettes are open for engagements for club and concert work. The quartette is composed of Charles H. Cox, basso; G. A. Thorndike, baritone; F. C. Herbolzheimer, first tenor and W. R. Blanchard, second tenor. Mr. Cox is a prominent member of the well known Harmonic Club, one of Wollaston's exclusive social and musical organizations. The quartette appeared Thursday evening at an entertainment in AOUW hall, Reading, and met with instant popularity. Engagements may be secured by applying to W. R. Blanchard, 246 Devonshire, street, Boston.

Well Known Caterer Still Ill

Wm. J. Creed of Corning street, Beverly, who enjoys such a large patronage from North Shore society folk as caterer, is still confined to his Beverly home by illness. Mr. Creed's plans to locate in Boston this month for the winter have been interrupted by his ill health.

SAN FRANCISCO 1915

Announcement made of free trip to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition

WORD has been received from SUNSET, the Magazine of the Pacific and the Far West, of the organization of the Sunset Panama-Pacific Club. The Club offers a four weeks' trip to the Exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915, including railway fare, Pullman, diner, hotel accommodations, admissions to the fair, side trips to points of interest, all in return for a little time each week to be devoted to the work of the Magazine.

The exposition is to be held to commemorate the completion of the Panama Canal, connecting the Pacific and Atlantic. From all indications it will be by far the greatest World's Fair ever held.

The Magazine has issued a very attractive booklet descriptive of the trip, and giving further particulars, which will be sent on application.

The membership is very limited and it is not likely that more than one or two applications will be accepted from this vicinity. Request for particulars should be sent to

The Reorganization Plans

The reorganization of the disbanded trust companies does not seem to be as easy a task as first thought for and the results obtained by reorganization while legal do not necessarily afford opportunities for competition. Prof. Bruce Wyman in the Boston Transcript writes:

"Probably we need to see with our own eyes the failure of this tobacco plan to work out competition in practice before we will believe that the law cannot produce competition, if only its prohibitions would be obeyed. Then, perhaps, when driven to the realization of the permanence of monopoly in certain businesses, we will at last come to believe that monopoly is good where it is natural. It will then be appreciated that these great concerns which have been gradually developed in the inevitable course of a predetermined evolution may be turned to the common advantage by the effective regulation of them by the law. These attempts in recent years to utterly destroy the industrial trusts, from this point of view, seem almost as unintelligent as the terrorist propaganda. Rather 'regulated' fields should be spectively developed in these effective
-er and in the public interest in their control as any public service corporation."

This statement by Dr. Wyman seems to express in a nugget of wisdom the experience of the country.
There is nothing essentially wrong in combination for trade purposes, for from it, result improvements otherwise impossible. A trust is a good thing when it serves good ends by good means. The whole problem is to prevent selfish aggrandizement on the part of illegal and unscrupulous organizations and yet not harm legitimate, honorable combinations which promote and do not harm the public weal.

Epictetus on Thanksgiving

The return of Thanksgiving will recall the words of the heathen Philosopher Epictetus of whom little is known save that he was a slave of Epaphroditus "a profligate freedman" of Emperor Nero. He was lame as the text indicates and in increasing years. He was probably born at Hierapolis of Phrygia. He says, "Good Heaven! any one thing in the creation is sufficient to demonstrate a Providence, to a humble and grateful mind. The mere possibility of producing milk from grass, cheese from milk, and wool from skins; who formed and planned it?
Ought we not, whether we dig or plough or eat, sing this hymn to God? Great is God, who has supplied us with these instruments to till the ground; great is God, who has given us to grow insensibly and to breathe in sleep. These things we ought forever to celebrate but because the most of you are blind and insensible, there must be some one to fill this nation, and lead, in behalf of all men, the hymn to God;
for what else can I do, a lame old man, but sing hymns to God? Were I a nightingale; were I a swan, the part of a swan. But since I am a reasonable creature, it is my duty to praise God and I call on you to join the same song."

Epictetus has found the true spirit of Thanksgiving.

"Heating Question Again"

Two of our leading papers have taken occasion to call attention editorially to the question of overheated houses. The Boston Herald avers: "That it is not improbable that more people in this latitude are physically injured by the heat in winter than in summer. The dried out super-heated atmosphere of many of our winter abiding places is exceedingly unwholesome and responsible for many of the petty ailments which develop into real afflictions." Sixty-five degrees Fahrenhite is the suggested high temperature. Another periodical takes up the question of the moisture in the atmosphere of our houses as being an overlooked item of great importance and even claiming that a modern heated house is often drier than the driest climates known on our globe. Care in filling the cold water pans in furnaces is suggested and the placing of water filled receptacles about in hot water or steam heated rooms to supply the moisture which has dried out. Certainly these are important items

—first an even lower temperature and second an even and larger degree of water saturation of the atmosphere.

Essex Railway Service

It is the modern systems of transportation which adds so much in these days to the joys and advantages and prosperity of country life on the North Shore. Isolate our communities and deprive them of their opportunities for a "way out" and you have crippled the pleasures of country life and put an effectual damper upon progress and prosperity. The appeal for better service made by the Town of Essex is warranted and the easement requested by the railroad commissioners seems justifiable. The petition of the Board of Selectmen for better service should be granted. The conditions in the surface traffic and in the overhead equipment should be improved so that it can no longer be said as was stated by Congressman Gardner's private secretary at the hearing "that Essex has the poorest street railway service in eastern Massachusetts."

Shop Early

It seems strange that the season of brotherly love, good cheer and Christian Greeting, even the Christmas season should be marred by greed, unkindliness, thoughtlessness and a persistent disregard of the true Christmas joy. The holiday season has become a grand holiday
"rush." Cars are over-crowded, stores are "packed," tired and wan girls are over-burdened, the mails are over-crowded and the expresses are paralyzed by the pressure of the few days preceding the Great Holiday. The campaign started by the Boston Board of Trade to develop the "Shop Early Habit" commends itself as a good policy not only for the shop keeper but for the customer as well. The joy of Christmas shopping is made easier by the absence of the "crowd," and the opportunities to make selections are greater for the best "things" have not been selected. The item of freshness has its appeal. But the basis for this movement is ethical, better still, it is Christian. The weary body of the shop girl on those "terrible pre-Holiday Rush" days awaken pity within us; but is not the late shopper contributing his share to this waste of nerve force and the dissipation of human energy? It does seem a pity that the holiday that commemorates the human birth of the Great Spirit who said: "Come unto me and Rest" should bring such care, worry and distress to humanity in the excessive unchristian spendthrift purchasing of the Christmas Season. Shop early and use the same good sense when you purchase as you use during all the rest of the year.

President Taft's method of pardon consideration appeals to everyone's sense of Justice. He says: "He does not base his decisions on the number of names attached to a petition of pardon. He considers each case on its merits and avoids politics—contending that one good reason for a pardon is worth more than one thousand names attached to it." This is what one may justly call the judicial mind. Mr. Taft lacks some of the "methods" of other good Presidents but he has always shown justice in his decisions.

At last it seems that the Canadian people are awakening to the stupendous blunder that was made in rejecting reciprocity. The Editor of the Toronto Globe claims that "the people have returned to sober thinking and regret their action. The voters were swayed by the unintelligent emotion of the crowd. The annexation bugbear was to blame for it all." But that does not change the facts that one of President Taft's favorite schemes fell through.

With a new YMCA in Beverly, in Newport, in Newton and in Boston, and a decision of the city of Cambridge to close the disputed street with the probable new Institute of Technology, we are certainly making progress.

The new statute on the books of the State of Connecticut requiring the registration of every firearm purchased is not unlike the bill which was introduced and was defeated in our legislature last year. The frequency with which shooting frays are repeated seems to make such a statute inevitable in Massachusetts. An honorable man has no objection to registering the purchase of a fire arm intended for legitimate purposes.

A financial firm in Chicago sent out a letter to thousands of investors making inquiries concerning their preferences and they were practically agreed that safety was a paramount matter and that four and one-half per centum per annum was about the maximum limit for absolute security of the principle. The next time a money shark letter appears it will be well to think of this item.

The agreement of the expressman to deliver without charge provisions and other human goods to charitable institutions shows the true human spirit and it is not lost sight of by an altogether thoughtless public.

Manchester and Beverly Farms need local facilities which will serve them in lieu of the advantages of a YMCA.

Andrew Carnegie and the Opportunities of the Future

On the 25th of this month, Andrew Carnegie will be 74 years of age. To celebrate it he has given away another $26,000,000, his gifts to the cause of education, science, peace and the general betterment of mankind now reaching the princely sum of $226,000,000.

As the self confessed maker and sponsor of 43 millionaires—the survival of the fittest of that vast army of young men, who starting as pudgling, laborers and workers-ordinary in the great steel foundaries of Pennsylvania, have risen to wealth and eminence under him, the Iron Master acquires new interest as the weight of time crowds upon him. To the youth of the nation, ambitious for material power, no career in the whole galaxy of famous Americans, either native or foreign born, furnishes greater inspiration or offers more encouragement, than that of the steel magnate, who said a little while ago: "I'd rather be born poor than a millionaire and I have had experience in both directions."

Between the youth of Carnegie's

day and the youth of today there is this analogy—although those with the pessimistic bent profess not to believe it—the world is constantly evolving. Evolution means new opportunity for some one and inversely loss of opportunity for those who do not hearken to the call of the times and keep up with the procession. Of this kind was Thomas Carnegie, father of Andrew, who supported his family operating a hand linen loom in his home at Dunfermlin, Scotland. Wedded to tradition, the elder Carnegie could not foresee the advent of steam looms which performed as much work in one day as he was able to do in two weeks or of the still more efficient oxford processes which accomplish here in two days that which takes 30 weeks to effect in his native town. With the abolition of the hand loom, the Carnegies found themselves face to face with privation and came to America. As good fortune oftentimes comes in the guise of misfortune, so it was with them. In recounting the hardships of his boyhood, the seamed and grizzled old Iron Master counts as the proudest moment of his life, the day when he got his first job in America as a bobbin boy in a Pennsylvania mill and was able to take home to his mother his modest wage of $1.25 a week toward the support of his family.

The experience of the elder Carnegie was valuable to the embryo ironmaster in that it impressed upon him the truth of the modern business philosophy that to rest is to rust and that to progress it is necessary to move with the surging tide as it sweeps by. Those who succeed are those who seize opportunity when it gets into focus and travel to the crest of the wave with it. This is what Carnegie did and what he says every youth in the land pushed by the cosmic urge, may still do. In Carnegie, the germ of industry was rampant and when things did not gravitate his way he went after them. When everybody turned their back on the inventor of the sleeping car, claiming that it was a fool's conceit, and nobody would take it seriously, Carnegie backed him for all he had and could borrow. His shrewdness netted him millions and was the real beginning of his great future, and while his competitors in the early days of the steel industry were plodding along with obsolete methods, the canny Scot slipped across the Atlantic and clinched the American right for the newly discovered Bessemer process of manufacturing that product.

A Union Thanksgiving service will be held on the morning of Thanksgiving Day at the Congregational chapel. The service will be at 10.45. Rev. A. G. Warner of the Baptist church will speak on "The Thanksgiving Spirit."

The Ministering Circle of King's Daughters will meet with Mrs. Price next Monday evening. Topic—"Courage."

Rev. Chas. M. Ellinwood will preach at the Congregational church Sunday morning, also at the Vesper service in the afternoon. He will conduct special services in the chapel every evening this coming week at 7.30. After deliberating, the standing committee decided to invite Mr. Ellinwood to come, in the hopes of interesting the church and community in the thought of a larger devotion and a fuller consecration of self in the cause of religion and humanity. Coming during Thanksgiving week it is a double reminder of our indebtedness to God for his many blessings and this calls for larger giving of self, time, talent and money in the interests of His Kingdom. Everyone in Manchester is invited to the special services. If the chapel proves too small the meetings will be held in the church auditorium.

Parent-Teacher Association

The meeting of the Manchester Parent-Teacher Association in the assembly hall of the primary school, Wednesday evening was well attended and was very much enjoyed.

Previous to the address of the evening by Dr. Charles H. Williams of Gloucester, Miss Gwendolen Glendenning played on the piano, Goddard's "In the Morning," and following the lecture Miss Stenhouse of the high school faculty sang very sweetly Green's "The Beautiful Land of Nod," and as an encore "Thou Art Like a Flower," by Liszt. Miss Porter presided at the piano and violin obligato was by Miss Katherine Shea.

Dr. Williams gave a very interesting talk on "The American Trinity," which he outlined as the home, the church and the school. He said the three went together, one overlapping the other, in the development of the child.

The usual social hour followed in the primary room, when tea was served by a committee of teachers and parents.

MANCHESTER

Mrs. L. E. Davis of this town is one of the contestants for the prize of a piano offered by Hallet & Davis of Boston, for the one writing the name of the firm on a card, 3 x 4 inches, the greatest number of times. Mrs. Davis succeeded in writing the words 601 times, using two colors of ink, alternating the half-inch columns in which the words are written. It is interesting to know that there are 1803 words on the card and the numbers 1 to 601, making a total of 25,242 letters and 1695 numerals.

Gertrude (Hoyt) Wilcox

Mrs. Gertrude (Hoyt) Wilcox, wife of Ernest Wilcox, passed away last Saturday at the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, after an illness of several months. Her age was 36 yrs., 8 mos., 11 days.

Mrs. Wilcox was born in Charlestown, March 7, 1875, a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Claudius L. Hoyt. She spent her girlhood and practically all her life in Manchester, and was educated in the public schools of the town.

Last summer she was advised by a specialist to go to the hospital for treatment, for a trouble which had developed, and accordingly she was operated upon at the Massachusetts General Hospital. She returned from there but had to go back to the hospital in a short time. She was operated upon again, but she did not improve, for several weeks up to the time of her death it was known she could not live.

Her death is an unbearable blow to her husband and her father and mother and two sisters, Mrs. F. C. Rand and Mrs. Oakes Alden, and other members of the family, as well as a large host of friends. Mr. Wilcox is a clerk at the postoffice. There are three small children, two girls and a boy.

Deceased enjoyed remarkably good health all her life and was one of the last of whom one would think death could pay such a hurried visit. She had always been prominently identified with the life of the town in her younger days, and was an excellent singer. She sang in the choir of the Congregational church for a number of years. She was a member of Harmony Guild.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the attractive new cottage home of the family, the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Williams of Gloucester, officiating. Interment was in Rosedale cemetery.

MANCHESTER

Monday evening proved a memorable occasion for the little folk of the Baptist Sunday school, as it was their first social, and the very name seemed to appeal to the children: "Topsy Turvy," it certainly was. The "Welcome" over the door, was placed upside down and everything else accordingly. Mrs. Isabelle Stidstone, superintendent of the primary room, had charge of the entertainment. There were a number of songs and recitations by the children. Allyn Brown presided at the piano. The Rev. and Mrs. A. G. Warner were present, and the former gave an interesting talk to the children.

Lamson & Hubbard Fall Hats at Bell's. *

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Warren Lee on Rosedale avenue, was the scene of a most pleasant gathering Monday evening of this week. The assembled guests were members of the graduating class of '86 of the Story High school, and their husbands and wives. Old stories of the happy school days were repeated, school songs sung, and even the tricks and feats accomplished during those years at the High school were not forgotten. Allyn Brown of Gloucester, rendered a number of piano solos, while Miss Carolyn Weeks of Dorchester, a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Lee, and a talented violinist, rendered a number of selections. The vocal solos by Mrs. Lee were most enjoyable. A buffet luncheon was served. During the evening a letter from Prof. N. B. Sargent, formerly principal of the school, now of Haverhill, was read. Mrs. Seddie Follett and Mrs. Nellie Rogers had a very cleverly prepared original poem, suitable to the occasion, this poem was read and was most thoroughly enjoyed. A happy coincidence of the evening was the fact that it was also the anniversary of Mrs. Nellie Roger's birth. This fact was generally remembered and the class presented Mrs. Rogers with a handsome bouquet of carnations. The singing of the Class Ode of '86 (written by Mrs. Emma Tenney, then of the school board, and music by Prof. N. B. Sargent) brought this interesting reunion to a close.

Sydney Marsh and family of West Manchester, are moving to Boston today for the winter.

Mrs. Chas. Howe spent the week-end in Everett with her son, Ernest Howe, and family.

MANCHESTER

There was a very pleasant gathering at the apartments of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Jones, 18 Brook street, over the last week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Jones and the former's father, Edgar F. Jones, entertained the later's two daughters, Misses Marion E. and Fannie Jones, and his son, Charles A. Jones, also Miss Sadie J. Morss all of Medford. The young people are talented musicians. A feature of their visit was a musicale enjoyed through the courtesy of Mrs. Edwin Rumrill, who acted as hostess on that occasion. Miss Marion E. Jones is an accomplished violinist, Charles A. Jones is the cornetist of the family, and Miss Morss presided at the piano. The family reunion and its very pleasant features were particularly happy occasions for Mr. Jones, Sr., who is an invalid, likewise for Miss Marion E. Jones, who is soon leaving Medford to spend the winter in Florida.

Harry Slade, who recently bought the Dow Fish market, will locate the business in the Slade building on Central street.

Sunday afternoon as E. E. Allen and family, who had been enjoying a drive through the Essex woods, were returning home, an automobile owned by Frank Davis of Gloucester, collided with the carriage. The roads were wet from recent rains, and the ruts made it difficult for the auto to pass in order to give the carriage sufficient room. Mrs. Allen was shaken up and her side hurt. The occupants of the car took her to her home on Summer street. Fortunately the other members of the party were not injured in any way.

Mrs. Jennie Dennis has been entertaining Mrs. Adeline Terry of Braintree, during the week.

Have you been to Cawthorne's lately? *

ESSEX

At the Interdenominational Missionary Rally of Beverly and suburban churches held in the First Baptist church, Beverly, Mrs. D. O. Mears, D. D., of Essex, led the devotional exercises and Miss Helen Grinnell Mears, her daughter, was soloist.

The Rival Choirs at the Orthodox vestry, under the direction of Mrs. Frank A. Goodhue, as a whole was simply delightful. The artists were the members of the church choir. The following are the cast of characters: Aunt Sally Hawkins, Miss Marguerite Burnham; Miss Letty Larcom, Miss Helen Mears; Ebenezer Dalrymple, Frank Goodhue; Joshua Rowen, Lawrence Cogswell; Kitty King, Miss Velma Turner; Martha Miles, Miss Agnes Choate; Israel Medders, Wilbur Cogswell;

Jacob Clovertop, Marshall Cogswell. The scene was the living room of the Hawkins household in a country farmhouse. Hiram and Horace Hawkins were discovered back to each other. Their sister, Aunt Sally, is worried and begs them to make up and also to tell her what the trouble is—they refuse to do so and leave the room. Kitty King, one of the help says the boys are in love with the same girl. Hiram and Horace are twins and have always acted as one person. The annual trial for the church choir is to be held. Usually the trial is a form, the old choir is always elected. But this time jealousy and anger has crept in and the trial bids fair to be an exciting affair and no one can tell the outcome. The solos were excellent and were encored heartily. The whole entertainment was simply delightful. It was a success financially.

The seven cent sale at the Town hall was a great success. A good attendance and good things of all kinds were for sale at seven cents. A good sum was realized.

Miss Ruth Low of Reading was home over Sunday.

Roswell Perkins of Lowell, spent the week-end with his parents.

To Advertise the Expositions

It is understood unofficially that the two big 1915 Expositions are to be widely advertised through cooperation with the railroads reaching the Pacific Coast. These railroads, and perhaps their Eastern connections, are planning, according to a gentleman connected with the advertising business, to unite in placing newspaper advertising, calling attention to the unusual attractions offered tourists for visiting the Pacific Coast during the progress of the Expositions, when they will not only have the advantage of unusually low fares, to visit the most remarkable and beautiful natural scenery on the continent, but they will have the added and almost irresistible inducement of two great international expositions which alone would amply repay them for crossing the continent.

There is nothing, perhaps, which has such a high educational value as a big Exposition. At a glance one may learn more at one of these big enterprises than can be learned by many days of travel or reading. The San Diego Exposition, in addition to being highly instructive, will be exceedingly novel, strange and one might say, absolutely unique in the history of Expositions. Some of its highly interesting features have been told to the public already, but the fertile minds of Director-General Collier and the other gentlemen managing its affairs are daily working on the plans to make it the most interesting Exposition ever held anywhere in the world.

"Mamma, did Santa Claus get in his sleigh on Christmas eve and drive around to all the houses of the little girls and boys?" said Willie.

"Yes, dear," answered his mother.

"And did he stop at each chimney as he went along and did he have just the right thing for everybody?"

"Why of course, dearie."

"Well, mamma, he must have been mighty quick to visit all the places in one night."

"He is very quick, dear."

"I don't believe he did it that way," said Willie, after a moment of deep thought.

"How do you think he did it?"

"Why I think he planned ahead, cause he had all my presents put away in the closet under the steps two days before Christmas."

WEST GLOUCESTER

The "Old Fashioned Husking Bee" held in City hall, Gloucester, Monday evening by the West Gloucester grange was a pronounced success, due largely to the splendid efforts of the hustling social committee, Mrs. George W. Lane, chairman. Over 300 people were present during the evening and entered into the enjoyment of the novel affair with great enthusiasm. Ex-Alderman Walter F. Lufkin acted as master of ceremonies in a very clever manner and won for himself the hearty applause of the audience. There were "red ears" in abundance and the blushing beauties of West Gloucester certainly found themselves very much kissed. After the remains of the corn were cleared away the committee served a splendid collation of which sweet cider was an important part to the guests. About 9.30 p.m. everything being cleared away, dancing was indulged in by the majority of those present. The dancing did not end until nearly midnight, at which time a special car left Center street for West Gloucester and Essex. Much credit for the success of the affair is due to the efforts of the Imperial orchestra.

Next Monday over 40 members of the West Gloucester grange will go to Danvers to join the new Essex County Pomona Grange, which will be organized there at 10.30 a.m.

The bungalow which Melvin H. Rowe of the city proper is building on land which he recently purchased from William H. R. Rust is rapidly nearing completion.

There will be a large delegation of young people from the local YPSCE attend the social which will be given by the Cape Ann Union in the vestry of the First Baptist church of Gloucester next Monday night.

"Ben-Hur" at the Boston Theatre

Crowded houses, unlimited enthusiasm and a wonderful appreciation of the new and greater production of "Ben-Hur" at the Boston Theatre have marked the third week of this remarkable Twentieth Century religio-historic drama. The thirteenth year of the presentation of this play in Boston has been marked with the greatest success that has ever been met with in the history of the American stage.

The scenic investiture, the colossal conception and the marvellous effects that have been produced by taking advantage of all the modern accessories to stagecraft have produced an ensemble that has been

The sensational chariot race has been emphasized by the unequalled spectacle of twenty horses in five quadruple teams plunging at full speed over the stage in the arena at Antioch, giving the appearance of one of the most exciting races of modern times.

The company which is appearing in this remarkable production of "Ben-Hur" including as it does Richard Buhler in the title role, William J. Kelly as Messala, Marion Barney as Iras, Cecil Kern as Esther and Oscar Adye as Simonides, the faithful slave and the richest merchant in Antioch, is the finest that has ever presented Ben-Hur.

While many at the Farms regret it, nevertheless it seems to be according to the Civil Service rules that this week James W. Wright concludes his services at the West street engine house as spare driver. Mr. Wright has always performed his duty very satisfactorily and his willingness to perform his duty at all times has been of great convenience. The Civil Service rules say that hereafter the position as spare driver must be filled by one who has passed the examination. In this case it means that one will have to come down from Beverly when needed.

Keenan-Connolly

In St. Margaret's Catholic church, Beverly Farms, Wednesday morning at 9.30 o'clock, Miss Gertrude Hortense Connolly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Connolly, was united in marriage to Dr. George Francis Keenan of Brighton.

The guests at the church numbered 300. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Arthur T. Connolly of Jamaica Plain, a cousin of the bride, the same priest who officiated at the wedding of her father and mother. The bride, who is a very prepossessing young woman, looked exceptionally well in her bridal robe of white crepe meteor. She wore the conventional tulle veil which was caught with her engagement ring and orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of bride's roses. Mrs. George Dean of Manchester, a sister, was matron of honor, and Miss Frances Connolly, another sister, was maid of honor. Their gowns were of pink chiffon over pink silk. They carried chrysanthemums.

The best man was Thomas H. Keenan, a brother of the groom, and the ushers, who served at the church, were Dr. Fred Keyes, Fred Keenan, Eugene Connolly and Charles C. McCarthy.

Following the ceremony, there was a large reception at the home of the bride on Oak street.

The bride is the daughter of the well known Beverly Farms contractor, Thomas D. Connolly, and for some time she has served as a physical instructor at the Salem play ground assisting her sister, Mrs. George Dean, assistant supervisor of the playgrounds. She is an accomplished musician, possessing much native talent in that direction. She has a large circle of friends in Boston, Salem and Beverly.

The groom is the son of Thomas Keenan, a well known Boston newspaper man and a former representative.

There was a beautiful display of wedding gifts in cut glass, silver, bric-a-brac, etc. Among the guests present at the wedding and reception were the Rev. Fr. Lee, chaplain of the Ninth regiment, Rev. Fr. Logue and Rev. Fr. Michael J. Murray and his family, Judge Quinn of Salem and his family, Michael J. Haney of Toronto, Canada; John Connolly, a brother of the bride, who came on from the West especially for the wedding, and many others from Boston, Providence, Springfield, Holyoke, Lynn, Salem, Peabody, Danvers, Newburyport, Manchester, Gloucester and Rockport.

Immediately after the reception Dr. and Mrs. Keenan left on their honeymoon trip. Their destination is the Bermudas. After the wedding trip they will reside at 11 Menlo road, Brighton, where they will be at home after Monday, January 1st.

"I wish to be taken standing in my hat," said the lady who had called at the gallery to have her photo taken.

You can be taken sitting in it if you like. I am sure there is plenty of room," returned the attendant.

Their 60th Anniversary

The Ladies' Sewing Circle of the Beverly Farms church, Rev. Clarence Strong Pond, minister, observed their 60th anniversary in the pretty chapel of the church Thursday of last week. The chapel is always pretty and the stain glass windows and beautiful finish of the room makes it appear to advantage. Flowering plants, crysanthemums, ferns and cut flowers were used to advantage by the committee in decorating the room.

The celebration was proposed by the president, Mrs. Elmer Standley, who has been elected for the seventh time, a testimony in itself of efficient and appreciated service. The exercises were opened with prayer by the minister. The young men organized an orchestra and played several instrumental selections which were appreciated by the audience. The orchestra was accompanied on the piano by the organist who had rehearsed for the occasion. The orchestra was composed of Arthur Harlow, Fred Hull, Rex Hull, P. Gaudreau, Fred Day and Ruel Davis.

Mrs. William R. Brooks and Mrs. Lewis Hardy read appropriate selections which were appreciated by the listeners and vigorously applauded.

Mrs. Edwin Pride read the history of the circle. The paper was carefully prepared under difficulties—as many of the records had been destroyed, but a comparison of the existing data with the records of the church, revealed material enough for the paper. Every enterprise of importance entered into by the church in the last 60 years according to the church records will show that the Sewing Circle has had a generous and leading part. In that time the circle has raised more than $4500, every cent of which was used for the interests of the church and its enterprises. The new heating arrangements, the new singles, the new improvements in the upper room and various other enterprises in recent years have revealed the circle's generous and willing hand. In earlier years the circle made shoes and shoe linings from materials furnished by a Danvers manufacturer. In the days of the terrible war with the south, they made thousands of comfort bags and scraped lint for the hospitals and did other hospital aid work. In later years the society has paid all of the fuel bills of the church. They have done this for years—a help that has been abundantly appreciated by the church and the attendants. The circle has thus been able to give every attendant a "warm" welcome. The paper was applauded by the audience.

After a solo by Miss Florence Chapman, refreshments were served by the ladies.

A special effort is being made by the minister, Rev. Mr. Pond, to make the Thanksgiving Day service at the Baptist church a success this year. Exports of Manufactures Approaching the Billion Dollar Line

The value of manufactures passing out of the United States in the calendar year 1911 may exceed one billion dollars. This estimate is based upon figures of the Bureau of Statistics, Department of Commerce and Labor, covering the exports of manufactures in the 9 months ending with September, 1911, which amount to 478½ million dollars for finished manufactures and 240½ million for manufactures for further use in manufacturing, making the total exports of manufactures in the period named 719 million dollars, against 612 million in the like period of 1910. The increase in the 9 months of 1911 over the like period of 1910 is 17.48 percent, and in case the increase during the remainder of the year continues at the same rate the total value of manufactures passing to foreign countries during 1911 will be about 970 million dollars. When to this is added the value of manufactures going to Alaska, Porto Rico and Hawaii, not included in the exports to foreign countries, the total outward movement of manufactures from continental United States in 1911 will pass the billion dollar line. This will bring the total value of manufactures exported in 1911 to more than twice that of ten years ago and more than five times that of 20 years ago, the exports of manufactures in 1901 having been 447½ million, and in 1891 about 185 million dollars.

increased exports when compared with the preceding year, many of them making new high records in the year now approaching its close. Iron and steel manufactures, which head the list of domestic manufactures exported, give promise of a total of 250 million dollars in the calendar year 1911, compared with 201 million in 1910 and 102½ million in 1901, a decade earlier. Copper manufactures, including pigs, bars, etc., will approximate 100 million dollars in the year's exports, compared with 94 million in 1910 and 33½ million in 1901. Refined mineral oil will also exceed 100 million dollars in the calendar year 1911, as against 89 million last year and 67 million in 1901. Wood manufactures give indications of exceeding 90 million dollars in 1911, compared with 82 million in 1910 and 46 million in 1901.

The gains shown in the four great classes of manufactures already discussed are typical of those made in other important classes of less magnitude in the export trade. The indicated totals in the full year's export trade are, in the case of agricultural implements, nearly 40 million dollars, compared with 31 million last year; and 17 million a decade ago; cotton manufactures, 45 million dollars in 1911, against 35½ million in 1910 and 26 million in 1901; leather and its manufactures, 50 million dollars, compared with 53½ million last year and 29 million a decade ago; chemicals, etc., 23 million dollars in 1911, compared with 22 million in 1910 and 14 million in 1901; and cars and carriages, about 35 million dollars in 1911, against 25 million in 1910 and 11 million in 1901. A noteworthy feature in this last named class is the rapid development of the export trade in automobiles, which has risen from less than a half million dollars in the last half of the calendar year 1901, the earliest period for which the record was kept, to 13 million in 1910 and an indicated total of 15 million in the year ending December next.

A study of our exports as to countries of destination indicates a world-wide distribution of domestic manufactures, such industrial centers as the United Kingdom, Germany, and Belgium sharing with agricultural and comparatively undeveloped sections such as Canada, Argentina, Mexico and China in their increasing purchases of American manufactures. Under the head of iron and steel manufactures, for example, our typewriters are sold chiefly in Great Britain and Germany; our metal-working machinery, in Germany and the United Kingdom, with France and Canada as other important markets. Our sewing machines are exported principally to the United Kingdom, Germany, and Brazil; and our steel rails, mostly to Canada, though Japan, Argentina, Mexico and oriental countries are also important markets. Canada, the United Kingdom and Australia are the leading market for American automobiles exported. Our exports of agricultural implements to Europe (chiefly Russia, France and Germany) exceed the combined exports thereof to all other parts of the world, though as single markets Canada and Argentina rank next to Russia. American leather is exported largely to the United Kingdom, Germany and Netherlands; boots and shoes, chiefly to Cuba, Canada and the United Kingdom. American cigarettes are exported mostly to India and China; plug tobacco to Australia; and American illuminating oil in large quantities to China, the United Kingdom, Germany, Netherlands, Japan and India, and in not inconsiderable amounts to countries representing every grand division of the globe.

SOCIETY NOTES

The memory of Mrs. Guy Murchie (Agnes Donald) of Boston and Ipswich, has been perpetuated by the gift of a silver chalice to Christ Church, Hyde Park, by Rev. Wm. H. Dewart, who was a curate at Trinity church at the time of Rev. Dr. Winchester Donald's death. The chalice was made from the private communion service that was used by Dr. Donald for many years, and upon his death, it was given to Rev. Mr. Dewart. The chalice was first used in Christ Church on All Saints' day. It is very fitting that Mrs. Murchie should be memorialized by a gift that bears such sacred associations with her late father.

FEW contrasts between different types of naval construction are more striking than the one presented by the huge colliers of the navy and the little submarines. The Neptune, sister ship of the Cyclops, deserves the title of "Giant" as much as her more appropriately named counterpart. She is larger than many ocean liners, having a displacement of 19,000 tons, and can coal two ships at sea at the same time by means of her seven derricks on either side. She carries no guns and would be entirely defenseless if she should be attacked. On the other hand, the sole purpose of the submarine is to take the offensive, to steal unobserved under water until she is within striking distance of the enemy at whom she launches the torpedoes, which are her only armament. The largest submarine in the United States navy is of 500 tons displacement, the smallest of seventy-four tons.

Miss Colt was in rose pink satin and gold embroidery. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ayer, the latter in royal blue satin and gold lace and necklace of pearls; Miss Katherine Ayer, pale blue chiffon over pink satin and pink rosebuds at the corsage. Also in the Ayer box were Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Ayer and Mr. Alexander Wheeler. Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Nile green marquisette over satin of the same tone, fichu of white lace with pink roses on the sleeves and bodice. Miss Adele G. Thayer, black velvet and jet, necklace of pearls with diamond pendant. Miss Katherine Foote, white satin-striped gauze, necklace of pearls. Others in attendance at the premiere were Mrs. P. V. R. Ely, Mrs. Wm. A. Russell, Mrs. Philip Stockton, T. Dennie Boardman, Prescott Bigelow, Samuel Carr and John Babson Thomas and many others.

New York and Newport society was deprived of the brilliant wedding scheduled for next week when Lord Camoys of England and Miss Mildred Sherman were to have been married at the Sherman residence, Fifth avenue. Mrs. Lida Bacon of Cincinnati, who is spending the winter at her East Gloucester cottage, is rendering great service to the St. John's Episcopal church, Gloucester, by her active work in its behalf. Mrs. Bacon organized the orchestra of the church, which has made such a successful debut. It has been entirely under her direction and the rehearsals augur well for the future. It is fortunate for the church that they have such a thoroughly trained musician for such work. Mrs. Bacon plans also to form a quartet and glee club at the church. Mrs. Bacon is a widely traveled person, both at home and abroad and when she elects to spend a winter in Gloucester, is most generous with her purse, time and talents to further her adopted city's interests. Mrs. Bacon is actively interested also in the proposed settlement work in Gloucester at which head is Miss Eugenie Heller, another summer resident from New York, who is spending the winter there.

Various contractors are still busy at the Edward L. Wood and G. E. Warren estates on Cobb avenue and Blossom lane, Manchester, where extensive improvements are in order. At the Warren cottage, an upper front veranda has been built, also several rooms to the rear of the house. Garden plots are being laid out also. At the Wood estate workmen are actively engaged on work about the grounds of the cottage which has been greatly enlarged by the changes there. The addition built to the rear of the house is completed.

The engagement of President Frederick W. Hamilton of Tufts college and Mrs. Emma Tuttle James of Somerville, a former actress, widow of an actor and now a teacher of elocution, is of much interest to Annisquam summer colonists where President Hamilton spends his summers. The Hamilton cottage, "Green Gables," is at the "Riverview" section of Annisquam. President Hamilton is a widower, having lost his wife a year ago while at Annisquam. He became acquainted with Mrs. James in 1884, while serving as pastor of the First Unitarian church of Roxbury. President Hamilton married Miss Florence Q. Mead in 1884 and Miss Tuttle was later married to Harry James, a young English actor. Two years later James died, and in order that his daughter, Dorothy, might be given the benefit of home surroundings, his wife left the stage and devoted herself to the teaching of elocution and expression. Her daughter subsequently entered Jackson College where she is now a member of the class of 1915. The wedding will take place in the spring.

Miss Amelia Forbes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes (Rose Dabney) and a cousin of Miss Dorothy Forbes of Boston, is training at the Waltham Hospital as a nurse. The report is current that Miss Forbes is to abandon her life of ease and pleasure in Milton and Boston and join Dr. Wilfred Grenfell's hospital in Labrador. Her intention to leave behind all the comforts of a girl heiress to millions and aid this great philanthropy is exciting great interest among her friends in Boston society. Dr. Grenfell is an Englishman, 44 years of age, educated at Marlborough, Oxford and the London Hospital. He fitted out the first hospital ship for the North Sea fisheries. He has published many works on deep sea fisheries and fishermen. Miss Forbes heard him speak in Boston and became deeply interested in his work. Dr. John Mason Little, Jr., of Boston and his bride are also of the Grenfell hospital party at Labrador.

Childs Frick to Head Scientific Expedition to Abyssinia

Childs Frick, the only son of Henry C. Frick of Pittsburgh and Pride's Crossing, will soon set sail from London at the head of an expedition to Abyssinia for the purpose of making natural history collections for the Smithsonian Institution. Young Frick is widely known about Boston, especially along the North Shore, and is considered one of the finest polo players in the country.

When Col. Roosevelt made his extensive hunting trip through Africa Frick followed close on his trail with a caravan, and is said to have bagged fully as much game as did the Roosevelt party. Most of the animals which he shot or captured at that time he presented to the Carnegie Museum at Pittsburgh. On his present trip the young man will be accompanied by Lieut. Col. Edgar A. Mearns, U. S. A., retired, associate zoologist of the United States National Museum, Mr. Blick, a friend, and a physician.

Mr. Frick plans to make as complete a collection as possible of the animals of the Abyssinian section.

He and Mr. Blick will devote their time to the big game, both having qualified as field taxidermists after much study in related subjects. Dr. Mearns will prepare the birds for the National Museum. It will be remembered that he accompanied the Smithsonian expedition to Africa which was headed by Col. Roosevelt.

Many native soldiers and guides will be secured as soon as the party reaches the outskirts of Abyssinia, for it is one of the most dangerous parts of the African continent, the scarcity of food, lack of water, hostile tribes and rampant disease making the expedition a most hazardous undertaking.

Both Mr. Frick and Mr. Blick have had experience in exploration, although not in that particular locality. In British East Africa, where the party will also secure specimens, the experiences of Dr. Mearns with the Roosevelt expedition will stand them in good stead, as the country is contiguous to that covered by the famous "Bwana Tumbo" trip of 1909-10.

The region of Lake Rudolf, discovered as late as 1888 by Count Teleki, and one of the wildest and most dangerous sections of the Dark Continent, is to be covered by the expedition. It is inhabited by the Hamatic people, wholly uncivilized, yet intellectually superior to the average tribes of Africa. The Samali, Gallas and Boranna tribes will also be encountered. The principal exploration of this country was made in 1897 by an expedition headed by A. Donaldson Smith, who sent a collection of excellent specimens of the fauna of the country to the British museum, where it is now on exhibition.

The actual work of the expedition will be begun about December 1st, and will cover a period of about seven months. The party will sail from London to Aden, Arabia, on the Gulf of Aden. After securing guides and an outfit the party will cross the gulf and enter the wilderness.

Arranging for barter is one of the interesting preliminaries. Gold and silver have little value with the uncivilized tribes of Africa. An empty bottle has a value far above its weight in gold.

Mirrors, cheap jewelry, copper wire, mechanical toys, and cloth printed in lurid colors will be much in demand. Small sized bottles and flasks will be taken along in great quantities as they are used as ear ornaments by the savages whom they will encounter.

Irene Franklin at B. F. Keith's

Irene Franklin, known the country over as "The Queen of Vaudeville," will be the principal feature at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. As a singer of character songs Miss Franklin stands in a class all by herself. Since she first sprang into the limelight by singing "Redhead, Redhead, Gingerbreadhead," one night over in New York, she has steadily climbed upward until she now stands in the very front rank of vaudeville artistes. Miss Franklin writes all her own songs. This is no doubt one of the foundations upon which her success is based, for Miss Franklin seems to have the happy faculty of writing songs that are especially adapted to her talents, and no one else has ever been able to imitate her. Among the new numbers she will sing at B. F. Keith's is "I Wish My Pa Was a Janitor Man," the pathetic plea of the little rich girl who envies the ragged urchins next door; and such established favorites as "The Talkative Waitress"; "Expression"; "I Knew Her When."

The important rule has been made this year for the first time that from now on no debutante's name shall be added to the invitation list. They will have to wait for the honor until their second season. This decision naturally will cause some disappointment and probably diminish the undergraduate list at Harvard; otherwise the assemblies will be the same as in former years, except for the music, which will be supplied by Berger's Hungarian orchestra from New York and Newport, which made such a success at two of the debutante balls last year at the Somerset.

A FEW CHESTNUTS

Many near relatives are very distant.

We have lots of young ladies and lots of pert misses but the sweet, old-fashioned girls of ever so long ago have vanished along with the poke bonnet and cinnamon cookies.

Appearances are not always deceiving. Many teachers imagine that their appearance does not indicate their profession but the following story has a tendency to prove that they are mistaken. A little boy and his sister who had always attended school with their parents and were on their way to the public school building to enroll. The superintendent was also on his way to school and overtook the little ones. As was his custom whenever he saw school children he bade them good morning and after returning his greeting the little boy asked: "Are you going to school, too?" The superintendent answered "Yes. Why do you ask?" The little girl meanwhile whispered to her brother, "He is the professor." So the little lad said, "Oh, I know now, you are a teacher." The man acknowledged the truth of the accusation but asked: "Do I look like a teacher?" The boy said yes, so the man asked him, "How do teachers look?" The reply was, "Just like you look."

Mr. Jones went into a photographer's studio to see the proofs of some photographs which his son was having made. He seemed much pleased and picked out one which he said was an excellent likeness very much like the son.

He said to the photographer, "And has the young man paid for the pictures?" The answer came, "No, not yet."

The father said, "Very like him indeed."

Guest: "Landlord, you may bring me a sirloin steak. Let it be fresh and juicy, broiled half through, but not too rare, very tender, and be sure that you use real fresh butter."

Landlord: "Why, if I had such a fine thing as that I'd eat it myself."

They were Quakers, brother and sister, and had lived together many years, but Reuben was now a very sick man. His time had come, and he moaned and tossed on his pillow.

"Reuben," said his sister consolingly, "why dost thee fear death. Thee hast been a good brother, paid thy debts and given to the poor."

"True, true, Penelope, but," lowering his voice, "I have been a bit sly."

Two very nice little girls had a quarrel one day.

"Anyhow," said one to the other, who was an adopted child, "your parents are not real."

Whereupon the other little girl retorted, "I don't care, my pap and mamma nicked me out. Yours had to take you just as you came."

The Trusts, the People, and the Square Deal

AN EDITORIAL BY THEODORE ROOSEVELT IN "THE OUTLOOK" OF NOV. 18

The suit against the Steel Trust by the Government has brought vividly before our people the need of reducing to order our chaotic Government policy as regards business. As President, in Messages to Congress I repeatedly called the attention of that body and of the public to the inadequacy of the Anti-Trust Law by itself to meet business conditions and secure justice to the people, and to the further fact that it might, if left unsupplemented by additional legislation, work mischief, with no compensating advantage; and I urged as strongly as I knew how that the policy followed with relation to railways in connection with the Inter-State Commerce Law should be followed by the National Government as regards all great business concerns; and therefore that, as a first step, the powers of the Bureau of Corporations should be greatly enlarged, or else that there should be created a Governmental board or commission, with powers somewhat similar to those of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, but covering the whole field of inter-State business, exclusive of transportation (which should, by law, be kept wholly separate from ordinary industrial business, all common ownership of the industry and the railway being forbidden). In the end I have always believed that it would also be necessary to give the National Government complete power over the organization and capitalization of all business concerns engaged in inter-State commerce.

A member of my Cabinet with whom even more than with the various Attorneys-General, I went over every detail of this trust situation, was the one time Secretary of the Interior, Mr. James R. Garfield. He writes me as follows concerning the suit against the Steel Corporation:

Nothing appeared before the House Committee that made me believe we were deceived by Judge Gary.

This, I think, is a case that shows clearly the difference between destructive litigation and constructive legislation. I have not yet seen a full copy of the Government's petition, but our papers give nothing that indicates any kind of unfair or dishonest competition such as existed in both the Standard Oil and Tobacco Cases. As I understand it, the competitors of the Steel Company have steadily increased in strength during the last six or seven years. Furthermore, the percent of the business done by the Steel Corporation has decreased during that time. As you will remember, at our first conference with Judge Gary, the Judge stated that it was the desire and purpose of the Company to conform to what the Government wished, it being the purpose of the Company absolutely to obey the law both in spirit and letter. Throughout the time that I had charge of the investigation, and while we were in Washington, I do not know of a single instance where the Steel Company refused any information requested; but, on the contrary, aided in every possible way our investigation.

The position now taken by the Government is absolutely destructive of legitimate business, because they outline no rule of conduct for business of any magnitude. It is absurd to say that the courts can lay down such rules. The most the courts can do is to find as legal or illegal the particular transactions brought before them. Hence, after years of tedious litigation there would be no clear-cut rule for future action. This method of procedure is dealing with the device, not the result, and drives business to the elaboration of clever devices, each of which must be tested in the courts.

I have yet to find a better method of dealing with the anti-trust situation than that suggested by the bill which we agreed upon in the last days of your Administration. That bill should be used as a basis for legislation, and there could be incorporated upon it whatever may be determined wise regarding the direct control and supervision of the National Government, either through a commission similar to the Inter-State Commerce Commission or otherwise.

Before taking up the matter in its large aspect, I wish to say one word as to one feature of the Government suit against the Steel Corporation. One of the grounds for the suit is the acquisition by the Steel Corporation of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company; and it has been alleged, on the authority of the Government officials engaged in carrying on the suit, that as regards this transaction I was misled by the representatives of the Steel Corporation, and that the facts were not accurately or truthfully laid before me. This statement is not correct. I believed at the time that the facts in the case were as represented to me on behalf of the Steel Corporation, and my further knowledge has convinced me that this was true. I believed at the time that the representatives of the Steel Corporation told me the truth as to the change that would be worked in the percentage of the business which the proposed acquisition would give the Steel Corporation, and further inquiry has convinced me that they did so. I was not misled. The representatives of the Steel Corporation told me the truth as to what the effect of the action at that time would be, and any statement that I was misled or that the representatives of the Steel Corporation did not thus tell me the truth as to the facts of the case is itself not in accordance with the truth. In The Outlook of August 19 last I gave in full the statement I had made to the Investigating Committee of the House of Representatives on this matter. That statement is accurate, and I reaffirm everything I therein said, not only as to what occurred, but also as to my belief in the wisdom and propriety of my action—indeed, the action not merely was wise and proper, but it would have been a calamity from every standpoint had I failed to take it. On page 137 of the printed report of the testimony before the Committee will be found Judge Gary's account of the meeting between himself and Mr. Frick and Mr. Root and myself. This account states the facts accurately. It has been alleged that the purchase by the Steel Corporation of the property of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company gave the Steel Corporation practically a monopoly of the Southern iron ores—that is, of the iron ores south of the Potomac and the Ohio. My information, which I have every reason to believe is accurate and not successfully to be challenged, is that, of these Southern iron ores the Steel Corporation has, including the property gained from the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, less than 20 percent—perhaps not over 16 percent. This is a very much smaller percentage than the percentage it holds of the Lake Superior ores, which even after the surrender of the Hill lease will be slightly over 50 percent. According to my view, therefore, and unless—which I do not believe possible—these figures can be successfully challenged, the acquisition of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company's ores in no way changed the situation as regards making the Steel Corporation a monopoly. The showing as to the percentage of production of all kinds of steel ingots and steel castings in the United States by the Steel Corporation and by all other manufacturers respectively makes an even stronger case. It makes the case even stronger than I put it in my testimony before the Investigating Committee, for I was scrupulously careful to make statements that erred, if at all, against my own position. It appears from the figures of production that in 1901 the Steel Corporation had to its credit nearly 66 percent of the total production as against a little over 34 percent by all other steel manufacturers. The percentage then shrank steadily, until in 1906, the year before the acquisition of the Tennessee Coal and Iron properties, the percentage was a little under 58 percent. In spite of the acquisition of these properties, the following year, 1907, the total percentage shrank slightly, and this shrinking has continued until in 1910 the total percentage of the Steel Corporation is but a little over 54 percent, and the percentage by all other steel manufacturers but a fraction less than 46 percent. Of the 54 3-10 percent produced by the Steel Corporation 1 9-10 percent is produced by the former Tennessee Coal and Iron Company. In other words, these figures show that the acquisition of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company did not in the slightest degree change the situation, and that during the ten years which include the acquisition of these properties by the Steel Corporation the percentage of total output of steel manufacturers in this country by the Steel Corporation has shrunk from nearly 66 percent to but a trifle over 54 percent. I do not believe that these figures can be successfully controverted, and if not successfully controverted they show clearly not only that the acquisition of the Tennessee Coal and Iron properties wrought no change in the status of the Steel Corporation, but that the Steel Corporation during the decade has steadily lost, instead of gained, in monopolistic character.

So much for the facts in this particular case. Now for the general subject. When my Administration took office, I found, not only that there had been little real enforcement of the Anti-Trust Law and but little more effective enforcement of the Inter-State Commerce Law, but also that the decisions were so chaotic and the laws themselves so vaguely drawn, or at least interpreted in such widely varying fashions, that the biggest business men tended to treat both laws as dead letters. The series of actions by which we succeeded in making the Inter-State Commerce Law an efficient and most useful instrument in regulating the transportation of the country and exacting justice from the big railways without doing them injustice—while, indeed, on the contrary, securing them against injustice—need not here be related. The Anti-Trust Law it was also necessary to enforce as it had never hitherto been enforced, both because it was on the statute-books and because it was imperative to teach the masters of the biggest corporations in the land that they were not, and would not be permitted to regard themselves as, above the law. Moreover, where the combination has really been guilty of misconduct the law serves a useful purpose, and in such cases as those of the Standard Oil and Tobacco Trusts, if effectively enforced, the law confers a real and great good.

Suits were brought against the most powerful corporations in the land, which we were convinced had clearly and beyond question violated the Anti-Trust Law. These suits were brought with great care, and only where we felt so sure of our facts that we could be fairly certain that there was a likelihood of success. As a matter of fact, in most of the important suits we were successful. It was imperative that these suits be brought, and very real good was achieved by bringing them, for it was only these suits that made the great masters of corporate capital in America fully realize that they were the servants and not the masters of the people, that they were subject to the law, and that they would not be permitted to be a law unto themselves; and the corporations against which we proceeded had sinned, not merely by being big (which we did not regard as in itself a sin), but by being guilty of unfair practices towards their competitors, and by procuring unfair advantages from the railways. But the resulting situation has made it evident that the Anti-Trust Law is not adequate to meet the situation that has grown up because of modern business conditions and the accompanying tremendous increase in the business use of vast quantities of corporate wealth. As I have said, this was already evident to my mind when I was President, and in communications to Congress I repeatedly stated the facts. But when I made these communications there were still plenty of people who did not believe that we would succeed in the suits that had been instituted against the Standard Oil, the Tobacco, and other corporations, and it was impossible to get the public as a whole to realize what the situation was. Sincere zealots who believed that all combinations could be destroyed and the old-time conditions of unregulated competition restored, insincere politicians who knew better but made believe that they thought whatever their constituents wished them to think, crafty reactionaries who wished to see on the statute-books laws which they believed unenforceable, and the almost solid "Wall Street crowd" or representatives of "big business" who at that time opposed with equal violence both wise and necessary and unwise and improper regulation of business—all fought against the adoption of a sane, effective, and far-reaching policy.

It is a vitally necessary thing to have the persons in control of big trusts of the character of the Standard Oil Trust and Tobacco Trust taught that they are under the law, just as it was a necessary thing to have the Sugar Trust taught the same lesson in drastic fashion by Mr. Henry L. Stimson when he was United States District Attorney in the city of New York. But to attempt to meet the whole problem not by administrative governmental action but by a succession of lawsuits is hopeless from the standpoint of working out a permanently satisfactory solution. Moreover, the results sought to be achieved are achieved only in extremely insufficient and fragmentary measure by breaking up all big corporations, whether they have behaved well or ill, into a number of little corporations which it is perfectly certain will be largely, and perhaps altogether, under the same control. Such action is harsh and mischievous if the corporation is guilty of nothing except its size; and where, as in the case of the Standard Oil, and especially the Tobacco, trusts, the corporation has been guilty of immoral and anti-social practices, there is need for far more drastic and thoroughgoing action than any that has been taken, under the recent decree of the Supreme Court. In the case of the Tobacco Trust, for instance, the settlement in the Circuit Court, in which the representatives of the Government seem inclined to concur, practically leaves all of the companies still substantially under the control of the twenty-nine original defendants. Such a result is lamentable from the standpoint of justice. The decision of the Circuit Court, if allowed to stand, means that the Tobacco Trust has merely been obliged to change its clothes, that none of the real offenders have received any real punishment, while, as the New York "Times," a pro-trust paper, says, the tobacco concerns, in their new clothes, are in positions of "ease and luxury," and "immune from prosecution under the law."

Surely, miscarriage of justice is not too strong a term to apply to such a result when considered in connection with what the Supreme Court said of this Trust. That great Court in its decision used language which, in spite of its habitual and severe self-restraint in stigmatizing wrong-doing, yet unhesitatingly condemns the Tobacco Trust for moral turpitude, saying that the case shows an "everpresent manifestation . . . of conscious wrong-doing" by the Trust, whose history is "replete with the doing of acts which it was the obvious purpose of the statute to forbid, . . . demonstrative of the existence from the beginning of a purpose to acquire dominion and control of the tobacco trade, not by the mere exertion of the ordinary right to contract and to trade, but by methods devised in order to monopolize the trade by driving competitors out of business, which were ruthlessly carried out upon the assumption that to work upon the fears or play upon the cupidity of competitors would make success possible." The letters from and to various officials of the Trust, which were put in evidence, show a literally astounding and horrifying indulgence by the Trust in wicked and depraved business methods—such as the "endeavor to cause a strike in their (a rival business firm's) factory," or the "shutting off the market" of an independent tobacco firm by "taking the necessary steps to give them a warm reception," or forcing importers into a price agreement by causing and continuing "a demoralization of the business for such length of time as may be deemed desirable" (I quote from the letters). A Trust guilty of such conduct should be absolutely disbanded, and the only way to prevent the repetition of such conduct is by strict Government supervision, and not merely by lawsuits.

The Anti-Trust Law cannot meet the whole situation, nor can any modification of the principle of the Anti-Trust Law avail to meet the whole situation. The fact is that many of the men who have called themselves Progressives, and who certainly believe that they are Progressives, represent in reality in this matter not progress at all but a kind of sincere rural toriyism. These men believe that it is possible by strengthening the Anti-Trust Law to restore business to the competitive conditions of the middle of the last century. Any such effort is foredoomed to end in failure, and, if successful, would be mischievous to the last degree. Business cannot be successfully conducted in accordance with the practices and theories of sixty years ago unless we abolish steam, electricity, big cities, and, in short, not only all modern business and modern industrial conditions, but all the modern conditions of our civilization. The effort to restore competition as it was sixty years ago, and to trust for justice solely to this proposed restoration of competition, is just as foolish as if we should go back to the flintlocks of Washington's Continentals as a substitute for modern weapons of precision. The effort to prohibit all combinations, good or bad, is bound to fail, and ought to fail; when made, it merely means that some of the worst combinations are not checked and that honest business is checked. Our purpose should be, not to strangle business as an incident of strangling combinations, but to regulate big corporations in thoroughgoing and effective fashion, so as to help legitimate business as an incident to thoroughly and completely safeguarding the interests of the people as a whole. Against all such increase of Governmental regulation the argument is raised that it would amount to a form of Socialism. This argument is familiar; it is precisely the same as that which was raised against the creation of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, and of all the different utilities commissions in the different States, as I myself saw, thirty years ago, when I was a legislator at Albany, and these questions came up in connection with our State Government. Nor can action be effectively taken by any one State. Congress alone has power under the Constitution effectively and thoroughly and at all points to deal with inter-State commerce, and where Congress, as it should do, provides laws that will give the Nation full jurisdiction over the whole field, then that jurisdiction becomes, of necessity, exclusive—although until Congress does act affirmatively and thoroughly it is idle to expect that the States will or ought to rest content with non-action on the part of both Federal and State authorities. This statement, by the way, applies also to the question of "usurpation" by one branch of our Government of the rights of another branch. It is contended that in these recent decisions the Supreme Court legislated; so it did; and it had to; because Congress had signally failed to do its duty by legislating. For the Supreme Court to nullify an act of the Legislature as unconstitutional except on the clearest grounds is usurpation; to interpret such an act in an obviously wrong sense is usurpation; but where the legislative body persistently leaves open a field which it is absolutely imperative, from the public standpoint, to fill, then no possible blame attaches to the official or officials who step in because they have to, and who then do the needed work in the interest of the people. The blame in such cases lies with the body which has been derelict, and not with the body which reluctantly makes good the dereliction.

A quarter of a century ago, Senator Cushman K. Davis, a statesman who amply deserved the title of statesman, a man of the highest courage, of the sternest adherence to the principles laid down by an exacting sense of duty, an unflinching believer in democracy, who was as little to be cowed by a mob as by a plutocrat, and moreover; a man who possessed the priceless gift of imagination, a gift as important to a statesman as to a historian, in an address delivered at the annual commencement of the University of Michigan on July 1, 1886, spoke as follows of corporations:

There is talk of lynching the man who evolved this toast: "Our fire-engines, may they be like old maids—ever ready, but never wanted."

A young woman new to mission work on the east side, New York, was lately moved to comment upon the monotonous and cheerless existence of the inhabitants of the tenements.

"I suppose there is little brightness and recreation in your lives," said she to an eleven-year old girl.

"Oh, I don't know about that," answered the girl. "It ain't so dull as you might think. Dere's always something doin' to keep us from gettin' blue. It's lively sometimes, all right. Fer instance, las' night the people on our floor was a-cuttin' up high. Dere was a gentleman next to us what had de tremens, an' de lady right across the hall from us was jagged so she nearly bit her sister's ear off."

Little Willie was missed by his mother one day for some time, and when he reappeared she asked:

"Where have you been, my pet?"
"Playing postman," replied her "pet." "I gave a letter to all the houses in our road. Real letters, too."

"Where on earth did you get them?" questioned the mother in amazement.

"They were those old ones in your wardrobe drawer, tied up with ribbon," was the innocent reply.

The Honors and Obligations of Public Life

Plutarch writes in his famous life of Themistocles, the famous Athenian general, while still a young man determined upon entering a career of public service, his father sought to dissuade him by showing him some old galleys that lay worn out and neglected upon the seashore "just as the populace neglect their leaders when they have no further service for them." In a measure this may be true but the true leader of the people should be interested in the cause which the office serves, not the office as an end. Irresistibly and certainly small men and methods are left high and dry on the strands of time. In America the obligations of citizenship are great and the opportunities for service manifold. Le grand monarque could call himself the state but not in a republic where the citizen bears the duties and responsibilities of citizenship.

We are born into a body politic and our obligations are many. Trained by the common school it is incumbent upon us to fulfil with loyalty and earnestness the place in life which we have chosen. The more faithful our obligations are discharged the greater our reward. America has every reason, however, to be proud of the loyalty of her citizenship although all are cognizant of the dangers of the mob rule, socialism, rum, extravagance and lust.

We have cause to be thankful that in this period of renovation and reconstruction that the party which has saved the Union has had given to it a forward movement that will be productive of great good. Today the unscrupulous politician walks across the chasm between public and private life on a rotten log. The day of evil triumphs are gone. The man of clean motives and high ideals is forcing his way irresistibly to the front. The competition is intense but the dice of government are eternally loaded for the right. The public are frequently deceived and led astray but inevitably they slowly and surely it comes into its own, and realizes that the government is their very own. Citizenship and Public Office are trusts, and as such must be exercised with the highest motives. America always will honor the right. It is a matter of national pride that, Justice Brewer of the United States Supreme Court could write, "I have been thirty-six years on the bench and no one directly or indirectly, by word of mouth or letter, or in any other way, ever proposed, suggested or intimated that any decision I might be called on to make would be for my benefit, pecuniarily, politically, socially or otherwise."

The Railroad Problem, Again

The people of Magnolia are justified in their endeavor to improve their transportation facilities. Like every such problem there are many issues to be considered. Magnolia is somewhat removed from the railroad station and is consequently denied even the advantages which are enjoyed by Manchester and Beverly Farms. It is at once apparent that the year round and the summer population are not receiving the accommodations which should be their natural rights.

The agitation for electric service is not a new one. The same cry has gone up from the whole North Shore. There is a unanimity of feeling among the permanent and summer population that electric service through the main thoroughfares is unnecessary and undesirable for many reasons. The road through the woods has been a favorite scheme in the minds of those interested in the transportation problem and those who desire the advantages of electric service without the disadvantages.

Magnolia's problem is not local. It is a symptom of a need along the shore from Gloucester to Beverly. The new Boston and Eastern railroad opens up the great advantages of the city of Beverly with an excellent service. There are tentative plans for the Gloucester branch in the mind of the Board of Control of the Boston and Maine Railroad. The Gloucester and Beverly line could be electrified and help solve the Magnolia problem in two directions as well as in the one direction — Gloucester way. This spirit of agitation will continue until the situation is changed.

There is a similar slumbering discontent with the altogether necessary limitations of railway service. The Boston & Maine has the highway and opportunity and the future solutions of the question of transportation on the North Shore must be looked for over their road-bed. How long shall the wait be?

Law Making

In another week Congress will be in action and on the coming Monday the President will present his annual message. In another month a new state legislature will be in session and the process of law-making will be in full swing again in state and nation. The President's Message is being awaited with anxiety by the business men of the country and students of national affairs. Will he take the aggressive side and present matters for legislation or will he put himself on the defensive and leave the wool and cotton and other tariff issues alone, placing the opportunity and responsibility upon the houses of congress. It has been hinted that the President will take the latter course. But those who have seen the President's strong hand launch a recalcitrant congress into an extra session know that Taft will not play the part of the conservative.

President Taft is fearless and has the courage of his convictions and the brave hand that would veto the schedules of the extra session will not neglect so great an opportunity. He knows all are interested in the tariff and corporation laws and are awaiting word from the White House. If the President should neglect these two topics, the one of corporation control and the other of tariff reform, it will be with the express intent of presenting these issues more forcibly in special messages.

The President will not play politics with the issue and he has shown consistently throughout his career as President that he has been strong enough to override any personal political reasons for the stands which he has taken. He has a hard session before him with malcontents within the party and antagonists without. It is matter for thought to all that the opposing party is against the president. This is a favorite political connivance that is resorted to generation after generation. We have long ceased to be hero worshippers, but it is more than evident that the President does not please the opposing party in the Congress. There is a reason.

The state legislature will open with Senator Levi H. Greenwood of Gardner as president and Grafton D. Cushing as the speaker of the house. Governor Foss will have in his council former representative Luce as the republican lieutenant governor. There will doubtless be the usual amount of law-making in the state. There is a growing conviction, however, that the state is making altogether too many laws. The provisions for biennial elections and biennial sessions would not be an unmixed blessing, but it certainly would present many advantages.

The Social Basis of Wages

This is the subject of an article in the editorial columns of the Boston Common and it tells in a paragraph or two the sentiment, inclinations and social interests of the paper.

There were dramatic elements in the colloquy which took place at the hearing of the Commission on Minimum Wage Boards, between Mr. Strickland, of the Shepard, Norwell Co., and the chairman of the Commission. Mr. Strickland, with the unconscious conservatism of the average employer, suavely, and with some humor, explained to the Commission that $6 a week was all that sales ladies were worth to the department stores, and that it was an unthinkable proposition to ask them to pay more. He gently reminded the Commission that he and his associates had spent years and years upon the complicated task of adjusting wages, and that there was a slight element of presumption in the attempt of the Board, excellent as were its motives, to settle the matter thus off hand after a few hearings.

He made it very plain that to a man of sound business principles such a proposition was, to say the least, chimerical.

"Thereupon the Chairman of the Commission, leaning slightly forward upon the table, and smiling pleasantly, asked Mr. Strickland a few questions. 'Is it not true,' he asked in substance, 'that every business which wants to be considered legitimate should charge enough for what it sells to afford a living wage to every worker engaged in it?' Mr. Strickland perforce agreed that if it did not do so it was a parasitic industry. 'And if,' continued the Chairman, 'an employee can live on his wages only by receiving support from home, is not that industry, so to speak, parasitic upon the home of its workers?'" Again Mr. Strickland assented, although plainly the argument was new to him. 'What,' continued the questioner, shifting his tactics, 'would happen to the department stores if the State were to forbid the employment of any worker at less than $9 a week?' 'We would shift the increased cost upon Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Jones, who buy the goods,' was the quick reply. 'Well, then,' said Mr. LeFavour slowly, 'since our investigations seem to show that neither $6 nor $7 is enough to support a woman independently, is it not right, in justice to the homes, that the industry be forced by the State to bear the cost of adequate living wages?' This last question, however, Mr. Strickland refused to answer without consulting his business superior at the store."

Just think this over and consider who pays for the few cents off you obtain in a "bargain" purchase. Is there not a subtle force at work making social slaves of your "sisters and brothers." To whom is given the moral right to gain at another's loss. Is there no place in business from the purchaser's side of the counter for brotherly love, fine grained honesty, and true social justice?

A Generous Public Service

Some one or more than one has done Beverly Farms a good turn. The work has been done so quietly and unostentatiously that the value of the gift has been enhanced by the reticence of the giver or givers. It is said that in good season all shall know of the movement which has ended in the public benefaction which has been made so evident to the beholder in the open hollow, unwholesome, unhealthy and uninviting spot that was, which has been gradually transformed into a desirable and much needed playground.

It is evident that the movers of this project have preferred not to let the left hand know what the right hand was doing. In a sense the public is interested to know more about the benefaction but it can nevertheless enjoy the benefits which have come by the improvement to the Ward.

Beverly Farms has long needed a suitable playground and that the plans for one are to mature at last is a cause for rejoicing, not alone to the lad and lass who can enjoy its benefits, but to the mothers and fathers of the lads and lasses who will have a place of their own for youthful sports and outdoor recreations. The public recognizes and appreciates the public service of Mr. John L. Saltonstall, and all who may have helped him in consummating the playground plans.

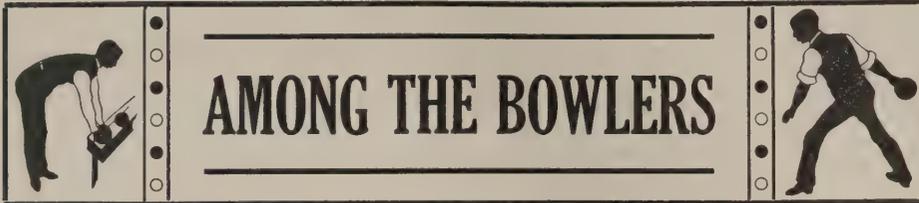

A Progressive Sheet

The Boston Common is a Boston Weekly which ought to be more widely known and read than it is. It has in its make up the possibility of a great weekly journal and is already covering with a degree of accuracy, discrimination a field needing such a journal and with a sense of public service which is refreshing in these days of greed, prejudice and sectarianism. It calls itself a Journal of Cheerful Construction, meaning doubtless that they intend to take up an optimistic constructional program in sharp contrast with the destructive influences of the Muck Raking journalists. Its foreword is a unique announcement and serves also as a challenge to the management of every publication. A number of citizens have subscribed the capital for publishing the Boston Common on a basis of one vote each in the affairs of the company regardless of the amount of stock held . . . the primary purpose of which is public service, etc. This is noble clarion and may The Common live up to its ethical note so nobly sounded. It is a matter of satisfaction to learn that some of our North Shore Folk are interested in this commendable enterprise.

Blessed be work! It gives us the chance of making strong, capable men and women of ourselves.

Let your Christmas presents be something useful. Thousands of dollars are worse than wasted on useless things every year.

Shots Fired During Exciting Time in Manchester

The usual Sunday calm of Manchester was disturbed last Sunday by a fracas that savored of a Wild West "shooting up."

The disturbance originated in an Italian camp where about 100 men employed in laying telephone conduits are living in the outskirts of the town.

Two men, according to the police, were washing clothes in a brook when one named Michael Bergometno, about 22 years old, known locally as "Jumbo," fell upon his companion named Natale Decarolis, about 18, and gave him a beating and threatened to shoot him. The young man, afraid for his life, ran to the railroad station hatless and coatless to take the train for Boston.

He was persuaded to send back for his clothes, two of his friends going for them. They started to come away with these, when "Jumbo" ordered them to stop and marched them back to camp at the point of his revolver.

They told him they would return with the chief of police. At this "Jumbo" threatened to shoot them and the chief also if they returned. He went into the camp and shot it full of holes. Chief of Police Gorman arrived shortly after and "Jumbo" getting sight of him, made a dash into the woods with the chief in hot pursuit. Fearing to lose him the chief threatened to shoot if he did not stop and fired over his head, which had no effect, four more shots were fired and the sixth came so dangerously near his head that he threw up his hands and surrendered.

The chief marched his prisoner back to town, and a gang of at least seventy-five Italians followed part way, causing much excitement. Bergometno was before the District Court at Salem Monday morning to answer to the charge of assault and carrying concealed weapons. He was fined $50 or six months in jail. He was sent to jail, but friends paid his fine Tuesday and he was set free.

Mrs. Anna P. Story

Anna P. Story, wife of Larkin W. Story, died at her home on Atlantic avenue, Beverly, Tuesday morning at the age of 67 years. She was born in Manchester, but had made her residence in Beverly for many years. A woman of estimable character, she leaves a large circle of friends. She was a member of the Dane Street Congregational church. A husband and son mourn her loss.

"What earthly objection can you have to that man," asked Mr. Brown of his daughter concerning the man of wealth whom he wished her to marry.

"He has habits which I detest," was the reply. "When I marry I want a husband who does not smoke, chew, swear, belong to a club or stay out late at night."

After regarding his daughter sorrowfully for a few minutes in silence he said, "My child you are but a stranger here, heaven is your home."

The success of an amateur gardener often depends upon the number and the appetites of his neighbor's chickens.

"Little boy, is that your mamma over there with the beautiful set of furs?"

"Yes sir."

"Well, do you know what poor animal it is that had to suffer in order that your mamma might have the furs with which she adorns herself so proudly?"

"Yes sir, my papa."

In one of the New York public schools the teacher was explaining the word "recuperate" to the class.

"Nellie," she asked, "suppose your papa worked very hard all day, he would be tired and worn out, wouldn't he?"

"Yes, miss."

"Then, when night comes and his work is over for the day, what does he do?"

"Ah," replied Nellie, "that's what mother wants to know."

Mr. and Mrs. George Elwell were home over Sunday, at Mrs. Elwell's mother's on Northern avenue.

Mrs. Amanda G. Marston of Gloucester, mother of Mrs. Elmer Andrews of this town, died suddenly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Norman Saville. She had an ill turn Saturday night. Everything was done that could be, but to no avail. She passed away in a short time. Mrs. Marston was 85 years of age and one of the best known and most highly respected women of Gloucester. She leaves hosts of friends and many relatives to mourn her loss.

Rockport public schools having closed their doors on account of scarlet fever, Miss Martha Weston of this town, a teacher, is at home on an enforced vacation.

Mrs. Frank A. Goodhue and two daughters were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Story, at Melrose, over Thanksgiving, Mr. Goodhue arriving Wednesday night for the holiday.

At the Congregational church last Sunday, Rev. Mr. Goddard preached from the text: "and forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors," a very interesting and instructive sermon. In the evening Bayard E. Harrison of Malden preached on "Opportunity of the church with the trades unionists." Mr. Harrison is the secretary of the general conference of Congregational churches of Massachusetts. A pleasing feature of the morning service was the singing of a solo by Joseph S. Kadish the principal of the Essex High school.

Miss Evelyn Crafts is at Daniel Low & Co.'s for the holiday trade.

B. Frank Raymond attended an uncle's funeral at Malden on Sunday.

George A. Burnham, son of Erastus A. Burnham the well known printer, died Sunday night. A year or so ago an operation was performed which was very successful at the time. George has been sick from a relapse of the same trouble, which finally resulted fatally.

The Bay State Street railroad has a large gang of workmen at work repairing their track and roadbed.

Miss Lelia Raymond was a guest of Miss Mary Burnham at Reading over Sunday.

The primary and grammar schools have had the entire Thanksgiving week as a vacation. The High school had but Thursday and Friday.

"Ben-Hur" at the Boston Theatre

The record made by Klaw & Erlanger's new and greater production of "Ben-Hur" at the Boston Theatre bids fair to eclipse that of any similar production that has ever appeared at that historic playhouse. The theatre-going public have been quick to realize that a production is being presented that has set a new mark for American producers and that it will be long before another opportunity of witnessing anything of a like magnitude will be offered. The production is to be taken intact to the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, London, England, where it is scheduled to open on April 6, 1912.

Those who had the opportunity of seeing the play on its former presentations in Boston are unanimous in their verdict that the last word as far as scenic effects, perfect staging and gorgeous investiture has been said. The cast is pronounced the best that has been seen in this country and from the length of time that it has now been running at the Boston Theatre the play is pronounced absolutely perfect as regards stage management and technique. The story of the play is so well known that it requires no explanation and particular pains have been taken to handle the scenes of a reverential nature with care and due regard to the feelings of those who witness it from the front. The novel of Gen. Lew Wallace is one of the few which have met with the approval of readers of all sects and religions.

Richard Buhler as Ben-Hur renders the part in a manly manner, and W. J. Kelly, as Messala is a sufficiently bold and aggressive young Roman patrician.

Rev. D. O. Mears, D. D., and family will soon take up their residence in Boston for the winter months.

Eliot Mears of Harvard college, was in town Tuesday.

The shipyards present a very busy appearance. In the yards are three large schooners. One framed and planked and ready for deck; one all done but finishing, and the third ready to launch. The last is the Flora L. Oliver, a fine hull of 114 tons. She is owned by Capt. Victor Oliver and others. Capt. Oliver will command her and use her in the market fishery.

Tarr & James have two boats on the stocks. The 130-ton fishing schooner for Capt. Sylvester Whalen, is well under way. The Pilot boat for the Association of Pilots of Mobile, Alabama, is all but completed and will launch next week. This vessel is 105 feet long, 12 feet deep, and 24 feet wide. It is constructed of oak timber and fastened with galvanized fastenings throughout.

At about 5.30 o'clock Wednesday morning the Town hall bell rang out for fire. William Lundberg of Story street, had come all the way from there to give the alarm. It seems that William Rowe had arisen in the morning and kindled the fire and then had left the house for a few minutes. When he returned, he found that a kerosene lamp had exploded and the kitchen was all afire. Neighbors were called and strenuous efforts were made to extinguish the fire, but it had gained headway so rapidly that the family was obliged to flee for their lives. The firemen, somewhat delayed by the distance and the telephones in the neighborhood being out of order, came too late to save the house, which in a short time was totally destroyed.

Charles Cherry in "The Seven Sisters"

The Hollis Street Theatre will have for its attraction next week, the merry, rollicking farce, "The Seven Sisters," with Charles Cherry and the New York Lyceum Theatre Company, under the direction of Daniel Frohman. Mr. Cherry is well known in Boston through his numerous pleasant visits with Maxine Elliott's company. In this merry comedy he plays the part of a dashing young lieutenant, the type of manly role with which he has been so popularly identified for many seasons.

The play is from the Hungarian of Ferencz Herczeg, and was adapted by Miss Edith Ellis. It had a sensational success in Europe, the length of its run covering a number of years. It is a jolly, domestic farce, full of amusing situations and humorous complications developed in a story that has the warmth, joyousness and liveliness of youth. It deals with the troubles of the widow of a Hungarian officer in moderate circumstances in regard to suitable marriages for her seven daughters. It is the custom of the Hungarian gentry to always keep the youngest daughters in the background until the eldest is disposed of in matrimony. In this case, the mother is at her wit's end to keep the younger ones at a suitably youthful age until the oldest is married, and she is reduced to putting them in short skirts and pinafores to accord with the age which she gives to each.

PRESERVATION OF CRESENT BEACH

Removal of Sand Claimed to Have Caused Washing Away of Bluff

To the Editor of the Breeze.—The beautiful Crescent Beach, the chief attraction of Magnolia has been showing of late the effect of the removal of sand and pebbles used in steadily increasing quantities for the making of concrete and for filling in of marsh land and hollows as required for building new houses and improving the handsome estates in the town.

Two years ago the great storm undermined and washed away the bulkhead built by E. Haring Dickinson to protect the beach bluff and carried away 15 or 20 feet of the bluff itself.

Inroads were also made on the bluff all the way across the beach as far as Coolidge Point.

The fine sand on the beach, although replenished by the cutting away of sand from the bluff, began this season to show signs of lowering at the top of the beach and of thinning in other places.

Prompt action was necessary and the owners have taken the first step by posting notices that nothing shall be taken from the beach.

While this will discommode some persons, it is absolutely necessary for the preservation of the beach.

Hereafter gravel and crushed stone must be used for concrete and filling instead of sand pebbles taken from the beach, although it will cost more.

First Class Groceries and Kitchen Furnishings

P. S. LYCETT,
Magnolia Avenue, Magnolia

Telephone 63-2

To protect the remaining bluff, which is only five or six feet wide in one place, and gradually accumulate sand to replace that removed, T. Jefferson Coolidge is building a low concrete wall the whole length of his property, and it is likely that if this proves to do its work successfully, the other owners, W. H. Coolidge and E. Haring Dickinson, will try some similar method of protecting their property.

It is to be hoped that stopping the further removal of sand from the beach may be sufficient to prevent further encroachment by the sea, but so much sand has been removed and the beach is so low that this is doubtful.

By prohibiting shooting and trapping on the beach and on lands about Magnolia, it is hoped that more wild birds and animals will frequent our neighborhood and add another attraction to the shore.

All citizens should join in helping to enforce these regulations which should be beneficial.

Up to two or three years ago, the skating on the pond behind the beach was for some years ruined by some one who cut holes in the ice and left mud and broken ice all about the pond in his endeavor to spear eels. He was asked to be careful and paid no attention. He was then ordered off and returned by night and continued to do his damage.

The pond was then posted and protected and the children and grown up people have had good skating since.

This is mentioned because our people often misunderstand the purpose of regulations and complain of them when they are in the interest of the public.

The eel spearer complained of losing his fishing and did not realize it was his own selfish disregard of the rights of the many others which cost him his eels.

This article is written that our citizens may realize that the present and future regulations on the beach are intended not merely to protect the property for the owners, but to preserve in the best possible manner the great attraction which draws so many to Magnolia and thus brings business and prosperity to the people.

MAGNOLIA.

The lesson was from the "Prodigal Son," and the Sunday school teacher was dwelling on the character of the elder brother. "But amidst all the rejoicing," he said, "there was one to whom the prodigal's return gave no pleasure but only bitterness; one who did not approve of the feast being held and had no wish to attend it; now can any one of you tell who this was?" There was a short silence, followed by the vigorous snapping of fingers and then from a dozen little mouths came the chorus: "Please sir, it was the fatted calf."

Little Girl—"Say mamma, ain't I made of dust?"

Mother—"Yes, dear."

Little Girl—"Well, why don't I get muddy when I drink?"

"Don't chide me for carrying a revolver. This little gun saved my life once."

"How exciting! Tell me about it."

"I was starving and I pawned it."

A little city chap was offered a chance to spend a week in the country but refused. Coaxing, pleading, arguing, promises of untold wonders alike brought from him nothing but the stubborn ultimatum: "No country for mine!"

"Because," he responded, "they have thrashin' machines out there, an' it's bad enough here, where it's done by hand."

"Jimmy, your face is dirty again this morning," exclaimed the teacher.

"What would you say if I came to school each day with a dirty face?"

"I would be too polite to say anything about it."

Farmer: "See here, boy, what yer doin' up there?"

Boy: "One of your pears fell off the tree and I'm trying to put it back."

In the soft twilight of a summer afternoon mother came upon young Hopeful standing in a brown study by the green house door. His hands were clasped before him and his lips were dejectedly parted.

"Why, what's the matter, lamb?" mother asked, bending over him.

"I'm finking, buvver."

"What about, little man?"

"Have gooseberries any legs, muvver?"

"Why no, of course not, dearie."

A deeper shade fell athwart dearie's face as he raised his glance to her.

"Then muvver, I've swallowed a caterpillar!"

Don't go security for the man who lets his gate swing on one hinge.

While visiting the south recently, a traveler chanced upon a resident of a sleepy hamlet in Alabama.

"Are you a native of this town?" asked the traveler.

"Am I what?" languidly asked the one addressed.

"Are you a native of this town?"

"What's that?"

At this juncture there appeared at the open door of the cabin the man's wife, tall, sallow and gaunt. After a careful survey of the questioner, she said, "Ain't you got no sense Bill? He means was you livin' heah when yo' was born, or was yo' born before yo' begun livin' heah. Now answer him."

The new shed for the exercise wagon, etc., of the Farms fire department is practically complete. The new building has the appearance of being crowded into a space which might well be unoccupied, and is a further argument why the city should purchase land in the rear of the engine house for future expansion.

Thos. D. Connolly, 2d, who is attending school at Exeter, N. H., came home Wednesday for the holiday and week-end. On that evening a party of young friends called upon him and spent a social evening. In remembrance of his birthday his parents presented him with a gold watch.

The latter part of last week, Mark A. Knowles took out nomination papers for candidate for alderman in Ward 6, making an opposition to the re-election of Alderman Augustus P. Loring, Jr. This will no doubt create much more interest in Ward 6 and bring out the voters in larger numbers. Mr. Knowles is popular in Ward 6 and his friends anticipate for him a good vote. Owing to the fact that there will be no election of mayor this year, the vote in this ward will probably be smaller than usual, as will be the case in all parts of the city.

Opera House, and the settings provided by Director Russell for this opera will be fully in keeping with the artistic standards set for the season in the production of "Samson et Dalila."

Another newcomer will also make his debut that night in Boston. He is Jean Riddez, for ten years the leading baritone of the Paris Grand Opera, whose Athanael promises to differ from all the other portrayals of that part ever sung in America. Andre-Caplet will conduct.

Nor is the rest of the week void of great interest. On Monday night Emmy Destinn will sing one of the best roles in her repertoire, i. e., Madama Butterfly.

On Friday evening the leading soprano of the Montreal Opera Co., Mme. Ester Ferrabini will make her debut in the role of Mimi in La Boheme. Constantino will be the Rodolfo. Goodrich will conduct.

Saturday matinee will see a repetition of "Samson et Dalila" with the same cast as at the opening performance.

On Thursday evening the first extra performance of the season will occur and it will serve to reintroduce to the American public Mme. Emma Eames as a grand opera singer. Mme. Eames will sing the title role in "Tosca" with Scotti as Scarpia and Gaudenzi as the Cavaradossi.

"She Stink a Leetle Yet."

The wife of a wealthy German farmer was growing paler, thinner and more careworn every day. Since she had always been strong and robust it worried her husband very much so he employed one of the best physicians in the community to do what he could to strengthen her. The cause of the trouble was the decaying of her teeth which gave a very foul odor to her breath as well as undermined her constitution. The physician fearing that he would lose the large fees which he was regularly receiving from his patient did not suggest that the teeth should be drawn. He continued to give the poor woman medicine which did little or no good. A friend of the German advised him to consult a dentist who said that he could cure the woman if he were permitted to extract the decayed teeth and furnish a set of false ones. The farmer objected saying, "It will do no good, Doc. She die anyway," but finally consented to try the experiment although he had misgivings about spending money on one whom he considered to be nearly ready for the coffin. After the teeth were drawn the patient gradually got better. When she and her husband returned to the office after the gums had healed and the false teeth were fitted in her mouth the German danced around like a boy who had gotten his first new red-top boots. He was very happy because wife looked younger and handsomer than she had looked for many ears. He stated that she looked ten years younger. Disregarding the presence of two society ladies of the town he gradually approached her and sniffing said, "But doc, she stink a leetle yet."

John was divorced from his first wife. William, his friend was an infidel. They were walking together near St. Martin's church. "Ha!" said John, "I was married in that church."

"Indeed!" said William, "and I was christened in it."

"It is not a good shop," reflected John, "their work don't last."

"Just see," said Farmer Hayseed, as he read the rules and regulations tacked on the door of his room at the Hotel de Luxury, "how these hotel people try to bleed a fellow." What is it pa?" asked his wife. "Why one of these rules says, 'Don't blow out the gas,'" and another says, 'Gas burned all night will be charged extra.' Now what's a fellow to do?"

The definitions given by children are at times very amusing.

A little boy came to his mother with a complaint the other day and said: "Maw, Willie is a mugwump and I ain't going to sleep with him no more."

"Why, Johnny," said his mother, "what do you mean? A mugwump? What is that?"

"Why don't you know? But then you women can't vote so you oughtn't to be expected to know nothin' 'bout pol'tics. Pa knows an' he says a mugwump is a chap what won't take either side, an' that's Willie all over. He sleeps in the middle an' where do I come in?"

To keep a cigar lighted one must not talk too much. This is one reason why women do not smoke.

If there is ever a time when silence is golden, it is when a man is mad.

H. C. Frick to Build Great Art Gallery at Pride's Crossing

The rumor current this fall at Pride's that a large addition is to be made to the Frick mansion seems to have been verified on the departure of the family last Sunday after a long season at "Eagle Rock."

The addition will be an art gallery two stories high, of gray stone and facing brick to match "Eagle Rock" mansion. It is to be built on the west wing. The size of the structure has not yet been determined by Mr. Frick, who is now in New York city. It is understood that the interior scheme will be similar to that of the first floor of the house, the flooring of which is mosaic marble set in elaborate designs. The staircases, architraves, rails and steps will probably be of imported marble with grill work of gold.

Plans for the gallery are now being drawn by New York architects. No contracts have been figured or awarded yet so it is improbable that the addition will be completed by next season. There are also reports that the addition calls for a ball room.

Mr. Frick has always been a lover of art, and already has an art collection valued up into the millions. A year ago 50 of the great Frick collection, the estimated value of which is between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, were loaned to the Boston Art Museum. One of these was the $300,000 Rembrandt, bought a year ago last May, "The Polish Rider."

Mr. Frick is said to have told one of the wealthy North Shore summer colonists that he intended to "outdo anything in New England in the way of an art gallery" and Mr. Frick is generally to be taken at his word. When completed, the gallery will undoubtedly be the mecca for many of the world's best known artists, and the pride of the hundreds of millionaire summer visitors, including President Taft, who summers less than a mile away.

Among the most famous oil paintings which will probably be installed in the new art gallery are the following: Rembrandt's Portrait of Himself, the Polish Rider, A Young Painter, Franz Hals' Portrait of an Artist, Portrait of an Old Lady, A Burgomaster, M. Hobbema's View of a Woody Country, Jacob Van Ruysdael's Waterfall, View in Amsterdam, Velasquez's Queen Marianna of Spain, Titian's Pietro Aretino, Sir J. Reynolds' Lady Skipwith, Lady Elizabeth Taylor, Sir George Howland Beaumont, Lady Beaumont.

The Frick gallery when completed promises to outrival that of Mrs. John L. Gardner at her Fenway Palace, Boston. Mrs. Gardner opens her palace at stated periods to the public and charges a fee. Mr. Frick may eventually do the same at Pride's in behalf of his numerous philanthropies.

Last Week of "Ben-Hur" at the Boston Theatre

Closing one of the most successful runs it has ever had "Ben-Hur" which has been at the Boston Theatre the past six weeks will be seen for the last time on Saturday night, December 16th. All the seats for the remaining week went on sale on Monday and there has been a strong demand for them. The big production, which is the largest ever put out by Klaw & Erlanger goes from the Boston Theatre to the New Amsterdam in New York. Some idea of the magnitude of the production can be gained when it is stated that it will be necessary to close the New Amsterdam Theatre for two weeks in order to properly house the play. Edwin Robins appeared for the first time as Messala on Monday night and Miss Adelaide Nowak appeared as Iras, the Egyptian adventuress. The remainder of the cast is intact.

Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday. Mail orders will be given prompt attention when accompanied by cheque or money order and stamped, addressed envelope.

"Seven Sisters" at the Hollis

"The Seven Sisters," with Chas. Cherry and Daniel Frohman's New York Lyceum Theatre Company, has made the biggest kind of a hit at the Hollis Street Theatre where it has been drawing capacity houses. It is a jolly comedy, full of bubbling fun, which is happily blended with the ardent romance of youth. It is a most seasonable offering its sparkling brightness and joyousness being in delightful keeping with the holiday season. The story itself, which concerns the marrying off of the seven daughters of the widow of a Hungarian officer in accordance with the Hungarian custom of rotation in accordance with their years, conveys the humor of the play at the outset, and it is developed with such a variety of amusing complications and farcical situations that the audience is kept in merriest humor from the rise of the curtain until the very end. In the gay land of Hungary it is the custom to marry off the girls of a family in turn, the eldest first and so on, the younger ones being kept in short dresses until their turn comes. In this family there are seven—the fourth one is in a convent from which she is expelled for some escapade. She returns home and is immediately relegated to the age of fourteen and short dresses. The escapade, however, had a man in it, and he follows Mici—that is the girl's name—and when he finds that she is barred because of the three older unmarried sisters, he immediately sets about marrying them off. Matinees are given on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

"A movement has been started for the building up and beautifying of the North Shore at and about Beverly. This spot on the Massachusetts coast of the Atlantic which has been brought into international prominence because of the fact that the Summer capital of the nation has been removed to that place for two years, has, it is believed, been instrumental in causing a move in the matter."—From one of Boston papers.

IN this building and planning of a Better Store for Essex County's Shopping Public, it became necessary to move nearly all of our selling departments. Our buyers went into the markets months ago filled with enthusiasm, told their story about our new store and insisted that the Importers and Manufacturers give them a lot of good things at extremely low prices. They were well received and gave our buyers seasonable merchandise at figures much below the regular market prices and which are bound to bring thousands of people to our new store. The best introduction a new store or department can have is hundreds of people passing through it and purchasing its merchandise. Now we propose to stamp these moved departments on Essex County's memory by making some extraordinary low prices. Low prices always bring the people. Annual Supper and Roll Call of First Baptist Church

The members of the First Baptist church and congregation gathered in the vestry Wednesday evening in accordance with the regular custom, for the annual Roll-Call and Supper. These gatherings are always of great interest and enjoyment to the members, as many members who are obliged to be absent during the year, either return for this occasion or send a letter.

The gathering Wednesday evening was a most pleasant one. Shortly after six o'clock the company sat down to well-filled tables and enjoyed a bountiful supper.

Rev. Clarence S. Pond of Beverly Farms, evoked the blessing. The next hour was given to diminishing the laden tables, which were so graciously presided over by the ladies of the church.

Immediately after supper the reports of the various branches of the church were read. E. S. Bradley presented the auditor's report. Miss Nellie Leonard reported for the Sunday School and Mrs. Hattie Baker prepared the Church Aid report. These reports were most satisfactory as they clearly showed a year of work and what is more gratifying to the worker—success.

One of the most pleasant surprises of the evening came when the announcement was made that the remaining debt of over $100 on the parsonage had that evening been paid by a check from a friend. This was the best thing the Church Aid society could hear as they have worked faithfully to clear this debt.

The Pastor, Rev. A. G. Warner, gave the opening address. He spoke of his policy towards the church, and his remarks were heeded by all present, his earnestness impressing all.

Charles H. Fleming of Salem, was the next speaker. He prophesied success for the church under Mr. Warner's leadership, and told many humorous stories, adding greatly to the evening's enjoyment. Rev. Mr. Martin of Salem, then made a few remarks appropriate to the occasion. Rev. Arthur E. Harri-man of Lynn, formerly pastor of the church, spoke most fluently. He referred to the revival of '96 and '97, and spoke of the other ministers who preceded him as sowing fruitful seed. When he came the church was ready for a harvest, and the harvest came, for during that time about 65 members were added to the church, 17 being baptised at one time. He also said that the time was ripe for another revival and Rev. T. L. Frost had done much in preparing the church for the beautiful condition it was now in. He spoke at some length to the members, telling them of the great responsibility that rested on them for the salvation of souls and a new birth, the need of personal work. He likened the church to a body, each member to do its part and if any member failed the whole body was a failure.

During the roll call each member responded with a verse of scripture. Several letters were read, a most interesting one from Rev. D. F. Lamson, a former pastor. The exercises of the evening closed by all joining hands and singing with great fervor "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

The Trusts, the People, and the Square Deal

"Feudalism, with its domains, its untaxed lords, their retainers, its exemptions and privileges, made war upon the aspiring spirit of humanity, and fell with all its grandeurs. Its spirit walks the earth and haunts the institutions of today, in the great corporations, with the control of the National highways, their occupation of great domains, their power to tax, their cynical contempt for the law, their sorcery to debase most gifted men to the capacity of splendid slaves, their pollution of the ermine of the judge and the robe of the Senator, their aggregation in one man of wealth so enormous as to make Croesus seem a pauper, their picked, paid, and skilled retainers who are summoned by the message of electricity and appear upon the wings of steam. If we look into the origin of feudalism and of the modern corporations—those Dromios of history—we find that the former originated in a strict paternalism, which is scouted by modern economists, and that the latter has grown from an unrestrained freedom of action, aggression, and development, which they commend as the very ideal of political wisdom. Laissez-faire, says the professor, when it often means bind and gag that the strongest may work his will. It is a plea for the survival of the fittest—the strongest male to take possession of the herd by a process of extermination. If we examine this battle cry of political polemics, we find that it is based upon the conception of the divine right of property, and the preoccupation by older or more favored or more alert or richer men or nations, of territory, of the forces of nature, of machinery, of all the functions of what we call civilization. Some of these men, who are really great, follow these conceptions to their conclusions with dauntless intrepidity."

When Senator Davis spoke, few men of great power had the sympathy and the vision necessary to perceive the menace contained in the growth of corporations; and the men who did see the evil were struggling blindly to get rid of it, not by frankly meeting the new situation with new methods, but by insisting upon the entirely futile effort to abolish what modern conditions had rendered absolutely inevitable. Senator Davis was under no such illusion. He realized keenly that it was absolutely impossible to go back to an outworn social status, and that we must abandon definitely the laissez-faire theory of political economy, and fearlessly champion a system of increased Governmental control, paying no heed to the cries of the worthy people who denounce this as Socialistic. He saw that, in order to meet the inevitable increase in the power of corporations produced by modern industrial conditions, it would be necessary to increase in like fashion the activity of the sovereign power which alone could control such corporations. As has been aptly said, the only way to meet a billion-dollar corporation is by invoking the protection of a hundred-billion-dollar government; in other words, of the National Government, for no State Government is strong enough both to do justice to corporations and to exact justice from them. Said Senator Davis in this admirable address, which should be reprinted and distributed broadcast:

"The liberty of the individual has been annihilated by the logical process constructed to maintain it. We have come to a political deification of Mammon. Laissez-faire is not utterly blameworthy. It begat modern democracy, and made the modern republic possible. There can be no doubt of that. But there it began its limit of political benefaction, and began to incline toward the point where extremes meet. . . . To every assertion that the people in their collective capacity of a government ought to exert their indefeasible right of self-defense, it is said you touch the sacred rights of property."

The Senator then goes on to say that we now have to deal with an oligarchy of wealth, and that the Government must develop power sufficient enough to enable it to do the task.

Few will dispute the fact that the present situation is not satisfactory, and cannot be put on a permanently satisfactory basis unless we put an end to the period of groping and declare for a fixed policy, a policy which shall clearly define and punish wrong-doing, which shall put a stop to the iniquities done in the name of business, but which shall do strict equity to business. We demand that big business give the people a square deal; in return we must insist that when any one engaged in big business honestly endeavors to do right he shall himself be given a square deal; and the first, and most elementary, kind of square deal is to give him in advance full information as to just what he can, and what he cannot, legally and properly do. It is absurd, and much worse than absurd, to treat the deliberate law-breaker as on an exact par with the man eager to obey the law, whose only desire is to find out from some competent Governmental authority what the law is, and then to live up to it. Moreover, it is absurd to treat the size of a corporation as in itself a crime. As Judge Hook says in his opinion in the Standard Oil Case: "Magnitude of business does not alone constitute a monopoly . . . the genius and industry of man when kept to ethical standards still have full play, and what he achieves in his . . . success and magnitude of business, the rewards of fair and honorable endeavor (are not forbidden) . . . (the public welfare is threatened only when success is attained) by wrongful or unlawful methods." Size may, and in my opinion does, make a corporation fraught with potential menace to the community; and may, and in my opinion should, therefore make it incumbent upon the community to exercise through its administrative (not merely through its judicial) officers a strict supervision over that corporation in order to see that it does not go wrong; but the size in itself does not signify wrong-doing, and should not be held to signify wrong-doing.

Not only should any huge corporation which has gained its position by unfair methods, and by interference with the rights of others, by demoralizing and corrupt practices, in short, by sheer baseness and wrong-doing, be broken up, but it should be made the business of some administrative governmental body, by constant supervision, to see that it does not come together again, save under such strict control as shall insure the community against all repetition of the bad conduct—and it should never be permitted thus to assemble its parts as long as these parts are under the control of the original offenders, for actual experience has shown that these men are, from the standpoint of the people at large, unfit to be trusted with the power implied in the management of a large corporation. But nothing of importance is gained by breaking up a huge inter-State and international industrial organization which has not offended otherwise than by its size, into a number of small concerns without any attempt to regulate the way in which those concerns as a whole shall do business. Nothing is gained by depriving the American Nation of good weapons wherewith to fight in the great field of international industrial competition. Those who would seek to restore the days of unlimited and uncontrolled competition, and who believe that a panacea for our industrial and economic ills is to be found in the mere breaking up of all big corporations, simply because they are big, are attempting not only the impossible, but what, if possible, would be undesirable. They are acting as we should act if we tried to dam the Mississippi, to stop its flow outright. The effort would be certain to result in failure and disaster; we would have attempted the impossible, and so would have achieved nothing, or worse than nothing. But by building levees along the Mississippi, not seeking to dam the stream, but to control it, we are able to achieve our object and to confer inestimable good in the course of so doing.

The Nation should definitely adopt the policy of attacking, not the mere fact of combination, but the evils and wrong-doing which so frequently accompany combination. The fact that a combination is very big is ample reason for exercising a close and jealous supervision over it, because its size renders it potent for mischief; but it should not be punished unless it actually does the mischief; it should merely be so supervised and controlled as to guarantee us, the people, against its doing mischief. We should not strive for a policy of unregulated competition and of the destruction of all big corporations, that is, of all the most efficient business industries in the land. Nor should we persevere in the hopeless experiment of trying to regulate these industries by means only of lawsuits, each lasting several years, and of uncertain result. We should enter upon a course of supervision, control, and regulation which we should not fear, if necessary, to bring to the point of control of monopoly prices, just as in exceptional cases railway rates are now regulated. Either the Bureau of Corporations should be authorized, or some other governmental body similar to the Interstate Commerce Commission should be created, to exercise this supervision, this authoritative control. When once immoral business practices have been eliminated by such control, competition will thereby be again revived as a healthy factor, although not as formerly an all-sufficient factor, in keeping the general business situation sound. Wherever immoral business practices still obtain—as they obtained in the cases of the Standard Oil Trust and Tobacco Trust—the Anti-Trust Law can be invoked; and wherever such a prosecution is successful, and the courts declare a corporation to possess a monopolistic character, then that corporation should be completely dissolved, and the parts ought never to be again assembled save on whatever terms and under whatever conditions may be imposed by the governmental body in which is vested the regulatory power. Methods can readily be devised by which corporations sincerely desiring to act fairly and honestly can on their own initiative come under this thoroughgoing administrative control by the Government and thereby be free from the working of the Anti-Trust Law. But the law will remain to be invoked against wrong-doers; and under such conditions it could be invoked far more vigorously and successfully than at present.

It is not necessary in an article like this to attempt to work out such a plan in detail. It can assuredly be worked out. Moreover, in my opinion, substantially some such plan must be worked out or business chaos will continue. Wrong-doing such as was perpetrated by the Tobacco Trust, should not only be punished, but if possible punished in the persons of the chief authors and beneficiaries of the wrong, far more severely than at present. But punishment should not be the only, or indeed the main, end in view. Our aim should be a policy of construction and not one of destruction. Our aim should not be to punish the men who have made a big corporation successful merely because they have made it big and successful, but to exercise such thoroughgoing supervision and control over them as to insure their business skill being exercised in the interest of the public and not against the public interest. Ultimately, I believe, that this control should undoubtedly indirectly extend to dealing with all questions connected with their treatment of their employees, including the wages, the hours of labor, and the like. Not only is the proper treatment of a corporation, from the standpoint of the managers, shareholders, and employees, compatible with securing from that corporation the best standard of public service, but when the effort is wisely made it results in benefit both to the corporation and to the public. The success of Wisconsin in dealing with the corporations within her borders, so as both to do them justice and to exact justice in return from them toward the public, has been signal; and this Nation should adopt a progressive policy in substance akin to the progressive policy not merely formulated in theory but reduced to actual practice with such striking success in Wisconsin.

To sum up, then. It is practically impossible, and, if possible, it would be mischievous and undesirable, to try to break up all combinations merely because they are large and successful, and to put the business of the country back into the middle of the eighteenth century conditions of intense and unregulated competition between small and weak business concerns. Such an effort represents not progressiveness but an unintelligent though doubtless entirely well-meaning torquism. Moreover, the effort to administer a law merely by lawsuits and court decisions is bound to end in signal failure, and meanwhile to be attended with delays and uncertainties, and to put a premium upon legal sharp practice. Such an effort does not adequately punish the guilty, and yet works great harm to the innocent. Moreover, it entirely fails to give the publicity which is one of the best by-products of the system of control by administrative officials; publicity, which is not only good in itself, but furnishes the data for whatever further action may be necessary. We need to formulate definitely a policy which, in dealing with big corporations that behave themselves and which contain no menace save what is necessarily potential in any corporation which is of great size and very well managed, shall aim not at their destruction but at their regulation and supervision, so that the Government shall control them in such fashion as amply to safeguard the interests of the whole public, including producers, consumers, and wage-workers. This control should, if necessary, be pushed in extreme cases to the point of exercising control over monopoly prices, as rates on railways are now controlled; although this is not a power that should be used when it is possible to avoid it. The law should be clear, unambiguous, certain, so that honest men may not find that unwittingly they have violated it. In short, our aim should not be to destroy, but effectively and in thoroughgoing fashion to regulate and control, in the public interest, the great instrumentalities of modern business, which it is destructive of the general welfare of the community to destroy, and which nevertheless it is vitally necessary to that general welfare to regulate and control. Competition will remain as a very important factor when once we have destroyed the unfair business methods, the criminal interference with the rights of others, which alone enabled certain swollen combinations to crush out their competitors—and, incidentally, the “conservatives” will do well to remember that these unfair and iniquitous methods by great masters of corporate capital have done more to cause popular discontent with the propertied classes than all the orations of all the Socialist orators in the country put together.

I have spoken above of Senator Davis' admirable address delivered a quarter of a century ago. Senator Davis' one-time partner, Frank B. Kellogg, the Government counsel who did so much to win success for the Government in its prosecutions of the trusts, has recently delivered before the Palimpsest Club of Omaha an excellent address on the subject; Mr. Prouty, of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, has recently, in his speech before the Congregational Club of Brooklyn, dealt with the subject from the constructive side; and in the proceedings of the American Bar Association for 1904 there is an admirable paper on the need of thoroughgoing Federal control over corporations doing an inter-State business, by Professor Horace L. Wilgus, of the University of Michigan. The National Government exercises control over inter-State commerce railroads, and it can in similar fashion, through an appropriate governmental body, exercise control over all industrial organizations engaged in inter-State commerce. This control should be exercised, not by the courts, but by an administrative bureau or board such as the Bureau of Corporations or the Inter-State Commerce Commission; for the courts cannot with advantage permanently perform executive and administrative functions.

The Problem of the Treaties

President Taft has proposed two treaties, the one with Great Britain and the other with France, compelling the arbitration of international differences. The passage of the treaties are in jeopardy because of clause three, which provides for the submission of all judicable matters to a commission. The Senate insists upon its prerogatives given by the constitution claiming that they will be nullified by this clause in the new treaties. But the opposition of the Senate is not altogether one for the petty rights of the Senate. The bill was returned with three reports, the adverse majority report signed by Henry Cabot Lodge, chairman, the minority report signed by S. M. Cullom and Elihu Root and an individual report by Mr. Benton, agreeing with the minority report but making supplementary comments. There is evidently an honest difference of opinion on broad grounds. A statement that the Senate's action was due to its jealousy of its prerogatives is at least misleading, if not untrue. The majority report, says "The inclusion of the Senate as a part of the treaty making power was provided upon mature consideration in the Constitution. . . . It has, on the whole, proved of the highest usefulness for the prevention of hasty and ill considered agreements with other powers and for the preservation of the interests of all and every part of the American people. So long as that duty rests upon us we must continue to perform it with courage and firmness and without evasion or abdication."

As a case in point the Senate majority report says, "one of the first of sovereign rights is the power to determine who shall come into the country and under what conditions. No nation, which is not either tributary or subject, would permit any other nation to compel it to receive the citizens or subjects of that other nation. If our right to exclude certain classes of immigrants were challenged the question could be forced before a joint commission, and if that commission decided that the question was arbitrable the Senate would have no power to reject the special agreement for the arbitration of that subject on the ground that it was not a question for arbitration within the contemplation of Article I. In the same way our territorial integrity, the rights of each state, and of the United States to their territory might be forced before a joint commission, and under article three, in certain contingencies, we would have no power to prevent our title to the land we inhabit from being contested in a court of arbitration. . . . Such an invitation would be a breeder of war and not of peace and would rouse a series of disputes, now happily and entirely at rest, into malign and dangerous activity. To issue such an invitation is not in the opinion of the committee, the way to promote that universal peace which we all most earnestly desire."

Here we find the peace argument used both for and against the treaties. It is clearly a case of the doctors disagreeing and the layman waiting in suspense. It is evident that both sides wish the peace "which we all most earnestly desire." If the present treaty form is not the best a new form agreeable to all parties should be formulated. Meanwhile opposition to the present form of the treaties ought not to open any one to criticism of guilt of "jingoism" or lovers of war in preference to Peace. Let us have the treaties and ample provision for the protection of our rights in matters for arbitration.

The Los Angeles Confessions

History was made last week in the Los Angeles compromise and it will doubtless be a turning point in the history of the struggle between capital and labor in the west. Such an armistice there must consequently react upon labor problems and conditions all over the United States. The important factor in the confessions of the week was not alone the discovery and confessions of the perpetrators of the Los Angeles disaster and the destruction of the Llewelyn Iron Works, although these facts are of importance. The saving of a million dollars in state expense, the probable defeat of a mayoralty candidate, the skill and ability of a great detective and the alertness of the local government in the prosecution of the investigation, are, while not merely incidental, of minor importance in the face of the movement of the business men of Los Angeles to put a stop to the growing antagonistic sentiments due to class distinction and to prevent the intense feeling which would be the inevitable result of the trial all over the country. Every newspaper and magazine of national importance had representatives in Los Angeles and the dire results of the trial would be felt in every union in the states and in every state of the Union. The taking of sides would have been inevitable. The saving of the money the trial would have cost is as nothing compared with the ill will and estrangements which could and doubtless would have been engendered by the trial and the inevitable verdict of guilt. A clear case of guilt in an honorable trial would not have been accepted by thousands of deceived people and the Government and the cause of peace would be a loser even in case of an honorable judicial victory. The trial of the two brothers had already become a great test case and thousands of honorable men contributed to defend their so believed honorable brethren. This money was not contributed to assist lawless men to escape the penalties of the law but in most cases it was contributed by honorable men who believed in honorable name of union labor and in the innocence of the men. Even if it can be proved that certain leaders knew of the guilt of these brothers, every dollar is a tribute to the honor of the contributors —for it was given on the claim of the honor and innocence of the men and to clear the unions of America of the stigma of the tragedies of the Los Angeles Disaster. The spontaneity with which the two men were "dropped" by the unions and the way in which the support of the honorable men of the union withdrew and their approval was turned into condemnation of the rascality of these men even though members of the union augers well for the future.

Labor unions have made their mistakes. This does not appear so much a mistake of organized labor as the mistake of certain leaders and as a deliberate imposition upon the credulity of the honorable men in the unions and the perfidious and treacherous malfesance of certain individuals as local labor secretaries. The problem is still unsolved. Labor and capital must both learn the lessons of brotherly assistance and restraint. Neither labor nor capital can impose injuries upon an innocent public. In this land of liberty and freedom there must be a freedom to join and a freedom to refrain from joining an alliance of workman. The liberty of all workmen must be and will be assured. The Los Angeles confessions means the end of a reign of terror and the end of such methods. The real sense of American workmen revolts from such base means.

Our Russian Relations

At the best a diplomatic post carries with it burdens of no small moment and the representatives of our government pay high in service and anxiety for the high honors which are bestowed by their appointments. In our foreign service there is no position fraught with more hazard, perplexed by peculiar and inexplicable difficulties to the Anglo Saxon mind, than the office of the American Embassy to Russia. Two difficult problems must now be solved by our foreign ambassador and a degree of patience, diplomacy and governmental acumen will be required not often necessary in public service in America. The passport difficulty has not been adjusted but Ambassador Guild who is equal to the task set before him, has taken up the matter with the Russian Government at St. Petersburg at the instigation of President of the United States. The situation has been complicated by the introduction to Congress of resolutions of almost identical import, the one by Representative Sulzer of New York and the other by Representative Garner of Texas, providing for the abrogation of the treaty of 1832, by which a settlement of the passport difficulty was hoped for without further legislation.

The treacherous conduct of Russia with Persia and the peculiar relations of Mr. Shuster, an American citizen, has also presented a strange problem. As an agent of the Persian State our Government has no jurisdiction over the actions of Mr. Shuster as a personal financial agent, but as a citizen of the United States his life and liberty must be safeguarded by our government and he is entitled to its protection to that extent. In Ambassador Guild the United States government can have confidence and if patience and skill can unravel the knot, Massachusetts' former Governor will do it.

Meanwhile, public sentiment is strongly protesting against the active work of Russia for an ultimate "pillage" of Persia. Great Britain's neutral policy suggests consent for selfish ends. It is time that war and rumor of war ceased. Russia is contributing too much to the civic unrest of the world both within and without her borders.

The Washington Convention

The cause of sane legislation based upon vital principles and tenable laws of public science and practicable laws has been embarrassed and jeopardized constantly by erratic, patienceless and foolhardy reformers in matters of liquor legislation. The best friends of liquor law legislation looking to the control of this curse have often been the worst enemies to the cause by their lack of judgment and simple sanity in the promulgation of their ideas of reform, in an otherwise commendable zeal. But no class of legislation concerning the liquor problem has been so serious as the lack of uniformity of laws between neighboring states so that sane and helpful legislation in one state has often been nullified by conditions within a border state. In the problem of liquor legislation the same problem exists as in the divorce question. There is a public demand for a uniformity of laws throughout the states. Precisely the same conditions exist in the question of liquor legislation. There is no uniformity and helpful legislation in one State has been defeated by the legislative conditions of other bordering states. To discuss the problems, to consider them in their different phases, to unfold plans for inter-state co-operation and national action by Congress a convention of men from all over the Union will meet in Washington next week. The hope is entertained that from its session a better understanding may be attained between states and possibly the framing of a national law to be presented through the proper channels for action by the United States Government. The outcome of this movement is awaited with interest.

The Magnolia Ministry

Unlike any other church on our shore, the Union Congregational church at Magnolia presents a peculiar problem to its people and its minister. Their mission has been for service of a high order in the face of difficult problems. The resignation of Mr. Libby presented a problem which has been solved in the hearty call given to the Rev. Mr. Eaton of Wenham, and his acceptance. The Magnolia church is an all the year church with a double ministry affecting the permanent winter and transient summer population, with the large hotel population in the summer, the church has been popular and successful in its ministrations. Alert to other service to the community, the church, through the interest and direction of the retiring minister and the contributions of the summer residents built a home for men with room and club privileges. The church has responded to a large call and a great need. The call of Mr. Eaton will assure for the future the success of the past. With this able preacher, careful thinker and conscientious worker, the future should be bright for the prosperous, generous, working Congregational church in Magnolia.

The Manchester Trust Co. is offering an inducement for people to save money through the medium of a home safe. A number of these small safes have been ordered and will be furnished free to depositors in the interest department. A deposit of one dollar will secure a safe, and the safe cannot be opened without bringing it to the bank. Deposits draw interest at the rate of 4 per cent. This should prove an especially good inducement to young people who desire to have a bank account. One of the safes would make a splendid Christmas gift.

"HOME DAY" OBSERVEDManchester Woman's Club's Meeting an Interesting Affair

The December meeting of the Manchester Woman's club was held at the chapel on Tuesday afternoon, the president, Mrs. Emma E. Stanley, presiding.

The announcements during the business session included today's conference at the Boston Public Library in behalf of literary and library extension. December 19th, Rev. T. Frank Waters of Ipswich, will address the club on "Colonial Days." Mrs. Wm. A. Russell of Beverly Farms, hostess. It was also announced that the club had secured its Christmas seals and they would be on sale by the treasurer at the close of the afternoon meeting.

At the close of the business session, Home Day was observed. The program opened with a vocal number, "Irish Love Song," by Margaret R. Lang, rendered by Raymond Ott, the boy soprano of Boston, who came to entertain through the courtesy of Miss Clara Winthrop of the West Manchester colony. Master Ott is not a stranger in Manchester and he renewed his success as a most pleasing entertainer and was warmly applauded.

Mrs. D. T. Beaton as a club delegate to the South Boston conference appeared to great advantage as an occasional speaker and brought to her club co-workers several very helpful suggestions. She stated that the main subject of the conference was "The Ideal President." Among the numerous qualifications advanced at the conference were that a president should be the presiding officer of the whole club, not of a part or faction of the club. She should be a womanly woman—have brains to plan and direct. She should be the showman and not the show. She should have the same conceit as a man in a like position. The ideal president should know all members, be a perfect parliamentarian and have a strong personality. Mrs. Beaton stated that the key-note of the conference was loyalty. Her message from the South Boston conference to the club was therefore loyalty to the president and loyalty to one another, conservatism in outside criticism of club affairs and respect for every individual or collective effort in their behalf. Mrs. Beaton was heartily applauded.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Sinnicks as delegate to the Haverhill conference gave the club members an idea how such an organization is being depended upon to help the great reforms and movements of the day. "Civic Betterment" was discussed at Haverhill. The speakers discussed at this conference the pitiful existence of foreign women in their isolation in the big manufacturing centres of the country. The male members of their families are better mixers, learn English phrases more quickly and confidently and gradually outgrow their womenkind who appear eventually ignorant to them. Night schools for foreign women taught by club women are being agitated. The child labor question was also discussed at Haverhill. Mrs. Sinnicks' address was delivered very interestingly and left a most favorable impression.

Miss Martha C. Knight gave a very impressive paper on her recent European travels. In her finely worded sketch of her tour of the British Isles, France and Italy, she readily convinced her hearers that she has a strong love and appreciation for the literary, historical, scenic and poetic values of such a trip. She held the close attention of her audience and was heartily applauded.

Mrs. Charlotte E. Brown was delegated to read an article which Miss Mabel T. Boardman of Washington, requested that the club members should hear. It was a paper read by Mrs. Herbert Cushing before the Nineteenth Century club on the Prevention of Insanity. Mrs. Brown's fine reading of the article brought out the salient points of this article which is another movement in which the aid of club women is being asked.

During the intervals between the reading of these papers, Master Ott rendered Arne's "Lass with the Delicate Air"; Zardo's "To the Angels" and "Philosophy" by David Emmel. Generous applause was accorded the talented young singer.

During the social period, tea room honors were shared by Mrs. W. A. Russell of Beverly Farms, and Mrs. W. L. Harris of Beverly, who poured. In the absence of Mrs. Gertrude Prest, Mrs. Edward S. Knight acted as hostess of the day.

Old Time Variety Show at Keith's

One of the most unique events of the Boston theatrical season is announced for B. F. Keith's Theatre next week in a genuine Old Time Variety Show, exactly as presented in the theatres of the early eighties before Mr. B. F. Keith, by building beautiful theatres and establishing a high standard of the entertainments presented in them, had transformed "variety" into "vaudeville." The old Timers' Week at B. F. Keith's last summer proved one of the most popular features of the summer season, and so many patrons were disappointed in the demand for seats that arrangements were made to bring back the Old Timers as soon as arrangements would permit. The Old Time Variety Show is remarkable for many things. The largest company is that of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thorne, who have four players in their sketch, "An Uptown Flat." All the other acts are either single or double teams. Among the artistes who will appear are Mrs. Annie Yeamans, the grand old woman of the American stage, who will give the song and dance that she performed with Harrigan and Hart in 1884; Maggie Cline, the Irish Queen, who will sing "Throw Him Down, McCluskey," with all her old time vim; Lottie Gilson, the Little Magnet; Ward and Curran in "The Terrible Judge"; Gus Williams, author of over one hundred songs.

DOINGS OF THE WEEK IN MANCHESTER POLICE CIRCLES

Special Meeting of Board of Selectmen

Saturday, Dec. 2, 1911.

Voted: That for the good of the Police Department Mr. M. E. Gorman, Chief of Police, be asked to resign on or before Thursday evening, December 7th, at 8 o'clock, Mr. Cheever and Mr. Bell voting in favor, Mr. Knight against.

Manchester, Dec. 4, 1911.

To Honorable Board of Selectmen:

I herewith tender to you my resignation as chief of police of Manchester and ask that the same be accepted on Thursday, Dec. 7th, at 8 o'clock.

(Signed) M. E. GORMAN.

Regular Meeting of the Board

Thursday, Dec. 7, 1911.

Voted: To accept the resignation of M. E. Gorman as chief of police, the same to take effect at 8 p. m. this day.

Instructions to Leonard Andrews, Sergt. of Police

The selectmen of the town of Manchester have accepted the resignation of M. E. Gorman as chief of police, the same to take effect at 8 p. m. this day (Dec. 7). You are placed in charge of the police department until further notice. It is expected that the laws of the commonwealth shall be enforced, especially calling your attention to the enforcement of the liquor law. You will instruct all officers of the department in regard to same and that they shall report all cases to you at once, which come under their observance.

All of the foregoing, except the heading, is copied verbatim from the record book of the board of selectmen (which is a public document). The board would make no statement, explaining their action to the voters, preferring to have it said that the chief of police had resigned and that they had accepted his resignation.

Mr. Gorman told the Breeze man yesterday, he was called before the board last week and was raked over the coals. He says he told the board he thought the liquor laws were being handled in a very good manner, that no complaints had come to him, that the records show there have been 13 arrests this year for drunkenness against 50 odd last year.

The general public think the board asked for Gorman's resignation for other reasons than the enforcement or non-enforcement of the liquor law. Lack of discipline and the utter lack of harmony in the department are said to be the underlying cause of their action.

Some blame Gorman for the conditions; others blame the members of the force.

We reserve our own opinion of the matter until some future issue,—after the holidays, when we have more time and space. One thing is certainly evident: the Manchester police department attracts altogether too much attention for the good of the town. The business of this beautiful little summer resort, with its $15,000,000 valuation is centered too much on running and supporting a police department. We have other interests—our schools, our streets, parks, beaches, woods, water-ways, etc., etc. The police department ought to be a mere incident; it is getting to be the whole thing.

Yachtsmen have had their last look at the old cutter Shona, probably the narrowest boat of her class ever built. This last week her bow and stern were cut off at Manchester, and her two-mold lead keel, heavier than those used on boats of more than double her water line nowadays, was unstrapped and awaits the junkman. With a water line of 33.9 feet and an over all of 42 feet she had a beam of only 5 feet 11 inches, one inch more than her draft.

The matrons were: Mrs. L. W. Floyd, Mrs. Alfred Sabin and Mrs. J. C. Mackin. It is earnestly hoped that another party under the same committee will be held soon. As this occasion was a class reunion- it was a matter of regret to the class that a number of the members were obliged to be absent.

Attention of gunners is called to the regulations regarding shooting on private property and the penalty accompanying such breaking of the law. Christmas Stamps

As the Christmas season approaches it would be well to bear in mind that the following countries refuse to admit to their mails articles bearing non-postage "Christmas" stamps or other adhesive charity stamps or labels: Austria, Norway and Portugal, if they resemble regular postage stamps. Most all other countries permit such stamps when same are affixed to the back and not to the address side of the article mailed.

Unless these conditions are complied with, the articles bearing non-postage stamps will not be dispatched from this country, but will be returned to sender, if known, otherwise to Dead Letter office.

All articles should bear full name and address of sender.

With election day on Tuesday next, Beverly is passing through the quietest campaign in its history, with fewer contests than any year since Beverly has been a city. Under the new charter the mayor was elected last year for two years. All that the Ward 6 voter will find on his ballot this year is the four candidates for the three places of alderman at large; the three present officials, Jas. A. Torrey, Henry W. Woodberry and George W. Hurd, who seek re-election, and Jeremiah F. Brown, who last year was only a few votes behind the winners. Alderman Augustus P. Loring is a candidate for re-election from this ward and is opposed by Mark A. Knowles. Two members of the school committee for a term of three years will be elected at large, one from Ward 2 and the other from Ward 3. Also on the ballot will be the license question and the firemen's disability act. There have been no rallies and whatever work has been done has gone on in a quiet way. Indications point to a light vote.

Lawrence J. Watson has been quite ill the past week at his home, 17 Everett street.

Arthur Smith has accepted a position as butler in a family at Cambridge.

John Gray and family closed their cottage on Haskell street the early part of this week and have gone to New York city. Mr. Gray is chauffeur for the Thomas McKees.

Preparations are being made for the re-opening of the fruit and confectionery store on West street under new management.

Morgan; junior vice pres., Mrs. Mary Eddy; chaplain, Mrs. Ethel Day; sec., Miss M. Elizabeth Hull; treas., Mrs. Alice Colla-

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Brennan of Philadelphia, have been among this week's visitors at the Farms, the guests of friends.

That the interest in the Thanksgiving services is still very much alive at the Farms was illustrated the past holiday. There was a large attendance at St. Margaret's church and the attendance at the Baptist church was greater than it has been for years.

Humorous Stories

A well-known lawyer is telling a good story about himself and his efforts to correct the manners of his office boy. One morning not long ago, the young autocrat blew into his office and tossing his cap at a hook, exclaimed: "Say, Mr. Blank, there's a ball game at the park today and I'm going."

Now the attorney is not a hard-hearted man, and was willing the boy should go, but thought he would teach him a little lesson in good manners.

"Jimmie," he said, "that isn't the way to ask a favor. Now you come over here and sit down and I'll show you how to do it."

The boy took the office chair and his employer picked up his cap and stepped outside. He then opened the door softly and holding the cap in his hand said quietly to the small boy in the big chair:

"Please, sir, there is a ball game at the park today; if you can spare me I would like to get away for the afternoon."

In a flash the boy responded: "Why certainly Jimmie, and here is fifty cents to pay your way in."

Teacher: "You must not come to my school any more, Tommy, until your mother has recovered from the smallpox."

Tommy: "There ain't a bit of danger. She ain't going to give me the smallpox."

"Why, how is that?"

"She's my step-mother; she never gives me anything."

A difference: A friend of mine, when told of the death of a well-known stock dealer, replied: "Why, he's worse off than I am. I'm dead broke; but he's a dead broker."

Paterfamilias (reading doctor's bill): "Well, doctor, I have no objection to pay you for the medicine, but I will return the visits."

Why Did Jacob Cry?

Jacob kissed Rachel and lifted up his voice and wept.—Scripture.

It is our opinion Jacob wept because he hadn't kissed Rachel before, and regretted the time he had lost. But if Rachel was a pretty girl and kept her face clean we can't see that Jacob had much to cry about, anyhow.

A well-known Dakota politician, recently experienced a change of heart and joined the church. A few days after, his pastor said to him in the course of a little talk: "I am very glad to see you are in earnest in this matter. Do you feel that you have been born again?" "Born again, eh? That's something I never heard of, but if I am going to be born again I tell you what it is, I want to be born in New York so there'll be some hope of getting an office in the territory."

A Connecticut woman has embroidered the words and music of "Home Sweet Home" on a linen sheet which is on the square-room bed. Her guests have not decided whether the hostess means to indicate that they must feel at home or had better go home."

A man in Iowa has patented a hen's nest. By and by some man will patent the hen, and then we will have to pay for eggs, until a plain omelet will taste like a $10 bill.

OUR WATCH DEPARTMENT

Our reputation for high grade watches has been obtained through forty years of careful study of the products of the best manufacturers. We use only the most reliable makes of American and imported watches. The greatest care is used in selection of both movements and cases and every watch sold carries our guarantee.

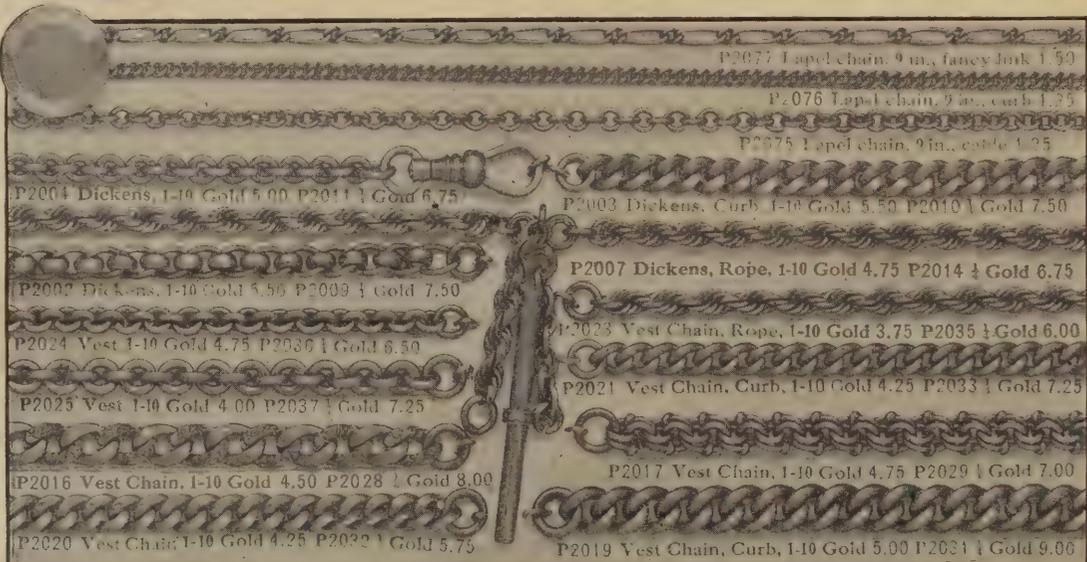

A good case is necessary for the protection of a good movement and the appearance of the watch is dependent upon its style and finish. Yet while these essential qualities add much to the value of a watch, they need not increase the price.

Unless you request immediate delivery, the watch is given in charge of an expert watchmaker who regulates it before shipping.

Read your order carefully before mailing. Discretionary orders giving an idea of the style desired and the amount one wishes to invest in a watch will receive the benefit of our best judgment.

FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Owing to the time required for engraving, the necessary adjustment, and regulation we advise early purchase of watches.

MEN'S GOLD FILLED CHAINS. Illustrations are actual size. The vest chains have bar and drop chain for attaching charm. The Dickens chains have bar and drop chain in centre, a swivel on one end for attaching watch, and on the other end, a spring ring for attaching knife, cigar cutter, etc. The coat chains have on one end a button to attach to lapel of coat, and on the other end a swivel for watch. The $\frac{1}{2}$ gold chains are the finest made, $\frac{1}{2}$ of their weight being solid 12k gold. They have such a thick shell of gold that a solid gold chain will have worn thin to the breaking point before the shell wears through on a $\frac{1}{2}$ gold chain. The 1-10 gold chains are warranted for ten years. They are a very fine quality chain, 1-10 of the weight being solid 12k gold.

SOCIETY NOTES

With all the vivacity and eclat of a mid-summer function, the dinner-dance given last Saturday night at the Essex County club by Miss Katharine W. Tweed lent charm to an otherwise dull week, socially speaking, on the North Shore. But it lent emphasis to the fact that the North Shore is fast throwing off its garb as a summer resort pure and simple; it is getting to be quite a winter resort. Miss Tweed was hostess for a party of nearly sixty. Among the young men present—for it was a young people's party—were Philip Stockton, Reginald Boardman, Harrison Tweed, Shaw McKean and Nelson Bartlett, all of whom are familiar faces on the North Shore nearly every day, as they live here in winter. Others were Amos Lawrence, Dudley and Edw. Pickman, Alex Grant, Harry Clark, Sam Warren and Frank Sargent. A splendid dinner was served. Miss Tweed had twenty at her table. The decorations were greenery and white chrysanthemums—this being in charge of a Boston florist. A supper was served at midnight. The Essex County club is open all winter and every weekend a number of members and friends are down on the Shore, making the club their headquarters. Besides, there are about thirty families who now keep their houses open all winter, and these are frequent patrons of the club, entertaining friends there at times with little luncheon or dinner parties.

Among the Boston people who make annual pilgrimage to Quebec during the winter and go in for winter sports are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Henry Barbour of Cambridge and Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Warren of Bay State road, Boston, motored to Manchester last Sunday to note the extensive improvements at their estate on Blossom lane.

At the joint recital of Alice Nielsen and George Procter yesterday afternoon, at Fenway court, Boston, Wallace Goodrich served as one of the accompanists.

SOCIETY NOTES

Nehemiah W. Rice, a long-time and prominent summer resident of Burgess Point, Beverly, president of the tanning company that bears his name, died at his winter home, 341 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, last Thursday. He was 79 years old. The funeral was held at his residence Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Mr. Rice was born in Brownfield, Me., May 15, 1832, the son of Nehemiah C. Rice and Phoebe Tyler Rice. He attended school at Brownfield, Gorham and Lewiston. He removed to Portland in 1850, and two years later went to Buenos Ayres, returning to Portland in 1853, when he entered the firm of Tyler Rice & Sons, of which his father and uncle were members. That was one of the early American houses to transact business with the Argentine Republic. Mr. Rice continued business under that name in Portland until 1866, when he removed to Boston, where he formed the firm of N. W. Rice & Co., dealers and tanners of sole and upper leather, and also carrying on a large business in the importing of hides, wool and other products of the Argentine Republic and the exporting to that country of lumber and general merchandise. The business was incorporated as the N. W. Rice Company in 1900. Mr. Rice was a director of the First National Bank, the Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Company, the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Company and other corporations. He was a member of the Algonquin Club, the Union League Club of New York, The Country Club, the Exchange Club, the Beacon Society, the New Riding Club, Essex County Club, the Merchants' Club and others. November 3d, 1857 he married Miss Josephine Emery of Portland, who survives. A son, Charles G. Rice, of Boston and Ipswich; a daughter, Miss Annie T. Rice, and a sister, Miss Sara V. Rice, are also living. The deceased was in failing health during the past summer at Beverly.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Alley have returned to Boston from Hamilton and have an apartment at the Charlesgate for the winter.

SOCIETY NOTES

Miss Louie Rogers Stanwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Stanwood of Brookline and Manchester, has written a one-act play, "Another Pair of Socks." It presents humorously and engagingly an interest in the suffragette movement. Miss Stanwood is a Radcliffe college graduate and a suffragette. While Miss Stanwood is deeply interested in comedy, she is equally determined to do more serious work. Another farce, "Mrs. Alexander's Progress," written a year ago, and successfully produced at Harvard and elsewhere, will be given at Smith college this winter. A short play was presented at Keith's Bijou Theatre last winter, and it is expected that "Another Pair of Socks" will soon be staged. Miss Stanwood became interested in the suffragette movement about two years ago, and she became an ardent, eager worker. She has not yet spoken in public, but if it seemed necessary for the good of the cause she would not hesitate to do so. Miss Stanwood studied play writing for two years under the tutelage of Prof. George P. Baker of Radcliffe. What Miss Stanwood terms simply a good natured bit of railery at the expense of the anti-suffragettes is cleverly illustrated in her charming little farce, "Another Pair of Socks," which was recently produced by the members of the Massachusetts Woman's Suffrage Association. The only male part in the cast was taken by Samuel Eliot Jr., the grandson of Dr. Eliot, formerly of Harvard. The Stanwoods are among the latest sojourners at Manchester and Miss Stanwood has an ideal environment each season in which to pursue her dramatic writing. The Stanwood cottage is located at Smith's Point.

Elizabeth Ely of Beacon street, Boston, has issued a number of invitations for the debutante luncheon which she is giving at the Tuileries on the afternoon of Tuesday, December 19th. The luncheon is given in honor of Miss Charlotte Read, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Read of Read's Island, Manchester.

SOCIETY NOTES

President Taft presided for a few minutes at the seventh annual convention of the National Red Cross in Washington Tuesday of last week, and later made a brief address praising the society for efficient work during the past year. Mr. Taft was re-elected president, and the other officers were continued in office, among them Miss Mabel T. Boardman, national chairman, and a summer resident of Manchester. At the request of the management of the Panama-Pacific exposition, it was voted to invite foreign Red Cross societies to hold an international Red Cross congress at San Francisco in 1915. The report of the treasurer showed that $300,000 was expended during the past year and that $900,000 of the proposed $1,000,000 endowment fund has been raised. The Red Cross movement afforded a notable society event for the North Shore last season, when the Manchester Red Cross society held its first annual sale in August, sponsored and patronized by a most representative gathering of people.

Important among last Friday's social events was the reception and tea at the Tuileries, Commonwealth avenue, Boston, given by Mrs. Arthur Stuart Eldredge for her daughters, Miss Ellen Williams Eldredge and Miss Ida Bigelow Eldredge. The reception was given in the Napoleonic ball room. The young women who assisted included many of the debutantes of the North Shore coterie, who went on to the Bancroft dance at Copley Hall in the evening in honor of Miss Eleanor Bancroft of the Beverly colony. The Eldredge family live in South Lincoln and have a ranch in Texas.

William A. Wood of the Pride's Crossing colony, contributed $1000 for the campaign this fall as reported by the Republican state central committee. William Endicott, Jr., contributed $1000, George von L. Meyer, $500; Col. Cranmore N. Wallace, $300; Congressman A. P. Gardner, $250; Dudley L. Pickman, $100; Col. W. D. Sohler, $100; Wm. Caleb Loring, $100; Alexander Cochrane, $100; Gordon Dexter, $100; R. L. Agassiz, $100; Maxwell Norman, $100; Charles P. Curtis, $100, and Harcourt Amory, $100.

Mrs. David H. Brewer of Brookline and Pigeon Cove, entertained at luncheon Tuesday for Mrs. Francis Augustus Brewer, her daughter-in-law and a recent bride.

SOCIETY NOTES

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Higginson of Beacon street, Boston, and Pride's, for a dinner at the Somerset club on the evening of Monday, December 18th. The affair is in honor of Miss Edith Wendell, the debutante daughter of Professor and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, for whom a succession of pleasant things are being done. Mr. and Mrs. Higginson's dinner will be in the large private dining room and will be for upwards of twenty guests.

Eric Pape, who has his home at Manchester, "The Plains," adjoining the Essex County Club grounds, has returned from New York, where he has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rann Kennedy. Mr. Kennedy, who is the famous playwright (author of "The Servant in the House"), has just finished a remarkable play which will be produced in March. Mrs. Kennedy (Edith Wynne Matthison) is now touring the country in "The Piper." Mr. Pape painted Miss Matthison life size in the character of Hermione in the "Winter's Tale." This play was produced at the New Theatre in New York a year ago and was later brought to Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hayes Hammond have closed their home at Gloucester and will take up their residence in Washington for the winter. Mrs. Hammond spent two weeks in Boston before going to Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Amory Eliot of the Manchester colony, who have an apartment in the Puritan, Commonwealth avenue, Boston, for the winter, have returned from Washington where they occupied a suite at the Grafton for some days.

Dr. and Mrs. Reginald H. Fitz brought their long season at West Manchester to a close Monday and opened their Boston residence, 18 Arlington street.

A large photograph of the White House, a gift from Mrs. Taft, was a notable feature of the fair held in the parish rooms of St. Paul's Church, Boston, Monday. Attached to the picture was a card bearing a message of greeting. The fair was under the auspices of the Woman's Guild, and the proceeds are to be used for the benefit of the summer rest home at Point Allerton.

SOCIETY NOTES

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt arrived in Boston Tuesday for a brief visit. He attended the meeting of the Travelers' club in the evening, and a meeting of the Board of Overseers of Harvard college, Wednesday. During his stay Colonel Roosevelt was the guest of Professor John T. Rhodes.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. George von L. Meyer will give a dinner and dance this evening at Washington for Miss Mary Southerland and Louis Bacon of Boston, who are to be married next month.

Mrs. Richard H. Dana and her sister, Mrs. Joseph G. Thorp, were among the patronesses of the song recital Tuesday evening given by M. Henry Varillot, tenor, at the Cambridge residence of Mrs. John Fiske.

The will of the late Marian C. Upton, formerly of Marblehead and Boston has been probated. She lived in Marblehead in summer and in Boston in winter and died in the latter place a few weeks ago. She leaves a will and four codicils. Most of her estate goes to her sons, Roger and King Upton, either directly or as trustees. There is a bequest of $5000 to the Salem hospital to be known as the "George Upton fund" to provide and maintain a bed in the hospital.

Master William Burden, the little son of Mrs. Wm. A. M. Burden of New York, who occupied the Stevens cottage, Summer street, Manchester, the past season, acted as a page at the wedding of Miss Gwendolyn Burden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Townsend Burden of New York and Newport, and David Dows of New York at Grace Church, Tuesday. The other page was Master Tracy Dows. The two pages and the best man were the only attendants in the bridal party. Mrs. W. A. M. Burden, the mother of Master Wm. Burden, is an attractive young widow. Prior to her marriage she was Florence Vanderbilt Twombly, her mother being Florence A. Vanderbilt before her marriage to Hamilton McK. Twombly.

Miss Heloise Meyer has come down from Lenox for a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bemis of Beacon street, Boston, and Beverly Farms. Mrs. Bemis made an early autumn visit with Miss Meyer at Lenox.

SOCIETY NOTES

Rudyard Kipling is to figure very shortly in the appeal to all Americans for a memorial to Nathaniel Hawthorne. This interesting situation comes about through a plan of the citizens of Salem to erect a statue in memory of their great citizen. Plans have been made by Bela L. Pratt, the sculptor, for a heroic size statue of the great man of letters, seated in a chair, looking out to sea. It is planned to raise a fund of $50,000 for the statue and for a suitable site. Salem does not itself feel entirely equal to the task. A committee there has secured between $10,000 and $12,000 in money and pledges, and proposes now to appeal to the country for the rest. A large honorary committee, of which Mr. Kipling is vice president, is organizing the work of appeal. Kipling spent two seasons on the North Shore at East Gloucester, his Gloucester story, "Captains Courageous," resulting thereby. He therefore has more than a literary interest in the localities made famous by Hawthorne, as he likewise, has made literary history for the North Shore.

Among those who greeted Dr. Richard C. Maclaurin, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Mrs. Maclaurin, at Mr. and Mrs. John M. Longyear's reception at Brookline last Saturday evening were Wm. Lowell Putnam and George Wigglesworth of the Manchester colony.

A fair for the benefit of the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children will be held at the Hotel Somerset on Thursday, February 15th from 10 to 6, and Friday, February 16th, from 10 to 12. The fair is in charge of the entertainment committee, of which Mrs. S. Reed Anthony of Boston and Beverly Farms is chairman.

Secretary and Mrs. Meyer and Count Moltke were among the guests at the dinner the French ambassador and Mme. Jusserand gave in Washington, Thursday night of last week, in honor of the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Geo. Bakhtietieff. The first meeting of the dancing class formed by Viscountess de Sibour and Mrs. Preston Gibson took place at the Playhouse, Washington, the same night. There was a dinner and dance for the fifty members and their guests. These meetings will be given every Monday evening throughout the season.

SOCIETY NOTES

By mutual agreement everyone in the New York fashionable coterie is saving the night of January 11th for the costume ball for which Mrs. Austen Gray is one of the organizers with Mrs. Arthur Iselin, Mrs. Payne Whitney and Mrs. Arthur Burden. It is in aid of the outdoor work of the Lying-in Hospital. Already dinners are being arranged before the ball at Sherry's for which costumes of any period, previous to the middle of the nineteenth century will be permissible.

* * *

A bachelors' ball has been definitely arranged for this season in Boston after several attempts in previous years, which for one reason or another failed to materialize. The date has been fixed for Friday night, February 2d, in the ballroom of the Somerset, which brings it a week before the second assembly. Mesdames Roger Wolcott, Charles S. Sargent, Bryce J. Allan and Francis Lee Higginson are the four patronesses representing the older and the younger married set. Messrs. Samuel D. Parker, chairman; Randolph C. Grew, Benjamin Joy and William Prescott Wolcott are on the committee, and 50 other bachelors are subscribers. It is doubtful if there will be any cotillon, as that feature has ceased to be the vogue this season to any extent, giving place to general dancing. It promises to be a notable success in every way.

Mrs. John C. Phillips of Boston and North Beverly, was a passenger for Europe on the outgoing Arabic.

Too Many Accidents Says Col. Sohier

"We have too many automobile accidents on our highways and too much recklessness," says Col. Wm. D. Sohier of the Massachusetts Highway commission.

The reign of recklessness that has seized upon so many of the motorists on Massachusetts highways during the past fortnight has aroused both the public and state and city officials.

The police are more alert and the Highway commission is now doubling all of the suspension of license penalties, in an effort to curb some of these violations of the law of the road.

Col. Sohier, a man who has made a long and thorough-going study of automobile laws and regulations, and one who has amassed an enormous quantity of statistics concerning automobile accidents and their causes, admits that conditions are not as they should be and offers some reasons for the existing state of affairs, gives some suggestions and some statistics showing that progress is being made toward the suppression of recklessness, both by the commission and by the automobilists themselves.

Holmes Transferred

Walter F. Holmes, for some time assistant in charge of the state moth work along the North Shore, has been transferred to the South Shore where he will have charge of the work. L. H. Worthley, state superintendent, is to go to Washington with the government forces the first of the year and some changes will follow his departure.

MYSTERY ISLANDS

Residents Desire to be Incorporated As Separate Town.

Inhabitants of Mystery Islands, situated off the Beverly Farms shore, have petitioned the State Legislature to incorporate them as separate township. Being about five miles from City hall, they find it difficult to have their needs attended to by the City of Salem. Among these needs may be mentioned, police and fire protection, lighting and care of their streets and walks, schooling for their children, etc., etc.

There are now about a dozen families, and the Inn on the Island, making about one hundred inhabitants, who find paying taxes to Salem without any return, very irksome, and they think there is no logical argument why they should not have the conduct of their own affairs.

If all their requirements were attended to by Salem, the Islands would prove quite a burden to the city, and they see no reason why all the needs should not be granted if they continue to pay the city taxes.

An interesting bit of history in regard to the Islands is, that the city leased them to George Curwen of Salem in 1677 for 1000 years, which lease was afterwards confirmed in 1731 by the selectmen of Salem, deeding the right of reversion to Benj. Marston, who had bought the lease of the George Curwen estate, and stating in the deed that "Town of Salem should never have any claim or interest of any name or nature in the Islands." This seems as if they realized even 200 years ago that the inhabitants on the Islands were the proper people to take charge of their own affairs.

SOCIETY NOTES

American Beauty and Killarney roses were used in the attractive decorations at the buffet supper Mr. and Mrs. Harry Darlington, Jr., gave in their home in Irwin avenue, Northside, Pittsburg, Wednesday evening of last week supplementing the theatre party at the Nixon, given in honor of Miss Mary Black Snyder, a debutante. Ten boxes were occupied, the guests including Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Curry, Jr., of the Magnolia colony, and the Misses Marion and Lois McGinley of the Manchester contingent.

The Billings cottage on the Shore Road, Magnolia, has been sold to H. C. Converse of Boston. A plot of 4 acres of land on the Shore Road, Magnolia, near Strawberry Brook has been sold to L. M. Cuthbert of Denver, Colo. Both sales were made through Johnathan May's agency.

Appleton, who has just completed his first year in office. The company consisted of 33 members and associate members who ride to hounds, and all were eloquent in their commendation of the skill and address exhibited in the discharge of his official duties by the guest of honor.

Mrs. John Hays Hammond is considered one of the strongest personalities in Washington society. She is as dominant a figure in her world as Mr. Hammond is appraised in his. They have resided for the past three winters in the home of the former Vice President and Mrs. Levi P. Morton, at the intersection of Rhode Island avenue and 15th street, and they added largely to the social history of that historical house.

January 17th has been chosen for the wedding day of Miss Elizabeth L. Colt daughter of Judge and Mrs. LeBaron B. Colt of Providence, R. I., and Andrew Weeks Anthony, Harvard, '09, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Reed Anthony of Boston and Beverly Farms. Miss Colt is the eldest of the three daughters of her family. Her sisters are Miss Beatrice Colt, who is to be maid of honor at the wedding, and Miss Primrose Colt. The bridesmaids will be Miss Ruth Anthony of Boston, sister of the prospective bridegroom; Miss Virginia Shepley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Shepley of Providence; Miss Gladys C. Baker, daughter of Mrs. David S. Baker of Wickford, R. I., and Miss Helena McCauley of Torresdale, Pa. At the wedding the officiating clergymen will be Rt. Rev. James De Wolf Perry, Jr., bishop of Rhode Island, Rev. George McClellan Fiske, D. D., rector of St. Stephens' Church, in Providence, and Rev. George L. Locke, D. D., rector of St. Michael's Church, in Bristol, R. I. The engagement of Miss Colt to Mr. Anthony was announced early in September. The prospective bride is the sister of Russell G. Colt, who married Ethel Barrymore.

Miss Frances G. Curtis returned from her European trip last week, being a passenger on the incoming Arabic. Miss Curtis, who is a daughter of Mrs. Greely S. Curtis of Boston and Manchester, departed from the North Shore the middle of September.

Mrs. Gertrude Walker-Crowley, of Salem, who gave such a successful song recital at Steinert Hall, Boston, recently, has opened a studio at Room 1, Mason Building, Beverly, where she will be Wednesday afternoon and evening and where she will receive applicants and try voices.

SOCIETY NOTES

Among the dinners in Washington, last Saturday evening, was that which ex-Senator and Mrs. Aldrich gave in compliment to Louis Bacon of the Tennis and Racquet club, Boston, and his fiancee, Miss Mary Southerland, of the Magnolia contingent, whose visits to Boston have been many. Invitations for the wedding of Mr. Bacon and Miss Southerland were issued early last week by Rear Admiral and Mrs. Southerland, scores finding their way to Boston. The nuptial knot will be tied at the home of the Southerlands on the afternoon of Thursday, January 3d, and will be followed by a small reception. On the evening before the wedding Senator DuPont is giving a dinner for Mr. Bacon and Miss Southerland at which Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield will preside. The bride-elect is an intimate friend of Mrs. Crowninshield, and was her guest at Peach's Point, Marblehead, several weeks ago. Mrs. Crowninshield will go to Washington after the holidays to spend the winter with her father, Senator DuPont. Sunday Capt. and Mrs. U. S. Grant, 3d, gave a dinner at their Washington residence in honor of Mr. Bacon and Miss Southerland.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Longfellow of New York and Manchester, were lately heard from in Naples, where they were occupying an apartment at Bertolini's Palace Hotel and making trips to the nearby picturesque resorts.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell Jr., of Boston and Pride's were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Philip S. Sears at the opera on last Friday night in the Herbert M. Sears' box. Mr. and Mrs. Wendell gave a dinner on the night previous, at their home, 265 Clarendon street, Boston, for Prof. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell of Harvard.

Miss Margaret Preston Draper of Washington and Manchester, will make her debut in Washington, December 27th by an elaborate function which promises to be the piece de resistance of the capital season. It will take the form of a ball. Birds, butterflies and rare exotics will be found in a miniature garden at the ball. Miss Draper is the daughter of the late Gen. Wm. F. Draper of Hopedale and Washington, and niece of Ex-Governor Eben S. Draper. Gen. Draper was at one time the United States minister to Italy. He was a big man in the affairs of the country, a brave soldier who won his way from second lieutenant up, in the Civil War.

Boston Opera House

The appearances of Mme. Eames, deferred through her sudden illness, are now announced for this coming week, at the Boston Opera House. Mme. Eames will make her bow to the Boston public Monday evening when she will sing the role of Floria Tosca in Puccini's opera of the same name. Associated with her will be Florencio Constantino in the part of Maria Cavaradossi and Giovanni Polese in that of Baron Scarvia. It is some years since Boston has heard Mme. Eames as Tosca but those who remember her will gladly testify that her impersonation differs both in its vocal coloring and dramatic outline from the many Toscas Boston has had an opportunity to hear.

On Wednesday night Samson et Dalila will be repeated with the same cast as in the former performances.

Friday evening will see the first appearance this season of Otello. This performance will also mark the second and last appearance of Mme. Eames this season in grand opera.

The Desdemona of Mme. Eames has been looked upon as her best creation. The role fitting her both vocally and temperamentally to perfection. Giovanni Zenatello will sing the title role and opera-goers remember well the splendid performance he gave in this opera during the past season.

The Saturday matinee will be marked by the first presentation of Mignon, on the stage of the Boston Opera House, the delightful opera by Thomas. Mignon will serve to present Mme. Luisa Trazzini in a role in which she has not been heard in this country, namely that of Filina. Fely Dereyne, who will make her debut this season at this performance will be the Mignon and Edmond Clement the Wilhelm Meister, a role said to be numbered among the best in his repertoire. The rest of the cast will be Miss Jeska Swartz, Leon Rothier, D. Leo, Barreau and Letol. Wallace Goodrich will conduct.

Bereaved widow (to country editor): "Do you charge for obituary notice, Mr. Shears."

Country editor: "As a general thing we do, Mrs. Bentley; but your husband and I were old friends, and I will only be too glad to publish his obituary for nothing."

A Tale of Heraldry

The Coat of Arms in America

By Rev. Louis H. Ruge

(Copyrighted 1911 by Louis H. Ruge)

IT HAS been assumed by many that a coat of arms in America is fatal to the principles of democratic simplicity and therefore the art has been neglected for generations by American families, until much of the data of armorial descent has been lost and very much tangled up in the debris of building our great democracy.

But many of the founders of the United States brought these evidences of noble descent with them and their household belongings were all blazoned over with arms. They severed no family connections, they lost and repudiated no honorable descent by becoming American pioneers and building the foundations of a great republic. Many of the American names date back so far that the descent is lost in the picturesque setting of crowns and coronets and the lines should be made legible before they are entirely obliterated.

While yet New England was a colony of Great Britain a few of the old families here were honored with titles and coat of arms and everywhere old tombstones and household effects testify to noble descent.

A coat of arms was frequently seen in Colonial days in New England, the south, and in fact in all the original thirteen states after the establishment of independence.

The art of engraving and printing seals and painting armorial bearings in America began as early as 1730-1735 in New England. And back of the discovery of America the red man had his symbolisms in totem characters, emblems of distinction perhaps as old as any of the east. In the founding of the nation there is a coat of arms. The very day of the Declaration of Independence, July 4th, 1776, Congress appointed a committee to devise a national coat of arms although the results were not approved until June 20th, 1782. The inauguration of Washington was graced by the heraldic arms of the new nation, they being emblazoned on the panels of the chariot in which he rode.

For over half a century American students of heraldry have given us volumens and pamphlets on the subject of the coat of arms in America. As far back as 1865 a committee of heraldry was appointed by the "New England Historic and Genealogical Society" in reference to conserving records and bringing order out of chaos upon this subject.

Bryce, about twenty-five years ago, in "American Commonwealth" mentions carriages with armorial devices in the social cavalcade at Newport. There is every evidence today that the "alieni temporis flores" (blossoms of a bygone time) are blooming in modern times and may become of rarer beauty than of yore.

Democratic though we may be, what is there inconsistent in this use of a family coat of arms? Why openly deride a coat of arms and insignias of rank when the most pronounced partisan of republican simplicity cherishes a longing for some mark of individual superiority? It is claimed by some that a coat of arms as a social practice is at variance with our form of government; that it fosters a passion for family precedence, social rank and exclusiveness that does not conform to a constitution and principles that repudiate these very things. But the privilege of displaying the armorial bearings of ancestors can be denied. That right cannot be at issue.

Our democracy and its wonderful unfolding is the evolution and fruit of aristocracy largely. Why should the child despise its parent? The "gentle art of arms" as practiced by colonial ancestors is sufficient warrant for preserving these honorable emblems. It is no sign of decadence to hand down this descent in legible form to posterity. It is rather a sign of decadence to allow them to fault. These symbols found upon old documents, plate, tombstones and other antiques, showing a wide use of heraldic devices in America call indeed for reverend treatment and preservation. As well might we scorn the work of the Congressional Committee that resulted in our national coat of arms as to repudiate such a family possession. Each of the states is a possessor of a coat of arms. Every order of the day has its treasured insignias. There is not an organization, the most insignificant, that does not endeavor to distinguish itself and its members by some mark characteristic.

From old Massachusetts, whose coat of arms more nearly conforms to the laws of heraldry than any other state perhaps, to the humblest village of the land and the most obscure order of the day, the official seal of distinction is cherished and the privilege may not be denied the individual or family.

The records upon this subject are in great confusion in America. New York and the south are almost hopelessly tangled up. The records of New England are considered the best of all because of its pure English ancestral strain. But there are enough families today in America zealously and feverishly engaged in recovering and untangling what remains, even if many a knot is cut and the ends tied up to something, preferably the better lines of descent. Americans, with their gift for ingenuity, will see to it that a few difficulties in no way interfere with the full unfolding and display of a possible authentic coat of arms that shall be made to flourish on the boulevards from the Atlantic to the Pacific to put the old knights and ladies to shame; and we may well imagine the spirits of a couple of the knights of the siege of Caerlaverock, for instance, leaping out of the way of an American gasolene chariot with its blazonry, saying to each other, "What's the use?"

The renaissance of arms is really essential in the study of racial descent and of practical importance to history. By a knowledge of heraldry many glaring anachronisms may be detected or avoided in literature, architecture and art. A mistake, like the stars and stripes waving over Washington in the famous picture of "Crossing the Delaware" in December 1776, when the flag was not adopted until June 14, 1777, would have been avoided by a knowledge of this art. Also the display of the Union Jack twenty-five years before its existence, as seen in the picture of the "Boston Boys and General Gage."

Zieber in his book, "Heraldry in America," whose work is well worth reading, contends that among civilized and learned people heraldry is not only a pleasant study, but even necessary in the higher refinement and culture of today. Many of the classics and standard poems appear full of references to this art, and operas and musical compositions like Wagner's "Lohengrin," which is founded upon the Knights, championship of Elsa's innocence, are better comprehended. Under a careful study and analysis of the art of heraldry we begin to see that it means something more than a mere proud display of the emblems of social precedence and that it has its place in human history.

BEVERLY'S NEW LIBRARY

Plans Now Perfected for New Building of Brick and White Marble

Beverly's new library building will have the appearance of a one story building in the front elevation. It will be colonial in style, constructed of brick and white marble; the marble shows in the basement above the grass line. The wide cornice and balustrade that surround the roof with their support of pilasters at intervals, with the window and door frames, will also be of marble.

The heavy cornice and balustrade will be continued around the main building only, a lighter cornice surmounting the stack room, which will be built of brick, broken by the continuous row of windows from top to bottom required by stack construction.

The building will be approached by two short flights of steps with a terrace between them. The main entrance to the building will be under a porch advanced about eight feet in the centre of the front. In designing this entrance, the architect, Cass Gilbert, has departed from the usual colonial type of colonnade and has protected his door by a curved recess, roofed by a half dome, suitably ornamented with white terracotta blocks.

This is an original conception in a colonial building, but one for which there is ample authority if we reflect that "Colonial" architecture is simply the American version of the English "Georgian," of which the principal exponent was Sir Christopher Wren; and this especial style was a return to Classic models, after the long reign of Gothic architecture in Europe.

On entering the building, one will find himself in a vestibule, where the marble walls offer opportunity for memorial tablets. A glass wall divides the vestibule from the central halls, 30 by 17 feet, at the back of which is the delivery desk. This hall will be furnished with proper cases for the display of new books, etc. At the left of the hall is the general reading room, and at the right an equally large one for children; each will seat comfortably forty persons at the tables.

The building will be as nearly fire proof as a building can be. It will be constructed of iron, coated with cement. The floors will be of terazzo and cement, and in one or two rooms only of hard wood over the cement. It will also be water proofed, with the purpose of protecting the books from the dampness that often injures them in less carefully constructed buildings.

Mr. Gilbert was much pleased by the site furnished by the city, but said at once, "in order to build suitably, the Burnham property ought to be added to it." The Commissioners thereupon appealed for help and obtained the necessary amount from these generous persons: Miss E. P. Sohier, $5,000; William Endicott, $1,000; Mrs. R. D. Evans, Messrs. D. L. Pickman and W. D. Sohier $500 each; Mrs. F. H. Peabody, $100.

A water color drawing of the new library can be seen in the old library in the City Hall.

The Shop Early Christmas Campaign

The shop early habit which has been the aim of many large minded and careful people for years has been taken up vigorously and successfully by the merchants of Boston. Already the movement has resulted in great gains and the receipts for the early days of December indicate that more purchases have been made than ever before at this early date. This is due not so much to increased total purchases of Christmas goods as in increase in early purchases. The movement has been endorsed by Catholic and Protestant clergymen. A Bishop of the Roman church, now a Cardinal, and the Bishop of the diocese of Massachusetts have endorsed the campaign. The Boston Chamber of Commerce has been the force back of the present efforts. The public may assert that the motives involved are pecuniary, with an organized effort to maintain the Christmas trade throughout December. Objections have been raised to lining up the churches for a "trade movement" under the false pretense of assisting in alleviating the cares and worry thrown upon the trades-clerks and saleswomen. Such an argument is unfair for there is a real sense in which the Christmas gift purchasing is limited. The rich and poor will plan a certain list of gifts and when these are in hand, the work is done and the purchasing ends. Almost everyone has just so many gifts to make and no more. When these are purchased the buying ceases automatically. The church has taken a noble position and every thinking woman and man agrees with its humane advocacy of the interests of those who stand at counters. If there is a net gain to others in this movement it is a contributing impulse, not the real reason for the crusade.

The Post Office Problem

Christmas comes on Monday this year, necessitating additional purchases and arrangements upon Saturday. Saturday, always a difficult day, has an added burden due to the two days following this year. Postmaster Mansfield has found it wise to issue the request that all Christmas gifts be mailed early. They can be mailed early next week and marked "Do not open until Christmas." If the residents of Beverly Farms, Manchester and Magnolia will carefully plan their Christmas mailing they will insure not only a certain delivery in time for Christmas but will distribute the work to be done by the postoffices over a longer period of time. Christmas packages to be mailed about Boston should be mailed as early as Wednesday and Christmas gifts going to a distance ought to be mailed earlier. It is calculated that it will take twice as long to handle the deliveries next week. The cheerful, efficient service rendered to Beverly Farms by Postmaster Brooks and his efficient assistants and Postmaster Wheaton of Manchester, and his corps of faithful workers to Manchester is appreciated by the public but it is fair that the public should give tangible expression to this appreciation by a little forethought the coming week.

Russian Problem

The Russian problem is assuming threatening proportions in the "yellow journals" of America and in the careless thought of the people. Herein lies one of the dangers of our republic. Public opinion is a mighty force properly directed and public interest in problems of government are valuable, but when this interest assumes the task of dictation or intermeddling the blessing becomes a curse. No other matter of public interest for years has given worse evidence of the dangers of unwise public agitation on an international problem. No one believes in the restraint of public opinion but in the adjustment of a difficult problem such as President Taft and Ambassador Guild have on hand, it would seem not only apparent but a part of country loyalty to await the action of the Government and not embarrass it by activities which can only cause confusion. The House Committee on Foreign Affairs is justified in the spirit which they have shown in resenting the Russian carelessness of the rights of some of our American citizens. As the matter is under adjustment between the Ambassador and the President a suspension of judgment by that committee would accomplish in the end the desired result. Not so much by the abrogation of the treaty of 1832 with Russia but by insuring safety and protection for all American citizens in Russia with American passports. If the treaty of 1832 be abrogated the problem will not be solved. The end desired is the recognition of the American passports and the protection of American Jews. This will not be gained by an abrogation of the treaty.

The Liquor Problem.

This is one of the most difficult problems of the State. The curse is generally recognized and the terms of its regulations only are open for discussion. The State of Massachusetts has committed itself to a policy of local option, that is the settlement of license or no-license in a specific city or town. The question can never be local, however, for the North Shore is interested not only in the settlement of the problem within its own borders—for its life is affected by the license votes in Salem, Beverly, Gloucester and even Lynn. The last trains from these cities on Saturday evenings, particularly, tell their own sad story. Every police officer knows what license in Gloucester, Salem or Lynn means for the police force on the whole North Shore. It is a matter of deep regret that Gloucester cannot establish a stable sentiment on the Liquor Question. It almost seems that a "reckless minority" is able to swing Gloucester from the "No" to the "Yes" column. It is a pity that its policy cannot be fixed and stable and be relieved from the element that is able to raise havoc so constantly, year after year. The vote on Tuesday shows a net gain for the control of the liquor problem and Salem and Lynn remained in the no-license column. This is a good sign. The constant shifting of the vote from one side to the other in consecutive years is a doubtful "dry" victory. Beverly lost, because of the light election vote, nearly 418 votes for no-license. There was a loss of only 45 "yes" votes. It is a serious question in the face of these figures whether the city is pursuing the wisest policy in not making each year some effort to educate the "yes" voters to "no" voting. It will be seen that the "yes" column lost only one vote to ten "no" votes lost.

Augustus Peabody Loring, Jr., Alderman

Mr. Loring was reelected by a gratifying majority and while there was another candidate in the field it cannot be said that there was any real contest. The vote was a compliment of the Ward to Mr. Loring's faithful and efficient service. The attitude which he took in facing the election was admirable and the results justified the position. He has been doing things for the Ward. The office of alderman in his district calls for much time and hard work. Mr. Loring has given up evening after evening to the work of the City and the public spirit which has prompted the activity is commendable. He can be depended upon for open and public management of the problems of the municipality.

The Chicago City Council have passed a new law in the interests of lower cost of living requiring all purchase measurements to be by weight rather than by space. New York tried out a plan to weigh eggs. Chicago proposes to sell potatoes, and other food stuffs by weight. This may help, but the measure is only a poultice. It may alleviate but cannot cure. The trouble is deep-seated and in the blood. Deeper laws are at work than these of alleged dishonesty.

The City of Boston is viewing with altogether too much apprehension the not improbable removal of the Navy Yard. If the move is a National Economy what reasonable argument can Boston put up save that of local selfishness. There are two sides to the problem. In the end Boston cannot lose by the removal. Such a Water Front can be developed to a much greater advan-

The Voyage

As your bark swiftly glides o'er life's troubled seas,

Battling first with the storm king and then with fair breeze,

While nearing that far away shore,

When the trials of life seem a burden,

And we dream of those happy days past

When hopes seem to meet disappointment,

When misfortune and troubles come fast,—

Don't despair, but stand firm and have courage;

Remember the storm cannot last—

Soon the moon will turn wild waves to silver,

The sun gild the storm clouds with gold.

With your bark riding safely at anchor

Hear the half that's never been told.

Congressman Gardner can be depended upon in doing all within his power to develop Beverly Harbor. The resolutions passed by the Board of Alderman of the City of Beverly gives the endorsement of that body to the project. It is a reasonable request and doubtless will be granted.

Wife—Well, I thought of a bronze figure for the mantelpiece—and a Persian rug. What are you going to give me?

Vaniman's Airship Tuning Up For Flight to Europe

Photos by American Press Association.

"TO Europe in sixty hours!" is the slogan of Melvin Vaniman, the aviator, and Frank A. Selberling, the man who has financed his transatlantic ballooning enterprise. The dirigible Akron, named in compliment to the home town of the aviator's "angel," was built to carry a crew of five men besides Vaniman himself and with a gas carrying capacity of 400,000 cubic feet. The Wellman airship America, which the Akron replaced as the craft designed to make the first aerial trip across the ocean, was smaller and less powerful than the Akron, with its four engines of 817 horsepower placed in the keel of the steel substructure and calculated to maintain a speed of thirty-six miles an hour. "A dirigible," said Mr. Vaniman while making his preparations at Atlantic City for the transatlantic voyage, "is just like a feather. If it gets into a storm it goes just as fast as the storm. I will wait until a storm has developed on this coast and is well on its way toward Europe. Then I will run in behind it, and the Akron will be drawn by the storm at the same speed it is traveling." Mr. Vaniman was a teacher of music before he devoted himself to aeronautics.

our Christmas tree so bright and green, awaits Old Santa Claus,
And the chimney place all swept and clean gapes wide its ponderous jaws.
The little stockings are all hung up, and baby's just makes four. Won't old Santa Claus be surprised when he finds there is one more!
There's an elegant place up in the tree to hang Johnny's gun, and a place for May and one for Kate to leave their dolls upon. But for little baby blue eyes, a lower branch he must choose, where she may reach and find the place he's hung her first new shoes.
Turn down the light a little now, so Old Santa Claus can see; baby and all must go to bed and be as good as can be, and to mor-

night's sleep, and come softly down to the Christmas tree and see
Who will get the first peep.

Summer-like Weather

The weather of the early part of this week has been most unusual for this season of the year and seldom has it been as warm in December as it was on Sunday. Soft, balmy weather prevailed all day, and the sun shone from an almost cloudless sky. The weather reminded one of April rather than bleak December. Ladies' Social Circle Hold Fair in Town Hall

The Ladies' Social circle of the Manchester Congregational church held a sale and entertainment in the Town hall Wednesday and Thursday evening of this week. Like occasions of a similar nature held under the auspices of this society in the past the affair was a success.

The executive committee in charge of the affair was: Mrs. F. M. Andrews, chairman; Mrs. Wheaton and Mrs. Julia Currea. The chairman of the committees in charge of the various tables and booths were: fancy, Miss Martha C. Knight; domestic, Mrs. L. W. Floyd; apron, Mrs. S. A. Sinnicks; cake, Mrs. G. W. Blaisdell; candy, Mrs. E. A. Lane; ice cream, Mrs. Mabel Morgan; mystery pump, Mrs. John Baker. Mrs. Currea was chairman of the entertainment committee.

The entertainment program presented Wednesday evening included: vocal solo "A Winter Lullaby" de Koven, Miss Stenhouse, with violin obligato by Miss Porter; dancing the minuet by four boys and four girls, dressed in the costume of George and Martha Washington; quartet, F. J. Merrill, A. C. Needham, Roland Knight and A. L. Sabin; recitation, "Wreck of the Hesperus," Miss Edgecomb; solo, "The Rose and the Gardener," Miss Stenhouse, with encore, "A Disappointment."

Thursday evening's entertainment consisted of selections by the High school orchestra; vocal solos, "Twas You" and "Silver Threads Among the Gold," by Mrs. Raymond C. Allen; and the very pretty pantomime "Bobby Shaftoe," in which the three children were John Robertson, Helen Beaton and Ruth Bell, with Mrs. F. G. Cheever as soloist.

MANCHESTER

The very mild weather brought the deer in generous numbers to the vicinity of Singing Beach. They wandered out of the woods and over the neighboring estates and were very tame.

Morley, Flatley & Co. have discontinued work on the grounds of the enlarged E. L. Wood estate on Cobb avenue until spring.

Harry Coulter, son of James Coulter, of the Walker estate, this town, was a most noticeable figure at the recent horse-show of the Park Riding school, Boston. Mr. Coulter carried away a number of first prizes. In the class for road fours, Mr. Coulter won the prize. He drove the "Happy Days" coach which is so well remembered on the North Shore last season. His driving was also among the best exhibitions. His skill in that direction won him the cup and blue ribbon. Mr. Coulter also entered a new horse, a valuable addition to his splendid string. The animal is "Mr. Joe" recently purchased in New York. "Mr. Joe" was ridden by Joseph H. Collins. He brought a prize to his owner in the class for saddle horses.

Liberty Rebekah Lodge Entertain

Last Friday evening about 100 members of Friendship Rebekah lodge of Beverly came to Manchester to pay a fraternal visit to Liberty Rebekah lodge. Supper was served in the Town hall at 6.30, one hundred sixty partaking. Following the supper of cold meats, salads, etc., a short business meeting of the local lodge was held and the balance of the evening was given over to entertainment and sociability. Prof. Wallace of Boston, humorist and singer, kept the gathering in good spirits the whole evening. The visitors were highly pleased with the hearty manner in which the local lodge entertained them and will endeavor to repay the compliment at some future date.

"How is it you have so many young men call on you?" asked a jealous girl.

"Because," was the reply, "father has the gout in one foot and the rheumatism in the other; besides, we don't keep a dog."

"Pa," said little Johnny, "teacher is thinking about promoting me."

"How do you know?"

"From what she said today."

"And what was that?"

"She said that if I kept on I'd belong to the criminal class."

Mr. Boyle was thrown onto the auto, but escaped with slight bruises and scratches. The car was uninjured, save bent fenders and one lamp broken. The car is owned by a Boston doctor.

Rev. and Mrs. L. H. Ruge were called to New York last Friday by the death of the latter's uncle, Col. Ethan Allen, lawyer, author, and descendant of his namesake of revolutionary fame. He was eighty years old and wealthy. Col. Allen at the outbreak of the civil war enlisted, was commissioned a colonel, and organized and equipped the famous Blair's brigade. He managed Horace Greeley's campaign for the presidency.

The members of the Republican Town committee, with one exception, went to Boston Tuesday on an outing. They dined at a French cafe and saw "Everywoman" at the Majestic theatre in the evening. This was not a junketing party, may we inform voters, for there is never enough money in the treasury of the committee to even purchase car fares to Boston, much less theatres, dinners, etc.

Mortgage Burned at Manchester Baptist Church

A feature of the sale and entertainment of the Church Aid society, in the vestry of the Baptist church, Manchester, Tuesday evening, was the burning of the mortgage on the parsonage. As announced at the annual supper and roll-call of the church last week, a friend of the church had given a check to make the last payment of something over $100 and thus wipe out the indebtedness on the parsonage. Hasty plans were made by the Church Aid society for wiping out the debt and to burn the mortgage.

In his remarks Rev. A. G. Warner, the new pastor, praised the good work of the aid society and told how a short time ago the mortgage on the parsonage was $1300, and that by hard work they had reduced this a little at a time, until finally through the generosity of a friend the last $125 had been paid, the society having succeeded in paying $1175 of the original debt.

Deacon T. B. Stone in his remarks gave a brief history of the building of the parsonage, from the time the land was purchased until the present time.

Mrs. Helen Willmorton, president of the society, touched the match to the mortgage and the pastor offered prayer as the flames ate up the paper.

Other features of the entertainment of the evening were: piano solo, Miss Gladys Hildreth; readings, Mrs. Mary Lucas and Mrs. Mary Allen; piano solo, Mrs. Chester Cook; readings, Mrs. J. Davis Baker, Mrs. Nellie Rogers and Miss Effie Stidstone; piano solo, Allyn Brown; reading, Mrs. Charlotte Brown.

The articles offered for sale the first of the evening were quickly disposed of. The tables were in charge of the following: fancy table, Mrs. Edward Crowell and Mrs. L. B. Harvie; fancy apron, Mrs. Nellie Rogers; domestic, Mrs. Helen Willmorton; candy, Mrs. Byron Bullock and Miss Lutz; cake, Mrs. Alice Preston.

Mrs. Story was upstairs when she heard the commotion, she said to herself it must be an earthquake—it's safer to be on the ground floor so descended. She found what proved to be a "surprise party." Mr. and Mrs. Story were presented with a mission chair, Mr. Frank E. Buckley making the presentation speech. The party brought a bountiful collation of ice cream, confectionery and fruit. Games were played and a fine social evening enjoyed.

Following the Old Timers' Variety Show, which has been attracting crowded houses to B. F. "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine"

Eugene Walter's dramatization of John Fox's widely read story of the same name, is the holiday attraction announced for the Boston Theatre. It is the latest as well as one of the most magnificent productions made by Klaw & Erlanger, and since its premiere with Charlotte Walker a few weeks ago it has met with tremendous success, playing to crowded houses wherever it has appeared, especially in Philadelphia, where the production has held the stage at the Broad Street Theatre for the past five weeks playing to capacity audiences nightly. The play shows the brilliant dramatist Eugene Walter at his best. Of course Mr. Fox's delightful character June has been emphasized and those who followed the story of her love for the engineer in the book and met with her jealous cousin Dave, the rough yet sincere and affectionate father, Judge Tolliver, the simple and humorous Uncle Billy Baen, the primitive Old Hun with her pipe of clay, the strong and manly Hale and the gentle Berkley will revel in the visualization of the stage characters and the pictures of the mountaineer's household, which are all strikingly impressive by the nobility and breadth of their portrayal. Klaw & Erlanger have spared neither pains, expense nor artistic ability to give "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" a truly splendid production. It is a production that will please the most fastidious theatregoer, and Charlotte Walker has lent to the charac-

Contrary to expectations, there was a great interest shown in Ward 6 in the city election, there being 276 votes cast, of which three were women, who took advantage of their privilege and right to vote for the school committee. It was thought that owing to the quiet campaign and lack of candidates seeking berths in the city council, that the Ward 6 voters would not come out strongly, but the contest for alderman-at-large, the opposition to alderman Loring's re-election, the license question and the Firemen's pension act proved a sufficient attraction.

It almost is Christmas. We hardly can wait to hang up the stockings alongside the grate. A bustle and sparkle pervades all around; the fir trees are cut and there's snow on the ground. The children, excited and thrilled with delight, are dreaming of Santa Claus all through the night. They wake up and listen to sounds on the roof which is to their fancies a reindeer's wee hoof. The old folks, more eager than even the tots, are burning with secrets and brimming with plots. Mince pies in the pantries delicious and sweet of mother's own making are ready to eat. It almost is Christmas; St. Nick in his sleigh all loaded with treasures is coming this way. His reindeer are flying; a day or two more and down through the chimney he'll bound to the floor. And then if the stockings are not in their place, in sorrow he'll vanish and leave not a trace. So hang up the stockings by chimneys with care the night before Christmas; St. Nick will be there.

Humorous Stories

Young Husband: "Flour, I see, is going up again."

Young wife: "Never mind, George. We need not buy it. We can buy baker's bread. Besides it saves the trouble of baking."

Brother, don't stop your paper just because you don't agree with the editor. The last cabbage you sent in didn't agree with us either, but we didn't drop you from our subscription list on that account. No, we simply said: "Make us thankful for what we are about to receive"—and after we received it we were not able to say anything.

Stella: "Oh Bella, how glad I am! I haven't seen you for ages!"

Bella: "Hush! You will give us both away."

OUR WATCH DEPARTMENT

Our reputation for high grade watches has been obtained through forty years of careful study of the products of the best manufacturers. We use only the most reliable makes of American and imported watches. The greatest care is used in selection of both movements and cases and every watch sold carries our guarantee.

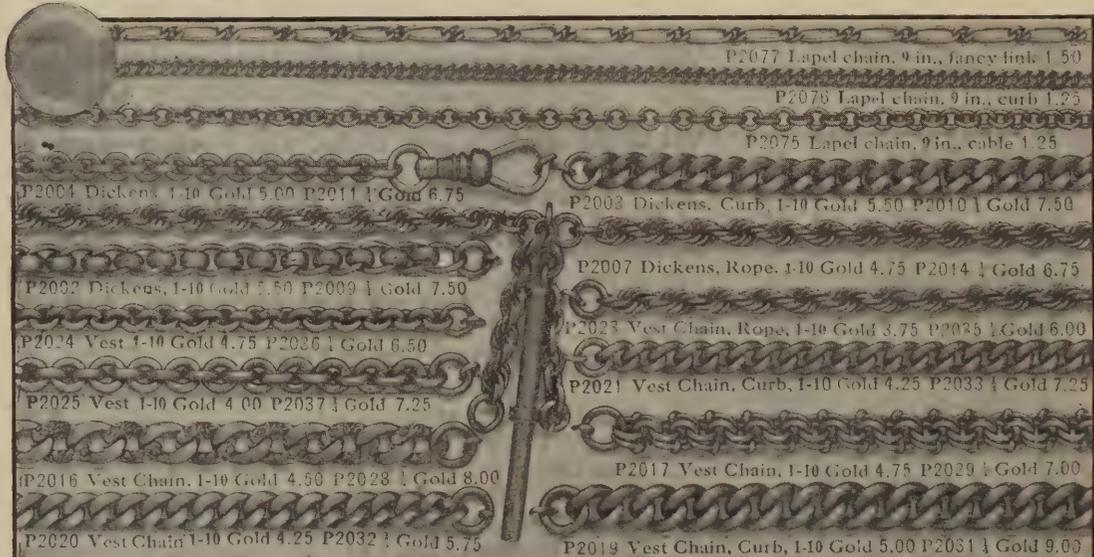

A good case is necessary for the protection of a good movement and the appearance of the watch is dependent upon its style and finish. Yet while these essential qualities add much to the value of a watch, they need not increase the price.

Unless you request immediate delivery, the watch is given in charge of an expert watchmaker who regulates it before shipping.

Read your order carefully before mailing. Discretionary orders giving an idea of the style desired and the amount one wishes to invest in a watch will receive the benefit of our best judgment.

FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Owing to the time required for engraving, the necessary adjustment, and regulation we advise early purchase of watches.

MEN'S GOLD FILLED CHAINS. Illustrations are actual size. The vest chains have bar and drop chain for attaching charm. The Dickens chains have bar and drop chain in centre, a swivel on one end for attaching watch, and on the other end, a spring ring for attaching knife, cigar cutter, etc. The coat chains have on one end a button to attach to lapel of coat, and on the other end a swivel for watch. The 1/2 gold chains are the finest made, 1/2 of their weight being solid 12k gold. They have such a thick shell of gold that a solid gold chain will have worn thin to the breaking point before the shell wears through on a 1/2 gold chain. The 1-10 gold chains are warranted for ten years. They are a very fine quality chain, 1-10 of the weight being solid 12k gold.

If in doubt what to give send for a Gift Certificate

Simply remit to us in the usual manner the amount you wish to spend, giving us the name and full address of the person to whom the certificate is to be issued. We will send a copy of our catalogue to their address unless they are a regular customer, so they can make their own selections. The certificate will be sent to the purchaser unless we are requested to mail it to the same address as the catalogue.

SOCIETY NOTES

An early New Year marriage will be that of Miss Lois Frost of West Newton and Miles Weeks of Commonwealth avenue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren B. P. Weeks of Boston and Beverly, and nephew of Mrs. S. Reed Anthony of Boston and Beverly Farms. The ceremony will take place in the West Newton Unitarian church and will be a large affair. Rev. Julian C. Jaynes will officiate. There will be eight bridesmaids.

Among Mrs. Henry Pratt McKean's functions on her Boston social calendar was a musicale at her sister's home on Beacon street which she is occupying this winter. De Gorgorza was the artist. Mme. Emma Eames-De Gorgorza was present but did not sing. Mrs. McKean was attired in black and white with silver and touches of cerise. After the music supper was served. Among the many guests who enjoyed Mrs. McKean's notable hospitality were: Mrs. Horatio N. Slater, Mr. and Mrs. William Hooper, Mrs. George Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sears and Herbert Sears, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Curtis, Charles Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dumaresq, Miss Alison Houghton and her brothers, Lawrence and Malcolm Graeme Houghton, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Watson, Mr. and Mrs. T. Adamowski, and Mr. and Mrs. Boylston Beal.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Gibson had as their guest in Washington Tuesday, Marc Klaw, of Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger, who was there in connection with the production of the new play "Kismet," which received its premiere Wednesday evening. At a rehearsal of the play Tuesday afternoon there were present Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Miss Margaret Ide, John Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Gibson and Esmond Ovey, of the British Embassy. While there, Mr. Klaw will look over Mr. Gibson's new play "Lola Montez," which is to be produced in New York during the winter.

SOCIETY NOTES

Mrs. Harriet van Rensselaer Crosby, wife of Colonel John Schuyler Crosby of New York and Washington, died at West Manchester on Sunday at the age of seventy-four years. Death was due to the infirmities of old age, and followed an illness prolonged through several months. Mrs. Crosby went to Manchester from Washington early last season to spend the summer at the Masconomo Hotel. At the closing of the hotel, she went to the summer home of her son, Stephen V. R. Crosby, at West Manchester. She was in failing health and her condition continued such that when winter approached she could not be moved to the Boston home of her son and she remained at the North Shore, and Dr. George H. Washburn of Marlboro street, Boston, made almost daily trips there to attend her. Mrs. Crosby, as Harriet van Rensselaer, was descended from one of the oldest and most distinguished families of New York State. She was the youngest daughter of General Stephen van Rensselaer, the last patroon of Rensselaerwyck, and was a great-granddaughter of Gen. Philip Schuyler and Alexander Hamilton. In 1863 she was married to John Schuyler Crosby, descendant of another old New York family, who had just returned a colonel from the Civil War. Later Colonel Crosby occupied several important positions in civil life, among them governor of Montana, assistant postmaster general under President Arthur, consul at Florence, Italy, and school commissioner of New York city. Mrs. Crosby is survived by her husband, her son and a daughter.

A number of invitations have reached Boston for the ball which Mrs. John R. McLean is giving at her fine estate Friendship, in Washington, on the last night of the old year in compliment to Miss Margaret Preston Draper, of the Manchester colony. Miss Draper made her bow two years ago, but her debutante gayeties were interrupted by the illness and death of her father.

SOCIETY NOTES

Miss Elizabeth B. Ely of 297 Beacon street, Boston, was the hostess at a luncheon at the Tuileries Tuesday. Her guests numbered thirty-nine, all of them this season's debutantes, who were brought together to meet Miss Ely's niece, Miss Charlotte L. Read, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Read of Read's Island, Manchester. Red roses and holly comprised the table decorations and these with other bright spots about the room lent quite a Christmas air to the occasion. Miss Ely wore chiffon over brown velvet and carried violets. Miss Read's gown was of blue marquisette. Her hat was of black velvet with white plumes.

If all goes well the Fishermen's Snug Harbor, at Gloucester, made possible through the efforts of Dr. John Dixwell of Boston, seconded by the munificence of John Hays Hammond, who has provided a permanent home, will be opened on Christmas Day, and will be an acceptable present to those old veterans of the fleet who find themselves cast up on a lee shore in their declining days. Care will be taken that only bona fide fishermen, with a long service record, shall have entrance. The rooms have been furnished through the good offices of the friendly disposed without expense, a new heating apparatus has been put in and everything conducive to comfort installed.

It became known in Washington Tuesday that an engagement exists between Mrs. Oliver Cromwell of Washington and Edward T. Stotesbury, of Philadelphia. Rumors of such an engagement have been circulated repeatedly and as often denied, but it is now acknowledged that the marriage will take place early in the new year. They will live in Philadelphia. Mr. Stotesbury's daughter, Mrs. Sidney E. Hutchinson, has a summer estate at Beverly Farms, where Mr. Stotesbury is an annual visitor.

Mrs. Sidney E. Hutchinson of Philadelphia and Beverly Farms, has been sojourning in the South.

SOCIETY NOTES

Senator DuPont and his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield, of the Marblehead contingent, will have a large party at the senator's country place in Maryland over the holidays. The guests will include a number of bachelors of the diplomatic corps. The party will go from Washington in the Senator's private car.

Miss Helen Taft spent a portion of the week at Bryn Mawr renewing her college affiliations. Her brother, Charles Taft, has arrived at the capital for his holiday vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Barr, of the Beverly Farms colony, are staying in New York and were guests in Mrs. James Haggin's box at the opera last Saturday afternoon. Baron Schlippenbach, the Russian Consul General, gave a dinner on last Friday evening for Mr. and Mrs. Barr.

The Chevy Chase Hunt ball, which is down for January 6th, and the three bachelor cotillions, the first on the third of January, are the chief dancing events of the Washington winter. On the subscription lists are the older and younger married sets with the debutantes.

Mrs. Dudley L. Pickman of Boston and Beverly Cove, was hostess for a luncheon Thursday of last week at the Tuileries, Boston. The guests were the members of the Alliance Francaise.

One of the most brilliant dances of the season was that at which Miss Caroline Fessenden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sewall Fessenden of Chestnut Hill, Brookline, and Coolidge's Point, Manchester, made her debut last Friday evening at the Hotel Somerset, Boston, when, in answer to some 1200 odd invitations, the entire first floor of the hotel, as well as the large white and gold ball room, was en fete for the occasion. Prior to the affair Miss Fessenden, with her mother and father, was the guest of honor at a large dinner of thirty-five guests in the library of the Hotel Somerset, at which her aunt, Mrs. Reginald Gray, was hostess. Miss Fessenden was superbly gowned in white satin, over which she wore a silver lace tunic. Her mother was also in white satin, with white lace overdress, and wore beautiful diamonds. The ushers included Kermit Roosevelt, a cousin of the debutante; Reginald Foster of the Coolidge Point contingent; Russell G. Fessenden, cousin of the debutante; Neal Rantoul, Stephen V. R. Crosby, George C. Lee, Jr., an uncle of the debutante; Philip S. Saltonstall and Bayard Tuckerman. The ball room was beautifully decorated in quantities of palest pink begonia blossoms and ropes of laurel, appropriate for the Yuletide season. The ropes of the green entwined the pillars of the white and gold hall and were used also in the side balcony, on the railing and between the long windows opposite. The young debutante and her mother received at the head of the hall in front of a screen of fir and bay trees, while the laurel also predominated here. The electroliers on either side were done in pale pink paper shades in the shape of lilies, which gave the hall a most becoming light. In the sitting-out room adjoining the hall were quantities of laurel and groups of bay tree, which, with the red and gold furniture, made a stunning setting for the gowns. The long hall leading to the supper room was lined on either side with potted palms and fir and bay trees. The supper, shortly after midnight, was served at small tables, each one of which was decorated in pink roses. The debutantes of the North Shore contingent were all present at the ball. The engagement announced last Friday of Miss Susan Welles Shaw of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, a niece of Hollis H. Hunnewell, to John C. Lee of Brookline, called forth no end of congratulations at the Fessenden ball. Mr. Lee is a member of the St. Botolph Club and makes his home in Brookline with his sisters, Misses Lillian and Lucy Lee. Miss Shaw is a sister of Arthur H. Shaw, who married Miss von Schrader in St. Louis last week.

Will House Laborers on Mystery Island?

Daniel Linehan & Son, the well known contractors and builders of Pride's Crossing, have recently purchased a large tract of land on Mystery Island, which lays off the Beverly Farms shore, and upon which they intend to erect a number of small buildings to be used for the housing of their many foreign laborers, mostly Italians and Poles. They have a large and seaworthy launch which will be used to transport the men to and from the mainland.

SOCIETY NOTES

Miss Margaret Thomas of Boston and Pride's, a sister of Mrs. Samuel D. Warren, Jr., of the Beverly Farms contingent, will go to New York next month to be of the bridal party at the wedding of Miss Beatrice Flagg and Oliver Iselin.

The twelfth annual automobile show in Madison Square Garden, New York, will be held the week of January 6th.

Kiderlen-Waechter, Germany's Minister of Foreign Affairs

ALFRID VON KIDERLEN (he pronounces it with the accent on the second syllable)-WAECHTER, imperial minister of foreign affairs, unlike most German diplomats, is the son of a bourgeois, though his mother, from whom he takes the second part of his name, was a baroness. What his colleagues regard as his humble origin, however, has not hampered his career. He entered the diplomatic service through the influence of his mother's family and soon became socially and politically prominent. He was a member of the much talked about "Round Table," but was not involved in the scandal that ruined his friend, Prince Eulenburg. He has been looked upon as Germany's "strong man" among her diplomats, but the dissatisfaction manifested by a large section of German opinion—including that of the crown prince—over the results of his handling of the Morocco negotiations has been a serious blow to his prestige. One of his characteristics is said to be plain speaking, even to his imperial master, and he was for some years out of favor because he ventured to tell the kaiser that his protest (on a technicality) against the defeat of his yacht Meteor by a British boat was bad policy.

SOCIETY NOTES

George Williams Gardner, honorary member of the New York Yacht club and member of the Corinthian Yacht club at Marblehead, died Monday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clement Gilmore in Dayton, Ohio. Born in 1836 in Massachusetts, Mr. Gardner went to Cleveland when a boy. He served two terms as mayor of Cleveland and was a banker and commission merchant. For years the Gardner grain elevator at Cleveland was the largest along the lakes. He was a member of the Cleveland Yacht Club and life commodore of the Interlake Yacht Club. Mr. Gardner was the owner of historic Ballast Island, in Lake Erie, and a stockholder of the Cleveland and Buffalo Steamship Company. He is survived by seven children.

There were no attendants or ushers, but Miss Helen Frick held the bride's bouquet of valley lilies during the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Knox are to make their home in Washington.

Possibility of Losing Yacht Clubs Arouses Marblehead Citizens to Action

That a fierce fight over the question of license will be waged at the annual town meeting of Marblehead in March and that the citizens may vote to turn the town into the license column in order to make certain the retention here of the Corinthian, Eastern and Boston Yacht Clubs, was the declaration last Friday night by Chairman John Stevens of the Board of Selectmen. At the same time he said he did not believe the clubs will move to Gloucester, as it has been reported they intend to do as a result of raids conducted last June by the Law Enforcement League against the clubs, because Gloucester is no license at the present time. "I do not think the clubs will move," Mr. Stevens said. "It would be very expensive for them, and Marblehead furnishes them with an excellent harbor, especially during the racing season." In expressing the belief the town might consider it advisable to vote for license, Mr. Stevens declared the going of the clubs would mean a heavy financial loss to Marblehead. Although officers of the yacht clubs have denied the truth of the report they will leave the town, the people were greatly stirred over the possibility of such a move, and the report has been the topic of general conversation. It is intimated that if the town should go license the town would not be allowed a foothold. The clubs have not sold liquor, it is said, since the raids in the summer.

To understand the Socialist we have only to remember how we felt just now, when, as we were crossing the public street, we heard the angry toot of an automobile. It makes a great difference whether one is inside or outside of the wealth of today, how it seems.

"To the traditional method," says Prof. Youtz, "a divine revelation is, like Melchizedek, without pedigree or descent. To the modern method revelation is, like a well-born child, rich in ancestry and potential of divine truth."

Never be afraid of catching cold from a shower of curls.

The pugilist who struck a preacher claims to be an expounder of the gospel.

Bishop Earl put this question rather suddenly to a little boy who stood trembling at the head of his Sunday school class: "Who made the world?" The little fellow with quivering voice replied, "I didn't." The bishop, astonished at the answer demanded, "what do you mean?" Still more frightened, the lad replied, "If I did I won't do it again."

"Peace on Earth"

BY LILLIAN L. NUNN

The tramp wandered from the busy main thoroughfare into a smaller street and had perhaps walked for ten minutes, not knowing where he was going, and to tell the truth not caring. He had no aim in life,—that was very plain. He felt cold—and shivered as the wind seemed to follow him everywhere; his clothes were very thin and threadbare. A door opened; it was evidently a church as people were wandering in. Anyway, thought the tramp, it looks warm in there, and certainly costs nothing to get in; so he went. He presented a strange appearance in that elegant church, as he sank into the corner of a very obscure seat. The choir rose; he listened, but was hardly conscious of what they sang. He only knew it was a Christmas carol of some description. The minister advanced and commenced his sermon. To anyone listening it was a beautiful discourse. But not one word did the tramp hear.

He was going over his life in his mind, and this is the picture he saw. A happy boy brought up in a happy home, fond parents watching over him. Early life was one of happiness. Of course he worked, but there was pleasure with it. He was employed in a bank where he was rapidly advanced both in position and wages. Then came the happiest day of his life—the day he led the one girl in the world to the altar. His married life was very happy until—yes, the fault was his, all his. The wine cup and gav company had meant his downfall.

He thought of it all as he sat there, and the memories were very bitter. The minister was still speaking, but the man was now warm and comfortable—something he had not been for months. He slept, but of a sudden, he was startled. What was that the minister was saying once again: "Unto us a child is given." Oh! that brought back that last night in his once happy home. The child, a little boy of three, bright and beautiful, came running to meet him on such a night as this, five years ago. He had been drinking and had lost all his week's wages. The child wanted to know something of Santa Claus. The father raised his hand and the child fell with one crash to the floor, down that long flight of stairs. Then followed the confusion, the doctor, his wife's white drawn face, and these words, "He may live, but he will never walk again." His work! And on Christmas eve! One look at his poor wife's face, and he left the house.

From that time on he became an outcast, wandering from one city to another, until at this time after five years, fate had brought him back to his native town. The choir rose for the closing anthem, and sang clearly and sweetly:

"Hark! the herald angels sing,
Glory to the new-born king;
Peace on earth and mercy mild
God and sinners reconciled."

That last line ran in his mind over and over again. Finally the sexton touched him on the shoulder—he looked up; the church was empty, he must go. But where, where had the entire congregation gone, all those people? Why home, of course. But could he go home? He would try, anyway, for had not the choir sang "God and sinners reconciled."

Hastening along the streets he came to what had at one time been his home. He saw a light, and knocking at the door he waited breathlessly. The door was opened by a young lad on crutches. Looking into the room he saw his wife bending over some sewing that must be done that night. So this was how his loyal wife had supported herself and child during all these years. She looked up and rushed toward him. "John," she cried, "how happy I am to have you home for Christmas." The lad leaning on his crutches with one hand on his father's shoulder, the other hand in his mother's, shed tears of happiness for his Christmas gift. Not a word was spoken.

When, as the clock finished striking the hour of twelve, the chimes in the neighboring cathedral sounded:

"Hark the herald angels sing,
Glory to the new-born king;
Peace on earth and mercy mild
God and sinners reconciled."

There was at least one little family to whom the herald angels sang with the deepest meaning, "God and sinners reconciled," for there had been a reconciliation, and in this case it meant happiness and a family reunion.

Increasing Dividends in Savings Bank Life Insurance

With 5500 policyholders and more than $2,000,000 of insurance in force, Savings Bank Life Insurance is proving the soundness and efficiency of its methods by declaring increasing dividends to its policyholders.

Dividends have just been declared by the Insurance Departments of the Whitman Savings Bank, Whitman; and the People's Savings Bank, Brockton.

The dividends on the monthly premium policies, at the end of the first year, amount to 8 1-3 percent; and in the fourth year reach 16 2-3 percent. This is the equivalent of two full monthly premiums.

The dividends on the annual premium policies have been largely increased over those declared a year ago, and now average from 9 to 11 percent on the yearly premium on the straight life policies; from 8 to 9 percent on the 20 payment life policies; and from 6 1-2 to 8 1-2 percent on the 20-year endowment policies.

These dividends have been declared by the Banks only after a careful and conservative safeguarding of the business of the Insurance Departments. The full legal reserve, as required by law, has been set aside on all policies, and besides, a surplus is maintained in each Bank amounting to over 20 percent of the legal reserve.

The growing interest in this movement on the part of the Savings Banks is shown by the fact that three Savings Banks now have Insurance Departments and that thirteen other Savings Banks have become public agencies for Savings Bank Life Insurance.

Wit and Humor

"What are you crying for, boy?"
 "I got licked by the teacher?"
 "Well, it does no good to cry."
 "Huh! how can you expect a boy that's whaled not to blubber?"

"What is your business?" was the question which a lawyer asked of a witness who lived in a suburban town.
 "The catching of trains and ferry boats," was the reply.

As a woman was walking a man looked at her and followed her.
 "Why do you follow me?" asked the woman.
 "Because I have fallen in love with you!" was the reply.
 "Why are you in love with me?" said the woman. "My sister is much handsomer, she is coming after me; go and make love to her."
 The man turned back and saw a woman with an ugly face; being greatly displeased, he turned to the first woman and said: "Why did you tell me a falsehood?"
 "Neither did you speak the truth," replied the woman, "for if you were really in love with me, why did you leave me to look upon my sister."

A: "Ferguson is a sharp man."
 B: "What did he do?"
 "You see his wife never lets him have any money, so he steals her pug."
 "Steals her pug?"
 "Yes, he has made arrangements with a professional dog stealer. Ferguson hands dog over the fence to stealer. Mrs. Ferguson offers reward of $5. Dog-stealer gets reward and divides with Ferg. Next week dog is gone again. Another reward and more pocket money for Ferg. See?"

Theresa: "O, Mabel! Have you heard that dreadful rumor that Aggie has been taken to an insane asylum?"
 Mabel: "Well, I rather thought that last bonnet of hers would do the fatal work."

Mudge: "For heaven's sake, Bosworth, have you been sandbagged or in a railway accident?"
 Bosworth: "Neither, I hid under the bed the other night to scare my wife."

"Deaf—dumb—blind," read Squeers.
 "Here my good man, take this quarter."
 Beggar: "You lie! Dat's a two-cent piece, you tief."

The New Salem-Beverly Bridge

The North Shore is interested in the improvement of the bridge facilities over the road to Salem. A public hearing has been given by the joint board established by the act of the last legislature. Progress is being made in the important matter and it is hoped that the untiring efforts of Representative MacDonald for a permanent solution of the problem will soon be rewarded. The problem presents a complication in not only providing a bridge but also a half tide gate. If all the plans can be consummated Beverly will have a more aesthetic and convenient approach and Salem and all up shore land will be greatly benefited by the tide gate which will prevent the exposure of the river flats with the accompanying menace to health. Mr. MacDonald's bill provided for the commission for an investigation consisting of one member of the Harbor and Land Commission, one member of the Highway Commission and one member of the Board of County Commissioners to reconstruct the present bridge or to construct a new bridge and dam. There is a need of this new bridge. Expenditures upon the old bridge will be an economical blunder. A new solid filled structure with a tide gate and locks would result in the formation of a beautiful water basin in place of the low flats which are now a menace to public health. The dam will result in keeping them covered with water at all times. The sewage nuisance which caused so much discussion two summers ago will be abated by the maturing of these plans. The report of the commission is awaited with interest.

The Gloucester Episode

No one doubts Cong. Gardner's right to make the final decision in the Gloucester appointment and his suggestion to abide by an election by the people was a courtesy extended to the City of Gloucester.
This courtesy is alleged to have been violated in a dishonorable way and because of the alleged "fraudulent" vote Mr. Gardner was released at once from his voluntary agreement to abide by the election. The Congressman has acted within his rights and there can hardly be an appeal. He has released the principles from any knowledge of the unfortunate affair and no stigma upon their name has been left by Mr. Gardner's statement. The election was fraudulent, it is alleged. Consequently there was no election. It would appear that the choice of a third person, not a candidate, was the just and diplomatic action to take and Mr. Gardner took it. This is only another example of his good judgment.

Russia Answered

The abrogation of the Russian Treaty by President Taft means that every effort is being made on the part of the administration to adjust the complications existing between Russia and the United States over the Jewish persecutions. This action on the part of President Taft is in the line of duty of his office and cannot be interpreted as an affront to the lower house of Congress. This episode reveals more than ever, the sterling worth and keen discrimination of the President. While the treaty guaranteed valuable trade relations with Russia, more valuable perhaps than can ever be gained again by treaty,

President Taft would not permit such considerations to influence him in the face of the greater humanitarian wrongs which have been constantly done to our Jewish citizens.
There is a year of grace and diplomatic relations may result in an adjustment of the difficulty and the treaty sustained and the passport question settled. Perhaps both points can be gained.

The destiny of the Charlestown Navy Yard still causes conversation and consternation for Sec. Meyer has again spoken and the tenor of his words gives no hope to Boston.
The Boston Record and Boston Herald have refrained from attacking the proposition. The Record writes
"Sec. Meyer, with the proposed navy yard consolidation as his text, preaches a bitter sermon to Boston on her lost commercial opportunities, the folly and cost of putting Boston capital into Western railroads instead of into home development, and the opportunity now to replace the navy yard industry, if it is removed from Charlestown, with some live, constructive business organization along the waterfront. There is a tremendous amount of sense in what he says.
It is not all conclusive; there will be difference of opinion as to the gain or loss in the departure of the navy yard—should that occur. But that Boston in the past has not been sufficiently alive to home opportunities for investment is pitifully evident."

President Taft's refusal to grant a pardon to Charles W. Morse was in line with the previous positions of the chief executive. The refusal was to be expected. It could not be hoped that the President would condemn in his public speeches the injustices of illicit and fraudulent financial manipulation and as the Pardoning Officer of the Government release a malefactor who had been found guilty in the courts of Justice. What are the laws good for if every "wealthy" miscreant may look forward to "acquittal" or
"pardon."

The no-license gains in Lynn, for the fifth successive time, Woburn for the fifth successive time, Newburyport for the sixth successive time and Salem for the third successive time is unparalleled in the history of Massachusetts. Massachusetts has the only four instances in all the world where large cities of their size have voted out the saloon. These cities are Cambridge with 104,000, Lynn with 89,000, Somerville 77,000 and Brockton 56,000.

Savings bank insurance is growing rapidly and successfully. There are now two million dollars of life insurance outstanding in the name of five thousand and five hundred subscribers. The interests on the premiums have been large, the first year 8.33 percent and at the end of the fourth year 16.66 percent. This is a remarkable showing and proves conclusively the practicability and the profitableness of Savings Bank Life Insurance.

WHISPERINGS

The Manchester Police Department! Take it to Loomis, he'll fix it; even the police department. It is also whispered that a graduate of Harvard has applied for the position of chief of police.

"Hotel Rest" at Manchester, owned by the "Swamp Angels" association burned to the ground a few weeks ago. A new headquarters was erected on Wetherbee's hill—without the consent of the owners of the property, and as a result of this "squatters privilege" action, Mr. Wetherbee came to Manchester last Sunday and with Officer Bullcock visited the "club." After giving the proper pass word the visitors were admitted into the sanctum. "I don't want to disturb any Sunday meeting (?) here," said Mr. Wetherbee, "but I guess you will have to move; also take your 'hotel' down and return the boards to their original location. And get quick!" They did. So overcome with surprise were several of the assembled members that they were barely able to move.

And along this line we regret to learn that several firms of architects in Boston and elsewhere, who follow the Breeze religiously for information regarding the construction of new summer homes on the North Shore, were misled by our item of several weeks' ago relative to the fire which destroyed this clubhouse and the promptness in which a new structure would be put up. Several representatives of these firms were in town shortly after that looking for further information.

* * *

We hear the whistling of the tug boat as we send our last form to press this morning, which means that the drawbridge at Manchester must be opened, and there is but one conclusion for us to whisper to our out of town subscribers, namely, that their paper will probably reach them later than usual this week, for if the routine of the past few months is to be carried out today traffic on the Gloucester branch will be held up several hours while the bridge is being opened and closed.

Taking everything together, there is no reward that is quite so lasting and satisfying as the good-will of our fellow men.

In Africa today human sacrifice, polygamy, and paganism may be parts of a scheme of social organization that entails less degradation and suffering than may be found among the degenerate classes that infest the dark corners of civilized lands.

Christmas Carol

Neapolitan Translation by Longfellow

When Christ was born in Bethlehem,
'Twas night, but seemed the noon of day;
The stars, whose light
Was pure and bright
Shone with unwavering ray;
But one, one glorious star
Guided the Eastern Magi from afar.

Then peace was spread thro' out the land;
The lion fed beside the tender lamb;
And with the kid,
To pasture led,
The spotted leopard fed;
In peace, the calf and bear,
The wolf and lamb reposed together there.

As shepherds watched their flocks by night,
An angel, brighter than the sun's own light,
Appeared in air,
And gently said,
Fear not,—be not afraid,
For lo! beneath your eyes,
Earth has become a smiling paradise.

MANCHESTER WOMAN'S CLUB

Rev. T. Frank Waters Spoke on "Colonial Days"

The semi-monthly meeting of the Manchester Woman's club was held Tuesday afternoon at the chapel, President Mrs. Emma E. Stanley, presiding. There were sixty-eight members and four visitors present.

The announcements during the business session included the donation of $100 to the district nurse fund from the Ministering Circle of King's Daughters, who have disbanded. A movement toward swelling this fund has been inaugurated by the club. The members are to embrace 12 committees of ten members each to follow alphabetically as in the year book. These committees are to devise ways and means among themselves to aid this club fund. The first committee of ten will be composed of Mrs. B. A. Allen, Mrs. R. C. Allen, Mrs. G. A. Allen, the Misses Caroline L., Eva and Hattie P. Allen, Mrs. F. M. Andrews, Mrs. Hattie D. Baker, Mrs. E. W. Baker and Mrs. D. T. Beaton. An open meeting for January 2 was also announced. There will be a stereopticon lecture on "Pagoda Land" by Sumner R. Vinton. Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, hostess.

Mrs. Emma G. Tenney, delegate to the Art Conference at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts on December 7th, gave a report. She emphasized simplicity as the true artistic value. It was the key-note of the conference. In our report of the December 5th meeting of the club, credit should have been given Mrs. Annie M. Sinnicks, vice president of the club, as delegate to the Haverhill conference and not Mrs. Elizabeth A. Sinnicks.

At the close of the business session, Rev. T. Frank Waters of Ipswich, was introduced and spoke on "Colonial Days" of which he is an authority, through his keen interest and activities for the promotion of the Ipswich Historical society. He is also a historian of Ipswich.

Rev. Mr. Waters drew very realistic pictures of historical manners and customs familiar to his hearers of Colonial times. His happy and simple narrative style, however, sustained and renewed keen interest of his audience in their rehearsal.

Rev. Mr. Waters spoke of the simple beginnings of such towns as Ipswich and Manchester, their rural occupations, their isolation and the apportionment of grants to each settler.

He found much to say of the industry and capabilities of the colo-

Need of Change in Curriculum of Grammar School Course

Robert O. Small, superintendent of schools of Beverly, was the speaker of the evening at the meeting of the Manchester Parent-Teacher association Wednesday evening in the assembly hall of the Price Primary school. His talk on "Education for Efficiency" struck a popular chord, for there appears to be a demand for some sort of change in the system of education to meet the change of time and conditions.

Mr. Small had no radical suggestions in mind, but he suggested the gradual introduction of subjects in the school curriculum, in grammar grades, to lay the foundation for the future life and existence of the boys and girls of the day.

Statistics show that a large percentage of the boys and girls of the country leave school at the age of fourteen; many of them are forced to go out into the world to earn a living. The school training they have received up to that time is all the education they will ever have, in a great many instances.

Education should contribute in three ways: Toward making the individual a wage earner; toward helping the individual contribute to the support of society, its institutions, etc.; and lastly toward helping the individual to have a happier life.

An education which enables a community to support the institutions of society is an education for efficiency, said the speaker. The individual must get a good living before he can render help to the institutions of society and before he can enjoy life. A great number of children get through school at fourteen. If they have pursued a grammar school course of study the child has learned to read, write and to cipher. But they need more than this, they need more of an equipment to compete with those who go further. Statistics show that the occupation of these boys and girls lead nowhere. They receive small remuneration, practically as much at the beginning as ever. If we are going to educate there children for life we must furnish them with something more definite. We must try to lay the foundation for more.

He told of the exceptional opportunity offered by the USMC plant, where boys of Beverly have a chance to take up mechanical work in connection with their school course. He thought this pointed the way toward a type of education which must be adopted. It suggested what to do and how to do it.

In the 8th and 9th grades, all children should not be required to take the same kind of work. The last two years of grammar school should be differentiated. The elements of modern languages should be introduced, also algebra and geometry. To others teach the fundamental ideas of home cooking, sewing, laundry and manual training. Girls should be taught to become efficient home makers. They do not need French and algebra; they need cooking and to learn how far a dollar will go toward this cooking.

He suggested introducing some of the commercial features. He even suggested typewriting for children of the 7th grade, as a means of improving their spelling and language.

Aside from Mr. Small's talk the meeting was one of enjoyment for the large number of mothers and others who attended. The singing of Christmas carols by the chorus of boys and girls from the 7th and 8th grades was especially good. The children marched from the room and sang in the lower hall.

Other features of the evening's program were recitation, "A Christmas Wish," Janet Height; songs, "It came upon the Midnight Clear" and "Oh Little Town of Bethlehem," children; and at the conclusion of Mr. Small's talk the children sang "Silent Night."

A social hour brought the evening to a close.

He had taken her to the theatre, and then to supper, and when they reached her father's door, he said:

"Well, I'll have to go."

"You needn't hurry, William," she said sweetly.

"I wouldn't but for one thing."

"What is that?"

"I've got to walk. The evening's festivities have left me dead broke."

The Christmas concert of the Sunday school will be held Sunday evening. Last Sunday evening in the vestry of the church Hon. Chas. D. Smith spoke on Secret Fraternities.

Monday evening the Y P C Union of the Universalist church, had a Venison Supper at Lyman James hall. Venison cooked in a great variety of ways was served with all the fixings. The venison was furnished by Miss Almira Taylor, who had recently returned from a hunting trip and brought several deer home with her as proof of her prowess. The other members brought the fixings. About fifty were present.

Miss Mardie Story was home from Wellesley college over Sunday.

Miss Ruth Low, teacher in the Reading High school, was home over Sunday.

The Chestnut Party, one of the series of entertainments of the Entree club, was given Saturday night. The weather was very stormy and a very small number braved the elements to attend.

We learn that several of the people supposed to be selling liquor have been notified and warned to quit.

A good sized audience greeted Rev. Charles Tilton, a former pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church here, as he entered the building Sunday afternoon. After administering the Sacraments of the Lord's supper, he preached from I Corinthians 13: "Love Suffereth Long."

"Pshaw!" said a Sixteenth street lady to her husband, who had been criticising her attire. "What does a man know about a woman's clothes anyway?"

B. F. Keith's Theatre

A splendid holiday bill of all-star vaudeville is announced for the week beginning with Christmas Day at B. F. Keith's Theatre. No less than four splendid features of headline calibre are included, among them being the Old Soldier Fiddlers, composed of Col. J. A. Pattee, two boys in blue, and two sons of Dixie. These fiddlers cannot read a note of music, playing entirely "by air," as they call it. They all fought at Gettysburg, and by a strange co-incidence their regiments were opposed to one another. B. A. Rolfe's "Leading Lady" is a big musical comedy with Marguerite Haney, Ralph Lynn, and a company of pretty girls. This is one of the best tabloid musical plays ever seen in vaudeville, and Ralph Lynn, the comedian from the London Gaiety, manages to keep his audiences in a constant scream of laughter all the time he is on the stage. Alber's Polar Bears, the largest and finest group of the species in captivity, have just completed a long engagement at the New York Hippodrome. Albert Hole, the celebrated English boy soprano, will be another feature, and others to appear are Arthur Pickens and company in a comedy sketch, and the McGinnis Brothers, Dancing Cadets.

"Certain experts on education set about to investigate what they called the civic intelligence of school children, how much they knew about the conduct of the larger world about them, what attitude they held toward it. Springfield, Massachusetts, proved to be the banner city for civic intelligence, and the experts attributed this result mainly to the excellence of THE SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN, which has educated its young readers to a taste for matter touching on the large and vital facts in the world about them."

The Republican is regarded in Springfield as a community asset—a newspaper standing for the right, first, last and always. Its motto, "All the news and the truth about

Real Estate and Improvements

J. Sumner Draper and Mark Temple Dowling have sold to Arthur Little of Wenham three adjoining properties at Beverly Farms. There are in the estates about five acres of land and two attractive summer dwellings. One house is located on the corner of Haskell street and Webster avenue, and the other, known as the Cabot Lane house, has its entrance from Webster avenue. The land and buildings are assessed on a valuation of $28,100. The price paid was largely in excess of that amount. John W. Dunlop represented the

At Beverly on Wednesday, the Essex County Commissioners gave a hearing on a petition for laying out a county road from the Kernwood bridge to North Beverly. There is a so-called county road laid out there by an old decree, but it has not been built and it runs directly through the athletic field of the United Shoe Machinery Company. It is desired to modify the route. Such a road would open a large amount of territory and relieve Essex Bridge of considerable through travel.

Humorous Stories

A woman with her first baby banged on her female neighbor's door the other morning, about the time old toppers crawl out to hunt their morning cheer, and shrieked out, excitedly: "Come over as soon as you get your breakfast; if the baby hasn't got a tooth I'm a liar."

Did you ever see a woman throw a brick at a chicken? It is just lots of fun—for the chicken. The woman usually hits herself on the foot and gets so mad she can hardly talk straight while the chicken holds its head to one side, clucks softly and looks as though it wondered what under the sun the fuss all meant anyhow.

"Yes, Bobby," said the minister, who was dining with the family, "everything in this world has its use, although we may not know what it is. You wouldn't think flies are good for anything, yet—" "Oh, yes, I would," interrupted Bobby. "I know what flies are good for." "What, Bobby?" "Pa says they are the only thing that keeps him awake when you are preaching."

A quart of whiskey was mixed with feed and given to a cow in a New York town, and half an hour later the animal was bellowing, "We won't go home till morning," or something that way, and treated several persons to a couple of "horns," and acted in a very reprehensible manner generally. When she sobered up she jumped down a bank and broke her neck. This shows the superior intelligence and good sense of the cow over the average bibulous person. When the latter gets drunk and makes things howl, instead of jumping down a bank and breaking his neck when he gets sober, he immediately begins to lay the foundation for another roaring drink.

A Chicago man visiting Cincinnati was being shown around by a citizen, who said: "Now, let's go and see the Widows' Home." The Chicago man put his finger to the side of his nose and winked and then said: "Not much, Mary Ann; I saw a widow home once, and she sued me for breach of promise and proved it on me, and it cost me sixteen thousand dollars. No sir; send the widows home in a hack."

"Isn't it a cute little thing?" said Mrs. Gushly to her husband as she held the baby up to him?

"Yes it is and doesn't it look like me? It's got some of my ways already. I'll wager that it'll grow up to be just like me. By the way, we haven't named it yet. What would you suggest?"

"Well, if you're anything of a prophet, I'd take chances right now on naming it Ananias."

Did you ever see the pig wash? No, but I have seen the pig-iron.

A young man wants to know what's the best thing to be done when a person sits down on a custard pie at a picnic. We would advise him to sit still until the rest have gone home.

What are you going to do with it?

For personal adornment and intrinsic value
Diamonds excel

OUR DIAMOND DEPARTMENT

In the purchase of diamonds, almost more than any other article of merchandise, one has to depend upon the knowledge, integrity and reliability of the dealer, as few people, aside from experts, know the essential characteristics that determine their value. Intuitive knowledge must be supplemented by experience in handling them.

This is the reason why diamonds can be so advantageously purchased from us, and there are many reasons why we can give you the best possible value for the amount you wish to invest.

Because of the very large quantity of diamonds we sell we have exceptional facilities for securing the choicest gems, and at the present time we have a very complete stock of diamonds, many of them purchased at prices below those prevailing at present. They will be margin of profit than the average dealer.

When we sell diamonds we invite comparison of quality and price, feeling absolutely certain that we can give you the greatest possible value for the amount you wish to pay. Should any stone fail to come up to your expectations it may be returned and the purchase price will be at once refunded. We carry in stock only pure white, perfectly cut, brilliant stones, and give most careful attention to correct mounting. We are always glad to submit special designs for diamonds and precious stone jewelry of any description and we make a special feature of resetting family gems.

On advice as to requirements and price limitation we will send for inspection anywhere in the United States, at our own risk, diamonds and other precious stones, to such intending purchasers as may be known to us who will send satisfactory references.

Our diamonds are of a much higher grade than is generally sold, and we are satisfied with a very small profit. We invite comparison of quality and price.

sold at a very close margin of profit over the actual cost. All our purchases are for cash, and our mail order business is distinctly on a cash basis. The expense of this department in connection with our very large business is relatively small, and we are enabled to sell at a much smaller

The wave is breaking on the shore,
The echo fading from the chime;
Again the shadow moveth o'er
The dial-plate of time!

O seer-seen Angel! waiting now
With weary feet on sea and shore,
Impatient for the last dread vow
That time shall be no more!

Once more across thy sleepless eye
The semblance of a smile has passed:
The year departing leaves more nigh
Time's fearfullest and last.

Oh, in that dying year hath been
The sum of all since time began;
The birth and death, the joy and pain,
Of Nature and of Man.

SOCIETY NOTES

Mme. Georgette Le Blanc-Maeterlinck, wife of the distinguished Belgian dramatist, arrived in New York on the Olympic Wednesday. She will be tendered a reception New Year's eve in Boston by a number of prominent society matrons. Her presence in Boston will also mark her appearance in her husband's famous drama, "Pelleas and Melisande." On her arrival in New York Mme. Maeterlinck was attired in a manner to stir the most imaginative modiste. Her coat was of leopard skins and her hat was fashioned from a grey parrot. She wore a diamond suspended between her brows by a slender chain.

What promises to be one of the most delightful hospitalities of the coming month will be the dance which Mrs. George Lee of Boylston street, Brookline, and Beverly Farms, is giving at her residence on Friday evening, the 26th, in honor of her debutante daughter, Miss Florence Lee, whom she presented at a large and successful tea earlier in the winter. Miss Lee has taken her place among the several most successful girls of the winter, and is having an exceedingly good time. The young girl possesses great beauty, together with a winsome personality, and is wearing a succession of lovely frocks, the majority purchased during her recent period of residence abroad. Invitations for the hospitality will go out shortly.

Ambassador Jules Jusserand and Mme. Jusserand of France; Minister and Mrs. J. Loudon of The Netherlands and United States Attorney General and Mrs. Wickersham sailed from New Orleans last Saturday for a visit to the Canal Zone. An elaborate reception was tendered Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand by local French societies before the ship sailed.

Sec. George von L. Meyer and his son, George von L. Meyer Jr., who went to Washington from Harvard College for the Christmas holidays, left the capital last Thursday on a shooting trip to North Carolina.

SOCIETY NOTES

The much heralded and anticipated Christmas ball in Washington, which Mrs. William F. Draper, widow of Gen. W. F. Draper, was to give in honor of her daughter, Miss Margaret, took place Wednesday evening at the Draper mansion at the capital on K street. The function evolved itself into a fancy dress ball with elaborate decorations of American beauty roses and palms. The Marine band played for the dancing. Supper was served in the ballroom at midnight at small tables decorated with baskets of flowers. Miss Draper, who appeared as "Spring," wore an exquisite costume representing the central figure from the famous canvas, Botticelli's "Spring." The gown was of silver tissue veiled in white tulle caught on the left shoulder with a jeweled butterfly. Jeweled butterflies adorned her hair and slippers. She also wore a wreath of roses about her hair. Mrs. Draper was attired in black satin with superb diamonds. Miss Helen Taft wore one of the most effective costumes of the evening, representing a lady of the court of Louis XIII, in pink brocade with white lace fichu and powdered hair. Miss Harriet Southerland, whose sister is to be married next week to Louis Bacon of Boston, was one of several pierettes. Robert Taft did not wear fancy costume, nor did his house guests, Messers Townsend and Jones, both schoolmates, who were present. The numerous guests present at the ball included many diplomats, cabinet officials and their families and the younger smart set of the capital. Miss Draper will be the guest of honor at a brilliant cotillon to be given by Mrs. John R. McLean tomorrow evening. Mrs. Draper and Miss Draper have spent the last two summers at Manchester.

The three sons of Dr. and Mrs. George H. Washburn of Marlboro street, Boston, have been spending part of the holidays at the Washburn summer cottage in Manchester.

SOCIETY NOTES

Mrs. Q. A. Shaw, 2d, of Beverly Farms, has been spending the holiday season with her parents and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell and John Mitchell, Manchester. Mr. Shaw joined his brother, Louis A. Shaw, in New Hampshire, where the latter is recuperating from illness. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell are sailing for the Bermudas about January 15th.

The two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Read have been spending the holiday vacation at Read's island, Manchester, with their parents and sisters.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, A. Piatt Andrew, Jr., spent the holiday season at his East Gloucester cottage. His parents also joined him from La Porte, Ind.

An old fashioned English Christmas was the rule on the Edward D. Brandegee estate, Brookline, Monday night. It has always been the custom in years before for the Brandegees and the Larz Andersons to combine on the Christmas party, but this year as the Andersons are in Belgium, they could not be present. However, it was arranged by Mrs. Brandegee and Mrs. Anderson that all the retinue of servants left by the Andersons in America should be present. In all there were more than 200 at the barn dance, half of them servants and half society folk. Before the march and dance there was a huge Christmas tree placed in the carriage room and all the servants on both estates received presents. Then the youngsters went to their cots, and the elders began the dance which lasted until nearly midnight. Percy Haughton of Boston and Manchester, the Harvard coach, escorted a pretty parlor maid, while his wife conversed with a stablehand, and his sister waltzed with a coachman. Mr. Brandegee himself had as partner the housekeeper, while Mrs. Brandegee walked beside her husband's valet. Thus all social barriers were broken down and all the guests had a merry time.

E wish to thank the people of Manchester for their generous patronage during the past year and especially for the holiday season just closed, and wish them one and all

SOCIETY NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner Martin Lane and Miss Katherine Lane of Boston and Manchester, are at Baltimore to pass the Christmas holidays with Mrs. Lane's parents, Professor and Mrs. Gildersleeve. Mrs. Lane's return to her native city is always the signal for a round of hospitalities.

The engagement is announced of Jane Laurel Malcolm, daughter of the late William Hugh Malcolm of New York and a member of the theatrical profession known as Miss Jane Laurel, and Robert Jordan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eben D. Jordan of Boston and West Manchester. The wedding will take place at Grace Church Chantry, New York, early in the New Year. Miss Laurel has been seen in several of Charles Frohman's productions. She was in "Mrs. Effingwell's Boots" with the then Mrs. Daniel Frohman (Miss Margaret Illington) and later played two seasons with John Drew in "Inconstant George" and "Smith." This season she was on tour with the late Kyrie Bellew's company and played with him in "The Molluse," until his untimely death in Salt Lake City a few months ago.

Other functions Miss Lois McGinley has been enjoying as a much feted debutante of the season was the dinner of 50 covers given in her honor by the Leonard Woods. Mrs. James Wood Scully's Yale concert entertainment for the debutantes, the Wm. B. Thompson dinner of 60 covers at the Schenley and the Thomas Mellon dinner of 50 covers at the Golf club.

Many Bostonians spent Christmas at their Beverly summer homes—although most of the cottages are closed and shuttered for the winter. The Norman Greeleys of Boston were at "Elmtop," their place on Ober street at the Cove. The George S. Mandells came to their place at Cushing's Point for a week's stay. Capt. and Mrs. James C. Barr are entertaining a large house party at "Barr-Harbor," at the Farms, for over the holidays. The Misses Loring are at "Burnside," their cottage at Pride's Crossing, as are Judge and Mrs. William Caleb Loring, Judge Loring getting along nicely after his recent illness. Mrs. Henry Pratt McKean had her cottage at Pride's open for over the holidays. Among others down for Christmas were Mr. and Mrs. Augustus P. Loring, Jr., Miss Katherine P. Silsbee, the John S. Curtises, the N. S. Simpkins and the Quincy A. Shaw, 2d's.

Mrs. George C. Lee had a Christmas reunion at her home, Chestnut Hill, of her children and grandchildren. Among the former were George C. Lee, of the Beverly Farms colony. Mrs. George S. Mumford, Mrs. Reginald Gray and Mrs. Sewall H. Fessenden of the Manchester contingent.

The Myopia Hunt club gave its usual Christmas dinner and dance last Saturday evening at the clubhouse in Hamilton, which was attended by about 50 guests, including members and associate members of the club, among whom were the North Shore summer residents who are staying at their out-of-town homes over Christmas. The dinner was served at 7.30 o'clock and was followed by dancing, which lasted until nearly midnight, when the company sat down to supper. The affair was held in the large west room of the clubhouse, which was decorated with holly and evergreen appropriate to the season. It was given under the management of Nathaniel S. Simpkins of Beverly Farms. The club omitted its dinner and dance last Christmas, as the members who remained over the holidays at their North Shore homes were not sufficient in number to make the affair a success.

SOCIETY NOTES

Tuesday evening at the Boston Grand Opera house, a notable double bill was presented. The famous ballet, "Coppelia" and "Il Pagliacci" with Carmen Nielis in the title role. The audience was one of the most brilliantly gowned of the season. Among the costumes notably handsome was that of Mrs. S. Reed Anthony, which was of white satin brocade decollete, with which she wore many diamonds. Her daughter, Miss Ruth Anthony, was in pink satin and lace with silver spangled shawl effect over the shoulders. Col. and Mrs. Gordon Dexter were in their box, the latter wearing green silk and jetted lace. In her dark hair she wore two jeweled combs. Miss Adele Thayer was in black velvet point lace and diamonds. Mrs. John L. Gardner was in white satin brocade, mechin lace garniture and a rope of diamonds. Mrs. Nathaniel A. Simpkins, Jr., was in pale blue satin and white lace. Miss Dorothy Jordan was in pale pink taffeta silk with ruche trimmings, and wore long pearl pendant earrings. Mrs. Wallace Goodrich was attired in black satin and lace with white tulle garnitures. Mrs. Robert D. Evans was in green silk and jetted lace. Her sister, Miss Hunt, was in white satin. The gentlemen patrons of the opera season present that evening included: A. Shuman, Eben D. Jordan, Wadsworth Longfellow, Carl Dreyfus, T. C. Hollander, L. C. Benton, ex-Governor Draper, W. B. P. Weeks, S. R. Anthony, Joseph Lindon Smith, Nathaniel S. Simpkins, Jr., A. Wilder Pollard, T. Den- nie Boardman and Harold S. Coolidge.

Miss Dorothy Williams, sister of Mrs. Joseph Leiter of Washington and Beverly Farms, gave a dinner in honor of Miss Helen Taft at Washington Thursday evening of last week.

Congressman A. P. Gardner addressed the South Salem Men's club last evening on "Conservation" or "Immigration."

Invitations have gone out for what promises to be a leading feature in the winter's entertainment scheme, the large ball which Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sargent are giving at the Somerset, Boston, on the evening of Friday, January 12, in honor of their second daughter, Miss Margaret Sargent, one of the most popular and sought-after girls of the winter. Miss Sargent is the sister of Mrs. David Cheever of Hereford street, and that she is the best liked young woman in her set is proved by the fact that she is the president of the Sewing Society. The ball for Miss Sargent will be prefaced by rather more than the usual number of dinners. The largest will probably be given by Mrs. Harry Pratt McKean, at her Beacon street residence, for which invitations were issued the past week. Mrs. McKean's dinner will be for young people, and will be a very elaborate affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Winthrop, who have been staying at Countess Moltke's house in Lancaster since closing their house in Hamilton, settled in Boston quite unexpectedly because of the health of Mrs. Winthrop and are occupying their house at 280 Beacon street. The Beacon-street house was to have been sold, and Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop were to have occupied their house at 299 Berkeley street as soon as the renovations, which are now under way, are completed. But it is probable that they will remain at 280 Beacon street this winter, as Mrs. Winthrop's health will not permit of her settling her new home at present.

“THE CHRIST MASS”

REV. LOUIS H. RUGE PREACHES ELOQUENT CHRISTMAS SERMON AT THE MANCHESTER CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Rev. Louis H. Ruge, the pastor of the Orthodox Congregational church, returned with his family from a visit of several weeks in New York city, to celebrate the Christmas festivities in Manchester. His sermon last Sunday morning was pronounced by everyone to be one of unusual merit both in substance and delivery. We publish it in part. He said:

“When suns are low and nights are long,
And winds bring wild alarms,
Through the darkness comes the queen of the year
In all her peerless charms;
December, fair and holly-crowned
With the Christ child in her arms.”

The one inexhaustable subject of the world is Christ.

On one occasion, as Moody finished a Christmas sermon, he said to an old Scotch divine sitting on the platform: “I did not finish my subject.” “Ah mon,” said the Scotchman, “ye dinna expect to finish it, did ye?”

It will take all eternity to finish telling the story of the Christ. The poets will ever go on inditing poems of praise to him. The great painters will ever go on inspired to portray their sublime ideals of him. The great singers will ever choose his name in which to reach the triumph of their art. The eloquence of human lips will ever soar to reach the climax of oratory sounding forth his glory. All the wisdom of the ages will ever go on unfolding the wonders of this marvelous Being after they have exhausted the wonders of the material universe. Yes, when the story of the universe is old and threadbare, the story of the Christ will still be full of wonders to proclaim.

The greatest of all festivals is Christmas. Let not the addresses of our public orators on the nation's birthday or memorial day or labor day or any other holiday deceive you, this is the greatest holiday of all ages.

In this day not one nation rejoices, but all nations of the earth rejoice. No other festival unites the world as the Christ Mass.

It is the world's holy day. We are all brothers and sisters in our rally round the Christmas tree. In the ancestral halls of Old England it is “Merry Christmas.” In the homes of Germany it is the glad season of the year. In sunny Italy and on the frozen deserts of Russia there is this joy. In India and Africa, in Australia and Brazil, from fair Pacific isles to glittering Iceland, it is the one great season of the year.

This year there will be more Christmas trees ablaze in China than ever before, and more Chinese children are looking for Santa Claus as we now tell this, than ever before. Japan is ringing with “Merry Christmas” and her art emporiums are ablaze with Christmas gifts on sale to outrival the shop windows of America. But in our own dear land the Christ Mass—festival—is celebrated with an enthusiasm and joy unmatched around the world.

There has been a doleful note injected into the season by someone on Christmas buying and the lavish bestowal of gifts. But let the philosophers grow doleful about the pomp and pride and parade of Christmas shopping and giving, the day is worth a thousand times all it costs. It is the one season of the year when from the richest to the poorest we let our enthusiasm run away with us and I pity the poor soul that is not touched by it. The great department stores and streets of New York and Boston were an inspiration to me.

So let us keep this festival at fever heat and in united bursts of enthusiasm sing, “Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace, good-will to men.” Forget how tired you have been planning and shopping; forget how much it may have cost in dollars and cents, for the joy and hope it all means to the world is worth this infinitely more than we can realize.

What an awful subtraction from the world's joy and hope today if there was no Christmas: How much would you give to keep it on the calendar for the dear children alone not counting the grown-ups?

Why, we have never gotten over those Christmas days of childhood.

What a treasured memory it is forever! Never a gift was lavished upon us in vain for we live the joy of it over annually. The dolls are all broken and gone, but they live even in the aged spinster's heart as if they were indeed the children of the sweetest motherhood. And where are the old tin soldiers and painted sleds and new skates? All gone, you say? Not so; they are all treasured in our memories of this glad New Christmas dawn.

Once a year we all throw off the burden of the past and are children again. The aged forget their rheumatism and shortness of breath and in the joy of the hour all the sorrows of a lifetime are forgotten as we all join in the shout “Merry Christmas.”

Ah, to me that jolly old Santa Claus is more real than ever. I am better acquainted with him now than in my childhood. I know more about his love and self-sacrifice. I know now how his reindeers can skim along the snow-crested clouds and how that jolly round fellow can come down such a narrow chimney place.

The holly and the ivy and the mistletoe look prettier to me now than ever.

The Puritans did not make much of Christmas and called it superstitious, and a lot of foolish people would like to go to Santa Claus' funeral and all that sort of stuff, but with all its superstitions and traditions of the past, with all the modern lavish display added, Christmas never did us anything but good.

Then rally round this tree that bears all manner of fruit good for the heart of man starving only too much and too often for the fruits it yields. Christ's birth is the event of the world's history. No event in human life stands by itself. It is the resultant of a vast combination of forces. And so when an event like this grips the heart of the world this way it is my conviction that it is the result of infinite forces working together for the good of man. Christ's birth is the glory of motherhood. The curtain of one night out of the ages lifts and the star singers of heaven chant the glories of a child's birth. And whatever be the co-incidents of any child's birth it is forever holy because it is God's act in creation.

Every human genius is here inspired to ultimate achievement. Every gallery of note must have this masterpiece of mother and child that crowned the art of Correggio, Raphael, to the Sistine Madonna, the masterpiece of them all in the galleries of Dresden. No other mother can ever be the object of such wonder and worship as Mary, but every other mother shares in her glory. Not Venus, not Minerva, not Vesta, not any other virgin of classic worship, or any other woman in mythology was ever so exalted as Mary the mother of our Lord.

But the Christ child has the highest halo of divine wonder and worship. Today we are again face to face with the most profound question in theology: "Whence did he come?" It is the supreme question of all human life. And the question is more seriously asked and we look for the answer further back and it goes deeper down into the profound constitution of things than ever before. This world hope in Jesus Christ, as in nothing and in no one else, is the mysterious moral motor of mankind today. If we study past ages we shall find none as good as this Christian era. When we are shocked and disheartened at the evils of today, all we have to do is to look at the greater evils we have passed through yesterday. We are appalled at the world's sin today, not because that sin is so great, but because our moral sense is developed and we care more than we did before. And the wisdom and goodness of man, inspired by Christ, shall in time find a way to conquer crime and vice and misery and all forms of inhumanity and demonstrate this wonderful proposition of the great Teacher that good can overcome evil.

"Glory to God in the highest," that put into a human soul, into the mind and heart of Jesus Christ, the power to produce the blessings of our day, even if it has taken twenty centuries to produce and takes twenty centuries more to complete!

What gift shall we bring to the Christ today? This is not a festival to us, it is the Christ festival. It is his birthday we celebrate, and it is meet that we present Him a gift. Is it not still a new thought that Jesus actually wants a present from us? He has all the riches of heaven at his disposal but there is one thing he cannot have until we give it to Him. I can imagine a wealthy man surrounded by innumerable gifts still craving one. And then I can imagine his child coming to him with, let us say, a crude, homely little pen-wiper she herself has made for his polished mahogany desk. As that father holds that child to his heart his measure is complete. The rich man could command many

"The Coming of Christ"

SUBJECT of REV. ALBERT G. WARNER'S CHRISTMAS
SERMON at the BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. Albert Gardner Warner preached two eloquent Christmas sermons at the Baptist church last Sunday. The services in the morning were marked by special music and in the evening the cantata, "The Birth of Christ," was rendered under the direction of Organist Brown. The church auditorium was beautifully decorated appropriate to the season.

Rev. Mr. Warner's evening sermon was on "The Coming of Christ," his text being selected from I Timothy 1:15—"This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptance, that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief." He said in part: "The Christmas festival is at hand. We celebrate the birth of Jesus Christ. The history of more than nineteen centuries is inseparably associated with the name of Jesus. His name is indelibly stamped upon our civilization and woven into our literature. It is because our welfare is inseparably joined with the name, the life, the teachings, the deeds, and the personality of Jesus, it is because in Jesus as in no other one, we find a revelation of God and a promise of salvation; because we discover Jesus to be not merely a Jew or a genius, nor a philanthropist, but a son of man who is also the Son of God in whom God shows Himself for our enlightenment, for our comfort and our emancipation, that His birthday has become the great glad day of all Christendom.

"Our deepest needs are spiritual. Love and truth and righteousness have a value greater than any material possessions and until these are found an unrest possesses our soul.

"Jesus Christ meets the deepest needs of our spirit. In Him, our cry for God, our longing for peace, our capacity for hope find a response and supply not found in anyone else.

"Jesus Christ is related to all the various phases of our life. He is in touch with childhood and age, with manhood and womanhood, with the rich and the poor, with the ignorant and the wise, with the good and the bad. It was said of Him 'His name shall be called Jesus for He shall save His people from their sins.' His supreme relation to men is that of Saviour. 'Faithful is the saying and worthy of all acceptance that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.'

"Men have speculated about Him and debated about Him, but they have not known Him until they have known Him as a Saviour from sin and unrest and despair. He showed truth in a character of perfect sweetness and symmetry and costly gifts, but he could not command his child's unselfish love, this she alone could give.

Jesus wants the gift of our hearts. Let us picture to ourselves one great Christmas tree extending from earth to heaven, and on it all the unselfish gifts we have bestowed this day to one another. A Christmas tree indeed for the Christ child, but not complete, until it is illuminated by hearts aflame with sincerest love for Him.

"O blessed babe of Mary,
We worship thee, our King,
O deity incarnate
To thee our praise we sing.

Accept our heart's devotion,
Receive our homage due,
Bestow on us thy blessing
Create our hearts anew."

The Vesper service at 5 o'clock proved a distinct feature of the Christmas services at the Congregational church. This was held under the auspices of the Harmony Guild, and served to take the place of the regular Sunday school concert. In fact, several numbers on the program were taken by the children of the Primary Sunday school. The church was very attractively decorated, strength and lived in subjection to the law of love. Thus He relates Himself to our humanity as a divine—human Saviour. Beneath all the festivity which so fitly marks the Christmas season is this truth—Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners and to save them from their sins. In this truth we can find the solution of life's darkest problems and the spring of inexhaustible hope and joy.

"THE COMING OF CHRIST"

"All the progress of mankind is but the fulfillment of God's purpose personally revealed in Jesus Christ. See how Jesus has touched and changed society. As the Babe of Bethlehem, He has consecrated infancy. As the Child of Mary, He has consecrated womanhood and maternity. As the Son of Man, He has raised the world's ideal of character and given a practical application of the law of love to human society. Life is not meant to be a perpetual strife and hurtful competition but a fellowship, a mutual service, a strife for one another instead of a strife against one another. The Christmas spirit in its purity must circle the year as the embodied truth and righteousness and love of God. When we consider our individual condition and see that to Jesus Christ we are indebted for our personal sense of Divine mercy and forgiveness and help and guidance, when we think of the hopes and aspirations and motives that He has awakened in our hearts, we have some just conception of what we owe Him and we begin to understand why we are moved to celebrate His birth. When we reflect on what Jesus has done and is doing for society, the home, parents, children, the oppressed, the poor, the miserable; when we think of the promise of good in His teaching then we begin to see why the world should observe the Christmas festival. The world is unspeakably better because that Babe smiled in the manger at Bethlehem. Life is more humane and richer for us because He came. The burdens and sorrows of life are lighter because the "Man of sorrows bore our sins in His own body on the tree." We have hope and heart to face life's darkest hours and fight manfully its fiercest battles with doubt and wrong, because Jesus lived, labored, suffered, and stood fast. Thus demonstrating the presence of God in His world and the reality of His love and care for us—His weaker children.

"We have hope and heart to confront death's solemn mystery because Jesus died and rose again from the dead. We have faith and comfort in God because He who came forth from the bosom of God has shown us God's heart. We have nothing of good that is not bound up with the life, personality and thought of Jesus our Lord. Let us be followers of Him. Let us be humble learners of His truth. Let us know Him and the power of His resurrection and yield all our life to His blessed rule. This is the true Christmas joy. To give ourselves to His service and so give ourselves to humanity and to God, this is the true and priceless Christmas gift."

At the morning service Rev. Mr. Warner preached on "The Message of Bethlehem," with text from St. Luke II:12. He said that the order of Christ's life was the manger with its lowliness, the cross with its suffering, the throne with its glory; these are the three steps to immortal life. The message of the manger is the message of salvation. Bethlehem stands for love. There God uttered His love to men in the person of Jesus. Bethlehem stands for peace. The first thing Christ brought to the world was peace. The last thing He left to the world was peace. Bethlehem stands for joy. Christmas is set apart not only for joyfulness, but also to teach the world the joy producing power of the Christian religion.

The Christmas Tree exercises at the Baptist church, Saturday evening, were of unusual interest to the younger people. The vestry had been transformed into a veritable bower of greenery and the Christmas colors on the platform a background of green set off effectively the silver cross, outlined by electric lights. The Star of the East with rays of evergreen was another attractive feature. But of all the decorations none appealed more to the children than the handsomely trimmed and heavily laden tree. Prior to the distribution of gifts the following program was presented: Scripture and Prayer. Song, Xmas Songs of Long Ago. Recitation, Howard Fleming. Solo, Rocking, Bernice Lee. Recitation, Xmas Wishes. Recitation, Bessie Harris. Recitation, Alice Carter. Chorus, Xmas Bells. Recitation, William Matheson. Solo, Melissa Stanley. Recitation, Grace Salter. Song, Be Happy. Remarks, Pastor.

Observed Silver Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. K. Fleming observed the 25th anniversary of their marriage at their residence on Desmond avenue, Manchester, last Friday evening. Wm. K. Fleming and Alice Wiggins were married by Rev. Mr. Lamson at Manchester, December 22, 1886. Four sons blessed their union, Frank and Walter of Lynn and George and Howard, the latter 15 and 7 years respectively.

The observance took the form of an informal reception and family reunion. Many friends called to extend congratulations and leave material reminders of good will and regard in the form of silver, cut glass and purses of silver, of the latter there being two. A check of generous proportions was received from Dr. Fleming of King's County, New Brunswick, brother of Mr. Fleming.

Among the out of town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fleming and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fleming of Lynn, Charles Fleming from Salem and Mr. and Mrs. Eli Martin of Beverly.

Christmas was made an enjoyable occasion for those at the Town Farm. As usual a Christmas tree was provided and there was a present for everybody. This was made possible largely through the generosity of Mrs. William A. Russell (Miss Head) and Mrs. Edward L. Wood of Brookline.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lodge spent Christmas with Mrs. Lodge's family in Lowell.

Miss Clara Winthrop has been renewing her cordial hospitality most generously during the Christmas season, her bungalow at West Manchester being the scene of several happy parties. Last Saturday she gave a party to the children of several households in the community, and on this occasion also she had some of the boys from St. Paul's church down from Boston. Everybody was well remembered by Santa Claus, who was helped from a marvellous chimney by some of the boys. Dainty refreshments were served and the St. Paul boys sang several Christmas carols. Tuesday Miss Winthrop entertained another large party.

One of the largest and happiest family gatherings of the Christmas season was that at the home of Patrolman and Mrs. J. Warren Lee on Rosedale avenue, when nineteen sat down for the Christmas dinner. The ages varied from 80 to 2½ years. Four generations were represented. Those present included Mr. Lee's mother, Mrs. Abbie T. Lee of West Manchester; Mrs. Lee's mother, Mrs. Stone, who makes her home with them; Mr. and Mrs. Rollo Eldridge and little daughter of Harwichport; Cyrus Weeks, two daughters and son of Boston; Benjamin Stone of Boston, and N. A. Lee and family of Lynn.

Mrs. Ellery Rogers entertained the members of her bible class at her home on North street Tuesday night. Each member brought a friend, and a jolly time was enjoyed. A cobweb party proved a most enjoyable feature. The class each received a pretty gift and the invited guests were not forgotten. Mrs. Rogers was pleasantly surprised when the class presented her with a handsome gift. Refreshments of ice cream, cake and candy were served.

Harmony Guild will hold its annual meeting for the election of officers and payment of dues, at the chapel, Monday, January 1st. Supper will be served at 6.30. Every member is urged to be present.

Miss May Rogers will act as organist at the Baptist church, Sunday.

The annual meeting of the Congregational church, called for last evening, was again postponed. The meeting will now be held next Tuesday evening in place of the regular prayer meeting.

Allen WRC held its annual Christmas tree at G A R hall, Wednesday evening. Allen Post, G A R and Col. H. P. Woodbury camp, S of V were guests.

Rev. L. H. Ruge will preach at the Congregational church Sunday morning on "The Story of Years"; in the evening on "The Value of Wisdom."

Too True

It is only too true that the children of American parents who are surrounded by every evidence of affection and care are unmindful and negligent of the opportunities which are laid before them and to be had for the grasping. Such a fact stands out when the alien, living perhaps in a squalid home without encouragement or apparent prospects, sets himself to the task of redeeming his time. It has been proven over and over again in experience that the lad who appreciates his college training is not the one who has had the opportunity thrust upon him, but the one who has had to fight to obtain the chance and then to work hard to redeem the opening which has been obtained.

Dr. N. C. Schaeffer, the state superintendent of schools and public instruction in Pennsylvania, has done the public a good service in his forceful warning to the young American and his parents. He says "Children born of foreign parents realize the advantages thus placed within their reach. Many of them study with a zeal and earnestness which will make them winning competitors alongside of American youth, who waste their time at social functions and in the gratification of self, instead of practising the self-denial which lies at the foundation of all true success."

This ought not to be, but the conditions will doubtless continue and the unfit will be left behind in the race for supremacy and the strong will win. It remains for the individual American boy to determine whether he will seize or neglect the opportunities which are his for the having and redeeming.

The Indian Durbar

By a facetious and ingenious appellation the king and queen of England have been called the Emperor and Empress of India. Three times now has a Durbar been held, the first crowning the good Queen Victoria in 1877. At this Durbar the Queen was represented by Lord Lytten. The second Durbar acclaimed King Edward VII the Emperor and the Queen, Empress of India. The King and Queen were not present in person. At the Durbar held on the 12th of December their majesties the King and Queen of England were present in person. This Durbar consequently was the first Durbar given at which the Crowned Heads of England were present in person. The elaborate, spectacular and impressive ceremonies were held at Delhi. History will record as one of the items of the events the transfer of the Capital of India from Calcutta to Delhi. The demonstration cost millions of dollars but doubtless the English government believed that the spirit of Good Will likely to be created by such a celebration would be worth all it cost. This remains to be seen.

The Problem of the Battleship Maine

In 1898 the Sampson board of investigation declared that the Battleship Maine had been blown up from without by a charge of low tension explosives placed forward and was followed by an interior explosion of the forward magazines of the Maine. For years Congress has dallied over the task of removing the hulk for various reasons not the least among them being the fear that perhaps a later investigation would reveal that the Maine had been blown up from within from perfectly explicable causes. Now the work has been completed and the fears have been dissipated although no light has been actually thrown upon the tragedy and perhaps it is well that it should thus remain shrouded in mystery. It is satisfying, however, whatever view one may take of the war, to really know that the United States government did not precipitate a war because of an alleged act of treachery which was discovered only to be an explicable accident. The later returns corroborate the earlier work so accurately that it is a praiseworthy comment upon the efficiency and skill of the first board of investigation.

Men and Religion

A Men and Religion Forward Movement has been inaugurated by a group of enterprising men, and the campaigns will be conducted this winter in many of our American cities. Locally the City of Boston will begin the work of the movement which will be followed by lesser campaigns in and around Boston. The City of Beverly was made a centre and a series of meetings will be held from Thursday afternoon to Sunday evening one of the weeks of late February. An intelligent study is to be made of local conditions by aggressive committees and the speakers are to use these details as the basis of their activities and their speeches.

The Saturday afternoon and evening of that week in Beverly is to be made the boys' and men's day. In the evening a mass meeting will be held in old Beverly to magnify the work of the Bible schools and the study of the Bible. The Bible classes of the district have committed themselves to the work of developing an interest in this evening's program. On Sunday evening there will be a mass meeting for men held in one of the churches. At Beverly Farms and North Beverly similar meetings will be simultaneously held. The movement is well organized. Its great danger will lay in the multiplication of organization but if the regular channels are used with discretion and good judgment, wholesome results ought to be forthcoming.

The Minimum Wage

A thorough study has been made by the commission appointed by the state legislature to investigate the wages of women workers in Massachusetts and a report will be made to the incoming legislature. The movement has the entire sympathy of every thoughtful citizen and the report is awaited with interest. It will be read with interest not alone by women workers affected individually by the report or the employers to be affected by the passing of laws suggested by the commission, but every citizen, the ultimate consumer and payer of the bills.

Let the price for the commodity increase if need be. There is an ethical and social obligation laid upon every purchaser to see that the price paid for any article of merchandise or any commodity is ample to provide a just return to the worker under wholesome conditions.

There ought to be a minimum wage established for the problem is really a moral problem and society has no right to oppress any class of its citizens. The argument of Fish against the passage of a minimum wage law does reveal a possible danger in the new law if inaugurated, but it will be as nothing compared with the evils tolerated by the present conditions. This is a wholesome social activity and will have the approval of every thoughtful citizen.

The Average Citizen

Former President Roosevelt never chose a more practical theme for an address than his Christmas address at Oyster Bay this year. He says: "I don't care how big a man may be, he is tiny in comparison with the mass of men who must work with him to bring any real success. The big man must learn humility if he is to do his work well. If he does not realize how small he is in comparison with other men and women, he will not help the world go on. We must have the right man in the right position, but the work of any leader sinks into insignificance compared with the work of the average citizen."

This is a mighty truth. The leaders are given a position of advantage and are expected to lead, but if there be no one to follow who can lead. A leader must have followers. The significant thing about Mr. Roosevelt's addresses about the "square deal," "the necessity for political righteousness," for "fair play and honesty in capital and labor," lays not so much in the fact that they are the expressions of the convictions of Mr. Roosevelt, citizen, but that he has given expression to the convictions which are voiced by an unheard and unknown mass of honorable average citizens. It is the following of a righteous contingency which will make a righteous leader powerful. Single handed, he can only fail—sustained, the way opens for progress and success.

Christmas Cheer

Judge Sumner D. York has done a kind and enduring work in the establishment of the Sailor's Snug Harbor, a home for aged fishermen in Gloucester, which was opened on Christmas Day. This social activity was a real and Christian celebration of the day of Christ. After a long and tedious but pleasant work of two years the dreams of its founders have been consummated. Two years ago the Judge called in Dr. John Dixwell, a well known Boston philanthropist, and a fund was quickly raised. The home resulted from Judge York's recognition of the needs of these old men. Every year old fishermen had voluntarily come to him and plead guilty of vagrancy and have requested that they be sent to Ipswich. They were old and unable to work. To spare honorable men the ignominy of a vagrancy charge the home was established. John Hays Hammond became interested in the good work for these men and the Colby estate was purchased and a superintendent engaged. So Christmas was a real day to these old salts who have at last found a "snug harbor." Let the good work go on!

The Police Pension

The Policemen's Pension campaign committee and the entire force of the Beverly police department rejoiced Christmas week over the successful campaign for Beverly's adoption of the pension question. A hearing was given early in the fight and representative citizens filed letters of approval and made speeches in favor of the act. After passing the board of aldermen and success seemed assured, the bill was vetoed by the mayor. But the bill was passed over the veto. The act does not provide for a "service pension," but for disability pension, an entirely different matter. The service pension often opens the way for many injustices. This is evident particularly in New York where after a service of years, able-bodied men have retired to take up other lines of work the remuneration of which enhanced by their pension would give them an income far in advance of their earning ability when even in their prime. The Beverly act provides for a pension in proportion to the number of years served to be paid to all policemen disabled while in the actual discharge of their duty and using the usual care and good judgment. The bill will not be an expense of great moment and the community ought to bear the added burden with cheerfulness.

"Our Dumb Animals"

The January issue of "Our Dumb Animals" has reached us in most attractive new dress. The heavy illustrated covers are of coated stock (very similar to the Breeze) done in four colors, and new type is used in the text.

This "National and International Magazine," which "speaks for those that cannot speak for themselves," is the official organ of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals—"The American Humane Education Society."

The leading article of the magazine is entitled "The Social Relations of Men and Animals." Its author is Benjamin Ide Wheeler, LL.D., since 1899 President of the University of California, and one of the foremost scholars in the country.

The human ingenuity of animals is exemplified in Robert B. Rockwell's beautifully illustrated article on the "Wonder Working Beaver."

Ernest Harold Baynes in his article on "Before the Fur Reaches the Counter" sounds a humane note in the awful agonies animals go through for the vanity and comfort of human beings.

Edward Howe Forbush, a recognized authority on economic ornithology, has a timely article on "Why Stop the Sale of Game-birds?"

An illustrated article on the Angell Memorial Animals' Hospital is of great interest also. The new hospital will stand in Boston's most beautiful section with the new Art Museum, Grand Opera House and YMCA as neighbors. The magnitude and far-reaching work of the MSPCA is significant when one realizes that the cost and equipment of the new hospital will be $250,000.

There are the usual number of illustrated articles on household pets, how to care for them and regard them and many other departments all tending toward this widespread work of mercy and care of animals.

So many of our readers are lovers and owners of dumb animals, beloved household pets, we cordially and heartily urge them to become regular readers of this famous little magazine which is branching out so broadly in its chosen mission.

The engagement of Miss Marion Gertrude Scott, sister of Mrs. Frank Bullock, and Paul Barron Webber, 'Teach '07, of Bedford, was announced Tuesday evening at the residence of Mrs. Bullock through the medium of a very enjoyable engagement party tendered Miss Scott by her sister. Among the twelve friends from Manchester and out of town, who gathered to tender congratulations and enjoy the attendant festivities were Miss Alice Jacobs of Danielson, Ct., and Miss Dorothy Tuttle of New Jersey. The evening's amusements included the playing of hearts, music and solo dancing by Miss Alice Knight of Manchester, and Pomfret, Ct. The dining room where light refreshments were served was very attractively decorated in the holiday colors, greenery and poinsettias. Little envelopes with attached white ribbons were hidden among the greenery of the table adornment. When these were drawn out by the guests, the engagement announcement was found therein. The bride-elect drew out her engagement ring. The occasion was one of the most pleasurable of the holiday season for Miss Scott's coterie of friends. Miss Scott is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Scott of Norwood avenue. She is an accomplished violinist.

Following the resignation of Miss Helen Boyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Boyle of Summer street, as a teacher in the Winthrop schools, comes the announcement of the engagement of Miss Boyle and Oswald Tower of North Adams. The announcement was made yesterday afternoon in a very social and fitting manner by Miss Boyle. Fourteen friends were bidden to enjoy her hospitality at her Summer street home. In the dining room where refreshments were served, the decorations were of pink roses and maiden hair ferns. Dainty favors reposed at each plate containing the announcement. This noon Miss Boyle gave a luncheon party at her home to five out of town friends to whom her engagement was announced. They were Ethel Studley, Hingham; Edith Smith, Woburn; Cora Wise, Jamaica Plain; Bessie Lewis, Winthrop, and Mrs. Arthur Collins, Melrose. Miss Boyle, who has a very attractive and winning personality received the hearty felicitations of her numerous friends. Miss Boyle was graduated from Wellesley in 1907.

About this time each year the Beverly Farms girls and boys begin to get anxious over their skating pond, with which in the past they have had much trouble and often the skating has been poor. Now it seems that they are likely to have provided for them one of the best skating ponds in the city. Running through a section of the new playground, known as the Mill pond lot, is the brook which can be dammed up at a slight expense and plenty of water provided for the flooding of a surface 350 feet long and 50 feet wide and retaining walls built along the sides, will allow a depth of two feet of water, as planned by city engineer Whitney. The work on the playgrounds under D. Linehan & Son, is progressing and will be ready for use the coming spring. Funds for the playground improvement and equipment have been provided principally through the generosity of summer residents. The work has been in charge of a committee of which Rept. John L. Saltonstall is the chairman, with the members of the park commission.

Nine cases of scarlet fever have been reported to the board of health

Deeds have been recorded at the Essex South Registry transferring title to 8000 square feet of land on the southwesterly side of Rockaway avenue, Clifton, with a frontage of 100 feet on the avenue from Lucy T. Ware of Marblehead to George C. Dutton of the Houghton & Dutton Company. This land is within a short distance of Mr. Dutton's summer home, and plans are being drawn for the erection of a private garage to be completed for next summer's use.

The summer house and land owned by the estate of Charles E. Billings of Newton, at Magnolia Point, which was sold to Costello C. Converse, of Boston, brought a fancy price. The price is stated to be about $40,000 and the property is assessed for $12,800. The land includes about 40,000 square feet and the property is located near the end of the point. Johnathan May was the real estate agent who closed the sale.

It is said that H. C. Frick has purchased the 80-acre Frank Dodge farm, near Thompson Corner, Centerville (North Beverly). This will give Mr. Frick possession of nearly all of the land, with the exception of a small piece, clear around to the handsome Ayers summer home on the "Hill."

The beautiful Italian garden of Mrs. Robert D. Evans at Burgess Point, Beverly, is receiving hundreds of loads of soil from various portions of Beverly, many teams being engaged in the hauling. The point will be one of the show places of the Beverly shore and represents an expenditure of perhaps $100,000.

B. F. Keith's Theatre

For the first week of the New Year at his beautiful playhouse, Mr. B. F. Keith has arranged one of the strongest and best balanced bills of the season. No less than five headline features are promised, including several attractions new to Boston. Edgar Atchison Ely & Co. will appear in a condensed version of that merriest of farces, "Billy's Tombstones," which enjoyed a long Broadway run last season. Dealing with the mishaps that befall a football hero who embarks on a steamer for Florida with his sweetheart and her mother, and loses his false teeth on the first day out, there is a laugh in practically every line. Mr. Ely has the part of "Billy," the ex-football star, and he is supported by a splendid company. Frank Fogarty, the Dublin Minstrel, without question the best story teller now before the public, will return after a long absence with some two score of stories that have never before been heard in Boston. J. C. Nugent, the comedian, brings a new comedy from his own pen, "The Rounder," and a genuine novelty will be Prof. Fred Andrews' "Wonder Kettle," which contains a mysterious fluid that boils eggs, fries steaks, and freezes ice cream in the most astonishing manner.

"The Concert" at the Hollis.

"The Concert" is one of the best comedies that have been performed in Boston in the last twenty years." That is how Philip Hale, dramatic critic of the Boston Herald characterizes David Belasco's production that is now playing at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston, and which will continue there until January 13th. This is the play that ran a year at Belasco's Theatre in New York. It is a triumph of high comedy acting and is produced as no other manager but Belasco presents his plays.

Originally "The Concert" was a German play by Herman Bahr and it was Americanized by Leo Ditrichstein, who plays the principal part in it. It is a delightful satire on the tendency of women to worship at the shrine of a musical genius. Gabor Arany is a great musician. He plays the piano divinely and his feminine worshipers are legion. Women flock to his home in New York, flirt with him and willingly pay him $10 a lesson. Some of the women fall in love with him. All the while the musician's wife, a sensible American woman, remains in the background.

Arany, the musician, is a creature of temperament, "a spoiled child," his wife calls him. He thrives on female adoration. To him the women are everything. He accepts their flowers and makes them pretty speeches. Occasionally he disappears from home and goes to his bungalow in the Catskill mountains. On one trip there he is accompanied by one of his married women pupils. Another pupil, jealous because the musician does not show any affection for her, suspects where they have gone and informs the musician's wife and the married woman's sane husband.

The runaways are followed by the deserted pair and two of the three acts take place in the bungalow. The complications that ensue there are very funny. The runaway pair are soon penitent and beg to be forgiven. It all ends happily.

There will be Wednesday and Saturday matinees of "The Concert." The night performances are over in plenty of time for suburbanites to get their trains.

One of the important means of recovering gold is by dredging. The Geological Survey reports that in 1910 gold to the amount of nearly $10,000,000 was recovered in this way by 113 dredges, most of it coming from California.

WE enjoyed it the more because, in a sense, its very unusual in here—ours being a business that ordinarily does not draw any great crowds, so the having a throng of people is rather novel with us. And a throng it was, sure, that visited here this year—a happy throng, making many a purchase.

NOW, if by any chance, and you remember about the weather, anything was received not exactly as you'd want it, please take notice that 'twas delivered not at all as we would like, and we'll esteem it a great favor if you'll allow us the opportunity of making it right. Again, if you've received duplicates, or want something different, just call without any hesitancy, and have anything exchanged.

Your Christmas Money---What are You going to do with it?

For Personal Adornment and Intrinsic Value Diamonds Excel

OUR DIAMOND DEPARTMENT

In the purchase of diamonds, almost more than any other article of merchandise, one has to depend upon the knowledge, integrity and reliability of the dealer, as few people, aside from experts, know the essential characteristics that determine their value. Intuitive knowledge must be supplemented by experience in handling them.

This is the reason why diamonds can be so advantageously purchased from us, and there are many reasons why we can give you the best possible value for the amount you wish to invest.

Because of the very large quantity of diamonds we sell we have exceptional facilities for securing the choicest gems, and at the present time we have a very complete stock of diamonds, many of them purchased at prices below those prevailing at present. They will be sold at a very close margin of profit over the actual cost. All our purchases are for cash and our mail order business is distinctly on a cash basis. The expense of this department in connection with our very large business is relatively small and we are enabled to sell at a much smaller margin of profit than the average dealer.

When we sell diamonds we invite comparison of quality and price, feeling absolutely certain that we can give you the greatest possible value for the amount you wish to pay. Should any stone fail to come up to your expectations it may be returned and the purchase price will at once be refunded. We carry in stock only pure white, perfectly cut, brilliant stones, and give most careful attention to correct mounting. We are always glad to submit special designs for diamonds and precious stone jewelry of any description and we make a special feature of resetting family gems.

On advice as to requirements and price limitation we will send for inspection anywhere in the United States, at our own risk, diamonds and other precious stones, to such intending purchasers as may be known to us who will send satisfactory references.
